Ug. ḡtr to kill (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 7 (1975):138 on l. 39), to plead (Herdner Corpus 24, 28 and Dietrich-L. Texte 1, 24:28; see bibliography in UF 7 (1975):138f) is also relevant to the semantic development of ḡtr in the chain: to kill

—to slaughter

—to sacrifice

—to plead; on this cf. Sabottka Zephania (BiblOr. 25 (1972):119; from Arb. ‘atara may also be derived a primary meaning for Heb. עֲתַר to plead with offerings, supplicate (KBL; vRad Theologie 1⁶:392²³); this may be supported by the sbst. II עֲתַר and Jb 33²⁶, where cultic ceremonies are presupposed, see vRad Theologie 1⁶:392, cf. also in this connection 2S 24²⁵; but usually עֲתַר shows no (longer any) connection with offerings, so ApThomas VT 6 (1956):240f and THAT 2:385f (where there is further bibliography).

פ, final form פ (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 59f); SamP. fi (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 5:265); Tg.^B, Tg.^J פּוּ/פּוּ; Sept. φη Ps 118; Greek πει; Eth. af (Nöldeke Beitr. 132); Ug. syllabic cuneiform [p]u (Cross-Lambdin BASOR 160:23f); Syr. pē; Arb. fā; later a numerical sign for 80; pictographically a mouth (Driver Sem. Wr. 157, 160); a voiceless bilabial plosive p, or a voiceless labio-velar spirant f; the post-vocalic spirantised pronunciation is later (→ ב); in Secunda פ is expressed as φ (φρασθ corresponding to פֶּרֶצַת Ps 89₄₁), and in Sept. mostly also as φ (Φαραν corresponding to פֶּרֶן), but occasionally as π (Ιωσηπος corresponding to יוֹסֵף, cf. Thackeray A Grammar of the OT in Greek 106); see Kahle *Geniza*² 180; in other Semitic languages it corresponds to p and interchanges with ב, cf. II בעל, בקע, ברזל; and also with מ, cf. שְׂמֹשׁ; within Heb. it interchanges with ב, cf. נֶפֶשׁ (נבש in Tell Arad), נשף, פקר; also with מ, cf. פלט, and also with נ, cf. פֶּעֶרִי (Kennedy Textual Amendment 99f).

פ: proclitic particle; vocalisation uncertain; Arb. fā then, OSArb. p (Conti Chrest. 217); otherwise only in North-West Semitic (Garbini Semitico 167f): Yaud. (also פא, Friedrich Fschr. Phil. 53f; Psalms 3:410; see further van Zijl AOAT 10 (1972) 101; also → פֶּ: Hos 4₂ 7₁ Ps 48₁₂ 50_{10f} 60₃₋₄ 64₈ 72₁₆ 74₃ 139₆ Jb 9₁₂₋₂₀ Pr 25_{7f} Song 3₁₀.

Because of the lack of any convincing proof for this supposed particle פ, it is best to deny it a place in Biblical Heb., see Driver JSS 10 (1965) 116 (in a review of Dahood Proverbs), who speaks of “the invention of a Hebrew pa* corresponding to Ugaritic p- and Arabic fā”.

Μεσσοποταμία (Συρία); the name פְּדָן is perhaps preserved in Tell Feddān, according to the mediaeval Arab geographers a village near Carrhae, see Gesenius-B.; Simons Geog. §379; Reicke-R. Hw. 1361; etymology of פְּדָן uncertain, for possibilities see de Vaux Histoire 1:189: 1. from Akk. padānu (AHw. 807f) track, way; the word harrānu has a similar meaning and may have given rise to the place name Harran; פְּ would have been the original name of the town; 2. by analogy with אֶרֶץ אֶרֶץ Hos 12₁₃ אֶרֶץ אֶרֶץ could mean plain, as is possible for paddānā (faddān) in JArm., Syr., Arb.; however dictionaries suggest only yoke, team (of oxen) and plough, with the latter occurring also in Mnd. (Drower-M. Dictionary 359f); for the meanings yoke and field see also צִמּוֹד and MHeb. נִיר (field), Arm. נִיר (also field); therefore the first suggestion seems more likely than the second. †

(Jean-H. Dictionnaire 235 = RB 60 (1953) 270 line 3; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 935 prh I); JArm. פָּרְתָא young cow; Sam. פָּר, pl. פָּרִימוֹן, fem. pl. פָּרוֹאן (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 2:561); Syr., Mnd. pārā/parrā, fem. partā/parratā lamb (Drower-M. Dictionary 362b); Akk. parru lamb, young sheep; parratu ewe lamb (AHw. 834b); Arb. furār the young of a sheep, goat, wild cow (Lane 2356b), fārīr the young of a wild animal, of a gazelle and of a bovine (Lane 2356b); Ug. pr, prr bull, young cow (Gordon Textbook §19:2122, 2125), young ox, young cow (Aistleitner 2260); steer, cow (Fisher Parallels 1: p. 439 entry 100): פָּר but always הַפָּר, בַּפָּר etc. (Bauer-L. Heb. 263m), pl. פָּרִים, sf. פָּרִיָּה (132 times); Elliger Lev. 69; Péter VT 25 (1975) 486-492: traditionally bullock (Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Lex.) :: Péter loc. cit.: bull, steer.

—1. a. sometimes the animal is a young one cj. 1S 1₂₄ for בְּפָרִים שְׁלֹשָׁה prp. with Sept., cf. 4QSamuel, בַּפָּר מִשְׁלֹשׁ (Stoebe KAT 8/1:99); see perhaps also Gn 32₁₆;

—b. פָּר elsewhere it is an adult animal פָּר שִׁבְעַת שָׁנִים Ju 6₂₅ (dl. הַשָּׁנִי see BHS and L. Schmidt WMANT 38 (1970) 6: so also in v. 26); in metaphorical usage it is also assumed to be adult: פָּרִים: personal enemies Ps 22₁₃, people who are in power Is 34₇ Jr 50₂₇ Ezk 39₁₈, see 2;

—c. פָּר בְּנֵי־בָקָר Ex 29₁ (and 27 times in Lv, Nu, Ezk) and the pl. פָּרִים בְּנֵי־בָקָר Nu 28₁₁₋₁₉₋₂₇ 29₁₃₋₁₇ does not indicate the age but the type of animal; according to Péter VT 25 (1975) 492 the additional phrase בָּקָר־בְּנֵי/בְנֵי recalls an earlier usage when פָּר signified the male of any type of animal, as is evident in the meaning of the substantive in Syr. and Mnd., also in Arb.;

—d. the less frequent expression פָּר־הַשּׂוֹר Ju 6₂₅ is probably to be understood in the same way as c above, see Péter VT 25 (1975) 490; cj. Ju 6₂₈ for הַפָּר הַשָּׁנִי prp. פָּר הַשּׂוֹר (L. Schmidt WMANT 38 (1970) 6).

—2. the predominant meaning of פָּר in the OT is a sacrificial animal, with Gn 32₁₆ Ps 22₁₃ as the only exceptions; the metaphorical usage in Is 34₇ Jr 50₂₇ Ezk 39₁₈ is concerned with the practice of sacrificing:

—a. outside cultic regulations: Ex 24₅ Nu 23₁₋₃₀ Ju 6_{25f-28} see 1 b, d; 1S 1_{24f} see 1 a; 1K 18_{23ff} Is 1₁₁ Ps 50₉ 51₂₁ 69₃₂ (פָּר מִקְרָן מִפָּרִים): bull with horns and hoofs), Jb 42₈ Ezr 8₃₅ 1C 15₂₆ 29₂₁ 2C 13₉ 29₂₁ 30₂₄;

—b. within cultic regulations, for various sacrifices and on different occasions, see Gesenius-B., Lv 4³⁻²¹ 8^{2.14-17} 16³⁻²⁷ 23¹⁸ Nu 7¹⁵⁻⁸⁸ 8^{8.12} 15²⁴ 28¹¹⁻²⁸ 29²⁻³⁷ Ezk 43¹⁹⁻²⁵ 45¹⁸⁻²⁴ 46^{6f.11};

—c. Hos 14³ וְנִשְׁלַמָּה פְּרִים שְׁפָתֵינוּ text uncertain, on the meaning see Gordis VT 5 (1955) 88f; there are at least four suggested solutions:

—i. cj. for פְּרִים rd. with Sept. פְּרִי (e.g. KBL; BHS; NRSV: we will offer the fruit of our lips): similarly cj. rd. פְּרִי מִשֵּׁ פְּרִי, see Rudolph KAT 13/1:248;

—ii. for פְּרִים rd. פְּרִי/מִפְּרִים, i.e. cstr. + enclitic mēm (O'Callaghan VT 4 (1954) 171; Gordis VT 5 (1955) 88f; Wolff BK 14/1²:300, 301);

—iii. rd. פְּרִי שְׁפָתֵינוּ מִהַפְּרִים instead of with פְּרִים, the fruit of our lips (Rudolph KAT 13/1:246, 247f);

—iv. dl. שְׁחָפְרִים: we will pay פְּרִים ! (Willi-Plein BZAW 123 (1971) 230; REB: we will pay our vows with cattle from our pens); for further suggestions see Gordis VT 5 (1955) 88f and Rudolph KAT 13/1:248; the preferred interpretations are the two first suggested (i or ii).

Der. ? פָּרוּי, פָּרוּז, פְּרוּזוֹת, פְּרוּזוֹן, פָּרוּז*

*פָּרוּ or *פָּרוּז: פָּרוּ, Q pl. with sf. פָּרוּזוֹ, K ? פָּרוּז; hapax legomenon Hab 3₁₄, Sept. genitive δυναστῶν, Vulg. bellatorum; suggested meanings: 1. with MT:

—a. from Arb. faraza to muster, select, farz distinctive mark, mafrūz distinguished, פָּפְרוּז leader (Rudolph KAT 13/3:232, 237); similarly Driver ALUOS 4 (1962-63) 8: from Arb. faraza I to separate, IV to distinguish, differentiate → פָּרוּזוֹן; cf. REB: their leaders are swept away by a whirlwind (following sense of NEB) :: NRSV: warriors (with Sept.);

—b. from פָּרוּזוֹן, פָּרוּז and therefore: country people, slaves, adherents (Albright Fschr. T.H. Robinson 17; Keller CAT 11b:174); 2. cj.:

—a. פְּרָשָׁיו his horsemen (e.g. KBL);

—b. רִזְנִים princes (Humbert Hab. 66). †

7721 פְּרָזוֹן

פְּרָזוֹן: פְּרוֹז; *פְּרוֹז; *פְּרוֹז/פְּרוֹז + ōn (qatalān > qetālōn: Bauer-L. Heb. 498c; R. Meyer Gramm. §41:1a; cf. Barth Nominalbildung §193: collective ending -ōn): sf. פְּרוֹזוֹנוֹ: Ju 5⁷⁻¹¹: meaning disputed, see Gesenius-B.; Zorell Lex.:

—a. from MHeb. פְּרוֹז → *פְּרוֹז with Pesh., Tg. people from the open country (e.g. KBL), peasants (e.g. Hertzberg ATD 9:171);

—b. from Arb. faraza → *פְּרוֹז/פְּרוֹז guidance (Weiser ZAW 71 (1959) 76f), leader (Richter BBB 18² (1966) 72); bravery, or alternatively leadership (Driver ALUOS 4 (1962-63) 8); warrior (Craigie VT 22 (1972) 350);

—c. from OSArb. frdn iron (Conti Chrest. 220a); פְּרָזוֹן < parzon* iron, as a dialect by-form of בְּרִיל (Garbini JSS 23 (1978) 23f and Ackroyd JSS 24 (1979) 19f).

Because of MHeb. פְּרוֹז, the meaning of which is clearly present also in the substantive פְּרָזוֹת and פְּרָזִי, the first suggestion (a) is probably the most likely explanation. †

Cross Canaanite Myth and Hebrew Epic 70f; THAT 2:498-507; Gesenius-B. 671b with further, earlier bibliography).

—1. statistics (THAT 2:498f): 285 times (missing from Genesis-Judges, also from Joel, Job, Daniel, Nehemiah, 2 Chronicles); 1S five times, 2S six times, 1K three times, 2K twice, Is 62 times, Jr 82 times, Hos once, Am nine times, Mi once, Nah twice, Hab once, Zeph twice, Hag 14 times, Zech 53 times, Mal 24 times, Ps 15 times, 1C three times.

—2. linguistic analysis: צְבָאוֹת occurs together with יְהוָה thus:

—a. יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת יְהוָה 265 times;

—b. יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵי (ה) צְבָאוֹת יְהוָה צְבָא 18 times (by-form of a, see THAT 2:499); it is disputed and difficult to decide whether the shorter phrase (a) represents the initial formula (Wambacq L'épithète divine Jahvé S±baœôt 100), which was expanded into the longer one, or whether the longer one is original (Koehler *Theologie*⁴ 32f; KBL) and later shortened; see further Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3:106f, and THAT 2:503f; the phraseology of both is traditionally considered to consist of the construct state, as suggested by Sept. κύριος τῶν δυνάμεων (as well as παντοκράτωρ and κύριος (θεός) σαβαωθ, see THAT 2:507); however צְבָאוֹת could also be an attribute, see 4 f, which would trace the shorter phrase back to the hypothetical formula El dū yahwī šaba'ôt “El, who creates the (heavenly) hosts”, so e.g. Cross loc. cit.; see further THAT 2:504 :: de Vaux Histoire 1:427f.

—3. concerning its origin, whether in its shorter or its longer form, according to 1S 1_{3,11} 4₄ the formula must have been used in the eleventh century in Shiloh, and was then used in the Jerusalem cult, and in the Southern Kingdom, although even in the Northern Kingdom it did not entirely disappear, cf. 1K 18₁₅ 19₁₀₋₁₄ 2K 3₁₄ and Ps 80 (a northern Israelite composition, see Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3:113ff, 221ff, 422f; THAT 2:506; W. Beyerlin Fschr. Gerh. Friedrich 13, 22) :: G. Wanke BZAW 97 (1966) 40-46, 107, who refrains from tracing any connections; the epithet was transmitted chiefly through prophecy.

—4. concerning the meaning and significance of the epithet (THAT 2:504f), the most important suggestions are:

—a. צְבָאוֹת means the troops of Israel with special reference to 1S 17₄₅, where יְהוָה צְבָאוֹת “God of the battle- formations of Israel” is mentioned (e.g. E. König Theologie des AT 161; D.W. Freedman JBL 79 (1960) 156; R. Smend FRLANT 84² (1966) 60); cf. also the connection between צְבָאוֹת and the military function of the ark, see Smend FRLANT 84² (1966) 60ff; F. Stolz ATANT 60 (1972) 45ff; Jeremias Fschr. von Rad (1971) 188;

—b. the stars (e.g. Koehler *Theologie*⁴ 32f);

—c. “the mythical natural powers of Canaan deprived of might” (Maag STU 20 (1950) 27-52; also Schicklberger Die Ladeerzählungen des ersten Samuel-Buches 27);

—d. the heavenly beings making up the heavenly household of Yahweh (e.g. Cross, loc. cit.);

—e. the epitome of all earthly and heavenly beings (Eichrodt Theologie);

—f. צְבָאוֹת, intensive abstract plural as a noun or adjective: צְבָאוֹת יְהוָה meaning Yahweh the almighty (one); אֱלֹהֵי צְבָאוֹת יְהוָה meaning Yahweh, God of omnipotence (Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3:103-123, esp. 110-113; Th.C. Vriezen Theologie des Alten Testaments in Grundzügen 124f; THAT 2:505f);

—g. of these suggestions the explanation as an intensive abstract plural (f) stands out prominently and can be supported by κύριος παντοκράτωρ in Sept., but against it is that unlike עֲצָה/עֲצוֹת and הָעֵה/הָעוֹת צְבָא is not an abstract but a concrete noun; however הַמְּוֹרֹת in Da 9₂₃ is perhaps comparable; but none of the other explanations is really impossible and it is conceivable that each of them corresponds to an intelligible and correct meaning in a particular period.

צָרוֹק: n.m. short form (Noth Personennamen 38); the corresponding full form can be assumed to be either a. a personal name with the perfect verb צָרַק (Noth Personennamen 189); or b. a personal name with (theophoric ?) צָרוֹק as noun, like מִלְכִי-צָרוֹק and אֲדֹנֵי-צָרוֹק (Zimmerli I Mose 12-25 45); since צָרוֹק must be ancient and probably a Canaanite personal name the second suggestion (b) is more likely; cf. personal names constructed with šidq/šdq in Amorite (Huffmon Personal Names 256f), Ug. 7895 צו

צו: צו. A. Hos 5₁₁ with אֲחֵרֵי הַלֵּךְ, Sept. ὀπίσω τῶν ματαίωσιν, Vulg. post sordem, Pesh. bātar sārīqtā after the vain, trivial, Tg. bātar māmōn dišqar, on Pesh. and Tg. see Rudolph KAT 13/1:124; meaning disputed.

—1. according to MT:

—a. צו human commands :: מִצְוֹת divine commands (Jacob CAT 11a:46, 49f);

—b. צו a vulgar expression sounding like שוֹא (Wolff BK 14/1²:134).

—2. cj.:

—a. with Sept., Pesh. rd. שוֹא, see BHS; NRSV: he was determined to go after vanity; REB: obstinately pursuing what is worthless (NEB: similar);

—b. צרו (KBL; BHS or צר; Rudolph KAT 13/1:124).

B. Is 28₁₀₋₁₃ צו in the sequence ... לָקוּ צו לָצוּ; the versions vary, see van Selms ZAW 85 (1973) 332-339, and Zorell Lex. 685a; meaning disputed, for appropriate suggestions see Gesenius-B.; Driver Fschr. D.W. Thomas 53-56; Kaiser ATD 18:195f; W. Dietrich Jesaja und die Politik 156; Wildberger BK 10: 1053f (without actually giving a translation); in all likelihood קו and צו are old names for letters of the alphabet which a teacher would use in lessons (here in Isaiah with mocking significance), so e.g. Fohrer Das Buch Jesaja 2:53; Kaiser loc. cit.; Dietrich loc. cit. (with bibliography); cf. —2. etymology questionable (see Gesenius-B.; Fohrer TWNT 7:293; KBL) but the following suggestions probably deserve to be considered:

—a. צִיָּה meaning castle, either from Arb. ṣāna (ṣwn) to protect, see KBL, or from ṣahwat back, crest of a hill, citadel, see Robinson VT 24 (1974) 122;

—b. meaning barren place, from צִיּוֹן, צִיָּה, see Dalman Jerusalem 126, also E. Otto RLA 5:280 and VT 30 (1980) 321; cf. Priebatsch ZDPV 91 (1975):19f;

—c. meaning bare hill, from [צָהוּהוּ] = צִיָּה, and cf. צִיּוֹן corresponding to Syr. ṣehyōn, see KBL.

—3. the meaning of the name:

—a. צִיּוֹן originally denotes a locality on the south-eastern hill of Jerusalem; an older description is צִיּוֹן צְרָתָה the stronghold of Zion 2S 5₇/1C 11₅; it was also named after its conqueror עִיר הַיְּהוּדָה 2S 5₇/1C 11₅ and 1K 8₁/2C 5₂;

8024 זָלַפְחָד

זָלַפְחָד: n.m. or name of a tribe; SamP. šālāfād; Sept. Σαλπιααδ, Josephus Σωλοφάντης (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 117); the meaning of the personal name is uncertain, see Noth Personennamen 256a; ? originally פַּחַד זָלַ: either meaning “shadow (refuge) from horror” see Noth Personennamen 256a and KBL; or “the relative is my shadow (protection)” or alternatively “The Shadow (The Refuge) is my relative” (Nielsen Shechem 262; H.P. Müller Monotheismus im alten Israel und in seiner Umwelt 120f); → I פַּחַד 3 b: descendant of Manasseh-Gilead, i.e. probably the ancestor of the affiliated clan Nu 26₃₃ Jos 17₃ 1C 7₁₅; זָלַפְחָד בְּנוֹת Nu 27₁₋₇ 36_{6-10f}, זָלַפְחָד בְּנוֹת Nu 36₂. †

8025 זָלַצַח

זָלַצַח: 1S 10₂, not explained with certainty, see Stoebe KAT 8/1:197, 206; possibilities include:

—a. an unidentified place name in Benjamin (Gesenius-B.; KBL) perhaps corresponding to II זָלַע 2S 21₁₄, see Stoebe KAT 8/1:197, 206;

—b. used as an appellative (cf. versions, see Stoebe KAT 8/1:197, 206; Zorell Lex.; BHS) as for example in:

—i. זָלַצַח בְּצֵל in glowing shadow (Zimolong ZAW 56 (1938) 175f);

—ii. זָלַצַח בְּצֵל in the shadow of a rock (Hertzberg ATD 10²:59⁹);

—iii. זָלַצַח אֶצֶל beside a bush (Caspari KAT 7 (1926) 111). †

8026 זָלַצַל

זָלַצַל: the two occurrences in the Old Testament both seem to be derived from different roots.

—1. Dt 28₄₂ זָלַצַל: I זָלַל; SamP. šālšāl; MHeb. זָרְצַר, JArm. זָרְצַר cricket; Sam. זָלַל(ו) cricket ?; Akk. šāširu, šaršaru cricket (AHw. 1086f; CAD Š: 115, šaršaru A); Syr. šaršūrā a species of locust (Brockelmann Lex. 639b); šešrā cricket (Brockelmann Lex. 636a); CPArm. šršr species of locust; OSArb. n.m. šršr cricket (Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 314); Arb. šaršūr, šuršūr, šaršar locust, cricket, cockroach (Nöldeke Beitr. 120f); cricket (KBL; cf. Aharoni Animals 478: Gryllotalpa vulgaris) or migratory cricket (Nöldeke Beitr. 121), cf. Gesenius-B.

—2. Is 18₁ cs. צְלִצְלִי: I or II צלל: כְּנַפְיִמְאָרְץ, meaning disputed:

—a. meaning as 1: the land of the winged cricket (KBL) or the land of the whirring wings (Gesenius-B.; ZürBib.; Kaiser ATD 18:74¹; cf. TOB; NRSV: whirring wings);

—b. צְלִצְלִי: II צלל, with Sept., Theodotion, Tg., Gesenius Thesaurus 1167f: boat (like Arm. צלצל); REB: a land of sailing ships, see Driver Fschr. Th.H. Robinson 56, and JSS 13 (1968) 45; Kinnier Wilson VT 25 (1975) 11¹; Barr Philology 334 entry 270; Wildberger BK 10:678, 679: land of the winged boats, meaning light ships; because of כְּלִי־גִמָּא in v. 2, the second of these alternatives (b) is probably preferable. †

8027 צְלִצְלִי

*צְלִצְלִי, Oriental צְלִצְלִי צְלִצְלִי (Kahle Text 74): I צלל, Bauer-L. Heb. 481d: cs. צְלִצְלִי; Jb 40₃₁ דְּגִים צְלִצְלִי traditionally fish harpoon (parallel with *שְׂכָה) :: Sept. ἐν πλοίοις ἀλιέων, on which see Kinnier Wilson VT 25 (1975) 11¹: = צְלִצְלִי/צְלִצְלִי 2b boat.

8028 צְלִצְלִים

—2. צְלִצְלִי parallel with תְּרוּעָה Ps 150₅; the difference cannot be determined with certainty:

—a. KBL צְלִצְלִי: שְׂצִצְלִי: small pans, clashed together from a short distance apart; צְלִצְלִי: large, resounding pans;

—b. Keel Bildsymb. p. 318: two different types of playing, e.g. restrained and forceful, for bib-liography including illustrations see Kolari Musikinstrumente 24ff; Wegner Musikinstrumente 32, 38ff, 612; Keel Bildsymb. item 455; Pritchard Pictures 202; Reicke-R. Hw. 1259f; BRL² 235f; Meissner *Bab. 8029 צִלְק

*צִלְק: root of n.m. צִלְקָה.

צִלְקָה: n.m.; meaning uncertain (the personal name is not found in Noth Personennamen); possible interpretations include:

—a. from Arb. šalaqa to shout powerfully (KBL);

—b. from JArm. ܥܠܩ to split (König Wb. 389a); if this second alternative is accepted it is very likely that it refers to physical disability, cf. Akk. šulluqu ? a horse with split ears (AHw. 1267b; CAD Š/3: 243, cf. šalāqu to split; šulluqu to split in many places, CAD Š/1: 231), as a personal name see Stamm 264: an Ammonite, one of David's thirty heroes 2S 23₃₇ 1C 11₃₉. †

8031 ܥܠܩ

ܥܠܩ, Oriental ܥܠܩ (Kahle Text 79): n.m. (Noth Personennamen 39, 152, 152¹): short form of a personal name from ܥܠ with hypocoristic ending, cf. ܒܥܠܐܝܠ.

—1. from Benjamin 1C 8₂₀.

Der. gentilic צָמֹרִי.

8052 צָמְרִי

צָמְרִי: gentilic of II צָמֶר, Bauer-L. Heb. 501x: name of a people; SamP. aššāmri, Sept. τὸν Σαμαραῖον (acc.), Josephus Σαμαραῖος (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 105), הַצְּמָרִי Gn 10₁₈ 1C 1₁₆: the inhabitants of the city צָמֶר and its environs.

8053 צָמְרִים

צָמְרִים.

—1. name of a mountain; Sept. Σομορω, Josephus Σαμαρω (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 106); הַר צָמְרִים 2C 13₄: etymology, from *צָמֶר “double peak” (KBL), from Arb. šumr → צָמְרָת.

—2. place name in Benjamin Jos 18₂₂; Sept.^A Σεμριμ, Sept.^B Σαρα, Josephus Σαμαρω (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 106); Eg. dmrm (sá-m²-rú-má, Helck Beziehungen 241); neither site is certain, see P. Welten WMANT 42 (1973) 117¹⁴:

—a. both names belong together, with the mountain named after the town (Rudolph Chr. 236) = Rās ez-Zemara, not far from et-Taīyibe, in the vicinity of Bethel (Abel Géog. 2:454; Simons Geog. §327 I 5; Noth Jos. 111);

—b. the first name is to be separated from the second, see esp. Koch ZDPV 78 (1962)19-29: the first is probably Rās ez-Zemara, the second Kh. es-Samra, (6-7 km. north-east of Jericho);

—c. the first (and perhaps also the second) identified with Rās et-Taḥūne, in the vicinity of Bethel, Yeschana and Ephron (Dalman JBL 48 (1929) 360f). †

8054 צָמְרָת

צָמְרָת: *צָמֶר, Bauer-L. Heb. 477a; cf. Arb. šumr the upper part or the top of an object (see Lane 4:1727c: perhaps šmr for šbr, KBL): sf. צָמְרָתוֹ/תָּהָם: top of a tree (Rüthy Pflanze 61f) Ezk 17₃₋₂₂ 31₃₋₁₀₋₁₄. †

צָמַת: MHeb., JArm. to draw together, pull together, pi. (pa.) to assemble, collect; Sam. to assemble, collect (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 2:585), MHeb. צָמַת bundle; Ug. šmt to destroy (Gordon Textbook §19:2176; Aistleitner 2330; Donner ZAW 79 (1967) 344f), or alt. to silence, vanquish (Driver *Myths*² 156b), sbst. šmt Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 18:iv:38: silence, stillness (Driver *Myths*², 156b; cf. Margalit UF 8 (1976) 168); Ugaritic syllabic cuneiform šamātu to hand over finally, transfer real estate (AHw. 1081a; CAD Š: 93; see also 95a (top): not an Akkadian expression, so perhaps West Semitic; cf. Loretz BZ NF 6 (1962) 269-279); Syr. šamat pa. to silence; CPArm. pa. uncertain (Schulthess Lex. 171b); Eth. ʾašmata (Dillmann Lex. 1271) to wipe out; Arb. šamata to be silent, II to silence: it should be remembered that the cognate languages allow two meanings in Hebrew, either to destroy (Gesenius-B.; Zorell Lex.), or to silence (König Wb.; KBL); neither possibility rules the other out, cf. II and III רָמַת, אֵלֶם; in what follows both are considered.

qal: pf. צָמַתָּ:

—a. to destroy, confine by force, or perhaps to fall down;

—b. to silence Lam 3₅₃; for qal rd. ? pi. צָמַתָּהּ, see Rudolph KAT 17/1-3:233. †

nif: pf. נִצְמַתְתִּי, נִצְמַתְתָּ:

—a. to disappear, vanish (streams) Jb 6₁₇, Job prays to be shut in by the darkness (NRSV: vanish in darkness :: REB yet I am not reduced to silence by the darkness), to be destroyed 23₁₇ (Hölscher *Hiob*² 58), dl. ? לֹא (:: Fohrer KAT 16:363);

—b. to be silenced; this fits Jb 23₁₇ (so REB, see above) but is difficult in 6₁₇. †

pi. (Jenni Pi'el 232): pf. cj. צָמַתְתָּנִי for צָמַתְתִּנִּי Ps 88₁₇ (Bauer-L. Heb. 281 l; BHS); sf. צָמַתְתָּנִי:

—b. to silence (so also Jenni Pi'el 232) Ps 88₁₇ 119₁₃₉. †

hif: pf. הִצְמַתְתָּהּ; impf. תִּצְמַתִּית, תִּצְמַתִּית, sf. יִצְמַתִּיתָ, יִצְמַתִּיתָ (Secunda $\alpha\sigma\mu\theta\alpha\upsilon\mu$ Ps 18₄₁, Brönno Studien 352); impv. sf. הִצְמַתִּיתָ; pt. sf. בִּצְמַתִּיתָ:

—a. to destroy, ruin, corrupt 2S 22₄₁ Ps 18₄₁ 54₇ 69₅ 73₂₇ 94₂₃ 101₅₋₈ 143₁₂;

—b. to silence, but according to the context the first alternative appears to be more appropriate: בִּצְמַתִּיתָ those who corrupt me Ps 69₅ (Jenni Pi'el 86). †

Der. צָמַתָּהּ.

8056 צָמַתָּהּ

צָמַתָּהּ Lv 25₂₃ and צָמַתָּהּ Lv 25₃₀ (צָמַתָּהּ) (Bauer-L. Heb. 505o; Gulkowitsch 110): SamP. versions צָמַתָּהּ = šēmītāt; Ugaritic syllabic cuneiform šamātu (→ צָמַתָּהּ); basic meaning doubtful: either extermination (Gesenius-B.) or more probably pledge of secrecy, i.e. a ban of objection (Noth ATD 6:165), in the construction לְצָמַתָּהּ or alternatively לְצָמַתָּהּ: conclusive (Loretz BZ NF 6 (1962) 269-279; Zorell Lex.), with irrevocable validity (Horst Recht 220). †

8057 צָנִי

צָנִי: etymology uncertain, ? Bauer-L. Heb. 450i, only pl. צָנִים Jb 5 Pr 22₅ and צָנֹת Am 4₂; it is uncertain whether both forms of the plural are to be explained alike, as is done by Michel Grundlegung 1:40ff, since the three references may not concern the same word; on the plural see also König Wb. 390b and Rudolph KAT 13/2:161: צָנִים thorns, צָנֹת artificial thorns meaning barbs; ? by-form צָנִינִים.

—1. Jb 5 text uncertain:

—a. following MT:

—i. thorns (so NRSV; Rüthy Pflanze 24, 26, 27, 79), or alternatively thorn hedges (TOB);

—ii. צְנִים from JArm. צָנָא, Sam. צְנִי (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 2:575), Arb. šann, šinn basket: he takes it out of the baskets (Driver ThZ 12 (1956) 485f); REB: stronger men seize it from the panniers (similarly NEB, where it is explained that the overall sense of the verse depends on transposition here of 4_{21a});

—b. cj. for צְנִים prp. צְנִינִים barbs, meaning thorn thicket (Fohrer KAT 16:132);

—c. further suggestions, see Fohrer KAT 16:132 and Horst BK 16/1:61f.

—2. Pr 22₅ צְנִים (parallel with צְחִים), Sept. τρίβολοι καὶ παγίδες:

—a. MT:

—i. thorns Gemser *Spr.*² 82; TOB), or alternatively hooks for fishing, see 3 (ZürBib.; NRSV: thorns and snares);

—ii. hunting basket (Driver Biblica 32 (1951) 186), see 1 ii; cf. REB: snares and pitfalls;

—b. cj.: for צְנִים prp. → צְמִים Jb 18₉ or צְפִינִים (BHS).

—3. Am 4₂ צְנֹת (parallel with סִירוֹת → *סִירָה):

—a. prickles (Rudolph KAT 13/2: 161) or hooks, fishing hooks (KBL; Maag Wortschatz 19; Williams VT 29 (1979) 207f; NRSV: they shall take you away with hooks;

—b. rope, cord < Akk. šinnitu as a (rare) phonetic variant of šerretu “nose-rope”, cf. Pritchard Pictures 296, 447 (CAD S: 201; Schwantes ZAW 79 (1967) 82f; Wolff BK 14/2:244f);

—c. shield, plural of → צְנָה (Driver WdO 2 (1954) 20); REB: men will carry you away on shields;

—d. basket, since parallel with סִיר pot (Sh. Paul JBL 97 (1978) 183ff, esp. 188); of these suggestions the first (and perhaps the second) are the most likely, but hardly the other two (c and d). †

Der. I *צָנַה.

8074 צַנַן

II *צַנַן western variant, Arb. ṣāna (ṣwn) to protect, shelter, defend; Eth. ṣawwana (Dillmann Lex. 1300) to shelter; to look after with care, to watch over (Gesenius-B.).

Der. II צַנְהָ.

8075 צַנָן

צַנָן: place name Jos 15₃₇, → צַנָנָן.

צַנַע: basic meaning of the root is in doubt: D. Winton Thomas JJS 1 (1948/49) 182-188: to strengthen, protect, from Arb. ṣana'a to do, make, manufacture artistically, (Lane 4: 1732c), > Nab. ṣn' pe. or pa., to make, construct a tomb (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 246; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 971); Eth. ṣan'a (Dillmann Lex. 1288) to be hard, solid; OSArb. ṣn' V to fortify a camp, sbst. mṣn't fortified camp (Conti Chrest. 224f), however see Stoebe's criticism in WuD NF 6 (1959) 183f; THAT 2:567; MHeb. to keep (safe), pi. and hif. to suppress, hold back, hif. also to keep hidden, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 188; THAT 2:567) לַכַּת הַצַּנַע; JArm. pt. צַנִיעָא (→ *צַנִיעָ), pa. to be called concealed, af. to keep safe; ? Arb., Eth., OSArb. see above.

hif: inf. abs. הַצַּנַע, with לַכַּת Mi 6₈; the versions differ, see Rudolph KAT 13/3:108; THAT 2:567: Sept. ἔτοιμον εἶναι = Pesh. 'atid to be ready; Theodotion ἀσφαλίζεσθαι to be careful; Quinta φροντίζειν to be prudent, Vulg. sollicitum ambulare to go around anxiously; thus the exact translation equivalent of הַצַּנַע is difficult; traditionally humble (Luther; Gesenius-B.; ZürBib.; NRSV and REB: walk humbly with your God); cf. JArm. צַנִיעָא → *צַנִיעָ; recent proposals:

—a. to be clear, pure (Hertz ExpT 46 (1934/35) 188; Eissfeldt Molk als Opfer-Begriff 49; Robinson HAT 14²:146);

8356 קִיטֵר/קִיטוֹר

קִיטוֹר and קִיטֵר: I קטר, Bauer-L. Heb. 475t; SamP. qītor smoke Gn 19₂₈ Ps 119₈₃ :: Sept, Vulg., Pesh.: frost, so also NRSV, but against this see Deissler Psalms 119 (118) und seine Theologie 183; Ps 148₈ (associated with שָׁלֹג and אֵשׁ וּבָרָד); meaning disputed, suggestions include:

—a. following MT:

—i. smoke (parallel with אֵשׁ), so Dahood Psalms 3:351, 354;

—ii. thick fog, so Deissler Psalms 119 (118) und seine Theologie 183; Reymond L'eau 15; Kraus BK 15⁵:1140;

—b. cj. קָרַח (e.g. KBL), cf. Sept., Vulg., Pesh., ice; so also REB. †

8357 קִיָּם

*קִיָּם: hapax legomenon Jb 22₂₀ קִיָּמוֹנִי: meaning uncertain, suggestions include

—a. following MT:

—i. KBL: active pt. of קוּם our adversary, but unlikely because of the pt. קָם → קוּם; cf. NRSV: our adversaries;

—ii. König Wb. 407b: rebellion, meaning opposition (abstract for concrete);

—b. cj.:

—i. with Theodotion ὑπόστασις prp. יִקְמוֹם or קִיָּמוֹם, see Zorell Lex.; see further e.g. Fohrer KAT 16:350f: their continued existence :: REB (and NEB): their riches are swept away;

—ii. with Vulg. erectio eorum prp. קִיָּמוֹתָם their opposition, cf. Peters Das Buch Job (1928) 238; the first of the conjectural emendations (b i) is probably the most likely solution. †

8358 קִיָּמוֹה

*קִימָה: קום, Bauer-L. Heb. 452q; MHeb. קִימָה rising up, standing up: sf. קִימָתָם: rising up (: שָׁבְתָם) Lam 3₆₃;

8359 קִין

קִין; MHeb. denominative vb. from קִינָה: קִינֵן to begin singing a dirge; Syr. sbst. → קִינָה; denominative vb. qanqen to sing, see Gesenius-B. and Brockelmann Lex. 664b; Eth. qānaya to make music, sbst. qēñē song (Dillmann Lex. 447); Tigr. qānā (Littmann-H. Wb. 253a) to improvise, sing a melody; sing according to an existing melody (e.g. a lament); Arb. qainat songstress, lady's maid (Wehr-Cowan 806b), masc. qain, qinn slave (Müller Wurzeln 96) → II קִין: denominative vb.

pil: pf. קִוְנָה, sf. קִוְנָה; impf. וְקִוְנָה (var. see Gesenius-B.; BHK² וְקִוְנָה, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 404)

Ezk 32₁₆; pt. pl. fem. מְקִוְנֹת: to sing a funeral song (קִינָה): with עַל over someone Ezk 27₃₂ 2C 35₂₅; with אֶל 2S 3₃₃; with עַל and obj. קִינָה 2S 1₁₇ Ezk 32_{16a} (for וְקִוְנָה prp. with Sept. וְקִוְנָה, see Zimmerli Ezechiel 765; BHS); הַמְקִוְנֹת the wailing women Jr 9₁₆. †

Der. I קִינָה: probably not to be derived from קִוְנָה, but from the root קִין.

8360 קִין

I *קִין: probably a primary noun (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 457o); root-mutation with קִנָּה (Gesenius-B.), cf. Arb. qanāt spear, lance (with bamboo as the shaft), tube, reed, duct (Wehr-Cowan 794a): sf. קִינֵי: lance, spear 2S 21₁₆. †

8361 קִין

II קִין: n.m.; SamP. qen; Sept. Κᾰυ, Josephus Κάυς (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 69); folk-etymology from קִנָּה Gn 4₁; JArm. קִינָּה metal-worker, smith; ? Humbert* 173.

General remarks: some say that there is only one vb. קנה (Gesenius-B.; König Wb.; Zorell Lex.) :: Fschr. Humbert 166, 174 and subsequently KBL: I קנה (Semitic) to acquire, buy, II קנה (Ug., Canaanite) to create. However, the distinction is still uncertain, see THAT 2:651, 652, not least because the verb in Ugaritic has already come to mean both to acquire and to possess as well as to create. F. Stolz, in Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem 132, accepts to produce as the general meaning of the root qnw/y, from which further variations in meaning are derived: to possess, gain possession, give birth, create; for other proposals see THAT 2:652.

—a. I have obtained a man with Yahweh (see p. 383 :: W. Beltz ZAW 86 (1974) 83-86; F.G. Golka Fschr. Westermann 61ff);

—b. I have created (or produced) a man together with Yahweh (see p. 397), similarly A. Schmitt ZAW 86 (1974) 155; the versions and the meaning to acquire for קנה (see 2) support the first suggestion; cf. also the Assyrian personal name Itti-Aššur-ašāmsu “I have bought him from the god Ashur” (Borger VT 9 (1959) 85f); in support of the second suggestion (b) is the evidence for the meaning to create from the third usage of the Ugaritic verb (see above, first paragraph) and the use of קנה to create (see above, 3); however, it is impossible to make a definite decision, see also THAT 2:638f, and O. 8528 קריה

קָרִיָה = קָרַת, the common basic form is qar, expanded in several different ways, see Nöldeke Beitr. 62¹ and Neue Beitr. 131; see further J. Blau UF 11 (1979) 57f; starting from קָרַיָה, derived from קרה (Bauer-L. Heb. 457p), the accepted basic meaning is meeting point, place of meeting (Gesenius-B.; KBL); however Gesenius-B. also considers a connection with I קִיר, so that the etymological origin of both nouns must remain uncertain; SamP. qaryā; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 195) קָרִיָה; JArm. קָרִיאַ, קָרִיָתַא, קָרִיָתַא village; Sam. קָרִיָה (Tg.) קרתה (Ben-H. *Lit. רְאָה 8584

II רְאָה: רָאָה: face, vision Is 28⁷; the exact derivation of the noun from the verb is uncertain:

- a. a type of infinitive, see Barth Nominalbildung §98b β; Brockelmann Gramm. 1:343;
- b. a segholate with final stress (incorrectly) instead of penultimate stress (רְאָה instead of רְאָה, cf. בְּכָה), see König Wb. 425b and Kutsch Verheissung und Gesetz 35⁴⁴; but see Zorell Lex.: רְאָה:
- a. vision, seer;
- b. ? = *רְוָה drunkenness cf. Sept., Vulg., Pesh., Tg. and רְאָה parallel with שָׁכַר; similarly Irwin Isaiah 28-33 14, 18: רְאָה sbst. from root רוה, a by-form from רָאָה, see p. 18 note 43, with further bibliography; but because of the related חֲזָה in Is 28¹⁵ there is no need to question the meaning of רְאָה first given above. †

—1. what comes first, beginning:

—a. בְּרִישִׁית in (at) the beginning Gn 1₁; on the problem of the translation of בְּרִישִׁית as either 1. an independent main clause, or 2. a temporal antecedent to verse 2 or verse 3, see Westermann BK 1/1:130ff with bibliography; Westermann himself opts for an independent main clause, as also does O.H. Steck Der Schöpfungsbericht der Priesterschrift 226f; for the temporal antecedent see, e.g. Speiser Genesis 3, 12; TOB; REB: in the beginning God created :: NRSV: in the beginning when God created (but margin as REB, or when God began to create, cf. NEB: in the beginning of creation); in the context the first alternative (1) is probably to be preferred as a sort of title or heading, on which see Westermann loc. cit.; and also Steck loc. cit.; מְבִרֵאשִׁית Sir 15₁₄;

—b. as an antithesis to אַחֲרֵית Dt 11₁₂ Is 46₁₀ Jb 8₇ 42₁₂ Qoh 7₈.

—2. beginning, starting point:

—a. מִמְּלִכְתּוֹ רִישִׁית the beginning of his kingdom Gn 10₁₀, so e.g. ZürBib.; Westermann BK 1/1:664; NRSV and REB: at first his king-dom consisted of :: Speiser Genesis 67: mainstays; similarly TOB: capital cities; מִמְּלִכְתּוֹ/מִמְּלִכְתּוֹ/מִמְּלִכְתּוֹ Jr 26₁ (cf. 25₁) 27₁ 28₁ 49₃₄;

רָגַע: to sway to and fro, stir DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 200 = 1QM 5:18) uncertain; Arb. raja'a to turn, come back; Eth. rag'a (Dillmann Lex. 317) coagulated, frozen.

Regarding etymology the following general remarks should be noted. Nöldeke (Neue Beitr. 96) relates רָגַע to stir to Arb. raja'a and רָגַע to calm down to Eth. rag'a; thus he accepts two Hebrew roots רָגַע, as does Gesenius-B. König (Wb. 432) considers there to be three roots רָגַע and, somewhat differently, so does Zorell Lexicon 757; KBL lists only one root (and also the semantic shift between Arb. wtb to jump and Heb. יָשַׁב to sit), on which see further Kopf VT 8 (1958) 202f, and esp. Delekat VT 14 (1964) 56-66: the oldest meaning accessible from Eth. and Heb. is to contract, get lumpy; Arabic is to be derived from these (see p. 59, and see further p. 64); to find peace, more precisely to look for peace, should really be the genuine base meaning of the root רָגַע.

רוּה: רוּה, Bauer-L. Heb. 465f; cf. Syr. rawwāyā, CPArm. rwy* (rawwāy) drunken; Eth. rēwūy or rēwey (Dillmann Lex. 307) to be satisfied, watered with drink; Tigr. rāwī (Littmann-H. Wb. 159a): 1. fully ripe, beautiful; 2. one who is not thirsty; Arb. sbst. riyy, rayy watering, irrigation: cs. *רוּה, fem. רוּה: well watered, irrigated: גָּן Is 58₁₁ Jr 31₁₂, אָרֶץ Dt 29₁₈, cf. רוּהָגָה: tribal name → קָאוּהָגָה.

רוח. General remark: Gesenius-B., Zorell Lex., and König differentiate between I and II רוח; they assign the qal to I רוח, and the hif. to II הריח; conversely KBL and THAT 2:727 (with bibliography) assume that there is only one root רוח. Two reasons can be given to support the idea of two roots; the Arb. rawiḥa to be wide, which parallels the Heb. רוח and the sbst. רוח, belongs to the vb. in Heb. However, that רוח has concrete spatial meaning only in the pt. pu., while the predominant sense of the qal is applied to a physical-psychical entity, supporting the notion of a single root. Thus in the cognate languages it has a meaning which corresponds only to that sense found in the hif. (and hof.?) of the Hebrew root רוח, → רוח hif. It must also be noted that the Akk. vb. napāšu means to blow and to breathe, as well as to become wide, expand (AHw. 736; CAD N/1:288, napāšu A). This fact suggests that we should consider there to be only one root רוח, but not exclude the existence of two different roots. The question has to be left open and credence given to both possibilities. The variant meanings are expressed here under separate headings.

A. MHeb. רוח to extend, spread oneself out, hif. to feel relieved; similarly JArm. pe.; pa., af. to make wide, extend; SamP. af. arba הרוח (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 3/2:290) to relieve, itp. החרוח to be relieved; Syr. rəwah to be spacious; cf. CPArm. adj. rwḥ*, fem. rwḥ spacious; Mnd. RWH to expand, enlarge, soften, relieve (Drower-M. Dictionary 428b); Pun. rwḥ to be wide, spacious (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 275; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1062, rwḥ I: yif. to set at large, relieve; cf. Tomback Lexicon 303); OSArb. hrwḥ IV to expand, sbst. hrwḥt expansion (Conti Chrest. 239a; Müller Wurzeln 57, and also ZAW 75 (1963) 314; Beeston Sab. Dict. 119); Eth. raḥawa, arḥawa (Dillmann Lex. 293) to open; Tigr. rayaḥa II to revive, sbst. rayḥat well-being, reyḥat rest (Littmann-H. Wb. 161a); Arb. rawiḥa to be wide (Gesenius-B.).

8739 רַחֵב

רַחֵב See below under רַח(ו)ב (#8740).

III רַח(ו)ב: n.m., corresponding to Western Semitic cuneiform Ru-ḥu-bi (genitive), see Tallqvist Personal Names 189 and Galling Textbuch 50: Baʿsu, the son of Ruḥubi of Amana (i.e. the Amanus mountains); in view of this evidence, רַחֵב may originally have been an Arm. personal name :: Noth Personennamen 193³: the name has been incorrectly vocalised as I רַח(ו)ב, instead of the expected רַחֵב, רַחֵב or רַחֵב, which would be a short form of (ו)רַחֵבִּיה, רַחֵבֵּם.

—1. (Sept. Πααβ) the father of king Hadadezer of צַבְהָה 2S 8₃₋₁₂.

—2. (Sept. Ποωβ) a Levite Neh 10₁₂.

8741 רַחֲבוֹת

רַחֲבוֹת, רַחֲבַת: SamP. rābot: place name; I רַח(ו)ב.

—1. Sept. Εὐρυχωρία, Josephus Ποωβῶθ (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 102): a well, dug and named by Isaac Gn 26₂₂, in the Wadi Ruḥibe south-west of בְּאֵר שֶׁבַע, thus Gesenius-B. (with bibliography) and KBL; Zorrell Lex., also Westermann BK 1/2:521 :: Alt Kl. Schr. 3:407¹: the geographical identification is difficult (O. Keel-M. Küchler Orte and Landschaften der Bibel 2:156-158); it is also unnecessary, since the place-name Rehob and Rehoboth exists in many places in Palestine; see also Reicke-R. Hw. 1573.

—2. רַחֲבוֹת הַנָּהָר (SamP. rābot an'nār) “Rehob on the River” (i.e. on the Euphrates) Gn 36₃₇ 1C 1₄₈; on the suggested identification see Gesenius-B.: either:

—a. Raḥbā on the Euphrates, south of the mouth of the Habur, thus KBL (with bibliography);

—b. in Edom, and identified with Kh. ʿAin Riḥāb south of the Dead Sea and of the Wadi el Heṣā, thus Simons Geog. §391; cf. Reicke-R. Hw. 1573; for arguments against the first suggestion (a) see Weippert Edom 435f.

—3. רַחֲבַת עִיר (SamP. rābot ʿir) meaning “plazas of the city” Gn 10₁₁; Akk. rebit Ninua (AHw. 964b): either the designation of a suburb of Nineveh, or a place situated close to Nineveh, thus Westermann BK 1/1:692. †

8742 רַחְבֵּיהַ

רַחְבֵּיהַ: n.m.; < רַחְבֵּיהוּ >; Sept. Ρααβια; cf. EgArm. רחבל (Cowley Arm. Pap. 81:98, p. 195), see Kornfeld Onomastica 71: 1 = ?I: “EI has created a great expanse”, cf. Bab. ra-’bi-DINGIR = raḥab’el (?) (Coogan Personal Names 33, 83), also Tallqvist Personal Names 305; for the explanation of the personal name Kornfeld accepts the second possibility suggested by Noth Personennamen 193: the deity has made (created) a wide expanse, i.e. has liberated (qal for hif. see Noth Personennamen 36); the first possible explanation given by Noth was “the deity is generous” (taking the meaning from the MHeb. adj. רַחֵב, see Noth Personennamen 193), but his second suggestion is in fact preferable; see also Fschr. Stamm 70 and 142: the grandson of Moses 1C 23₁₇. †

8743 רַחְבֵּיהוּ

רַחְבֵּיהוּ: n.m. רחב and ירחב, > רַחְבֵּיהַ; Sept. Ρααβια(ς); the form of the personal name ending in יהו instead of יה in any case belongs to the grandson of Moses; for the explanation see רַחְבֵּיהַ: 1C 24₂₁ 26₂₅. †

8744 רַחְבְּעַם

רַחְבְּעַם: n.m.; רחב and עם A 3 or C; Sept. Ροβοαμ, Josephus Ροβόαμο(ς) (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 102); for the interpretation of the personal name see Stamm in Fschr. Albright (1971) 443-449 (= Fschr. Stamm 137-143): either —a. theophoric: “the uncle-god (= יהוה) has made wide”; or

—b. non-theophoric: “the people have become extensive”; on the second alternative (b) see also Noth Personennamen 193⁴: a son of שְׁלֹמֹה, and first king of Judah (926-910 B.C.): 1K 11₄₃ 12₁₋₂₇ 14₂₁₋₃₁ 15₆ 1C 3₁₀ 2C 9₃₁ 10₁₋₁₈ 11₁₋₂₂ 12₁₋₁₆ 13 Sir 47₂₃. 8746 רַחוּם

רַחוּם: n.m.; root רחם; Sept. Ραουμ, Ρεουμ, Josephus Ραθυμο(ς) (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 210); short form Noth Personennamen 38, 187; cf. Bab. raḥīm’el and raḥīm (Coogan Personal Names 34, 83; see also p. 92 with bibliography; in Kraeling Arm. Pap. 10:19, 11:14, 12:34 read נַחוּם rather than רַחוּם; for the personal name רחם in EgArm. see Kornfeld Onomastica 71.

—1. commander-in-chief (בַּעַל טַעַם) = ? Persian governor of Samaria, see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 42: Ezr 4_{8f.17.23}.

—2. one of the heads of the people in post-exilic Judah Ezr 2₂ (= נַחוּם Neh 7₇) 10₂₆.

—3. a Levite who assisted Nehemiah in rebuilding the wall Neh 3₁₇.

8787 ריפות

ריפות: 1. Pr 27₂₂, 2. רפות 2S 17₁₉:

—a. the versions differ; for Pr 27₂₂, Vulg. tisanae (= ptisanae) the trodden barley, separated from the chaff, barley meal; but differently in Sept. and Pesh.; for 2S 17₁₉, Sept. ἀραφωθ, Vulg. ptisanae, Pesh. rūšā barley groats (Brockelmann Lex. 722b), Tg. דְּקִילָן dates (?) (Dalman Wb. 103b; Levy Wb. 1:420a);

—b. the etymology of the sbst. is unclear, see Gesenius-B.: it may be traced either to an unknown root ריפ/ריף or, better, to the Arb. rafata to crumble, break into small pieces, sbst. rufāt an old and mouldering bone, or something broken in pieces, or crumbled (Lane 1118a; cf. Wehr-Cowan 348b: to break, reject, discharge);

—c. by following Vulg. at both places, and Pesh. at 2S 17₁₉, barley groats (or barley meal) would be the preferred translation; on 2S 17₁₉ see esp. Hertzberg ATD 10²:287, 290; Dalman Arbeit 3:271f;

—d. cj. חֲרִיפֹת grains of sand (Koehler ZAW 40 (1922) 17-20; KBL; also HAL 339b, English edition 353a), but this cj. is unnecessary. † ריק: MHeb. רוק hif. to empty out; also Sam. root ריק attested in ריקן, ריקון; JArm. af., to empty out, and also to pour out; Akk. rīaqu(m), rāqu to be empty, unoccupied (AHw. 979), D/Š-theme: to empty, empty out, make empty; CPArm. ryq*, af. to empty out; Mnd. RIQ to be empty (Drower-M. Dictionary 433b), ARQ II, pa. pf. ariq to pour (Drower-M. Dictionary 38b); OSArb. (Müller Wurzeln 57f) rwq*, IV in dyhrq (the (divine) epithet, or the sanctuary of ‘Attar’ “he will let (the rain) flow”, cf. Gese-Höfner Religionen 243f, 268f; Arb. rāqa (ryq) to stream away, flow out (and also to shine, glow, burn); IV to pour out, shed, spill (Wehr-Cowan 371b), equivalent to rāqa (rwq) IV to pour out, shed, spill (Wehr-Cowan 368b).

hif. pf. הִרִיקְתִּי, הִרִיקוּ; impf. יִרְקֶה, יִרְקֶהוּ, אֲרִיק, יִרְקֶהוּ, sf. אֲרִיקִם; impv. הִרְקֵה; inf. cs. הִרִיק; pt. pl. מִרִיקִים.

General remarks: the absence of the qal is noticeable, and raises the question as to whether the hif. might not be a denominative verb from the adj. רִיק. The Aramaic dialects also suggest this possibility, while the Akkadian D/Š-themes and the Arabic IV-theme may be causatives of the basic theme, but not necessarily always.

—1. to empty out: שֵׁק Gn 42₃₅, כְּלִים storage pots, drinking vessels Jr 48₁₂, חֲרָמוֹ Hab 1₁₇, → II חֲרָם.

—2. to pour out גִּשְׁם Qoh 11₃; זָהַב Zech 4₁₂ (זֶזְזָה־בַּ = that which flows, drips, root זִב), see Rost Credo 70¹⁰ and subsequently K. Seybold Bilder zum Tempelbau, Die Visionen des Propheten Sacharja 27²¹, cf. Rudolph KAT 13/4:103, 104; בְּרָכָה Mal 3₁₀.

—3. הִרִיק חֶרֶב to draw the sword, but the interpretation of the expression is questionable: either:

—a. to pour out the sword, thus Gesenius-B.; or —b. to “pour out the sheath” (תַּעַר) referring to the sword, meaning to remove the sword from its sheath, cf. Zorell Lex. 771a and Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §101 and 102 (: Akk. kakkē tabāku to throw down (one’s) weapons, AHw. 1295) Ex 15₉ Lv 26₃₃ Ezk 5₂₋₁₂ 12₁₄ 28₇ 30₁₁; הִרִיק חַנִּית (→ חַנִּית HAL 320b, English edition 333b) Ps 35₃.

—4. to leave empty, in want נִפְּשׁ רָעַב the throat of the hungry Is 32₆.

—5. cj. Gn 14₁₄ text uncertain, for יִרְקֶה probably read with SamP. יִרְקֶה he mustered, → cj. III רוק, cf. Sept. ἡριθμησεν, Vulg. numeravit, Tg. יִרְרִיז pf. pa. and he girded, armed (Dalman Wb. 133a), see also Schatz Gen. 14 69; cj. Ezk 24₁₀ for הִמְרִקְתָּ הַמֶּרְקָה prp. (see e.g. BHS) הִמְרִקְתָּ הַמֶּרְקָה pour out the broth! (Zimmerli Ezechiel 556, 558); cj. Ps 18₄₃ for אֲרִיקִם rd. with the versions and 2S 22₄₃ אֲרִיקִם (→ רוק hif.). † hof: pf. הוֹרַק; impf. תוֹרַק (cj. see below): pf. to be poured from one vessel to another (of wine) Jr 48₁₁; cj. Song 1₃ for תוֹרַק prp.

—a. מוֹרַק (pt. hof.) clarified, with שֶׁמֶן fine ointment, thus Würthwein HAT 18²:38;

—b. sbst. תְּמָרוֹק (vb. מָרַק) the finest anointing oil, actually the oil of purification, thus Rudolph KAT 17/1-3:121, 122, also KBL;

—c. תוֹרַק on root II יִרַק yellowish, green meaning fresh ointment, thus Gerleman BK 18:94, 97, who discusses the versions; see further BHS. †

Der. רִיק, רִיק, רִיק, רִיק; the verb may be denominative from the adj. רִיק(י), see under רִיק.

8790 רִיק

רִיק: רִיק, רִיק, Bauer-L. Heb. 457o; the adj. is formed from the Semitic root ryq, and the vb (hif.) may be derived from this adj., see under רִיק; SamP. riq, pl. riqem; Sam. רִיקִן riqān (Ben-H. Lit. Or. 3/2:290) empty, metaphorical for people; MHeb. רִיקִן, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 208) רִיק empty (words); JArm. רִיקִן and רִיקִנָא; Syr. rayqānā; CPArm. riq*, rqyn (< רִיקִן) see Schulthess Lex. 193b; Mnd. riqan(a), riqin empty, void, bare, naked (Drower-M. Dictionary 434a), ruqata idle words (Drower-M. Dictionary 431b); the meaning is always empty, but in JArm. it is also dumb, in Syr. it is poor and in Mnd. vain; Akk. rīqu(m), Assyrian rāqu(m) to be empty, unoccupied (AHw. 987f), as in ša niši rēqim of those idle people (ARMT 2, text 9:6, cf. Noth Bibl. Land. 2:214⁶: fem. רִיקָה, רִיקָה, pl. רִיקִים, רִיקִים, fem. רִיקוֹת.

—1. a. empty: בּוֹר Gn 37₂₄, כֶּבֶד Ju 7₁₆, כְּלִי of a vessel 2K 4₃, שִׁבְלִים of ears of grain Gn 41₂₇; רִיקָה Ezk 24₁₁ gloss (Zimmerli Ezekiel 558), see above רִיק hif. cj. for v. 10;

—b. נִפְּשׁ an unsatisfied longing Is 29₈, cf. Wolff Anthropologie 33f.

—2. a. metaphorical for people, empty, unprincipled: רִיקִים אֲנָשִׁים Ju 9₄ 11₃ 2C 13₇;

—b. אֶחָד הָרִיקִים one of the rabble 2S 6₂₀, see Hertzberg ATD 10²:226;

—c. רִיק (parallel with נִעֵוֶר) empty (meaning poor) and shaken out Neh 5₁₃.

—3. empty, vain: דִּבָּר Dt 32₄₇; cj. Pr 13₁₀ for רִיק prp. רַע (→ רַע A 10) or רִיק (BHS); pl. רִיקִים something empty, frivolous, vain (with מְרַדֵּף Pr 12₁₁ (Sept. οἱ δε διώκοντες μάταια, Vulg. qui autem sectatur otium, Pesh. who pursues (runs after) vanity (sərīqūtā)), Pr 28₁₉ (Sept. ἰ δε διώκω σχολῆν ..., Vulg. and Pesh. as at 12₁₁).

—Additional remark: despite the rendering by Sept., Vulg., Pesh., the masc. pl. is noticeable, since one would expect instead, the fem. pl. רִיקוֹת as a neuter; so one reading which should perhaps not be excluded is “who pursues (harrasses) worthless people”, cf. הָרִיקִים 2S 6₂₀ see above, 2 b. †

ריקָם: רִיק with adverbial ending -am (Bauer-L. Heb. 504k; R. Meyer Gramm. §41, 6); SamP. versions overwhelmingly רִיקָם rīqām.

רכב: MHeb. qal to travel by horse, so also DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 205), hif. to let (cause to) ride, cram full, etc.; Heb. inscr. Tell Arad 1:6f: trkb hif. to load meal on to a donkey, so Pardee UF 10 (1978) 291, 295f; similarly Otzen VT 20 (1970) 239-242: to load on to carts, wagons :: Cathcart VT 19 (1969) 121-123 and subsequently Sasson VT 30 (1980) 44-52: rkb hif. denominative from רכב upper millstone → רכב: trkb qmh to grind meal; Sam., JArm. רכב, רכיב pe. to ride, drive, af. causative: OArm. divine name rkb'l (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 280; Donner-R. Inschriften 3:58b), to be vocalised rākib'ēl or rakkab'ēl the charioteer of El, thus Landsberger Sam'al (1948) 45f; cf. Donner-R. Inschriften 2:34; EgArm. pt. sg. rkb b[s]wsh ḥd qly[l] the one who rides on a swift horse (Aḥiqar 38; cf. Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1076, line 2: riding), pl. rkby swsyn mounted on horses (Behistun 30, [45]), rkbyk l' ḥzh I will not see your acts of riding (Aḥiqar 205, Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1076, rkb VII: meaning I will not be ridden by you), haf. with obj. ḥt' arrow, meaning to lay the arrow on to the bow-string (cf. to load in Heb. inscr., see above), l thrkb ḥtk lšdyq do not shoot your arrow at a righteous man (Aḥiqar 126, cf. 128, 191; Cowley Arm. Pap. 287a, 310b; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 279f; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1075, rkb I); Ug. rkb: 1. to mount (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 14:ii:21f and iv: 3f: rkb_tkmm ḥmt); 2. to drive towards (along), ride, in rkb ṛpt, epithet of Baal, meaning:

—a. the one who drives along the clouds, on which see esp. Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 299 and Aistleitner 2511; or —b. the one who rides on the clouds, the cloud-rider, on which see Gordon Textbook §19:2331 and S.E. Loewenstamm Comparative Studies in Biblical and Ancient Oriental Literatures 413, 418, but see also p. 417: רֶכֶב בְּעָרְבוֹת the driver of the cloud-chariot, see below 3;

—c. rkb rpt the one who mounts the clouds, thus Gray *Legacy*² 163;

—d. equivalent to Greek (Homer) νεφεληγερέτης the assembler of the clouds, thus Ullendorff VT 6 (1956) 194f and BJRL 46 (1963/64) 236-249;

—e. of these suggestions the last (d) is improbable, on which see Loewenstamm loc. cit.; while neither the second or third (b and c) can be excluded the first (a) is the one to be preferred; for further bibliography see Fisher Parallels 3: p. 458f; the root rkb occurs in personal names: rakub-baʿl, ilima-rakub (Gröndahl Personennamen 72, 179); Amorite personal name Yarkab-ʿsup ḏIM (Addu) (Huffmon Personal Names 47, 261) which means ? “Addu (Adad) drove along”, a so called background name, see Stamm 79, 185f and UF 11 (1979) 756; as a personal name with rakābu in Ebla see UF 11 (1979) 278; Akk. rakābu(m) to drive, ride (AHw. 944f): 1. to mount, drive a chariot; 2. to board a ship; 3. to ride (a donkey or a horse); Syr. rakeb to drive, mount; CPArm. rkyb to drive, ride; Palmyrene mrkb pt. pa. or af. to ride a horse (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 279-280; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1075-1076, rkb I: pa. šlm mrkb swsy an equestrian statue); Mnd. RKB to mount, ride (Drower-M. Dictionary 435a); OSArb. rkb (Conti Chrest. 241f; Beeston Sab. Dictionary 117) root in the place name rkbm and in the ethnic name rkbym; Eth. rakaba (Dillmann Lex. 302f) to come upon something, meet, strengthen oneself in a matter, sbst. rekbat acquisition, discovery (Dillmann Lex. 304), see Gesenius-B.; Tigr. rakba (Littmann-H. Wb. 156f) to find, acquire; possess, have; grasp, catch; to become rich; Arb. rakiba to ride, mount, drive etc.; on the basic meaning of the Semitic root see Ullendorff VT 6 (1956) 194f and BJRL 46 (1963/1964) 243f: to assemble, bring together, harness, as Greek ζεύγνυμι to ride :: Loewenstamm Comparative Studies 415: the basic sense of the Semitic root is to carry up, to lead up; further meanings can be derived from this, and in particular to ride (< to climb up).

—1. the most prominent meaning of the root rkb in the other Semitic languages (as Ugaritic and Akkadian) is to mount, to climb up, which is of less significance in Hebrew; according to THAT 2:780 this meaning should be considered for Gn 24₆₁ 1S 25₄₂ 2S 19₂₇ 1K 13₁₃ 18₄₅ 2K 9₁₆, cf. further hif. to cause to mount, see below, hif. 1.

—2. (usually with עָל) to ride, also includes to mount (see below, esp. under a and d):

—a. גָּמַל Gn 24₆₁ of a woman mounting a camel, 1S 30₁₇, עֵיר Ju 10₄ 12₁₄ Zech 9₉, see Koehler Kl. Licht. 56 and Rudolph KAT 13/4:177, 178; חֲמֹר 1S 25₂₀₋₄₂ of a woman mounting a donkey, 2S 16₂ 1K 13₁₃ Zech 9₉, אָתוֹן Nu 22₂₂₋₃₀ Ju 5₁₀ 2S 19₂₇ עָלְיָהּ, 2K 4₂₄ of a woman riding an ass, פָּרָד 2S 13₂₉ 18₉, בְּהֵמָה Neh 2₁₂;

—b. רָכַב to ride, רָכַב/רָכַבִּים a horseman: Lv 15₉ (with מָרְכָב saddle, see HAL 601a, English edition 636a); cj. 2K 7₁₄ for רָכַב סוּסִים read with Sept. סוּסִים סוּרְכַב; 2K 9_{18f} 18₂₃/Is 36₈ Jr 6₂₃, see Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 279, 280; Jr 50₄₂ 51₂₁ וְרָכַבוּ סוּסִים parallel with רָכַב וְרָכַבוּ, Ezk 23₆₋₁₂ סוּסִים

TOB; Kraus BK 15⁵:688: rider and horse (so also NRSV, REB), רָכַב meaning charioteer, as in Ezk 39₂₀ (→ רָכַב);

—c. to drive: with רָכַב 2K 19_{23K} Jr 51₂₁, with מְרַכְבָּה Hg 2₂₂ (see above, 2 b); וּבְסוּסִים וְרָכְבִים בְּרָכַב to drive with chariot and horses Jr 17₂₅ 22₄, see Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 285; רָכְבִים צְמָדִים אַחֲרַי to drive spans of chariot horses after 2K 9₂₅, so Gray *Kings*³ 545 :: cj. צְמָד מֵאַחֲרַי → צְמָד 1;

—d. רָכַב abs. to mount the chariot 1K 18₄₅ 2K 9₁₆;

—e. to ride or drive:

—i. רָכְבוֹ Gn 49₁₇ (parallel with עֲקֵבֵי־סוּס) traditionally his rider, thus also Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 288 :: H.-J. Zobel Stammespruch und Geschichte 5, 18f: his chariot-driver, סוּס meaning chariot-horse;

—ii. סוּס וְרָכְבוֹ Ex 15₁₋₂₁ the meaning is disputed; for suggestions see THAT 2:779, 780 (with bibliography), which includes horse and rider, horse and chariot (cj. for רָכְבוֹ prp. (רָכַב)), horse and charioteer; see further Weippert ZAW 84 (1972) 460².

—3. Is 30₁₆ (עַל־קַל נִרְכָּב), Hos 14₄ (עַל־סוּס נִרְכָּב) with סוּס; in both cases, to ride is better than to drive, see further e.g. THAT 2:480 :: Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 286: סוּס meaning a team of horses.

—4. רָכַב הַסוּס Am 2₁₅: traditionally the rider, thus e.g. ZürBib.; TOB; NRSV: those who ride horses; REB: the horseman; Maag 12, 98; Rudolph KAT 13/2:138 :: the one who steers the horse, meaning the chariot driver (charioteer), thus Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 286; Wolff BK 14/2:160, 208; THAT 2:780; cf. also Rudolph KAT 13/2:149³¹.

—5. עַל־דְּבַר־אֱמֶת רָכַב צֵלַח רָכַב Ps 45₅ (text uncertain): ride on!, thus NEB; see also e.g. TOB; cf. NRSV: ride on victoriously; Dahood Psalms 1:269, 271: ride triumphantly for the cause of truth; literally, Have success! Ride! :: Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 287: lead your vehicle forward!, cf. already ZürBib.: with good fortune drive it for the cause of truth; similarly Kraus BK 15⁵:486.

—General note: the choice between translating to ride a horse or to urge on a horse is open, and depends largely upon the dating of the texts concerned; if they are ancient (or can be treated as such) to urge on is to be preferred (as in 1 and probably also in 2); but if they are later, then to ride is preferable, and this is assumed for 3 for reasons of content; on the other hand for 4 and 5 both possibilities need to be considered.

—6. said of God (אלהים, יהוה); here רָכַב, רָכַב consistently has the sense of to drive along, see e.g. Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 296ff; J. Jeremias Theophanie. Die Geschichte einer alttestamentlichen Gattung 37; THAT 2:780f: רָכַב עַל־עָב קָל Dt 33₂₆; רָכַב עַל־כְּרוּב 2S 22₁₁/Ps 18₁₁; רָכַב עַל־עָב קָל he who ascends on rapid clouds Is 19₁; רָכַב בְּעֶרְבוֹת Ps 68₅ (see above Ug. rkb 'rpt) he who drives along on the clouds, cf. M. Görg UF 6 (1974) 57¹⁵ (with bibliography), Loewenstamm Comparative Studies 414; cj. Ps 68₃₄

כי תרכב על־סוסיך [ו]מרכבתיך, בַּשָּׂמַיִם prp. בַּשָּׂמַיִם (BHS); רָכַב בַּשָּׂמַיִם שְׂמֵי־קָדָם that (NRSV: when) you drive along with your horses and chariots Hab 3₈; on the text see Mowinckel VT 12 (1962) 285, similarly Keller CAT 11b:172², cf. Rudolph KAT 13/3:231, 235. †

Der. אֶרְמוֹן, *רְמוֹת; n.m. (?) רְמוּיָהוּ.

II רְמוּה: MHeb. pi. to betray, pu. pt. treacherous, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 205) 1QS 7:6 hitp. יִתְרְמוּה to deal recklessly, negligently (Lohse Texte 27; Maier Texte 1:34); 1QH 17:7 [בְּזַרְמוּה] → I רְמוּה; sbst. רְמוּי cheat, swindler; JArm. רְמוּא pa. to betray, sbst. רְמוּיָא cheat, swindler; Syr. pa. rammī (ʿlāw mellē) to slander (Brockelmann Lex. 733b), etpa. to be deceived, duped, af. to slander, sbst. rammāyā swindler, slanderer; corresponding to CPArm. rm̄y* (רְמוּי); Mnd. RMA meaning both to throw, cast (corresponding to Heb. רְמוּה I) and also to be false, betray, deceive (corresponding to Heb. רְמוּה II; Drower-M. Dictionary 435b).

General remark: the Heb. vb. is usually also related to the Akk. ramû(m) III, G-theme, to slacken, languish; D-theme: to loosen, relieve (AHw. 953f), and Arb. ramā(y), VI-form, to be sluggish, slow (of a thing); thus Gesenius-B., König Wb. 443b, and Zorell Lex. (who does not distinguish between the two roots רְמוּה). The etymological relationship of II רְמוּה with Akk. ramû (and Arb. ramā VI, to pelt someone) is also found in Jenni Piʿel 233 and Klopfenstein Lüge 313, who develops the root rm̄y from a basic meaning to be loose, pi. to loosen. But von Soden (AHw. 953f) calls this into question, and relates ramû(m) III to Heb. רָפָה (but adds an exclamation of surprise), and Arb. ramaʿa to remain standing (AHW 953b, line 1); see also KBL, which refers (with a question mark) to רָפָה under II רְמוּה (see p. 893a). The etymology mentioned above, which clearly includes the Akkadian, is supported by the adj. and sbst. form → רְמוּיָהוּ, which can be derived from II רְמוּה and means slack, indolent. The closeness of the meanings indolence and laxness with deceit and treachery, according to Klopfenstein loc. cit., particularly well illuminates the expression קִישֵׁת רְמוּיָהוּ, since it can mean a weak bow, as well as a deceitful bow; see Klopfenstein Lüge 132.

pi. (Jenni Piʿel 233): pf. רָפָה, רְפוּתָם, sf. רְפוּנִי, רְפוּתָנִי (SamP. rāmītāni qal Gn 29₂₅? probably qal.), רְפוּנִי, רְפוּתָנִי; inf. with sf. רְפוּתָנִי 1C 12₁₈ (Bauer-L. Heb. 426; Bergsträsser 2: §11c); Klopfenstein Lüge 310ff.

8839 רִמָּיָה

רִמָּיָה: n.m., Sept. Ραμια, cf. EgArm. רִמִּי (Kornfeld Onomastica 71), short form; the corresponding full form of the name is uncertain, see KBL: either רִוּם and יָרוּם = *רִמָּיָה(ו) “Yahweh is exalted”, thus Kornfeld loc. cit., cf. Noth Personennamen 145; or as יָרִמָּיָה(ו) (Gesenius-B.): a Judaeen married to a foreign woman Ezr 10₂₅. †

8840 רִמָּיָה

רִמָּיָה: II רִמָּיָה, Bauer-L. Heb. 465f; fem. of the adj., or pt. *רִמִּי, see J. Barth Nominalbildung §127d; Zorell Lex. 775b; MHeb. רִמָּיָה, רִמָּיָה, רִמָּיָה deceit, as also JArm. רִמָּיָה; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 206) רִמָּיָה: 1. deception, betrayal; 2. negligence (1QS 8:22, see Lohse Texte 31; Maier Texte 1:28); Syr. rammāyūtā; CPArm. rm'yw deceit, fraud; cf. Akk. rimūtu a type of crippling paralysis, from the vb. ramû III (AHw. 987a), → II רְמוּה; Mnd. rumai(i)a II (by popular etymology from RMA, to throw) pain, torture, rheumatism (with reference to the Akk. sbst. rimūtu paralysis, see above; Drower-M. Dictionary 430).

General remark: KBL distinguishes I רְמוּיָה indolence, looseness, from II רְמוּיָה fraud, deception. We assume conversely only one word (with Gesenius-B., Zorell Lex., König Wb.), for the ideas of slackness and looseness on the one hand and those of deceit on the other are close; see above, under II רְמוּה.

A.

—1. adj. slack, loose: קִשְׁתֵּי רְמוּיָה a slack bow Hos 7₁₆ Ps 78₅₇, or as B → II רְמוּה; יַד־רְמוּה Pr 12₂₄ and כַּפ־רְמוּה Pr 10₄ a slack, idle hand; נַפְשׁ רְמוּיָה an idle being 19₁₅ (but the translation idle person is also possible).

—2. adv. (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 632m), עָשָׂה רְמוּיָה to do something slackly, negligently Jr 48₁₀.

—3. sbst., unitary noun (Michel Grundlegung 1:33f), an individual example of slackness, meaning indolence, inactivity; ? abstract for concrete, an indolent person Pr 12₂₇, with לֹא יַחַרְךָ meaning he does not roast his prey (TOB, similarly NRSV), or cj. לֹא יַדְרִיךָ he does not attain (→ I חָרַךְ); REB (following NEB) the lazy hunter puts up no game.

B.

—1. adj. treacherous: קִשְׁתֵּי רְחוּךְ a deceitful bow, see above, under A 1; לְשׁוֹן רְקִישָׁתְךָ a deceitful tongue Ps 120_{2,3}.

—2. sbst. fraud, deception: לְשׁוֹנָם רְקִישׁוֹן their tongue is deception, meaning deceitful Mi 6₁₂; וְאֵין בְּרוּחוֹ רְקִישׁוֹן and in his character there is no deception Ps 32₂ → רִיחַ 7 d; עִשָּׂה רְרוּחַ a scheming, plotting person Ps 52₄ and 101₇; Jb 13₇ (with רְבִיר, 27₄ (with הַגָּה). †

8842 רְמוּכָה

*רְמוּכָה: etymology uncertain, it may be a foreign word; MHeb. רְמוּכָה and JArm. רְמוּכָה/ה a mule whose dam was a mare, or a she-ass (JArm., see Levy Wb. 4:455a); Arb. ramakat mare; :teb. and Qahtan. er-remykeh a fast, fully mature mare, three years old (J.J. Hess in L. Koehler ZAW 55 (1937) 173f. and KBL); it is uncertain whether the Persian ram, Pehlevi ramak (< Syr. ramkā, Mnd. ramka herd, large flock, Drower-M. Dictionary 421b) is related: pl. רְמוּכָיָה: racing mares Est 8₁₀ (הַרְרֵ רְמוּכָיָה individually), see Koehler loc. cit.; subsequently also Bardtke KAT 17/4-5:366 and note 10 :: traditionally הַרְרֵ בְנֵי הַרְרֵ בְנֵי הַרְרֵ the offspring of mares (Gesenius-B.), thus also Kaiser ATD 16/2³ (1981) 414. †

Der. ? n.m. רַמְלִיָּהוּ.

8844 רַמְלִיָּהוּ

רַמְלִיָּהוּ: n.m. 1QIs^a רומליהו (Is 7_{1.5.9}), רמליהו (Is 7₄), Sept. (genitive) Ρομελιου, Ρομελια 2C 28₆, Josephus Ρομελίαις (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 102); Heb. inscr. ר/רמליהו (Diringer Iscrizioni 217), cf. רמלאל (Vattioni Sigilli 233); the personal name is not explained in Noth Personennamen 257a; proposed meanings include:

—a. with a vb., from Arb. ramala, so König Wb. 444b: רַמְלִיָּהוּ a name expressing thanksgiving, the meaning of which would approximate the name (עֲרִיָּהוּ) “Yahweh has adorned (the named person)” :: Kornfeld Fschr. H. Cazelles (1981) 216;

—b. the personal name exemplifying the use in Heb. of l (la) in a precative sense (→ II לָ): רַמְלִיָּהוּ equivalent to Rûmlāyāhû* “Yahweh, may you be exalted!”, thus Beegle BASOR 123 (1951) 28; similarly Moran Fschr. Albright (1961) 61: Rûm-l-Yāhû “Yahweh, be exalted!”, cf. THAT 2:754;

—c. it is difficult to decide which of these alternatives to prefer; both proposals remain questionable in part; the first (a) can be supported by the form of the name in the MT, the second (b) by the forms in 1QIs^a, Sept. and Josephus: father of פִּקְחָהּ, king of Israel: 2K 15_{25.27.30. 32.37} 16_{1.5} Is 7_{1.4f.9} 8₆ 2C 28₆. †

—1. to exalt oneself Ezk 20_{15.17} for אֲתָם rd. אָתָם (: Zimmerli Ezekiel 8f, 199: אֲתָם = אָתָם) .19.

תרמוש במים בכל נפש החיה 12:13f Damascus Document MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 206) רמוש: by any kind of animal that teems in the water; Sam., CPArm. rms* to creep, crawl.

General remarks:

—a. the connection with any other Semitic root is uncertain, but among the possibilities are (see Gesenius-B.; KBL and esp. Brockelmann Lex. 735b): Syr. adj. rāmīsā soft, gentle; Eth. marsasa (Dillmann Lex. 166) and 'aramsasa (Dillmann Lex. 276) to stroke with the hand; Arb. ramaša to touch with the fingertips, lightly touch (Gesenius-B.), to take with the fingertips (Wehr-Cowan 360a); Akk. namāšu to depart, set out, set in motion, begin, (AHw. 726a; CAD N/1:220); sbst. nammaššû(m) that which moves, i.e. herds of wild animals, also settlement of people, and nammaštû(m) herds of wild animals (AHw. 728a; CAD N/1: 223);

—b. there is a possible connection between the Akk. sbst. and the Heb. root, but this is not so clear from the Akk. vb.; for the other languages western variants of → מַשֵּׁשׁ should not be excluded and may actually be more likely, cf. Dillmann Lex. on marsasa.

Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 107:42, here however the reading is uncertain and should be compared with that in Astour JNES 27 (1968) 29, 35; for the Akk. sbst. ernittu/ettu(m) → I רָנָה; Sam. to murmur, complain, translated from אָנַן, לָנַן; Palmyrene rnn, pt. active masc. pl. emph. rnnny to announce or sing, though the interpretation is still uncertain, see Jean-H. Dictionnaire 281; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1078; CPArm. rn to murmur, Arb. ranna to cry out, the whirring sound of a bow; Pales-tinian Arb. to jingle, clatter, rattle (Dalman Arbeit 5:342).

—1. to call loudly, shrilly (תִּרְנֶנָּה) Pr 1₂₀ sbj. חָכְמוֹת, 8₃ sbj. חָכְמוֹה; in 8₃ תִּרְנֶנָּה is 3rd. fem. sg. with the old energetic ending, see Gemser *Spr.*² 22 and R. Meyer Gramm. §63, 3a (p. 98), that is also possible for 1₂₀, since חָכְמוֹת (with a Phoenician ending) can also be sg., see further R. Meyer Gramm. §41, 5c; but if it is pl. one must consider the possibility that a linking vowel has been omitted, thus Bergsträsser 2: §27c (for תִּרְנֶנָּה) :: Bauer-L. Heb. 438 and KBL: various conjectures, but because of תִּרְנֶנָּה 8₃ they are not very likely.

—2. to rejoice, in contrast to the pi., to give out a cry of jubilation, break out in rejoicing, see Jenni Pi'el 155:

THAT 2:795; Akk. raggu(m) (AHw. 942) evil, wicked, bad; in the Aramaic dialects the root באשׁ corresponds to BArm. → *באישׁ; Sam. רע Heb. loanword; cf. Arb. raʿā ‘ordinary young people (Gesenius-B.; KBL): fem. רעה (< raʿā), pl. masc. רעים, cs. רעי, fem. רעות (THAT 2:795): רע, רע 356 times, רעה 311 times; THAT 2:794-803, with bibliography).

General remark: following Gesenius-B., KBL and Zorell Lex., the use of רע/רע as an adj. (A) is here distinguished from the use as sbst. (B); the distinction cannot always be drawn with the same degree of certainty, for the adjective רע/רע may mean evil one, wicked one (or thing), and moreover the substantive may be used adjectivally.

—c. רָע :: טוֹב as an example of merismus, meaning whatever, everything, and in the negative nothing, on which see esp. P. Humbert Etudes sur le récit du paradis et de la chute dans la Genèse 82ff; H.A. Brongers OTSt. 14 (1965) 100-114: טוֹב וְרָע Dt 1³⁹, רָע אֹ-טוֹב Gn 24⁵⁰, טוֹבָה אֹ רָעָה Nu 24¹³, הַטוֹב וְהָרָע 2S 14⁷ Jb 2¹⁰, רָע עַד מְטוֹב עַד Gn 31²⁴⁻²⁹, מְטוֹב וְעַד טוֹב, לְמַרְעֵי וְעַד טוֹב 2S 13²², בֵּין טוֹב לְרָע 2S 19³⁶ 1K 3⁹, cf. רָעִים וְטוֹבִים Pr 15³;

—d. עֵץ הַדַּעַת טוֹב וְרָע the tree of knowledge of good and evil (Westermann BK 1/1:249) Gn 2⁹⁻¹⁷, וְרָע טוֹב יָדָעִי knowing what is good and evil (Westermann BK 1/1:250) Gn 3⁵, טוֹב וְרָע לְדַעַת, that he knows what is good and evil (Westermann BK 1/1:251); the latter expressions (d) can also be understood as examples of merismus (c), so that what is meant by טוֹב וְרָע associated with יָדָע is a comprehensive knowledge which relates concretely to humanity; thus what is meant is not what is good and evil in itself, but what is good (or evil) for humanity, i.e. “what is necessary and what is harmful” (Westermann BK 1/1:329), see also Stoebe ZAW 65 (1953) 188-204, esp. —ii. of the parts of a sacrificial animal lying opposite to one another אִישׁ בְּתֵרוֹ לְקִרְאֵת רֵעֵהוּ Gn 15¹⁰, of satyrs, or goat-spirits, meeting one another וְשָׁעִיר עַל-רֵעֵהוּ יִקְרָא Is 34¹⁴, see Wildberger BK 10:1325, 1328, vb. II קרא;

—b. without אִישׁ as subj.:

—i. שָׁכֵן וְרֵעוּ Jr 6²¹ (with אָבָר) members of the community, citizens will fall beside one another, see Rudolph *Jer.*³ 46;

—ii. רֵעֵהוּ :: הָרֵאשׁוֹן Pr 18¹⁷ the other, meaning his opponent, thus Ringgren ATD 16/1³:74 and TOB :: Gemser *Spr.*² 74, 75 with Driver Biblica 32 (1951) 183: הָרֵאשׁוֹן meaning the plaintiff, רֵעֵהוּ meaning the defender; NRSV: the one who first states a case seems right until the other (REB and NEB: another) comes and cross-examines.

—6. instances that could be interpreted as 4 or 5:

—a. לְרֵעֶךָ 1S 15²⁸ 28¹⁷, var. 2S 12¹¹ for לְרֵעֶיךָ rd. with MSS, Sept., Vulg., Pesh., לְרֵעֶךָ; at all three of these places the versions translate to your neighbour, or to your companion (so also REB: a neighbour of yours); this is possible in the first two instances, which relate to the transfer of the kingdom from Saul to David (cf. Hertzberg ATD 10²:97, 176 and Stoebe KAT 8/1:289, 483), but not in the third, with its announcement of the calamity coming upon the family of David; here לְרֵעֶךָ (textual emendation) must mean “your other one”, i.e. someone other than you (thus REB: I shall take your wives and give them to another man before your eyes; cf. Hertzberg ATD 10²:252: another beside (near) you); and with this in mind translating as another rather than neighbour is also likely for 1S 15²⁸ and 28¹⁷ (so REB: he has torn the kingdom from your hand today and will give it to another; also Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; ZürBib.; TOB;

—b. i. רֵעֶךָ אִשְׁתְּ רֵעֶךָ Ex 20¹⁷ Dt 5²¹, אִשְׁתְּ רֵעֵהוּ Dt 22²⁴ Ezk 18⁶⁻¹⁵ 22¹¹ Pr 6²⁹, נְשֵׁי רֵעֵיהֶם Jr 29²³ see above 3 d:

—ii. אִשְׁתְּ רֵעֵהוּ Jr 5⁸ (with צָהָל אֶל-), Ezk 22¹¹ (with תּוֹעֵבָה אֶת-), 33²⁶ (with טָמְאָה אֶת- pi.);

—c. in Jr 29²³ רֵעֵיהֶם a translation such as “the wives of their companions” is clear; but the expressions in b ii, which correspond to the instances in 5 a i, make it possible to understand רֵעֵהוּ as “the other” and to translate as the wife of another, thus KBL; similarly this would be possible for b i; but the translation “the wife of a (your) neighbour” is more accurate recalling the usage in the decalogue; cf. NRSV, REB: they committed adultery with their neighbour’s wives.

—e. מְגֵרְשׁוֹת herds, pastures ? Ezk 27₂₈ → מְגֵרְשׁוֹת חוֹמוֹת Ezk 26₁₀, הַסְּפִיִם the thresholds Am 9₁;

—f. Ps 72₁₆ text uncertain יִרְעֵשׂ הָרִים בְּרֹאשׁ הָרִים obj. of the vb. either בַּר v. a (→ III בַּר) or פָּרִיּוֹ v. d; suggested solutions include:

—i. MT: meaning either 1. let the grain rustle on the mountain tops, thus Kraus BK 15⁵:655; similarly Schmidt HAT 15 (1934) 136; cf. Gesenius-B.: of the waving of the wheat; NRSV: may the grain wave; or 2. let his fruit rustle like the Lebanon (thus Weiser ATD 14/15⁷ (1966) 341 :: Dahood Psalms 2:179, 183, on which see under 2); or 3. → II רעש;

—ii. cj. for יִרְעֵשׂ prp. יִעֲשֶׂה let it be rich, abundant, meaning let it bear much, cf. Gunkel Psalmen 305, 310: let it flourish on the mountain tops; REB: may the grain grow thickly (cf. NEB: grow in plenty).

—2. for Ju 5₄ and Ps 68₉ (parallel with נָטַפוּ שָׁמַיִם) Rin Ugaritic Affinities 28 postulated a vb. III רעש with the meaning to drop, trickle, from a root related to Ug. rgt (D-theme) to suck, suckle (Gordon Textbook §19:2344; Aistleitner 2526); Dahood in Psalms 2:179, 183 either also associates this verb with the Heb. רעש, likewise in the sense of to suckle (of the suckling of the young in the herds grazing on the grass of the mountain slopes) in Ps 72₁₆; but that meaning is not convincing, either for Ju 5₄ and Ps 68₉ or for Ps 72₁₆. †

qal: impf. יִרְעֵשׁ: to be abundant, plentiful Ps 72₁₆, thus KBL; even so the assumption of a separate vb. on the basis of a single controversial instance (→ I רֵעַשׁ qal 1 f) is highly questionable, esp. since the appropriate meaning is not reflected in Arb. †

Der. I מרפא, מרפה, מרפאות, רפואה*, רפואאל, n.m. רפאל, רפוא, רפה, רפיה, רפיה.

II רפא: pi: → רפה.

רפא: n.m.; I רפא short form “he (יהוה/אל) has healed”, cf. Noth Personennamen 22, 179; Heb. inscr. (seal) רפא, see Diringer Iscrizioni 49; Bordreuil-Lemaire Semitica 26 (1972) 52; Sam. Ostrakon 24:2; cuneiform Ra-pa-a (Western Semitic, Tallqvist Personal Names 186); Pun. and Palmyrene Rp' (Benz Names 179, 410f and Stark Names 50a); cf. OSArb. r^lsup'm (Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 315; see also Ryckmans Noms. Propres 1:202b); for further personal names in OSArb., Amorite and Ug. which are formed with the vb. rp', → I רפא; cf. n.m. in the Execration Texts (Helck Beziehungen 54) ab-i-r-f'a = Abi-rafi' “my father is healed”; even so the reading abi-yirpā' “my (deified) father has healed” is possible, and perhaps even to be preferred in this case; cf. ירפאל.

—1. רפא בית, Sept. (acc.) Βαθρεφαν, the designation of a place or a clan in Judah, constructed according to the name of an ancestor 1C 4₁₂ → I בית B 47.

—2. a son of Benjamin, a Benjaminite clan named after an ancestor גבע 1C 8₂, cf. v. 6.

—3. הרפא 1C 20_{6,8} → I רפה, †

רפאות Or. רפאות (Kahle Text 75), I רפא (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 505o); Canaanite (El-Amarna letter 269:17) ripûtu healing, → רפא.

—1. recovery Pr 3₈ parallel with שקוי refreshment.

—2. remedy, medicine: Sir 38₁₄ (parallel with מחיה recovery of life, → מחיה 1).

—General note: the first meaning (1) is possible for Pr 3₈ (see Gemser *Spr.*² 26) but it is hardly possible for Sir 38₁₄; Smend (p. 65) translates: treatment for restoration, cf. ZürBib.: medication for the recovery of life, and REB: finding a cure to save the patient's life; for Pr 3₈ a rendering with remedy or medication is to be preferred, according to Humbert RHPR 44 (1964) 8, and also TOB, rather than those given above; REB: medicine to keep you in health; this rendering also fits Sir 38₁₄ :: KBL, which suggests healing for both instances; NRSV: healing for your flesh (Pr 3₈); healing for the sake of preserving life (Sir 38₁₄). †

I רפאים: tantum pl.; SamP. rāfā'əm; on the rendering in Sept. with γίγαντες, γηγευεις corresponding to Syr. bənay 'arā (Pr 21₁₆) and φιατροί (Is 26₁₄ Ps 88₁₁), see KBL; Schatz Genesis 14 101; Josephus γίγαντες (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 35); the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain: either from the vb. I רפא, in which case the traditional vocalisation may have come secondarily from an original רפאים “healers”, thus de Moor ZAW 88 (1976) 340f; or a sbst. from the vb. רפה, which would then mean “the weak”, as with KBL; P. Karge *Rephaim*² (1925); cf. also Wildberger BK 10:548f on Is 14, and Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 8 (1976) 47ff; Ph. רפאים (Donner-R. Inschriften 13:8; 14:8); Neo-Punic ראפאים spirits of the dead, manes, see Jean-H.

Dictionnaire 282; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1081, rp' II; Ug.: 1. sg. rp'u, gen. rp'i; 2. pl. rp'um, genitive rp'im (Gordon Textbook §19:2346; Aistleitner 2527; Driver *Myths*² 158a; Fisher Parallels 1: p. 342 entry 524), on the citations for both alternatives see esp. Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 8 (1976) 47-52; also F. Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem 99f; for bibliography see further e.g. Gray *Legacy*² 120, 187f, 211; Gese-H. Religionen 90f; Parker UF 4 (1972) 97-104; L. Heureux HTR 67 (1974) 264-274; De Moor ZAW 88 (1976) 323-345; Matthiae UF 11 (1979) 567f; Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 171-182, and also p. 381f; Loretz UF 14 (1982) 146ff, and also UF 15 (1983) 17-24, esp. 23f and UF 14 (1982) 176ff; IDB 4:35a:

—a. rp'u (probably for rāpi'u the healer) the designation of a deity with whom an individual could come into a particular relationship; so also in the personal names formed with rp'u (Gröndahl Personennamen 180; Parker UF 4 (1972) 98f), and also in the epithet mt rp'i “man (servant) of Rapi'u” given to Dan'il (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, tablets 17-19 passim), on which see H.P. Müller ZA 64 (1975) 306; the actual deity designated by Rāpi'u is still debated though it is most likely to be Baal or El:

—b. rp'um the spirits of the dead, the shades, especially those of the royal house, according to the so-called Rephaim Texts (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, tablets 120-122, esp. 122) which are particularly conclusive in this respect; designating the dead as healers may have had something of a euphemistic sense, see further Parker UF 4 (1972) 103; Gray *Legacy*² 130 on Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 6:vi:45-46, who supports the meaning of rp'um widely quoted in the bibliography cited above and probably accepted generally; by contrast in Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 1: 20-22 he sees in the rp'um a guild or fellowship of a restricted number of members (see p. 211; see also L. Heureux HTR 67 (1974) 264-274: an aristocratic warrior's guild, but this is hardly probable; on the interpretation of Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 120-122 with respect to the cult of the dead, see esp. Gese-H. Religionen 91f: dead spirits; parallel with מְתִיִּם Is 26₁₄ Ps 88₁₁; parallel with מְנוּחַת Pr 2₁₈; dwelling in שְׂאוֹל Is 14₉ Jb 26₅ Pr 9₁₈, or in אַבְדֹּן Ps 88₁₁, בַּחֲשֵׁךְ 88₁₃; אֶרֶץ רְבַחֲשָׁךְ Is 26₁₉; קְהֵל רְאֵרֶץ Pr 21₁₆; see II. †

II רְפָאִים: SamP. rēfā'im; sg. רְפָאָה 1C 20₄ (editions) → II רְפָה: name of a people; on its relation to I see below paragraph 2; Sept. γίγαυτες Gn 14₅ Jos 12₄ 13₁₂, otherwise Παφαῖν; in Jos 17₁₅ the word (or the name) is lacking.

—1. a. with article Gn 15₂₀ (SamP. versions, also sg. רְפָאִי, and also in the modern reading of the Torah arrefā'i), Dt 3₁₁ Jos 12₄ 12₁₂ 17₁₅ 1C 20₄;

—b. Gn 15_{19f} in a series of ten peoples who were in the land before the Israelites; together with הַפְּרִזִּי Jos 17₁₅;

—c. for Moabites according to Dt 2₁₁ the עֲנָקִים as well as the אַמֹּנִים were considered to be רְאֵמִים; for Ammonites the זְמֻזְמִים were also considered to be רְאֵמִים according to Dt 2₂₀;

—d. אֶרֶץ רְרִי Dt 2₂₀ 3₁₃ (הַבְּשָׁן), עוֹג Dt 3₁₁ (see de Moor ZAW 88 (1976) 338), Jos 12₄ 13₁₂;

—e. רְרִי בְעֵשְׂתָרֶת קַרְנִים Gn 14₅, see Schatz Gen. 14 101-109; Westermann BK 1/2:231; Arm., GnAp 21, 28: בעשתרא די רפאיה; on the last set of instances (b-e) cf. Simons Geog. §211; Reicke-R. Hw. 1590f;

—f. עֲמֹק רְפָאִים → I עֲמֹק 18.

—2. II רַ'רְקִי is a part of the legendary pre-Israelite population in Palestine, whose memory was especially preserved in Transjordan; certainly a connection exists with I רַ'רְקִי, insofar as there is preserved in II רַ'רְקִי a certain memory of the ancient Syro-Canaanite cult of the ancestors, the shades, or the heroes (I רַ'רְקִי); according to Parker UF 4 (1972) 103, the earlier power of the dead is now represented in the enormous physical size of this legendary race; for bibliography see under I רַ'רְקִי, esp. De Moor ZAW 88 (1976) 337-340; see also Fisher Parallels 3: p. 460-467 entry 41; Bartlett VT 20 (1970) 267; H. Gese Vom Sinai zum Zion (1974) 109f; → II רַ'רְקִי. †

8929 רַפְּאֵל

רַפְּאֵל: n.m., 1C 26⁷; Sept. Ραφαηλ, = I רַפְּאֵל and אֵל “El (God) has healed” (Noth Personennamen 179), cf. Amorite e.g. Irpa-Adad (ʿsup’dIM) “Adad has healed” (Huffmon Personal Names 264), Ug. yrpu gen. yrpi “he has healed” (Gröndahl Personennamen 180, 393b); for OSArb. personal names → רַפְּאֵל; Bab. (in Judaeen names from Babylonia) Nabû-rapaʿ (ʿsup’dAG), see Coogan Personal Names 30, 83; cf. Adad-rapaʿa, West Semitic, see Tallqvist Names 10b); Arm. 8930 רַפַּד

רַפַּד: Heb. inscr., in the place name בית הרפד Lachish 4:5 (Donner-R. Inschriften 194, 2: p. 194), → רַפְּאֵל; the meanings of the root in the cognate languages vary:

—a. OSArb. vb. rfd to support (Latin fulcire), sbst. pl. rfdt and rfd the support of a wall, the base of a column (see Conti Chrest. 244; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 115); cf. Eth. (rafada), ʿarfada II 1: the meaning is doubtful (Dillmann Lex. 321); Arb. rafada: 1. to give, give a gift; 2. to help, support, assist; 3. to support, prop up a wall, or something with something else; 4. to lay a cloth under a camel’s saddle; also rifadat saddle-pad, saddlecloth; on the four different meanings see Lane 1119a; G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2:171b; see also Wehr-Cowan 348b-349a: to support, aid with associated nouns;

—b. Akk. rapādu(m) to run around (AHw. 954); Syr. rəpad to crawl, move the tail, rəpat to move (reflexive), overflow, run (Brockelmann Lex. 741);

—c. the differences between the two sets of meanings (a and b) suggest they are homonyms, and Biblical Heb. belongs to the first set (a).

*רַפַּח: two homonymous roots are to be considered:

—a. JArm., Syr. rəpaḥ to be swollen up, corresponding to Arb. rafaha (Landberg Glossaire Datinois 1332);

—b. a root which may perhaps be related to the first, rḥ, pt. rāfiḥ pleasant, rich in goods; according to Landberg loc. cit and G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2:174 the root rḥ stands close to this vb.: rafuga to have a surfeit of goods and friends, pt. rāfiḡ.

Der. n.m. רַפִּיחַ.

8939 רַפַּח

רַפַּח: n.m.: *רַפַּח, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 456 l; Sept. Ραφη; for the explanation of the personal name it is best to follow Noth Personennamen 231; König Wb. 451b and KBL derive it from Arb. rāfiḥ; so according to its form the personal name must be translated as something like surplus or abundance (thus König); a connection with *רַפַּח in its first meaning (→ *רַפַּח a) should not of course be excluded, for the meaning swollen one, swelling, could refer either to a physical abnormality (as in the name Oedipus), or it may be understood as a term of abuse or ridicule: a descendant of Ephraim, or the ancestor of a group considering itself part of this tribe 1C 7₂₅. †

רַפַּק: MHeb. מִרְפָּק; JArm. מִרְפָּקָא; Arb. mirfaq, marfiq elbow (arm-rest ?), vb. rfq VIII to support oneself; Eth. rafaqa (Dillmann Lex. 320) to lean back (backwards), lie against a table, recline: ἀνακλίνεσθαι (Gesenius-B.); the basic meaning of the root may be to support, from which the above substantives are derived. The root is preserved elsewhere in Eth. and in Arb. rfq VIII, which could in any case also be denominative. Moreover the Arb. rafaqa, to treat in a mild or friendly fashion, may be related to the basic meaning. Conversely a homonymous root may be JArm. רַפַּק to dig up a field, break up soil; cf. Akk. rapāqu to chop up (AHw. 954b).

—a. MT מִתְרַפֵּס בְּרִצֵּי־כֶסֶף literally the one who treads on pieces of silver, or alternatively (?), those who prostrate themselves with pieces of silver; cf. Gunkel Psalmen 292, who prefers another cj. (see below b i); Caquot RHR 177 (1970) 175f and others stay closer to the MT: scold, reproach (גָּעַר) the enemy, who prostrates himself while offering pieces of silver (→ *רִיץ); REB: rebuke those who bring bars of silver and prostrate themselves;

—b. cj.:

—i. Gunkel Psalmen 283, 292: for מִתְרַפֵּס prp. מִפְתָּרִם (so also KBL) and for בְּרִצֵּי־כֶסֶף prp. בָּצֵר וְכֶסֶף, let them bring (v. 32a) gold and silver from Patros; NEB similarly, transposing to v. 31;

—ii. Dahood Psalms 2:132, 150: רִצִּי qal inf. from I רָצַח with 3rd. pers. sf. attached as y: they trample the peoples in their lust for silver (עַמִּים).

—iii. Kraus BK 15⁵:626, 628: prp. הִתְרַפֵּס בְּרִצֵּי כֶסֶף trample those who take pleasure in silver!; NRSV: trample under foot those who lust after tribute;

—c. in view of the uncertainty of the MT a decision is difficult; among the cj. perhaps that of Kraus (b iii) is to be preferred.

I רָצָה, root rsy) :: Noth Personennamen 224 and KBL: from Syr. raṣṣīnā small brook (but this is improbable and depends too much on MT רָצִין). The form is artificial; it could possibly mean (connecting it with the vb. רָצַץ) “the pulverized one”, “the destroyed one”, so J. Lindblom A Study on the Immanuel Section in Isaiah 11, and subsequently Kaiser ATD 17³:69⁸: Rezin.

II רַק (100 times) = I; SamP. rāq; adv., in a small way; on the syntactical use see Jongeling La particule רַק 97-107, see further esp. Gesenius-B.: the chief sense of the word is only, which is close to that of the adv. → רַקִּי; additional nuances, such as but, how-ever, and none other than, emerge from the context.

—1. רַק within a clause:

—a. without any negating preposition רַק only evil Gn 6₅, רַק־טוֹב only good Gn 26₂₉, רַק הַיָּשָׁר only that which is right 1K 14₈; רַק עָשׂוּק וְרָצוּץ only oppressed and beaten down Dt 28₃₃; cf. adv. רַק לְמַעַלָּה only upwards Dt 28₁₃; רַק־אֲנִי לְבָדִי only I have escaped Jb 1_{15.16.17.19};

—b. רַק following the negating particle אִין or אִין (emphatic) apart from, on which see 2 d i.

—2. at the beginning of a sentence:

—a. רַק refers to the following word: רַק בַּיָּאֵר Ex 8₅ only in the Nile; רַק הַכִּסֵּא only regarding the throne Gn 41₄₀, cf. Gn 47₂₂; וְרַק־אַתָּם but only you Jos 6₁₈, cf. 2C 28₁₀, text uncertain, see BHS and Rudolph Chr. 288; רַק אַתְּכֶם only you (meaning you alone) Am 3₂; רַק בְּאֲבֹתַיְךָ only your fathers Dt 10₁₅;

—b. רַק refers to a following verbal clause:

—i. before an impv. רַק שְׁמְרוּ מְאֹד Jos 22₅; רַק הִשָּׁמֵר לָךְ only guard yourself! Dt 4₉; (מְאֹד) חֲזַק וְאַמִּץ (מְאֹד) רַק just be strong (right) and unswerving Jos 1_{7.18}, see also 13₆;

—ii. before אַל with jussive, with adversative meaning: only, however Gn 19₈ Ex 8₂₅ Ju 19₂₀ Jb 1₁₂;

—iii. רַק before the impf. or jussive (as a statement, command, or prohibition) expresses something which either contradicts or varies from that which precedes it, usually to be translated only, still, but, however, nevertheless; instances include Ex 8_{24f} 10₂₄ 21₁₉ Dt 3₁₉ 12_{15.16.26} 15₂₃ 17₁₆ 20_{14.16.20} Jos 6₁₇ 8₂ 1K 8₁₉/2C 6₉; רַק

Müller ZAW 94 (1982) 217, 218; cf. H. and M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 98; Ug. root rqh (Gordon Textbook §19:2352; Aistleitner 2543); this root is still not attested in Ug. as a finite verbal form; it occurs:

—a. as a sbst. in the sentence h₂tlf lg rqh here are three lōg of ointment (Caquot Ugaritica 7: p. 389-392 line 8; rqh corresponding to Heb. רִקָּח or רִקָּח);

—b. in the phrase šmn rqh (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 148:21; 4, 91:5; Herdner Corpus 35:21 (= Gordon Textbook text 3) and Herdner Corpus Appendix 2 (p. 137) lines 20f, 22f, see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 7 (1975) 144f: šmn mr, šmn rqh; possible meanings for rqh in this phrase include: 1. passive participle of G-theme. (cf. Gordon Textbook §9:24.2), thus Aistleitner 2543: pleasant-smelling oil, so also J.-M. de Tarragon Le culte à Ugarit 44 on Herdner Corpus 35: 20f; 2. equivalent to Heb. רִקָּח, thus Fisher Parallels 2: p. 68 entry 36, cf. H.P. Müller ZA 66 (1976) 308; 3. active participle of G-theme, equivalent to Heb. רִקָּח(וֹ), thus Caquot Ugaritica 7 p. 301, referring to the concurrence between Ug. šmn rqh and Heb. שֶׁמֶן רוֹקָח the oil of the ointment-mixer Qoh 10₁; see also Fisher Parallels 1: p. 445 entry 112; cf. H.P. Müller ZA 65 (1975) 312. A decision between these three alternatives cannot be made with certainty, but the third deserves preference on account of the parallel Heb. expression; Akk. rīqu(m), rīqu scented material, aromatic wood (AHw. 988), denominative vb. (?) ruqqû to press out fine oil (AHw. 995).

—General note: usage in Hebrew suggests postulating a basic meaning for the root of to spread out, stamp, beat firmly. A meaning derived from this would be to patch, repair, thus Kellermann ZDPV 86 (1970) 34. But from Arb. an opposite conclusion could be drawn, so that a basic meaning of to mend, repair would produce derivations like to spread out, beat firmly. This is different from suggesting the roots are homonymous.

*רֶשֶׁאוֹת: cj. Gn 49₃ for שֶׁאוֹת (parallel with עֶז): prestige, authority;

—a. the ר of the sbst. could have dropped out after יִתֶּר through haplography, for which see Gevirtz JNES 30 (1971) 87-90 and Avishur UF 7 (1975) 23 no. 20. The Heb. sbst. is vocalised on the analogy of רֶפְאוֹת (Gevirtz JNES 30 (1971) 90²⁷), who relates it to Ph. rš't (Donner-R. Inschriften 26 A:iii:6, C:iii:20), meaning regime, rulership, dominion (?) according to Donner-R. Inschriften 3: 23b, and likewise stands parallel with עֶז (see also Jean-H. Dictionnaire 283: perhaps meaning authority, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary: old age, rš't n'mt good old age). While a derivation of the Ph. sbst. from the root רֶשֶׁה/רֶשֶׁה is easily possible (see Tomback Lexicon 307), for the Heb. sbst. that derivation is difficult, even in the cj., because of the surviving ש. Even so Gevirtz wished to compare *רֶשֶׁאוֹת with the MHeb. רֶשוֹת, which denotes permission, authorisation, power, authority, as in DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 208): 1QM 12:4 יד רֶשוֹת the unfolding power of the hand; JArm. רֶשוֹתֶא and also MHeb. (< Akk. rašūtu real estate, assets, property, see AHw. 963a);

—b. because of the different sibilants the identification with Ph. rš't, and particularly the comparison with the MHeb. רְשׁוֹת, remain rather doubtful; so the cj. should be discarded, and the MT preferred; thus e.g. Westermann BK 1/3:246, 254; TOB; NRSV: excelling in rank; REB (and NEB) excelling in pride; → I שְׂאֵת 2 b: exaltation. †

Wehr in Rost Credo 72: 1. rasa^a to have eyelids sticking together, have limp, slack limbs; 2. rasi^a to have a disease of the eyes: for bibliography on the Heb. vb., adj. and sbst. see Koehler *Theol.*⁴ 155f, 161; Pedersen Isr. 1-2:418f; O. Keel Feinde und Gottesleugner 109ff; Boecker 122f, 135¹; U. Skladny Die ältesten Spruchsammlungen in Israel passim, but esp. p. 30; THAT 2:813-818.

General remarks:

—a. the question of identifying a basic meaning of the root cannot be answered with certainty; Rost Credo 72f: it is present in Arb., if one deduces from רשע that one who has been found guilty also has the appearance of one who has sick eyes or one who has limp, dangling limbs.

—b. from this point of view it is easy to see how the basic meaning in Heb. developed into the more general meaning, esp. in a forensic usage, as is illustrated by the vb. and in part by the adj., as suggested not only by Rost, but also by e.g. Koehler, Keel and Boecker loc. cit. Even so the forensic meaning can be understood as the exceptional case of a broader or more comprehensive meaning, thus THAT 2:814: in contrast to šdq a positive root, rš^c is the expression for negative behaviour, an anti-social attitude that betrays simultaneously (Is 57₂₀) the inner disharmony and unrest within a person (referring to Pedersen Isr. 1-2:418f), on which see further Skladny loc. cit. 30.

—c. the facts regarding the vb. and in part the adj. are clear and so we prefer the first of these two possibilities, and this is supported also by the development of the contrasting positive terms צדיק, צדק. We therefore agree completely with Koehler *Theol.*⁴ and KBL.

I רְשָׁף: etymology uncertain, probably a personal name; comparable with Sam. רִשָּׁף to inflame, noted by Zorell Lex. 791a, which will be denominative.

—1. MHeb. רְשָׁף; SamP. rēšāf, Sam. רִשָּׁפּוֹ/רִשָּׁף; JArm. רִשָּׁפָא flame; this may also be the meaning of the name of Rašap, thus e.g. Gese-H. Religionen 142: the one who burns :: H.P. Müller ZDPV 96 (1980) 10: connected with Akk. vb. rašābu(m) to be awe-inspiring (AHw. 960a), and adj. rašbu(m) demanding reverence (AHw. 961a).

—2. Both derivations evoke the sinister features which are the essence of this deity, who was worshipped throughout the Near East. Rašap was actually identified with the Babylonian god Nergal and can similarly be regarded as a god of the underworld, a god of plagues, and a god of war (cf. Pritchard Pictures 476). By contrast the name of this god appears in the Ugaritic lists of gods and sacrifices, where he is seen to have a friendly disposition. Personal names including Rasap and Rašap are found both in Ebla (Müller ZDPV 96 (1980) 7) and in Mari (Huffmon Personal Names 263). For the personal names in Ugaritic see Gröndahl Personennamen 181 and Conrad ZAW 83 (1971) 179f; Gröndahl suggests that the particular characteristics of the god shown in personal names include aspects of death and also of fertility. In Ugaritic as well as the divine name ršp there is also a pl. form ršpm (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 91:11), a term which incorporates the different manifestations of the god; see further M. de Tarragon Le culte à Ugarit 108; on the pl. cf. Ph. rš ršpm land of Rašap (Donner-R. Inschriften 15; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 26; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1087: the exact meaning of the word in this phrase is unknown). For the individual forms of ršp appearing in Ug., see Conrad ZAW 83 (1971) 172-174 and Emerton ZAW 94 (1982) 7, 9. One such form from a later period (the eighth century) is the Ph. ršp šprm (Donner-R. Inschriften 26 A ii: 10-12) either Rašap of the birds, or Rašap of the he-goats (→ I צְפֹרֶן).

—3. Selected bibliography for the preceding paragraph: A. Caquot Semitica 6 (1956) 54-65; Albright Yahweh 121f; Gese-H. Religionen 141-145; D. Conrad ZAW 83 (1971) 157-183; J. Jeremias Theophanie (WMANT 10², 1977) 46-48; Reicke-R. Hw. 1591; IDB 4:36f; H. and M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 89f; Haussig Wb. Myth. 1:305f (393).

—4. רֶשֶׁף as an appellative (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 457q): rašap > rašp (< rišp) > rešep; MHeb. and JArm. see under 1): pl. רֶשֶׁפִים, cs. רֶשֶׁפִי and רֶשֶׁפִיהָ, sf. רֶשֶׁפִיהָ. On the various suggested interpretations for the following citations see Fisher Parallels 3: p. 413-415, entry 26, with bibliography.

—1. flame, glow אֵשׁ רֶשֶׁפִיהָ רֶשֶׁפִי their flames are flames of fire Song 8₆.

—2. רֶשֶׁפִי קִשָׁת flames (or lightning flashes) from the bow, meaning arrows Ps 76₄ (with שֶׁבֶר pi.).

—3. blaze, meaning plague (perhaps originally in the sense of a demon, see above 2):

—a. Hab 3₅ (parallel with דִּבְרָה) with יִצְאָ לְרִגְלָיו יִצְאָ;

—b. רֶשֶׁף לְחַמֵי רֶשֶׁף ravage of the plague, pestilence Dt 32₃₄ (→ II לַחַם :: Sept. βρώσει ὀρέεω);

—c. רֶשֶׁפִים plagues Ps 78₄₈ (parallel with דִּבְרָה cj. for בְּרָד) with סַגַר hif.

—4. רֶשֶׁף בְּנֵי רֶשֶׁף Jb 5₇, with יִגְבִּיהוּ עוֹף meaning they fly high, but בְּנֵי רֶשֶׁף יִגְבִּיהוּ עוֹף controversial in meaning:

—a. birds, so probably instead of עוֹף as in the versions, Sept. νεοσσὸν δὲ γυπὸς, Vulg. avis, thus Hölscher *Hiob*² 18, 19: the offspring of the vulture; similarly Horst BK 16/1:59, 81f with reference to the god Resheph;

—b. literally the sons of the flame, meaning sparks, so e.g. Zorell Lex.; Gesenius-B.; König Wb.; ZürBib.; TOB; also Fohrer KAT 16:128, 148 (148f for bibliography); the second alternative (b) is preferable to the first (a); so NRSV: sparks, but margin: birds; REB and NEB: birds, but margin: sparks.

It is found only in a fragmentary text as irtm (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 2:iv:3), where according to Driver and Aistleitner it means to smash, from Arb. ratama. But Caquot-S. Textes 134^f translate differently; opposing Gordon's interpretation as the plural of irt, breast, they prefer a 1st. person verb, I will tether, and as such it would be very close to the Heb. vb. in Mi 1₃₃. שגב: MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 149, 211) pt. nif. in the expression חומה נשגבה (cf. nif. 1); SamP. Dt 2₃₆ šāgāba, Sam. שגב to cover, hide; sbst. שגב šāgāb cloak, veil (Ben Hayyim Lit. Oral Trad. 3/2:355, 342); JArm. pa. to make strong; OArm. inf. pa. + ל: לשגב in order to protect (Donner-R. Inschriften 222 B: 32; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 291; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1109, šgb I, to protect, save), cf. Degen Altaram. Gramm. §28, p. 47, sbst. pl. + sf. 3rd. sg. שגבורה (Donner-R. Inschriften 224:13/14; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 291 :: Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1109, šgb II: now to be read šrbwh, see p. 1191, šrb II:) cf. Degen loc. cit. §33 p. 52; the exact sense is uncertain:

—a. the great, mighty (Donner-R. Inschriften loc. cit., also 3: p. 43a;

—b. troops (Degen loc. cit.); Akk. (Old Bab. from Mari and Standard Bab.) sag/kbu(m), sagbû(m) a class of soldiers, guard troops, vanguard (AHw. 1002b; CAD S: 22); on the sagbûm in Mari see also Noth Bibl. Land. 2:270f; further M. Anbar (Bernstein) UF 6 (1974) 439-441; 7 (1975) 592; the root *sagābum can be seen in the personal name Sagbi^d Adad (Huffmon Personal Names 245; see also the attempted derivation of the root by Wächter ZAW 83 (1971) 388.

qal: pf. שגבו, שגבה: with מן to be too high, be too strong for Dt 2₃₆, sbj. קריה; Jb 5₁₁ ישע ישגבו they are high (strong) in luck, meaning they have good luck, good fortune (cf. KBL: they are high in prosperity) :: NRSV, REB: they are lifted to safety; on the acc. see Gesenius-K. §117z; Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §94b, §102. † nif: pf. נשגבו, נשגבה; pt. נשגב, fem. נשגבה.

—1. to be high, inaccessible (חומה, cf. above DSS) Is 30₁₃ Pr 18₁₁, (קריה) Is 26₅.

—2. (יהרה) to be exalted Is 2₁₁₋₁₇ 33₅; (שָׁמוֹ) Is 12₄ Ps 148₁₃.

—3. knowledge (דַּעַת from יהרה) to be too high, unattainable Ps 139₆.

hif. (Jenni Piel 110): impf. יִשְׁגִּיב: to show oneself exalted Jb 36₂₂; on the meaning of the hif. see also H.P. Müller ZAW 96 (1984) 259: internal factitive.

Der. מִשְׁגָּב; n.m. שְׁגֹב.

9051 שָׁגַג

שָׁגַג: by-form of שָׁגַה/שָׁגַא; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 211 under שָׁגַג, see below, hitpilp.).

pilp: impf. תִּשְׁגִּשְׁגִּי: to cause to grow, cause to increase, rear (e.g. children) Is 17₁₁, on which see Wildberger BK 10:634, 638 and Zorell Lex. 793b. † hitpilp: impf. יִתְשַׁגְּשְׁגוּ: to grow upwards 1QH viii 9. †

9052 שָׁגַה

שָׁגַה: by-form of שָׁגַא, Arm., see Wagner Aramäismen 294, also for the cognate languages.

qal: impf. יִשְׁגָּה: to increase, become large Ps 92₁₃ (sbj. צַדִּיק), Jb 8₇ (sbj. אֲחֵרִיתֶךָ, on the abstract sbst. as masc. see Bauer-L. Heb. 504m, 512e; cf. Horst BK 16/1:126); Jb 8₁₁, var. יִשְׁגָּא → שָׁגַה qal. †

hif: pf. הִשְׁגִּיב: to make large, increase Ps 73₁₂ (obj. הַיָּל). †

9053 שְׁגֹב

שְׁגֹב: n.m.: שָׁגַב; Sept. Σεγούβ; shortened form as a corresponding full name, cf. n.f. (on a seal) אֶל־שָׁגַב “El has shown himself exalted” (pi. of שָׁגַב), see Noth Personennamen 38, 190f; Stamm Frauennamen 311 = Fschr. Stamm 107; in view of the use in the pi. it would also be possible to translate the name as “El has protected her”; with respect to their verbal elements the Western Semitic personal names from Asshur may also belong here, such as Sagib-ilu, which is abbreviated to Sagab (Tallqvist Personal Names 190 and 189), see further KBL.

—1. son of חִיאֵל from Bethel 1K 16₃₄ (K שָׁגִיב, Q שָׁגִיב).

—2. son of חִצְרוֹן from the tribe of Judah, whose mother was a daughter of נְכִיר, a woman of Manasseh 1C 2_{21f.} †

9054 שָׁגִיא

שָׁגִיא: Arm. Wagner Aramäismen 294a: שָׁגִיא; JArm. Sam. סָגִי, Qumran Job, col. xxvi Jb 35_{6,9} סָגִיא sbst; Bauer-L. Arm. 192e: exalted: אֵל Jb 36₂₆, שָׁגִי Jb 37₂₃. †

9055 שָׁגִיב

שָׁגִיב: K 1K 16₃₄, → שָׁגִיב.

9056 שָׁגִישָׁג

שָׁגִישָׁג: Is 17₁₁, → שָׁגִישָׁג.

שָׁדַד: JArm. pa. to plough; Syr. saddā furrow; but not Akk. šadādu to pull, haul (also various specialised related meanings, see CAD Š/1:20), as suggested in KBL, but related to → שָׁדַד by von Soden (AHw. 1121); for Ug. šdd see UF 7 (1975) 138).

pi: (Jenni Pi'el 245): impf. יִשְׁדַּדְּ, יִשְׁדַּדְּ: Is 28₂₄, (following פָּתַח pi.), Hos 10₁₁ (parallel with חָרַשׁ) Jb 39₁₀ Sir 38₂₆; the meaning is disputed: 1. to harrow (corresponding to Akk. šakāku(m) (AHw. 1134; CAD Š/1:113: also to thread string, pull back and forth), thus e.g. Wildberger BK 10:1083, 1092f on Is 28₂₄, and Rudolph KAT 13/1:201 on Hos 10₁₁; somewhat differently Dalman Arbeit 2:189: the shattering or breaking of the clods after the first ploughing, following Wolff BK 14/1²:240: the breaking up of the clods, and the smoothing of the sowing surface; 2. to plough border-furrows, thus Guthe Fschr. Budde 75-82 and subsequently Hölscher *Hiob*² 98 on Jb 39₁₀. The first suggestion is to be preferred to the second because if the second were correct in Is 28₂₄ it would have to precede פָּתַח (so NRSV: open and harrow the ground, and REB: break up and harrow); moreover שָׁדַד is paraphrased in v. 25 with שָׁדַד פָּנִיהָ he has levelled the surface of his arable ground (אֶדְמָה). †

—5c. שְׂדֵה כֶּבֶס “the fuller’s field” 2K 18¹⁷ Is 7³ 36², the site is disputed, but most probably in the vicinity of עֵין רִגְל “spring of the fuller” at the junction of the valleys of Hinnom and Kidron → עֵין B 13, cf. e.g. Wildberger BK 10:276f; Kaiser ATD 17³ (1970) 71 (:: in ATD 17⁵ (1981) 144: a more general geographical reference), Reicke-R. Hw. 826f.

—5d. שְׂדֵי־יַעַר “woodland meadows” Ps 132⁶ = קְרִית יַעַרִים → II קְרִיהָ 4.

—6. particular usages:

—a. שְׂדֵה נֶעְבָּד cultivated land Qoh 5⁸, see Lauha BK 19:103, 104f :: שְׂדֵה הַחֶרֶם a field that came under the ban, devoted to the herem Lv 27²¹;

—b. בְּשָׂדֶה הַקְּבוּרָה אֲשֶׁר לְמַלְכִים in the open country near the royal graves (ZürBib., referring to the burial of Uzziah who was a leper) 2C 26²³, cf. Rudolph Chr. 284, 287; TOB; REB: he was buried with his forefathers but in the field adjoining the royal tombs :: NRSV: in the burial field that belonged to the kings; JPS: in the burial field of the kings);

—c. מִים רַבִּים (= על) אֶל-שָׂדֵה טוֹב אָל- (he was planted) in a good field by abundant water Ezk 17₈;

—d. Ezk 21₂ יַעַר הַשָּׂדֵה נִגְבַּי textual corruption; cj. either

—i. rd. with v. ₃ יַעַר הַנֶּגֶב see Zimmerli Ezekiel 461; cf. BHS; or ii. cj. יַעַר שָׂדֵה הַנֶּגֶב the forest in the region of the Negev, cf. Jerusalem Bible: say to the forest of Negev;

—e. אֲשֶׁר בַּשָּׂדֵה בְּנוֹתֶיהָ/בְּנוֹתֶיהָ their (your) daughters in the fields Ezk 26_{6,8} meaning the settlements dependent on Tyre (παλαιά Τύρος) on the mainland (שָׂדֵה) in contrast to the main city on the island, cf. 27₄₋₃₂, see Simons Geog. §1422; Zimmerli Ezekiel 615f;

—f. וּשְׂדֵי תְרוּמָה 2S 1₂₁: literally “and the fields of the tribute” → תְּרוּמָה, so also (or similar) the versions (Sept., Vulg., Pesh., Tg.) :: Sept.^L τὰ ὑψη σου ὄρη θανάτου, cf. Vet. Lat. montes mortis, see BHS. A distinction should be made between those interpretations which assume a different meaning for תְּרוּמָה (though one that can still be derived from the root רום) and others which by cj. change the wording of the MT; in the first group שְׂדֵי תְרוּמָה is seen to be parallel with הָרִי בְּגִלְבָּעַ and has the same meaning as שָׂדֵה מְרוֹמֵי Ju 5₁₈ high fields, mountain pastures, thus Talmon VTSupp. 29 (1978) 346f and Fokkelman ZAW 91 (1979) 290-92; cf. Dahood Biblica 53 (1972) 398; on מְרוֹמֵי שָׂדֵה see above, 1 b; in the second group note

—i. for תְּרוּמָה prp. תְּרִמִּית their false fields, thus Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 192;

—ii. on the basis of a derivation from Ug. šr' thmtm the welling up of the two deeps (Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 19:i:45) the original reading is presumed to be וּשְׂרַעֵי תְהוֹמָת = וּשְׂרַעֵי תְהוֹמָת, which is then translated like that corresponding expression in Ugaritic; on this see e.g. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 56 entry 44; Holladay VT 20 (1970) 172; H.P. Müller ZA 64 (1974) 306; Fenton VT 29 (1979) 162ff; although this latter cj. seems to be interesting and even attractive it remains dubious owing to its extensive modification of the MT, even demanding the introduction of a new substantive in the Hebrew; it is better therefore to follow a proposal that does not involve cj.;

—g. שָׂדֵה צִמֹר 1S 14₁₄ → צִמֹר 2.

*שְׂרָרָה: only pl. שְׂרָר(וֹ)ת: 1K 6₉ 2K 11_{8.15} 2C 23₁₄; the etymology is uncertain, but a connection with the verb שָׂרַר (*סרר) can be assumed, see Noth Könige 117 and cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 446j; in the Sept. the sbst. is lacking at 1K 6₉; transcribed as σαδηρωθ at 2K 11_{8.15}; cf. ἐκὸς τοῦ οἴκου at 2C 23₁₄.

—1. 1K 6₉ together with גְּבִים (→ II *גַּב) and סִפֵּן, as an unexplained architectural term, thus even Rupprecht ZDPV 88 (1972) 44; suggested explanations include:

—a. in a row of arranged beams, thus Gray *Kings*³ 162; cf. TOB note; within the context, and considering the vb. סִפֵּן, it could refer to a portion of the construction of the roof, thus Noth Könige 117; Gray *Kings*³ 166f. (Noth Könige 96 translates גְּבִים וְשִׂרְרוֹת “in beams and boards”);

—b. שְׂרָרָת made its way into Egyptian as a Semitic loanword, and then it was re-adopted back into Hebrew; in Egyptian the sbst. is spelled śdrt (or śa-d-ra-ta) and means columned hall, colonade, or hall (Erman-G. 4:371), thus Görg BN 10 (1979) 12-15; he then translates שְׂרָרָת as “columned halls” (with גְּבִים as “adjacent building”).

—2. 2K 11_{8.15} 2C 23₁₄: ranks of footmen, or alternatively guards; 2C 23₇ reads אֲלֵהֶבְיִית (Sept. εφίς τὸν οἶκον) for אֲלֵהֶשְׂרָרוֹת (2K 11₈), on which see T. Willi Die Chronik als Auslegung 116. †

שׁוּחַ: שׁוּחַ qal inf., hapax legomenon, Gn 24⁶³; SamP. al'sū:

—a. the interpretation is uncertain and the versions differ: Sept. in order to gossip (ἀδολεσχησαι), Vulg. in order to meditate (ad meditandum), Pesh. so as to result (lamhallāku), Tg. in order to pray (ləṣallā'āh), Sam. Tg. lmsl'h; modern interpretations vacillate accordingly, see e.g. Dillmann *Die Genesis*⁶ 306f; Westermann BK 1/2:487; cf. further Blau VT 5 (1955) 343f; Wernberg-Møller VT 7 (1957) 414-416; Scharbert Schmerz 65f; Gray *Kings*³ 398; alt. for לְשׁוּחַ prp. לְשׁוּט cf. Pesh., or לְשׁוּחַ (BHK); the latter in Nöldeke Beitr. 43f corresponds to Arb. sāḥa (syḥ) to go about as a pilgrim or pious ascetic, see Lane 1:1482b; Dozy 1:711 and A. Fischer *Arab. Chrestomathie*⁴ 60; even so this remains doubtful; see further H.P. Müller VT 19 (1969) 368;

—b. לְשׁוּחַ בְּשׁוּחַ v. 63 is paraphrased in v. 65 with הִהוֹלֵךְ בְּשׁוּחַ, which accordingly suggests as the most probable meaning for שׁוּחַ to walk, stroll, wander about, thus e.g. Westermann loc. cit., cf. also Arb. sāḥa (swḥ) to travel, rove, roam about (Wehr-Cowan 439b). †

—a. šatta to remove oneself, be unjust (Gesenius-B.; KBL; see also Wehr-Cowan 470b: I-form, to go to extremes, deviate; VIII-form, be excessive);

—b. šāta (šwt) to run (of a horse towards its goal), see Zorell Lex. 795a.

qal: pt. pl. cs. שׁוּטִי with כָּזָב Ps 40₅, = כִּזְבַּ שׁוּטִי Sir 52₂; the versions differ with reference to the MT: Sept. and Vulg. iuxta Sept.: he who does not regard false madness (μανίας ψευδέις, insanias falsas); Vulg. iuxta Hebr.: he who is not disinclined to insolence and to processions of lies (pompas mendacii); Pesh.: and he who turns neither to vanity nor to lying speech (mamləlā daggālā); from its עׁרׁוֹ form שׁוּט could designate a verb of movement (cf. von Soden Gramm. §104d) with the sense of to turn away from (or to, see esp. Vulg. iuxta Hebr.), or more freely to involve oneself in; שׁוּטִי כָּזָב those who turn away to lies, who become involved in lies, see Klopfenstein Lüge 233; cf. Gesenius-B.; Zorell Lex.; KBL; cf. also → שׁוּטה. 9081 שור qal: impf. וַיִּשַׁר Hos 12₅ text uncertain, versions differ, see Wolff BK 14/1²:267; several suggestions.

I שור.

—1. with MT:

—a. root שור as by-form of I שרה (אָל = עַל) cf. Sept. ἐνίσχυσεν, on which see Gesenius-K. §72t; Gesenius-B. and esp. König Wb. 461b: to struggle, strive;

—b. root שרר, cf. Symmachus κατεδυνάστευσε, Vulg. invaluit, similarly Pesh. (following Ju 9₂₂ for אָל prp. עַל) to rule over.

—2. cj. for MT rd. וַיִּשַׁר (I שרה), thus e.g. Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 75; Bergsträsser 2: §31k; KBL; inf. sf. שורי Hos 9₁₂ = סורי (→ סור qal, Bauer-L. Heb. 404) :: Wolff BK 14/1²:207, 208: בְּשורי (vb. II שור) if I draw away from them; suggestions which move even further away from the MT are found in Rudolph KAT 13/1:180, 182.

hif: pf. הִשִּׁירוּ, denominative from שָׂר (vb. שׂוּר by-form of → I שָׂרָר): to install officials Hos 8₄, thus KBL, see further Wolff BK 14/1²:168, 169; according to Rudolph KAT 13/1:157, a few MSS prefer to read ס instead of ש; הִסִּירוּ they removed is also considered by Rudolph (loc. cit. and p. 163) together with the previously mentioned derivation. †

II שׂוּר: the root is etymologically related to *נָשָׂר (HAL 687b, English edition 728a); the cognate forms mentioned there should now be supplemented with Akk. nasāru to cut (?) (AHw. 753b; CAD N/2:23: only in lexical lists); for Arb. našara there are also by-forms ʾašara and wašara (Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 182); Eth. wašara (Dillmann Lex. 894); Tigr. šaršara (Littmann-H. Wb. 211b); Eg. wšy (Erman-G. 1:358); the word is an example of an onomatopoeic verb, derived from a basic sound sr/šr which could be transformed into a verb in different ways.

qal: impf. וַיִּשָּׂר: to saw apart, with בַּמְּגִרָה with a stone-mason's saw 1C 20₃; such a derivation of this verbal form, giving a horrific description of atrocities against a conquered people, is uncertain, and there is a question of an alternative derivation from II שָׂרָר, thus Rudolph Chr. 140; his opinion, that the Chronicler would not have recorded such an atrocity by David, is valid in this context; therefore, following 2S 12₃₁, for וַיִּשָּׂר much more probably rd. וַיִּשָּׂם he set them to work with saws (so REB; also NRSV); but the question remains how this reading could have arisen in 1C 20₃; TOB offers a paraphrase in mitigation of the MT: he condemned them to the saw. †

שׂוּרָה: a primary noun (cf. ? Bauer-L. Heb. 452r):

—a. = ? OArm. שׂוּרָה (Donner-R. Inschriften 215:6, 9; see 2: p. 226: a type or class of sorghum grains: durra, Indian millet, guinea corn (sorghum annum) identified with Arb. durrat millet (Gesenius-B.); so also Jean-H. Dictionnaire 294 שׂוּרָה II: in a series of types of grain :: Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1118, šwr IV (Samal): šwrh cow, fem. of šwr bull, while referring to millet as an alternative: Is 28₂₅ text uncertain, lacking in Sept., Pesh.; Vulg. ordo corresponding to MHeb. שׂוּרָה row, cf. Zorell Lex. 797b; Tg. לִוְגִנִּין beet (Dalman Wb. 214a), cf. Dalman Arbeit 2:172.

—b. since it is uncertain whether שׂוּרָה is to be identified with Arb. durrat, the rendering millet (KBL with a question mark, cf. Gesenius-B.) remains doubtful; thus Zorell loc. cit.: a type of grain which cannot be more precisely identified :: Dalman Arbeit 2:353 and Wildberger BK 10:1084: imprecise dittography of שְׂעֵרָה. †

*שָׁחַ: II שִׁיחַ, probably a by-form of II שִׁיחַ, see Rudolph KAT 13/2:171; cf. H.P. Müller VT 19 (1969) 369: sf. in מַה-יִשְׁחֹר Am 4₁₃; on the versions see Wolff BK 14/2:249, who accepts the interpretation of Aquila, Symmachus, Theodotion and the Vulgate, whereby the sbst. is taken in the sense of conversation, word, discourse, which approximates the use of שִׁיחַ in Sir 11₈ 13₁₁ 20₄. According to Müller (loc. cit.) a similar meaning such as divine announcement should be accepted for the corrupted text of Am 4₁₃. In view of the meaning of the verb II שִׁיחַ and the sbst. II שִׁיחַ in the OT, it is usual to adopt a contrasting rendering of שָׁחַ as his (God's) thinking, or the substance of his thinking, or how he is disposed, cf. Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; König; see further e.g. Maag Wortschatz 24; Rudolph KAT 13/2:170; Wolff BK 14/2:248: what is his plan, similarly Scharbert Schmerz 67; TOB; NRSV: he reveals his thoughts to mortals; similarly REB :: NEB: who showers abundant rain on the earth. †

—1. שָׁטָן adversary, opponent:

—a. in the military and political sphere 1S 29₄ 1K 5₁₈ 11₁₄₋₂₃₋₂₅;

—b. in jurisprudence Ps 109₆, שָׁטָן meaning accuser, or opposing party; for the latter see THAT 2:822; cf. Horst BK 16/1: 14;

—c. שָׁטָן שְׂשָׁן the one who hinders a purpose:

—i. Nu 22₂₂₋₃₂ (subj. שְׂשָׁן יִשְׂרָאֵל);

—ii. in 2S 19_{22f}, where אֲבִישִׁי has the role of the שָׁטָן אֲבִישִׁי, the translation of שָׁטָן as tempter becomes appropriate in the context, thus Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 299; ZürBib. :: Boecker (1964) 79²: the opponent who seeks to hinder the king's sovereign act of grace, see also 2 a and b; NRSV: you should become an adversary; REB: what right have you to oppose me?

—2. הַשָּׁטָן:

—a. a celestial figure near Yahweh Zech 3_{1f};

—b. one single member of the group of the בְּנֵי אֱלֹהִים who comprise the heavenly court Jb 1₆₋₉₋₁₂ 2_{1-4-6f} (JArm. סַטָּנָה in Jb 1₆₋₇). For the disputed rendering of הַשָּׁטָן סַטָּנָה in these passages see esp. Fohrer and Horst loc. cit. The most important of the views represented suggests that הַשָּׁטָן should mean either plaintiff, heavenly prosecutor, or opponent, adversary. On the first interpretation see esp. von Rad, Eichrodt and Koehler loc. cit.; see also Gesenius-B., KBL and Rudolph KAT 13/4:95 on Zech 3_{1f}; on the second see primarily Horst, and see further Fohrer KAT 16:82f; THAT 2:822f.

—3. שָׁטָן as a personal name, without the article 1C 21₁; clearly also a celestial figure who incited David to make a census, see Rudolph Chr. 142f; THAT 2:823 (with bibliography).

שִׁיג = סיג* I: סוג, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 452q: hapax legomenon 1K 18₂₇; the versions vary: for שִׁיג and שִׁיחַ Sept. probably has only the one word ἀδολεσχία gossip, prattle, Vulg. in diversorio est, Pesh. ṣābū sāʿar he completes a project (?); according to the etymology שִׁיג means either to go away, to go to the side, or expulsion, defecation; for the first meaning see e.g. H.D. Preuss Die Verspottung fremder Religionen im Alten Testament 86; TOB, see the note on 1K 18₂₇; ZürBib.; NRSV; on the second see e.g. KBL; G. Fohrer Elia 16; see also H.P. Müller VT 19 (1969) 369: original text only לוֹ שִׁיג כִּי, while כִּי שִׁיחַ is a secondary variant, an explanatory addition. Müller describes Sir 13_{25/26} as a euphemistic (?) variant on 1K 18₂₇. If one translates שִׁיג in the first sense, to go away, הִרְכָּב־לוֹ can hardly mean he must withdraw, thus e.g. KBL; Fohrer and Müller; it is more likely that the expression is to be taken literally, he is on the way or journeying, thus with Vulg., Pesh. (cf. Sept. χρηματίζει) e.g. ZürBib., TOB and esp. Gray *Kings*³ 388, 397f.; NRSV: either he is meditating, or he has wandered away, or he is on a journey; REB (following NEB): it may be he is deep in thought, or engaged, or on a journey. †

II שיח: MHeb., JArm. שיח to converse, speak, MHeb. סוּחַ qal to say, hif. to speak, tell, narrate; JArm. Palmyrene שיח/ס qal and nif./af. to say, converse, speak; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 211) שיח: 1QH 1, 35 pt. qal, otherwise pil. to reflect, ponder; Arb. šāḥa (šyḥ) to be jealous (Nöldeke Beitr. 43).

qal: impf. יִשְׁיַח, אֲשִׁיחַ, אֲשִׁיחָה, יִשְׁיַחוּ, sf. תִּשְׁיַחְךָ; impv. שִׁיחֵה; inf. cs. שִׁיחַ; שִׁיחַ Jb 12₈ textual corruption, see below paragraph 3; bibliography: H.J. Franken The Mystical Communion with YHWH in the Book of Psalms 18-22; Mowinckel StTh. 15 (1961-1962) 1-10; H.P. Müller VT 19 (1969) 361-371; Seybold ThZ 40 (1984) 7f.

General note: Lisowsky gives the following meanings for the vb.: 1. to ponder, reflect; 2. to talk, discourse; 3. to complain, lament; all of these could be attested but it is difficult to identify a basic meaning from them all; the meaning postulated in KBL was to concern oneself with something, an action that unfolds variously in different directions. This therefore assumes (in opposition to Mowinckel loc. cit.) that שיח cannot be limited to an activity of the soul or learned wisdom in the sense of meditation; the same objection holds against A. Deissler Psalms 119 (118) und seine Theologie 106 (but see also p. 278); see further G. Gerleman Studien zur alttestamentlichen Theologie 41: to concern oneself with, in the sense of Latin meminisse; already noted in Pedersen Isr. 1-2:126: שיח meaning to remember, take to heart, consider. Franken, Mystical Communion 19f., brings into consideration the internal and external content of the verb, remarking that the term does not refer in the first place to an audible lament, but rather it designates the movement from which the lament proceeds; whether praise (Ps 104₃₄) or lament is the result depends on this inner sensibility. Seybold ThZ 40 (1984) 7f takes the basic meaning of the verb as to whisper, which develops in various ways depending on the intensity of the sound. Müller, VT 19 (1969) 361-371, develops even more elaborately the idea of an audible intensity expressed by שיח, which had certainly been considered important earlier; his view is consistent with relating the verbal root to צוּחַ (see p. 370). The following analysis of the term is proposed based on Müller.

—1. loud, enthusiastic, emotionally laden speech:

—a. praising (abs.) Ju 5₁₀, with בְּ Ps 105₂ 1C 16₉, with acc. Ps 145₅;

—b. lamenting Ps 55₁₈ (parallel with הַנְּזוּה), Ps 77₄₋₇ Jb 7₁₁;

—c. taunting, mocking, with בְּ Ps 69₁₃;

—d. instructing, teaching, with acc. of the person תִּשְׁיַחְךָ Pr 6₂₂ (sbj. מִצְנָה or תּוֹרָה).

—2. to meditate with thanks and praise: Ps 77₁₃ (בְּעֵלֵי לִוְיָתָן), Ps 119₁₄₈ (בְּאִמְרֵי תִּירָה), ²³⁻⁴⁸ (בְּחִקְיָה), ²⁷ (בְּנִפְלְאוֹתֶיהָ), ¹⁵⁻⁷⁸ (בְּפִקְוֵי דָרְיָה).

—3. cj. Jb 12₈ for לְאָרְיָן שִׁיחַ prp. חֵית הָאָרְיָן (KBL; BHS and Fohrer KAT 16:233, 237; thus also Horst BK 16/1:176, 180, who nevertheless prefixes with לְחֵית). † pil: impf. יִשְׁוּחַח, אֲשִׁוּחַח.

—1. = qal 2: Ps 143₅ (parallel with תִּכְרַח and הִגְדָה) obj. בְּמַעֲשֵׂה/וֹי יְדִיךָ.

—2. Is 53₈ וְאֵת־דִּוְרוֹ מִי יִשְׁחַח Sept. τὴν γενεὰν αὐτοῦ τίς διηγῆσεται Vulg. generationem eius quis enarrabit, thus also Pesh., against Tg. Recent translations admit three possible interpretations:

—a. frequently like qal 2, to concern oneself with, engage oneself with, consider, e.g. ZürBib.; Gesenius-B.; KBL; TOB; Westermann ATD 19:205; NRSV: who could have imagined his future; REB: who gave a thought to his fate?;

—b. following Sept. and Vulg. to narrate, describe in speech, thus Zorell Lex. 799a;

—c. according to Pr 6₂₂ (see above qal 1 d) to instruct, so “as for his contemporaries, who instructs them?”, thus Müller VT 19 (1969) 366; deciding which of the three interpretations to adopt is difficult. †

—11. a. שׁ' אֶת־שֵׁם בְּ (of יהוה) to set the name, meaning to cause it to dwell 2K 21₄₋₇, cf. 2C 33₇, see Avishur UF 8 (1976) 10f;

—b. שׁ' אֶת־שֵׁם עַל (of יהוה) to set the name upon Nu 6₂₇ :: de Boer VT 32 (1982) 3-13: for עַל it is better to read עַל (= עֲלִיּוֹן) and if they will designate me the highest of all Israelites then for my part I will bless them (but this is a very improbable interpretation);

—c. שׁוֹם לְ שֵׁם/שִׁים:

—i. to set (make) a name for someone 2S 7₂₃/1C 17₂₁ equivalent to לְ עֲשָׂה שֵׁם לְ 2S 7₉/1C 17₈ (→ עֲשָׂה 6 b); לְ שֵׁם לְ is a fixed expression within cultic language. In El-Amarna (borrowed from Egyptian) there is also found Canaanite šakan šumšu he has placed his name (letters 287: 60f; 288: 5f; cf. Böhl Sprache §27f); for all this see K. Seybold Das davidische Königtum im Zeugnis der Propheten 32⁴⁶, 38⁸⁵;

—ii. שׁ' שֵׁם לְ to give someone a name, name someone Da 1₇, with two acc.: אֶת־שְׁמוֹ אַבְיִמֶלֶךְ Jb 8₃₁, שְׁמוֹ יִשְׂרָאֵל 2K 17₃₄, שְׁמוֹ אַבְרָהָם Neh 9₇; cf. Ph. שֵׁם שֵׁם with acc. (Donner-R. Inschriften 26:ii:9f, 17f).

—12. שׁ' דְּבַרְתּוֹ אֶל־ to lay his case before Jb 5₈ equivalent to Akk. awātam šakānu (AHw. 89b paragraph 6 b; CAD Š/1:136, šakānu 5: 1. to bring a case; 2. to spread a rumour), see S.M. Paul RB 86 (1979) 235f, בְּאַזְנֵי שׁ' to put into the ears of, recite audibly Ex 17₁₄.

—13. a. עַל־לֵב שׁ' to take to heart Is 42₂₅ 47₇ 57₁₋₁₁ Jr 12₁₁ Mal 2₂, corresponding to לֵב לְ/אֵל שׁ' Dt 32₄₆ 2S 19₂₀, corresponding to לֵב שׁ' Is 41₂₂, corresponding to שִׁים (without לֵב) Is 41₂₀ corresponding to Akk. ina muḥḫi libbi šakānu (AHw. 549b, libbu A 4 i), ana libbišu šakānumma ul šakin he does not take it to heart (ARMT 13 110: 10' f) :: CAD Š/1:138b, šakānu 5 with libbu: to encourage, comfort (but with different citations);

—b. לֵב עַל/אֵל שׁ' to regard, pay attention to Ex 9₂₁ Hg 1₅₋₇ Jb 1₈ 2₃ Da 1₈, with לְ Ezk 40₄; with בְּ (בִּי to me) Jb 23₆, abs. (without preposition), Ezk 44₅ Hg 2₁₅₋₁₈;

—c. לֵב עַל שׁ' (textual emendation) to consider Ju 19₃₀, with לְ to concern oneself with 1S 9₂₀; שׁ' לָבוֹ to turn his mind to himself, meaning to think about himself Jb 34₁₄; שׁ' אֶל־לָבוֹ דָּבַר to persuade oneself of something 2S 13₃₃; שִׁים תִּפְלָה (textual emendation) to pay attention to, have regard for a prayer (without לֵב) Jb 24₁₂.

—14. שׁ' פָּנִים:

—a. with acc. of place, to set one's face toward Gn 31₂₁ Ezk 21₂, with לְ and inf. 2K 12₁₈ Jr 44₁₂ Da 11₁₇, cf. Akk. pānī (pānam) šakānu(m) ana to turn towards, face a certain direction (AHw. 819b; CAD Š/1:138b-140b: also as a transitive, and also to have a destination, to turn to with trust, to intend);

—b. with בְּ to set (turn) one's face upon, or against Lv 20₅ Jr 21₁₀ 44₁₁ Ezk 15₇, in the same sense with אֵל Ezk 6₂ 13₁₇ 21₇ etc., with עַל Ezk 29₂ 35₂.

—15. שׁ' עֵינֵי עַל:

—a. to see someone with one's own eyes Gn 44₂₁, to have an eye on, meaning to carry concern for Jr 40₄, equivalent to שׁ' עֵינֶיךָ עַל 39₁₂;

—b. עֵינֵי עַל (of יהוה) to turn my eyes upon (someone) לְטוֹבָה Jr 24₆, לְטוֹבָה וְלֹא לְרָעָה וְלֹא לְטוֹבָה Am 9₄;

—c. שׁ' פָּנִים בֵּין בְּרַכְיִים to place the face between the knees 1K 18₄₂.

—16. שִׁים to install, fix, mount: פָּתַח Gn 6₁₆, מָסַךְ הַפָּתַח to place the curtain in front of the door, with לְ Ex 40₅; with acc. and עַל Gn 24₄₇, Ex 28₁₂₋₂₆ 39₇₍₁₉₎; שׁ' עַל־הַגֵּם (שָׂרָף) Nu 21_{8f}; יָד שׁ' to set up a guidepost Ezk 21_{24f} (textual emendation), see Zimmerli Ezekiel 480, 481.

—17. שׁ' הִפָּתָה to plant wheat Is 28₂₅; שׁ' הִדְשֵׁן to shake out the ashes from the fat Lv 6₃; to shake into the water Ezk 26₁₂, שׁ' מָלַח to put salt (into a pot) 2K 2₂₀, שׁ' מָרַק to pour broth into a pot Ju 6₁₉; with דָּם 1K 2₅ (: cj. ? וַיִּשָּׂם for וַיִּקָּם), Ezk 24₇, with דָּמָעָה Ps 56₉, to pour out, on this see Van Dijk VT 18 (1968) 16-30.

—18. שִׁימוּ שׁוּם to incapacitate or enable:

—a. i. to make someone dumb, or deaf, or sighted, or blind Ex 4₁₁;

—b. to make to work, accomplish אֶתְחִי Ex 10₂, אֶתוֹת וּמוֹפְתִים signs and wonders Jr 32₂₀ Ps 78₄₃ 105₂₇, כָּל-הַמַּחֲלָה all sicknesses Ex 15₂₆, רָעָה תַחַת טוֹבָה Ps 109₅;

—c. to manufacture, install equipment and items of furniture for the Tabernacle) Ex 26₃₅ 40_{3.5.8} etc.;

—d. with two acc., to make something into something else:

—i. with two acc. of the person בָּנָיו שֹׁפְטִים his sons into judges 1S 8₁, cf. 8₁₂ 18₁₃;

—ii. with acc. of the person and acc. of the thing מִבְטָחוּ יהוה to make Yahweh the object of one's trust Ps 40₅, לְ חֶרְפַּת נָבָל to make someone the jibe of fools Ps 39₉, לְ חֶרְפַּת לְ חֶרְפַּת a joke among the neighbours Ps 44₁₄, בְּ מִשְׁלַל a by-word among the nations Ps 44₁₅;

—iii. with two acc. of things כָּבוֹד תִּהְלָתוּ to make his praise noble (ZürBib., cf. NRSV, REB: glorious) Ps 66₂, אֶתְחִי אֶתְחִי אֶתְחִי אֶתְחִי to make (set up) their own banners as signs Ps 74₄, גְּבוּלְךָ שְׁלוֹם to make your borders peaceful Ps 147₁₄, זָהָב כְּסֵלִי to make gold into the object of my trust Jb 31₂₄, cf. further Jos 8₂₈ Is 28₁₅ 50₂ 62₇ (Ezk 19₅);

—e. with acc. and לְ:

—i. to make into לְאֱלֹהִים Ju 8₃₃, לְמֶלֶךְ 1K 10₉, וְיִשְׁיִמְנֵי לְחֵץ בְּרוּר Is 49₂, לְחֶרֶם Jos 6₁₈, לְמָס Ju 1₂₈, לְחֶשֶׁךְ חֶשֶׁךְ לְאֹר וְאֹר Is 5₂₀, מִשְׁפָּט לְקוֹ Is 28₁₇;

—ii. to make into, meaning to transform; while distinguishing this meaning from that in (i) above, it is not always certain: Gn 21₁₃ 46₃ Ex 14₂₁ Is 13₉ 42₁₅ 60₁₅ Mi 1₆ 4₇, see Wolff BK 14/4 (Micha) 95;

—f. with acc. and כִּי, to make like Gn 13₁₆ Dt 10₂₂ 1K 19₂ 2K 13₇ Am 8₁₀.

—19. שָׁם:

—a. to establish, confirm: גְּבוּל Ps 104₉, חֶק Ex 15₂₅ Jos 24₂₅, לְחֶק Gn 47₂₆ 1S 30₂₅, בְּרִית 2S 23₅, קָן Jb 28₃, מְקוֹם Ex 21₁₃ 2S 7₁₀ 1K 8₂₁, מוֹעֵד Ex 9₅, cj. Jb 34₂₃ for עוֹד rd. מוֹעֵד (BHS);

—b. with acc. and לְ to set up something for someone: אֶהָל Ps 19₅, חוֹצוֹת 1K 20₃₄ (→ חוֹיֵן II 2) to guarantee, ensure, בְּאֶרֶץ Gn 45₇, וּשְׁאֲרִית 2S 14₇; to give, grant, assign כָּבוֹד Jos 7₁₉ Is 42₁₂ (see above, 6 f; כָּבוֹד תִּהְלָתוּ Ps 66₂ (see above 18 d iii); לְ רַחֲמִים Is 47₆, לְ שְׁלוֹם Nu 6₂₆:: K. Seybold Der Aaronitische Segen 40f: שֵׁים (יֵשֶׁם) has here the same meaning as the Akk. šāmu (on which see above), and so לְךָ שְׁלוֹם לְךָ שֵׁים means may Yahweh or-dain šālōm as your destiny; the expression occurs also in EmpArm. לְךָ שְׁלוֹם יֵשֶׁם לְךָ אֱלֹהֵי אֱלֹהֵי שְׁלוֹם יֵשֶׁם לְךָ (Driver Arm. Documents, letter 13: 5), on which see also D. Kellermann Die Priesterschrift 96.

—20. particular instances: שִׁים בַּפּוֹךְ עֵינַיִם to lay the eyes in antimony, meaning to paint one's eyes with antimony (stibium) 2K 9₃₀, on which see Gradwohl Personennamen 63f, 81 (see also פּוֹךְ), cf. בַּפּוֹךְ עֵינֶיהָ. קָרַע Jr 4₃₀ (→ קרע 4).

—1. sbst.

—a. hireling, day-labourer; on his legal status see Horst BK 16/1:114: שְׂכִיר designates the waged labourer who no longer possessed any land, with whom one concluded a short-term or a long-term contract (Is 16₁₄ 21₁₆, also Lv 25₅₃). The personal status of the waged labourer as a freeman can be distinguished from that of the slave, even though he usually performed the same work: Ex 12₄₅ Lv 19₁₃ 22₁₀ 25₆₋₄₀₋₅₀₋₅₃ Dt 15₁₈ (שְׂכִיר שְׂכָר), 24₁₄ Is 16₁₄ 21₁₆ Mal 3₅ (dl. שְׂכָר), Jb 7_{1f} 14₆; שכיר שנה someone hired for one year Sir 37₁₁;

—b. mercenary, hired soldier Jr 46₂₁;

—c. for Is 16₁₄ 21₁₆, besides the first translation given above (a), which is more probable, the second (b) is also possible (see Wildberger BK 10:631).

—2. שְׂכִיר Ex 22₁₄: either a sbst. or an adj.; among the versions Sept. renders μισθωτός, just like Pesh. and Tg. 'agīrā, leaving both possibilities open; Vulg. reads si conductum venerat if the animal came as a hired item, which suggests an adj.; among more recent treatments, Baentsch GHK 1/2 (1905) 200 and Noth ATD 5:138, 150 support the sbst.: the שְׂכִיר received an animal on loan from his employer; in support of the adj., with שְׂכִיר meaning a hired animal, are ZürBib.; Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 464a; as well as Beer HAT 3 (1939) 114: hired animal; NRSV: if it was hired only the hiring fee is due (REB similarly); see further Childs Exodus 444, 449.

—3. particular expressions involving 1 above: with לִין + לֵא qal/hif. II שִׁכַּל: on שִׁכַּל I and II see also Blau VT 7 (1957) 101: only one root, which embraces the meanings of I and II; so also Arb. ‘aqala, which means to bind as well as to understand: Arb. šakala I and IV to be unclear (in comparison with something else), doubtful; the basic meaning is likely to be “to connect”, from which is derived šikāl the cord with which a horse’s legs are hobbled, thus Gesenius-B.; KBL; cf. Lane 1:1586 and esp. G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2:443: 1. šakala to hobble an animal with a šikāl; 2. šakila I and IV, a problem which has become dark and doubtful; Sept. ἐναλλάξ τὰς χεῖρας to lay the hands crosswise, Vulg. commutans manus, similarly Pesh., but different in Tg.

שְׁכַל (5 times) and שִׁכַּל (8 times): שִׁכַּל, Bauer-L. Heb. 457q, 459e: MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 212): insight, understanding, discernment, judgement, cf. Nötscher Terminologie. 55ff; JArm. שְׁכַלְא (also סְכַלְא) insight, discernment; Syr. sukkālā; cf. BArm. → שְׁכַלְתְּנוּ, also for the equivalents in JArm. and Syr.; THAT 2:824-828, esp. 826f.

General note: within the sbst. are found different meanings of the vb.; on the one hand to understand, and on the other hand, to be successful. The first of these two meanings is by far the more important; on the vb. → שָׁכַל hif. 1, 2 and 4: שָׁכַל Jb 17₄, sf. שָׁכַלוּ.

—1. insight, understanding:

—c. שָׁכַל טוֹב good insight Pr 13₁₅, good understanding 2C 30₂₂ (→ שָׁכַל hif. 5b).

—2. success: שָׁכַל-טוֹב good result, kind approval Pr 3₄ cf. Gemser *Spr.*² 26.

—3. שָׁכַל טוֹב לְ Ps 111₁₀ could belong to either meaning; if it belongs to the first it means good understanding for those who practise it, so KBL, NRSV, REB, and also the versions; Sept. σὺν εἰσις ἀγαθῆ; similarly Vulg. and Pesh., on which see also e.g. Gunkel Psalmen 488; ZürBib.; TOB; somewhat different is Dahood Psalms 3:121, 125: the understanding of the good, namely of Yahweh (in the sense of a general object, human insight is meant); if the second meaning is accepted the expression means a beautiful reward (reward as the fruit or result of success), thus Kraus BK 15⁵:939.

9162 שְׂמִיכָה

שְׂמִיכָה (two MSS with שְׂמִיכָה): root probably סָמַךְ (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 471o, cf. esp. יָרִיעָה); the versions explain the sbst. differently in individual cases as cover or covering: Sept.^A ἐν τῇ δέρρει αὐτῆς, Sept.^B ἐπιβολαί, Vulg. pallio, Pesh. baḥmīltā with a cover, Tg. bəgūnkā with a blanket, and these renderings indicate the meaning cover for the Heb. sbst. (cf. Gesenius-B.; Zorell Lex.; König Wb.), on this see also סָמַךְ with reference to the Akk. samāku(m) to cover (AHw. 1017a :: CAD S: 109: to dam a canal, perhaps to reject); Arb. samk roof, cover (: KBL the curtain separating the women's quarters of the tent): cover, covering, e.g. mat, rug Ju 4¹⁸. †

שָׁמַךְ: cj. inf. לְשָׁמוּךְ Qoh 2³, → סָמַךְ qal 1.

Der. שְׂמִיכָה.

9164 שָׁמַל

*שָׁמַל hif: → שָׁמַאל.

9165 שָׁמַל

*שָׁמַל: (→ שָׁלַם with interchange of radicals); Arb. šamīla and šamāla to contain, comprise, include; following Caquot-S. Textes 168^j it could be concluded from Ug. ištmīl-h (Herdner Corpus 3:iii:37) that the Arb. vb. šamāla is related to an Ug. vb, but in Herdner Corpus (see p. 17²) this reading is highly uncertain; Dietrich-L.-S. Texte 1, 3:iii:40 gives only ištm[].

Der. I שָׁלַמָּה, שְׂמִלָּה, n.m. שְׂמִלָּי, שְׂמִלָּי, as well as the personal names שְׂלַמָּא, שְׂלַמָּה, שְׂלַמֻּן and שְׂלַמֵּי derived from *שָׁלַם.

9166 שְׂמִלָּה

שְׂמִלָּה: n.m., SamP. šamla; Sept. Σαμαλα Gn 36^{36f}, Σαμαα 1C 1^{47f}; the personal name is not mentioned by Noth Personennamen 232, but it should certainly be considered as a var. of II שְׂלַמָּה; for an explanation → *שָׁלַם: the king of Edom, Gn 36^{36f} 1C 1^{47f}. †

—c. particular instances: 1S 21₁₀ the sword of Goliath is בְּשִׂמְלָה לִוְטָה; but what precisely is meant here, as the ver-sions show, is uncertain: Sept. ἡμάτιον, Vulg. pallium Pesh. šūšep̄ā cloak, over-garment (Nöldeke *Syr. Gramm.*² §84) = Tg. שׁוֹשְׁפָא (Dalman Wb. 418b: cloak); here the sbst. could mean dress, or cloak, or perhaps also a piece of material, on which see Hönig Bekleidung 58.

9187 שַׁעַר

I שַׁעַר: the derivation of this verb is uncertain; possibilities include:

—a. a primary vb. equivalent to Arb. ša'ira to be hairy (Gesenius-B.; KBL);

—b. both the Heb. and the Arb. vb. are denominative from the corresponding sbst.; this certainly seems to be true for MHeb. שַׁעַר hif. to be (become) hairy; Syr. s'ra pa. to let one's hair grow, af. to bring forth hair; similarly, Arb. ša'ira II, IV, V, X, see Lane 1559c; but the Heb. vb. is clearly different from this, so that either of the above derivations seems possible, involving a stronger semantic development. This is also true for the Mnd. SAR II, SUR II to be terrified, troubled, awestruck (Drower-M. Dictionary 314b, where it is linked to Akk. šāru wind, breeze).

Pesh. and Tg. here offer a translation corresponding to Heb. שְׁעָרָה (Pesh. mentā); even so the Sept. ἐν γυόφ and the Vulg. in turbine support the translation given above, in agreement with Nah 1₃. †

9197 שְׁעָרָה

שְׁעָרָה: basic form unknown, thus Bauer-L. Heb. 474o; it is uncertain whether the sbst. is to be derived from I שֶׁר (if this is a primary vb., Gesenius-B.; KBL), or whether it is merely related by root to this vb. and to the sbst. שֶׁר. One particular attempt to derive it from I שֶׁר to bristle is found in Mettinger JSS 16 (1971) 6: שְׁעָרָה is taken as a nomen actionis which refers to the whole field, and is then limited to a single type of grain. Even though there are still questions remaining, by deriving שְׁעָרָה from its basic meaning as the hairy (one), it might signify hairy seed, fruit; the Bib.Heb. sbst. is in origin a unitary noun, meaning a barleycorn; a collective, which one would expect from OSArb., Arb. and Tigr. (see below), is not preserved; SamP. šā:ra, pl. šā:rām; MHeb. שְׁעוֹרָה; Heb. inscr. שֶׁרָם barley (Gezer, see Donner-R. Inschriften 182:4; Gibson Textbook 1: text 1; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 315; Hoftijzer-J. Dictionary 1180, šrh); Samaria Ostrakon C 1101:3 = Donner-R. Inschriften 188:3; Gibson Textbook 1: p. 14f; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 315; Hoftijzer-J. Dictionary 1180, šrh); JArm. סְעָרְתָא usually pl. ש/סְעָרִין, det. סְעָרִיא; OArm. שֶׁרָה, pl. שְׁעָרִיָּן, cs. שְׁעָרִי (Donner-R. Inschriften 3: p. 44a; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 315; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1180, šrh); EgArm. שְׁעָרִין (Cowley *Arm. שְׁעָרִים 9198

שְׁעָרִים: the name of a tribe; Sept. Σεωριμ/ν, Vulg. Seorim, the name remains unexplained in Noth Personennamen 257b and, according to Rudolph Chr. 160, has probably not been correctly transmitted; it may be that a personal name formed from I שְׁעִיר underlies the word, cf. Akk. apparûm “the shaggy one” (Stamm 266): a priestly family, or the ancestor of that family 1C 24₈. †

שִׁפַּח: hapax legomenon Is 3₁₇; MHeb. sbst. תִּפְחָח psoriasis.

pi. (Jenni Pi'el 233): pf. שִׁפַּח, Sept. καὶ ἰ κύριος ἀποκαλύψει τὸ σχῆμα αὐτῶν, Vulg. decalvabit Dominus verticem filiarum Sion, Pesh. and Tg. differently; the meaning of the verb is disputed, possibilities include:

—a. denominative vb. from תִּפְחָח, or מִסְפַּחָת, thus esp. Zorell Lex. 806a: to make scabby (obj. קִרְקִרָה), so also e.g. Gesenius-B.; KBL; König Wb. 469a;

—b. to bare, strip, lay bare, like Akk. sapāhu to dissolve, scatter (AHw. 1024f; CAD S: 151), cf. Arb. ʿaṣfāhu bald on the front of the head, see Driver VT 1 (1951) 242 and subsequently Wildberger BK 10:135, 139; Kaiser ATD 17⁵:86;

—c. the first alternative (a) seems somewhat preferable to the second (b) since within Hebrew the vb. can be derived without difficulty from the sbst.; the meaning of the Sept. and Vulg. is already somewhat further from the original sense: Is 3₁₇. †

9212 שְׂרָאצָּר

שְׂרָאצָּר: n.m.; an Akk. short form Šarra-ušur (Tallqvist Personal Names 219b), corresponding to a full name such as sup'dNabuÆ-sûarra-us\ur “may Nabu protect the king!” (Tallqvist Personal Names 159a), sup'dNergal-sûarra-us\ur (see p. 171f), cf. also Stamm 316.

—1. 2K 19₃₇/Is 37₃₈: 1QIs^a שְׂרָאִיצָר or שְׂרָאוֹצָר, on which see Wildberger BK 10:1384; Sept. Σάρασαρ, Josephus Νηρεγάλασαρος, Νηριγλίσαρος, Σαρασαρος (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 90, 107), Vulg. Sarasar, the son and murderer of סְנַחֲרִיב, see Montgomery-Gehman Kings 498f; Gray *Kings*³ 694^c; Millard JSS 21 (1976) 10f; Reicke-R. Hw. 1671.

—2. Zech 7₂ (text uncertain) שְׂרָאצָּר וַיִּשְׁלַח בֵּית-אֵל, the meaning is disputed, see e.g. Reicke-R. Hw. loc. cit.; possibilities include:

—a. בֵּית-אֵל is a place name and sbj.: the assembly of Bethel sent the שְׂרָאצָּר to entreat Yahweh (thus NRSV), on which cf. e.g. Horst HAT 14² (1954) 238f, and Rudolph KAT 13/4:135ff;

—b. בֵּית-אֵל stands as place name as an accusative of place, and שְׂרָאצָּר (Sept. Σάρασαρ, Vulg. Sarasar) is the sbj., thus the versions, on which see Rudolph KAT 13/4: 136, see further North ZAW 66 (1954) 196f;

—c. בֵּית-אֵל-שְׂרָאצָּר is a hybridised n.m., with בֵּית-אֵל as a theophoric adj.: “may Bethel protect the king!”, thus Noth Personennamen 127; Vincent Religion 566f; Elliger ATD 25⁶ (1967) 133; Zorell Lex. 108b; TOB; REB: Bethel-sharezer sent Regem-melech; according to Vincent Betel is equivalent to Bēl, so also ZürBib; on the first and last suggestions (a and c) see also Reicke-R. Hw. loc. cit.; these certainly seem possible (esp. the last), but the second suggestion (b) is less probable. †

qal: pf. שָׂרַד: to run away from, escape (sbj. הַשְּׂרִידִים) Jos 10₂₀. †

Der. I שְׂרִיד.

9215 שרד

II *שרד: MHeb. pi. to leave over, behind SamP. šarrəd, Sam. שרד, most likely a denominative vb. from MHeb. → I שְׂרִיד.

9216 שָׂרָד

שָׂרָד: introduced into Heb. through Arm., see Wagner Aramäismen 297; MHeb. סרד < sarrād* sieve-maker; JArm. סְרָדָא wire-mesh, sieve, סְרָדוּתָא mesh, sieve; this word is to be distinguished from Akk. serdû(m) (Sumerian loanword), meaning the carrying pole for a sedan chair (AHw. 1037b; CAD S: 312, sirdû A), rather than the tow-line of a sedan chair (von Soden Orientalia 24 (1955) 394 and Wagner Aramäismen loc. cit.); Ug. šrd to serve, may belong to the root of שָׂרָד, thus Gray *Legacy*² 136⁷ and *Krt*² 38, but that is uncertain, on which see Caquot-S. Textes 514^u; on the etymology of שָׂרָד see further Haran HUCA 36 (1965) 214f (cited by Childs Exodus 529): only in the collocation בְּגָדֵי הַשְּׂרָד Ex 31₁₀ 35₁₉ 39₁₋₄₁. The exact sense is uncertain, according to the versions it means the robes used in cultic ritual, Sept. στολαὶ λειτουργικαὶ > so also, esp. Pesh. ləbūšay tešmeštā and Tg. ləbūšē šimmūšā; and similarly Sam. Tg., and subsequently TOB: liturgical vestments. But the meaning of the sbst. in MHeb. and JArm. suggest instead a rendering such as woven or embroidered clothing, as ZürBib.; REB (following NEB) stitched vestments; NRSV: finely worked vestments; Noth ATD 5:196; Childs Exodus 522, 529; Michaeli CAT 2 (1974) 262; Hönig Bekleidung 140. Margalith ZAW 95 (1983) 430f wishes to connect the sbst. שָׂרָד with the finest linen from Colchis which according to Herodotus 2:105 the Greeks call λίνον Σαρδωνικόν. †

9217 שָׂרָד

שָׂרָד: hapax legomenon Is 44₁₃: the meaning of the sbst. is uncertain, as the various renderings in the versions show, on which see Gradwohl Farben 85f and Elliger BK 11/1:410f; suggestions include:

—a. e.g. Gesenius-B.; KBL: red ochre (iron oxide), thus also Gradwohl Farben 85f, or red pencil, thus Dalman Arbeit 7:34; also Gesenius-B.;

—b. שָׂרָד as Arb. sarada to pierce through, sbst. sirād, sařid awl, bradawl; accordingly שָׂרָד means a sharp object, a stylus or the like, with which the woodworker marked out the line along which the wood was to be cut, thus Elliger loc. cit. 427 following D.W. Thomas in: Hommages à André Dupont-Sommer 325; Elliger BK 11/1:407 translates as stylus for cutting, a suggestion also found in Gesenius Thesaurus 3:1337f; König Wb. 470f; Zorell Lex. 807b (see also תֵּאָר pi.). The evidence suggests that the second alternative (b) is sensible and probably to be preferred to the first (a), for the possible etymological basis in Arabic. †

שָׂרַח: n.f.; SamP. šárā; Sept. Σαρα, 1C 7³⁰ Σορε; Josephus Σάρρα (Schalit Namenwörterbuch 107); the exact sense of the personal name is uncertain; possible explanations include:

—a. with Noth Personennamen 180 the OSArb. vb. šrḥ (Conti Chrest. 252b) to cause to prosper, equivalent to Eth. šarḥa (Dillmann Lex. 237) to prosper; formed from root šrḥ are e.g. the OSArb. personal names ʾšrḥ and yšrḥʾ (Ryckmans Noms Propres 1:251f); by reference to OSArb. and Eth. שָׂרַח could mean prospering, cf. KBL: surfeit, abundance;

—b. Akk. šarāḥu(m) to be proud, grand, magnificent (AHw. 1182f; CAS Š/2:36, šarāḥu A), with the predicatives šaruḥ and šarraḥ very proud, which can be seen in personal names mostly as the attribute of a deity, see Stamm 225; שָׂרַח could then be taken to mean grandeur or pride, however this remains quite uncertain. On balance therefore the first suggestion is more preferable than the second, on which see also Fschr. Stamm 132: שָׂרַח: the daughter of Asher Gn 46¹⁷ Nu 26⁴⁶ 1C 7³⁰. †

Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2:412: 1. to become involved in a situation, begin, introduce a law; 2. to make public, clear a way, clear up a problem; 3. to plant, set in the ground a sword or spear; 4. to raise, augment a matter to an extreme degree; of these meanings the third and fourth are particularly significant, for they approximate the suggested meanings of the Hebrew word of “to put straight” (Gesenius-B.) and “to stretch out” (KBL); for the vb. see also the adj. ’aşra’u with a long nose;

—c. it is uncertain whether the cognates mentioned under a and b are related to the Hebrew form, or whether they are simply homonymous; in Heb., following MHeb., JArm., Arb. and also Syr. in its second meaning given above, שרע should be taken as meaning to stretch out, extend; thus Elliger Lev. 291, and see below, hitp.

9243 שָׂרַף

I שָׂרָף: MHeb. שָׂרָף; SamP. versions Dt 8₁₅ שָׂרָף šārof; JArm. Nu 21₆ שרפיתיה Dt 8₁₅ שרפין, Zech 3₇ det. סַרְפָּיָא: a type of serpent, Saraph serpent; the word could be an adj. or sbst. (Bauer-L. Heb. 462q and s) and may be related to I שָׂרָף, as the versions indeed suggest; accordingly שָׂרָף signifies the colour or burning pain of a bite: glowing, burning, or the glowing one, the burning one; for a linguistic explanation see e.g. Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 472b; Keel Visionen 71: pl. שָׂרָפִים.

—1. שָׂרָף נחש Dt 8₁₅, שָׂרָף adj. or as an appositional sbst., Sept. ὄφις δάκνων Vulg. serpens flatu adurens, Pesh. dangerous, Tg. burning serpent.

—2. הַשָּׂרָפִים הַנִּחָשִׁים Nu 21₆: the article signifies known types of Saraph serpents, thus Baentsch GHK 1/2 (1903) 576; Sept. τοὺς ὄφεις τοὺς θανατοῦντας, Vulg. ignitos serpentes, Pesh. dangerous, Tg. burning serpents; in v. 7 הַנִּחָשׁ is one single example of them; שָׂרָף Nu 21₈ and נחש (ה) נחשת v. 9 the bronze serpent (→ נחשתן); on this see also K. Jaro *Die Stellung des Elohisten zur kanaänischen Religion*² 162 and 163¹: a demonic beast, cf. Bodenheimer An. Life 66.

—3. שָׂרָף מְעוֹפֵף winged serpent:

—a. Is 14₂₉ (parallel with נחש צפפע), Sept. ὄφις πετόμενοι, Vulg. regulus (צפפע) et semen eius absorbens volucrem (regulus = basilisk), Pesh. a serpent that flies, Tg. like a biting serpent;

—b. Is 30₆ (+ אֲפַעָה), Sept. καὶ -]182κγονα ἀσπίδων πετομένων, Vulg. regulus volans meaning a flying basilisk, Pesh. as previously, Tg. dangerous biting serpents;

—c. for Is 14₂₉ 30₆ see esp. Wildberger BK 10:573 and 1162 with bibliography, cf. also Keel Visionen 74: winged serpent, probably a cobra cf. also M. Görg Die Funktionen der Serafen bei Jesaja 28-39: referring to the Middle Egyptian sbst. sfr griffin, as a winged beast of the desert; later the sbst. appears as sfr and by metathesis srrf. During this period the griffin performed a protective role (see p. 31); on Is 14₂₉ see also Bodenheimer 67.

—4. Is 6₂₋₆ שָׂרָפִים beings present in the heavenly court of Yahweh; with the help of one of their three pairs of wings they hover above his throne; each has a face, hands (v. 6) and can speak; from the formula הֵן אֱלֹהִים in v. 3 Keel Visionen 115, concludes that there are only two seraphim here.

—5. It is uncertain whether these creatures are to be understood simply as serpents, as suggested by the instances in 1-3, or as composite creatures, or as having human form. For a discussion of the first alternative see esp. Keel Visionen 74ff, 92ff, 110ff: in particular it seems that the cobra is the type of snake that would have been indicated, which in Egypt was described as the uraeus serpent, of which depictions have been found in Judah and Israel from the eighth century; see also M. Görg BN 5 (1978) 28-39, and see above 3 c; see further de Saignac VT 22 (1972) 320-325 and Kaiser ATD 17⁵ (1981) 127; furthermore according to Day VT 29 (1979) 143-151 the שָׂרָף אֱלֹהִים can be winged ser-pents (the uraei), but he prefers to see in them personifications of the lightning (from a Canaanite background), cf. Herdner Corpus 1, 5:v:6b-11, Baal's lightning-servants; for the suggestion that they are composite creatures see e.g. Fohrer *Das Buch Jesaja*² 1:95f; also Kaiser loc. cit.; Reicke-R. Hw. 1776f; see further bibliography in Wild-berger BK 10:247; R. Merz Die numinose Mischgestalt; BRL² 224ff. For the sugges-tion that they may have had human form see esp. Wildberger BK 10: 248: as in other similar cases, a creature in the form of an animal appears to have been replaced by one in human form, while the animal-like form continues to function as a symbol;

—d. despite the comprehensive arguments of Keel in support of the idea of the snake, it does not do away with the insights suggested by understanding the creatures as having human form. †

I שָׂרַר: denominative vb. from שָׂר → שָׂרָה, thus Gesenius-B.; MHeb. sbst. שָׂרָה dominion, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 214) שָׂרַר (Dam. 7, 13): שָׂרָה (thus Lohse Texte p. 80) :: L. Rost Die Damaskusschrift 16, line 6 reads סָר; if that is so the context (Ephraim’s falling away from Judah) suggests as a next step to presuppose the vb. → סוּר, on which see also Maier Texte 1:56; 2:52; cf. the reference to this vb. in Kuhn Konkordanz loc. cit. In Akk. there is no vb. derived from the sbst. šarru king, prince (so AHW. 1190a :: Zimmern Akk. Fremdwörter 7 and subsequently KBL), but note šarāru(m) I to bow oneself, lean, incline (?) (AHw. 1185f :: CAD Š/2:57, šarāru A: perhaps to go ahead, šurruru perhaps to prompt) and šarāru(m) II ? qal: impf. יָסַר (= יִשָּׂר); following Bomberg, several MSS likewise have יִשָּׂר; instead of this, Leningrad, and following it, Rudolph Chr. 119 suggest יִשָּׂר. Because of the pl. יִשָּׂרוּ, יִשָּׂר as sg., may be more probable. The a of the impf. consecutive probably arises from the final ר, cf. סוּר. Sept., Vulg., Tg. refer to the connection with I שָׂרַר, see also 2; impf. consecutive וַיִּשָּׂר Ju 9₂₂, יִשָּׂרוּ, pt. שָׂרַר Est 1₂₂.

שְׂאוּל: n.m. שאל, Sept. Σαουλ, Josephus Σάουλος, Σαοῦλος (NFJ 100); SamP. šāʾol; Heb. inscr. שאל (Diringer Iscrizioni 354; Vattioni Sigilli 178; Avigad Qedem 4 (1976) 10); Ph. שאל (Kilamuwa = Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 24:4); EgArm. שאיל (Kornfeld Onomastica 72; Grelot Documents araméens 491); Palm. šʾyl (Stark Names 50a); Greek Σεελᾶ (Lidzbarsky Handbuch 460 no. 7); Neo-Assyrian (Northern Semitic) Sa-u-li (Tallqvist Names 194); Lihyanic sʾl; Safaitic sʾlt (Ryckmans Noms 1: 145b), see also Weippert Edom 259.

According to its form the name שְׂאוּל is a descriptive expression. Corresponding sentence names are (or can be taken to be): a) → שְׂאֵלְתִיָּאל; and b) יִשְׂאֵל Ezer 10₂₉ (read thus with K^{or} pr. יִשְׂאֵל), cf. Heb. inscr. ישאל (Prignaud RB 71 (1964) 372ff): “He (the father) has begged”, meaning he has pleaded for a child to whom this name was then given :: Noth Personennamen 209: the deity may make the person given this name into a שְׂאוּל.

What is important for the understanding of the two names (a and b) as well as of the personal name שְׂאוּל is the sentence מִיְהוָה שְׂאֵלְתִיו “I have begged for him from Yahweh”; this would imply that שְׂאוּל means “the one who has been begged for, the one who has been pleaded for”, so with Noth VT 13 (1963) 395 :: Noth Personennamen 136: what is meant by שְׂאוּל לַיהוָה vs. 28 is “one who is lent to Yahweh, or borrowed from Yahweh”. It is the first of these explanations which is to be preferred, on which see also שאל 6b).

The Vrss. offer no help with their free translations: Sept. ἐκ λάκκου ταλαιπωρίας; Vulg. iuxta Sept. de lacu miseriae; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. de lacu famoso “out of the notorious lake”; Pesh. min gubbā ddawōnā “from the pit of disaster”.

MHeb. שָׁאַל hif., JArm. שָׁאַל af. to loan out; so also Nab. St.* 2: 174¹³; cf. TOB: I hand him over to Yahweh, assign him to Yahweh; REB: I make him over to the Lord; c) deciding between these two possible suggestions is not easy, for in the end neither interpretation is very far removed from the other; the evidence from the cognate languages perhaps gives precedence to the first of them (a). † Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §23f, and Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §15d. Among the forms listed by Tallqvist this name figures as a Western Semitic loan, a proposal which is supported especially by the Neo-Assyrian spelling. שָׂאָר: (MHeb. root שָׂאָר > שִׁיר; Samaritan > שִׁיר itpa.); MHeb. pi. to leave over, leave behind; pu. passive; hitp. to remain behind; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 215) the same as in BHeb., nif. and hif; JArm. etpe. to remain over, remain behind; pa., af. to leave over; etpa. to remain behind; EgArm. itp. to remain outstanding, be due, of a purchase price, interest (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 287; Hoftijzer-Jongeling 1098; Leander Äg. Arm. 54e); CPArm. itpe. to remain over; Ug. šʾr in ištir, probably Gt-theme (cf. Gordon Textbook §19:404; Aistleitner Wb. 866; Gibson *Myths*² 112, 158a). The three attested occurrences are: 1) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 18:iv:15; 2) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 2, 72:33; 3) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 4, 290:3; for the first and last (1 and 3) the meaning is probably “to remain, remain behind”, but the last may perhaps have the sense of “to be outstanding, be in debt”, on which see Hoftijzer UF 3 (1971) 361-364 :: Aartun Partikeln 58): to be ready (to make a deposit); the interpretation of the second occurrence (2) is difficult and disputed, on which see Brooke UF 11 (1979) 78f; Nab. has the root שָׂאָר in the sbst. → שְׂאֲרִית; OSArb. sʾr (pt.) superfluous (Conti Rossini Chrest. 192b), to survive, escape, sbst. remainder (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 121); Arb. saʾira to be superfluous. In Akk. the root is not attested; what is used instead is: a) riāhu(m), rāhu (AHw. 979a), sbst. rēhtu(m) (AHw. 968f); b) sātu (AHw. 1033a) and šētu(m)/šīatum (CAD Š/2: 341b, to remain, escape); sbst. sittūtu (AHw. 1052; cf. CAD Š/3, 142a, šittūtu: the remaining ones, others); š/sittu (AHw. 1252b; CAD Š/3, 136a: rest, remainder); cf. THAT 2: 844; for bibliography → שָׂאָר.

from a relative, so Noth Personennamen 232; b) the periphrastic expression of Sept. in vs. ^a opens the possibility of seeing a connection with the root שָׁאַר to remain, in which case it could perhaps mean what is left over, a remainder: the daughter of Ephraim 1C 7₂₄. †

יָשׁוּב See below under שָׁאַר יָשׁוּב (#9298).

שָׁאַר See below under שָׁאַר יָשׁוּב (#9298).

9298 שָׁאַר-יָשׁוּב

שָׁאַר יָשׁוּב: a symbolic name for one of the sons of Isaiah Is 7₃. The correct translation of the name as well as its meaning with reference to the context of Is 7₁₋₉ are disputed; for both see especially Wildberger Jes. 277-279; further bibliography can be found in e.g. Kaiser *Jes. 1-12*⁵ 146⁴⁶, and Sauer in Eichrodt Fschr. 285f).

—a) the most likely translation of the name is “a remainder turns back, or alternatively becomes converted”, but a rendering in the future is equally possible “a remainder will turn back”, “will be converted”; for “the remainder which returns” in KBL, so also Sauer loc. cit., see Wildberger Jes. 277.

—b) concerning the relationship of the name in the context of the passage it could be understood as an expression of prosperity “but there will be some who remain”, or it could be a threat “there will be only some that remain”. The name may also be taken simultaneously in both senses as deliberately ambiguous, in that it can be seen as an exhortation to hope or alternatively as a threat of disaster. It is most likely that this is associated with the meaning of 7₇₋₉, so Wildberger loc. cit.; THAT 2: 852; Zimmerli Ges. Aufs. 2:79, and further Grundr. 170; cf. also Lescow ZAW 85 (1973) 329; Kilian in Ziegler Fschr. 2: 210-14; Day VT 31 (1981) 76-78 :: Lipiński VT 23 (1973) 245f: שָׁאַר comes from Ug. _tar (→ שָׁאַר) meaning flesh, blood, which would give a meaning “the blood will fall back” for the personal name, referring specifically to the blood of the kings of Damascus and Israel. †

שֵׁאֵת: I שֵׁאֵת; the form of this hapax legomenon is not clear; perhaps *šītu > šē't in the way that *šītu > šē't (from שֵׁאֵת), cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 222b on p. 223: desolation, devastation (שֵׁאֵת) parallel with הִשְׁבֵּר (הִשְׁבֵּר) Lam 3₄₇. †

9301 שְׁבָא

שְׁבָא: name of a people (n.m.); SamP. šāba; Sept. Σαβα; Josephus Σαβαῖοι, Σαβαῖος; Σαβακίνης; Σάφας (Schalit Namenwb. 103, 103, 104, 108); OSArb. sb' (Conti Rossini Chrest. 192f); Assyrian Sab'aya and similar, gentilic, see Parpola Neo-Assyrian Toponyms (AOAT 6 (1970) 297): Saba (Sheba), a people and a kingdom in Southern Arabia, that is presumed to have had trading colonies also in Northern Arabia; for bibliography see e.g. Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 240ff and 258ff; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1632f; RGG³ 6: 1256f; Hermann Geschichte 222¹⁶; Noth Könige 223f and 226f; Zorell Lexicon 814b; Westermann Gen. 1: 683, 702f; in the Neo-Assyrian period (from the time of Tiglath-Pileser III) there were contacts with the kingdom of Saba as well as with its dependencies in the north, on which see Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 240, and Montgomery Arabia and the Bible 58ff; see further Luckenbill Records 1: 287 and 2: 7f and 185f, for the records of Tiglath Pileser, Sargon and Sennacherib.

—1. מְלִכַת שְׁבָא the Queen of Sheba 1K 10_{1.4-10.13} 2C 9_{1.3-9.12}; she arrives on her camels with all kinds of gifts for Solomon בְּשָׂמִים, זָהָב, and יְקָרָה; on 1K 10_{1-10.13}/ 2C 9_{1-9.12} cf. Ullendorff Eth. Bib. 131-145 on the Queen of Sheba; Pritchard Solomon and Sheba; on the historical problems see also Noth Könige 223f, and Würthwein Kg. 1: 120f.

—2. a) זָהָב שְׁבָא Ps 72₁₅, מְשָׁבָא לְבוֹנָה Jr 6₂₀, וּלְבוֹנָה זָהָב מְשָׁבָא Is 60₆; b) שְׁבָא together with יְדָן Gn 10₇ Ezk 38₁₃ 1C 1₉, רַעְמָה Gn 10₇ Ezk 27₂₂ (vs. 23 שְׁבָא gloss), הַמָּא Jb 6₁₉, סָבָא Ps 72₁₀ see HAL 697b, HALOT 738b; c) for שְׁבָא referring to the plundering bedouin in Jb 1₁₅, three possible meanings have been suggested: α) שְׁבָא'שׁ would refer to a trading community from Southern Arabia which had developed from an earlier nomadic stage of society and which here preserved its identity, so Fohrer Hiob 90; β) שְׁבָא'שׁ would refer to a North Arabian community dependent on the ancient Sabaeen kingdom, so e.g. Peters Job 18; similarly Budde Hiob 1: 4f; Dhorme Job 9; γ) “the name Sabaeen as attested must serve to indicate all types of invading Bedouin from the South Arabian desert”, so Horst Hiob 1: 17.

—3. n.m. which has been derived from the name of a people (in a genealogical context): a) שְׁבָא the son of יְקָטָן Gn 10₂₈ 1C 1₂₂, son of יְקָשָׁן Gn 25₃ 1C 1₃₂, on which see Westermann Gen. 2: 484, and HAL 413a, HALOT 432b; → שְׁבָאִים. † שְׁבוּעַ: a primary noun, belonging to the same group of words as שְׁבַע/הַשְׁבַּע, constructed on the pattern qatūl: Bauer-Leander Heb. §68i, on p. 539; Meyer Gramm. §48.1b; SamP. šibbu, dual šibbuwwāəm :: pl. šābā’ot (cf. Ben Hayyim Lit. Or. 5: 236); for the Ethiopic material see below; any connection with I שְׁבַע (as suggested in KBL) is hardly probable, on which see THAT 2: 856; MHeb. שְׁבוּעַ, pl. שְׁבוּעוֹת: 1) week; 2) a cycle of seven years (Dalman Wb. 413a); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216) pl. masc. and fem.: a week of years (to mean every seven years), so IQS 10:7, 8 and probably also Dam. 16:4, on which see Maier Texte 1: 41^a; DJD 1: p. 96, text 41:2 [ש]בועותיהם; JArm. שְׁבוּעַ, pl. non-determined masc. and fem. שְׁבוּעֵין, det. שְׁבוּעֵינָא; Samaritan pl. שְׁבוּעֵין; cf. Akk. sebūtum the seventh day of the month (AHw. 1034a; CAD S, 206a), on which see also von Soden Gramm. §71e and Landsberger Kult. Kal. 98: From the meaning “a period of seven days duration” there develops the idea of “the seventh day”; Eth. sabū ‘seven days and the seventh day’ (Dillmann Lex. 363, see also Dillmann Gramm. §159, 2b), and Tigr. —2. שְׁבַעוֹת חַג the festival of seven weeks, Pentecost, see Tobit 2₁: ἀγία ἑπτὰ ἑβδομάδων Ex 34₂₂ Dt 16₁₀; שְׁבַעוֹת חַג הַשָּׁחַב Dt 16₁₆ 2C 8₁₃; > בְּשַׁבְּעוֹתֵיכֶם Nu 28₂₆; on this festival see e.g. de Vaux Inst. 2:395ff = Lebensordnungen 2:352ff; Kraus *Gottesdienst*² 72ff; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1440f; RGG³ 2: 912; Lohse πεντηκοστή, in TWNT 6: 44-53 :: P. Laaf in Botterweck Fschr. 177: שְׁבַעוֹת חַג is perhaps equivalent to “the festival of abundance” ... from which it came to be an expression of harvest thanksgiving; but this is very improbable in the light of the tradition (see e.g. Tobit 2₁).

9309 שְׁבוּאֵל

שְׁבוּאֵל, שְׁבָאֵל and שְׁבוּאֵל: n.m.; Sept. Σουβαηλ with variants at 1C 26₂₄; Vulg. Subahel 1C 24₂₀ 25₂₀ 26₂₄, Subuhel 1C 23₁₆ 25₄; Heb. inscr. שְׁבָאֵל and שְׁבוּאֵל (Pritchard Hebrew Inscriptions 11f; Vattioni Sigilli 165), שְׁבוּאֵל (Nimrud Ostrakon 1:4); cf. Amorite Šūb-na-ilum “turn back, then, O God!” (Bauer Ostk. 40, 58, 60; Huffmon Names 86f); Noth Personennamen 32 assumes a different derivation and cites OSArb. twbʿl (see Conti Rossini Chrest. 259b) corresponding to tawāb-il “God's reward”, cf. Müller Wurzeln 36. The only case in a Heb. personal name of a request in the imperative directed to אֵל would be the form שְׁבוּאֵל “turn back O El (or God)!", the meaning of which would be taken from the parallel in Amorite; so Noth Personennamen 32, 257b; cf. Stamm Fschr. 83 :: Kreuzer ZAW 93 (1981) 443-45: “a place of rest is God” (root יִשָּׁב).

—3. a week of years, a period of seven years: שָׁ אֶחָד one week long Da 9₂₇, שָׁ הַשָּׁחַב in the middle of the week 9₂₇, each with temporal accusative, see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §118i, k; Brockelmann *Heb. שְׁבוּעָה, שְׁבַעָה: I שְׁבַע, Bauer-Leander Heb. 472x; MHeb. שְׁבוּעָה (DSS: Kuhn Konkordanz 216, cf. THAT 2: 862); SamP. šēbuw'wā; JArm. Samaritan שְׁבוּעָתָא, non-determined, שְׁבוּעָה, the latter (šbw'h) also occurs in JArm. inscriptions, see Meehan ZDPV 96 (1980) 65, otherwise in Arm. derivatives from the vb. *ym*ʔ. Syr. maumātā, East Syr. maumtā (Brockelmann Lex. 303a); CPArm. *mwmt*ʔ, and also pl. as Syr.; Samaritan det. יַמִּימָה (MM 112, and Ben Hayyim Lit. Or. 3/2, p. 161); Mnd. mumata Drower-Macuch Dictionary 262a): cstr. שְׁבוּעֹת, שְׁבַעַת, sf. שְׁבַעְתִּי, שְׁבַעְתֶּךָ, שְׁבוּעָתוֹ, pl. שְׁבַעֹת Ezk 21₂₈ Hab 3₉, cstr. שְׁבַעִי Ezk 21₂₈; for bibliography → שְׁבַע.

—1. a) oath: שְׁשַׁבַּע שְׁשַׁבַּע to swear an oath Gn 26₃ Nu 30₃ Jos 9₂₀, cf. 2C 15₁₅.

—b) שְׁבַעַת יהוה an oath in the name of Yahweh Ex 22₁₀ (cf. Boecker Redeformen 38), 2S 21₇ (see also 1e), 1K 2₄₃ (see also 2b), cf. THAT 2: 860; similarly אֱלֹהִים שְׁשַׁבַּע Qoh 8₂, see Lauha Koh. 148: an oath of loyalty that is sworn by God.

—c) שְׁבַעְתֶּךָ an oath that you have sworn Jos 2₁₇₋₂₀ (with נִקְיִים מִן to be free from an oath, cf. Gn 24₈; see below 2b); לְ שְׁשַׁבַּע an oath with Ps 105₉ 1C 16₁₆.

—d) שְׁבַעַת הָאֱלֹהִים an oath sealed with a curse, a sworn curse (with הַשְּׁבִיעַ בְּ Nu 5_{21a} and וְלִשְׁהַשְּׁבִיעַ בְּ to swear an oath and utter a curse Nu 5_{21b} (with נִתַּן), cf. Horst Fschr. 296; הָאֱלֹהִים וְהַשְּׁנִיתָ (hendiadys) the sworn curse Da 9₁₁ (with נִתַּן); הַשְּׁבַעָה an oath which has been strengthened by a curse 1S 14₂₆, cf. vs. 24 (with נִתַּן); שְׁבַעַת אֶסֶר a vow of abstinence Nu 30₁₄, cf. 11: בְּשַׁבַּעָה אֶסְרָה אֶסֶר עַל-נַפְשִׁי she pledged herself to abstinence through an oath (ZüB); הַשְּׁוֹרָה a solemn oath Ju 21₅ (with הִיָּה).

—e) שְׁשַׁבַּע שְׁשַׁבַּע a false oath Zech 8₁₇, see Klopfenstein Lüge 35; שְׁשַׁבַּע יהוה בֵּין וּבֵין the oath taken before Yahweh between David and Jonathan 2S 21₇ (see already above, b); לֹא בַעֲלִי those bound to him by oath Neh 6₁₈.

—2. a) שְׁשַׁבַּע שְׁשַׁבַּע to leave behind the name as a curse (ZüB) Is 65₁₅, cf. Horst Fschr. 302 and Giesen Schwören 373f); בֹּא בַאֲלָהּ וּבְשִׁי בֹא to commit oneself to a sworn oath Neh 10₃₀.

—b) שְׁשַׁבַּע שְׁשַׁבַּע to observe an oath Dt 7₈, 1K 2₄₃ (with לֹא), יָרָא שְׁשַׁבַּע to shun an oath Qoh 9₂, שְׁשַׁבַּע to fulfil an oath Gn 26₃ Jr 11₅, נִקָּה מִשְׁשַׁבַּע to become free of an obligation made under oath Gn 24₈, cf. 1b; בְּשַׁבַּעָה בְּטָא to utter the words of an oath carelessly (Noth Lev. 25), meaning the same as to swear unwittingly (ZüB) Lv 5₄.

—3. various other instances: a) שְׁבַעֵי שְׁבַעֵי Ezk 21₂₈, on which see Zimmerli Ezekiel 482f: the Vrss. vary and the exact meaning is usually uncertain, but it is generally understood as a superlative construction (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §133i; Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §79b) “solemn oath” (Zimmerli Ezekiel 480), “ceremonial oath” (Tsevat JBL 78 (1959) 202).

—b) cj. Hab 3₉ מִטּוֹת אָמַר שְׁבַעֵת (textual uncertainty), the Vrss. vary; for the later cj. see Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 235; of the various cj. cited two which remain particularly close to MT should be given first consideration: i) Horst HbAT 14² (1954) 182: מִטּוֹת אָמַר שְׁבַעֵת you utter arrow-like curses; ii) Keller Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 172: מִטּוֹת אָמַר שְׁבַעֵת you cursed your arrows with words; a cj. which is somewhat further from MT (following Sept. ^{Barberini}) יִתְרָה (יִתְרוֹ) שְׁבַעֵת מִטּוֹת you satisfy (or satisfied) her sinew (i.e. of the bow) with arrows, so Elli-ger Kl. Proph. (ATD 25⁶) 50; cf. BHS and Humbert Hab. 61f; ZüB; alternatively Rudolph loc. cit. 236 (→ שְׁפַעָה 3b); on this cf. also Giesen loc. cit. 12f. †

9313 שְׁבוֹר

שְׁבוֹר: I שְׁבוֹר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 472x: fracture, damage to a part of the body Lv 22₂₂. †

שְׁבוּת, שְׁבִית: according to Dalman Wb. (but without citation) it occurs in MHeb. and DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216); SamP. variant Nu 31₁₉ וּשְׁבִיתְכֶם wšēbetkimma; Dt 30₃ SamP. variant שׁוּבַתְךָ šūbātāk from the root שׁוּב; OArm. (Sefire) šybt development, restoration, in the expression hšbw 'lhm šybt byt 'by “the gods restored the fortunes of the house of my father (my dynasty) again” (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 224:24f; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 293; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1125: šybh; Noth Bibl. Land. 2: 189 and note 85; Fitzmyer Sef. 100f. 119f; Vogt Biblica 39 (1958) 274.

—1. a) for the spellings see Borger ZAW 66 (1954) 315f; see further Preuschen ZAW 15 (1895) 14; Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Holladay The root šūbh 110: 17 times שְׁבוּת without Q; on שְׁבוּתֵיכֶם Zeph 3₂₀ see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §91 l, and Bauer-Leander Heb. 253b; שְׁבִית once without Q Ex 16₅₃ (but with variant שְׁבוּת); שְׁבוּת has שְׁבִית as Q four times, and שְׁבִית has שְׁבוּת as Q six times; in view of the instances in Sefire שְׁבִית Ps 126₁ is not to be questioned.

—b) questions raised by the Vrss. and linguistic problems: α) the Vrss. (Sept., Vulg., Tg., Pesh.) with a few exceptions (on which see Holladay loc. cit. 111f) offer as a translation something like “to go away into captivity”; that is to say they have without fail derived the sbst. from the vb. → שְׁבוּה, which was a natural decision. The alternation of the Q and K שְׁבוּת/שְׁבִית shows that this was already suspected by the Massoretes. But the evidence from Sefire and Jb 42₁₀ contradicts this interpretation. So it appears to follow that the vb. שׁוּב in the qal and hif. is never used in conjunction with שְׁבוּת; β) it has long been understood that the sbst. is an example of paranomasia with the vb. שׁוּב (on which see E.L. Dietrich BZAW 40 (1925) 6; and now also Holladay loc. cit. 112-114; cf. THAT 2: 887) and as such it would have the expected form *שְׁבוּת (on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Holladay loc. cit. 113; cf. e.g. I רְמָה). The abbreviation to שְׁרָמָה can perhaps be explained as a convergence of the idea of the vb. שְׁבוּה with the sbst. שְׁבִית Nu 21₂₉, as mentioned earlier (α). If the sbst. שְׁבוּת/שְׁבִית belongs to the vb. שׁוּב, the expression can be literally translated “to turn a turning”, but the exact meaning is still left open, on which see below 3 (SamP. variation Dt 30₃ שובתך; Gn 8₁₂ Nu 14₃ שובה šūba: (inf./sbst.).

—c) sf. שְׁבוּתְךָ, תָּתִיךָ, תָּתִיךָ, תָּתִיךָ, תָּתִיךָ, תָּתִיךָ (Zeph 3₂₀ see above a).

—d) for bibliography see THAT 2: 886f; out of this extensive list the following studies should now be mentioned: Preuschen ZAW 15 (1895) 1-74; E.L. Dietrich שוב שבות Die endzeitliche Wiederherstellung bei den Propheten (BZAW 40 (1925)); Baumann ZAW 47 (1929) 17-44; Fohrer Studien zur alttestamentlichen Prophetie (BZAW 99 (1967) 46); Holladay The root šūbh; see also Rudolph Hos. 143, and Jl.-Am.-Ob.-Jon. 78f; Beyerlin “Wir sind wie Träumende”: Studien zum 126. Psalm (SBS 89 (1978) 41f); Brache ZAW 97 (1985) 233-244.

—2. occurrences: a) 18 times with שוב qal; on the transitive use of the qal see under שוב (according to the Samaritan tradition שוב is here as usual intransitive): Dt 30₃ Jr 29₁₄ 30₃₋₁₈ 31₂₃ 48₄₇ Ezk 16₅₃ 29₁₄ Hos 6₁₁ Am 9₁₄ Zeph 2₇ 3₂₀ Ps 14_{7/53} 85₂ 126₁ (שִׁבַּת on which see 1a) .4 Jb 42₁₀.

—b) with hif. (9 times) Jr 32₄₄ 33₇₋₁₁ 26Q 49₆ 39Q Ezk 39₂₅ Jl 4₁ Lam 2₁₄.

—c) observations: α) with the exception of Jb 42₁₀ and Lam 2₁₄ the sbj. is always יהוה (Ps 53₇ אֱלֹהִים); β) of the above citations only Jr 30₃₋₁₈ 31₂₃ and Ps 85₂ can be pre-exilic, while the genuineness of Hos 6₁₁ Am 9₁₄ is questionable. The majority of passages belong to the exilic and post-exilic period, which can be used to support the interpretation provided by the Vrss. (see above 1bα).

—3. the sense and meaning of the expression: a) to go into captivity, so the Vrss. and later commentators like Preuschen loc. cit. (see 1d); the arguments against this have been mentioned above (1bα).

—b) to free from imprisonment for debt, so Baumann loc. cit. (see 1d); and subsequently (in part) KBL: to put an end to imprisonment for debt, to turn one’s luck (for the better); the thesis advanced by Baumann restricts the action and leads to the amplification of the meaning in KBL (see c).

—c) to turn someone’s fortune, bring about change, so Dietrich loc. cit. and especially Fohrer loc. cit. (see 1d); Fohrer refers to Ezk 16₅₃, where שִׁבַּת שְׁאֵלֵהֶם stands in parallel to vs. 55 to mean “to restore the situation which prevailed earlier”. This amounts to restitutio in integrum, which is applicable to the circumstances surrounding the return of the exiles, so Beyerlin loc. cit. (see 1d). Rudolph loc. cit. prefers the rendering “to re-establish as it was”. Brache loc. cit., especially 244, comes to a similar result with the sense of restitutio ad integrum.

Heb. Phil.* 20, and subsequently Barr JSS 18 (1973) 37f). But this is completely uncertain, and the original reading of Herdner Corpus has been preserved (in essence but with a different translation) by Gibson *Myths*² 50: to vanquish; and also by Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes Oug. 168¹: cognate with Arb. šamala to cover up, and Heb. שְׂמֹלֶה dress. According to von Soden (AHw. 840) Akk. pašāḥu to cool off, become calm is to be kept separate from the Heb. vb. (: Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and, perhaps hesitantly KBL).

*שִׁבַּט: the meaning of the root is problematic: a) MHeb. שָׁבַט; JArm. שִׁבַּט (possibly > שִׁמַּט, as in the by-form תִּשְׁמַטוּן Dt 24₂₀, and Samaritan שִׁמַּט to strike); Akk. šabātu(m) to strike, beat, sweep away (AHw. 1119; CAD Š/1, 8a); OSArb. sbṭ to strike (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 123); Eth. zabaṭa (Dillmann Lex. 1050b); Tigr. zabṭa (Littmann-Höfner Wb. 499f) to strike; Tigrin. zābātā to strike, sbst. sbat threshed wheat (Leslau Contributions 52); b) Syr. denominative vb. pa. šabbet to portray, or to make a design in beaten metal work (Brockelmann Lex. 751b, equivalent to Latin caelare to engrave in relief); Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: to beat out; c) EgArm. שְׁבִיט passive pt. from *שִׁבַּט, see Leander Äg. Arm. §26f; Cowley Aram. Pap. 15:9; Kraeling Aram. Pap. 7:9. The exact meaning of the verbal adj. is not certain, on which see Fitzmyer in Albright Fschr. B 154: the most likely meaning of שְׁבִיט is “strongly woven”, which as a sbst. could signify a word like shawl or —d) the rod, sceptre of the ruler Gn 49₁₀; שֶׁבֶט סֹפֵר Ju 5₁₄ the sovereign's sceptre, or that of an office holder, on which see Grether Deboralied 43f, and Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru. 9: 171; Is 9₃; שֶׁבֶט מְשָׁלִים the rod of someone in authority Is 14₅; שֶׁבֶטֵי מְשָׁלִים sceptres for rulers Ezk 19₁₁; שֶׁבֶט תוֹמָךְ the one who holds the sceptre Am 1_{5,8}.

—g) special occurrences: שֶׁבֶט מִיִּשְׂרָאֵל Nu 24₁₇: the meaning of שֶׁבֶט מִיִּשְׂרָאֵל here is disputed, and the Vrss. vary: Sept. ἄνθρωπος; Vulg. virga; Pesh. rēšā “leader”; Tg. mšihā; modern suggestions include: 1) sceptre, staff of authority (cf. Samaritan Tg. variant A מִקָּל), so e.g. ZüB; Noth Nu. 150; TOB; 2) comet, in parallelism with כּוֹכַב vs. 17b, and cf. JArm. כּוֹכְבָא דְשִׁבִיט meteor, comet, so Gemser ZAW 43 (1925) 301f; 3) tribe, so Albright JBL 63 (1944) 219, 225: proposes as the original reading šibtêma yisra'el “the tribes of Israel shall rise up”; and subsequently Vetter Seherspruch 44: and the tribes of Israel rise up; 4) of these three possibilities the first has the most support, and the last the least.

The meaning of the personal name is uncertain, because the corresponding full form of the name can be suggested only hypothetically; proposals include: a) the short form may correspond to the (obscure) full form (שְׂבִיָּהּ), so Noth Personennamen 257b, 258a; b) Ug. (Akk.) Ša-pi-ili (Gröndahl Personennamen 47, 97, 170, 353b), corresponding to Knudtzon El-Amarna Letter 62:26, cf. p. 1143), and also to Akk. Ša-pi-sup(d)Beul “the one promised by Bēl” (Tallqvist Names 215b); see Stamm Namengebung 259; cf. the Canaanite personal name in Egyptian śá-bê (Helck *Beziehungen*² 361), on which see earlier Ranke in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 802a; c) on both these suggestions (a and b) see also Rose Der Ausschliesslichkeitsanspruch Jahwes 178 and note 5; it is hard to decide which of the suggestions is better, particularly as the full form of the name could have been formed differently: the head of a family of door-keepers (שְׂעָרִים) Ezr 2₄₂ Neh 7₄₅. †

*שְׂבִי: n.m.; Sept. Ουεβι, Josephus Σειφάρ (Schalit Namenwb. 109); an unexplained short-form, which is not mentioned by Noth Personennamen 257b; perhaps it is just a (dialect ?) variation of שְׂבִי; but cf. Akk. MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216) שְׂבִיב, pl. cstr. שְׂבִיבִי; JArm. שְׂבִיבָא, as also in → BArm. flame; for Ug. dbb suggestions include: a) flame, spark, so e.g. Aistleitner Wb. 2710; Fisher Parallels 2: p. 9 no. 7; Dahood UF 1 (1969) 36; Watson UF 10 (1978) 397 and note 7; Fensham ZAW 79 (1967) 361-64; b) fly, flies, as in the divine name זְבוּב בַּעַל, so UT 719; cf. Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes Oug. 168ⁿ; c) Gibson *Myths*² 50 note

11 mentions both these suggestions: Zabib meaning perhaps flame (Heb. šābīb) but compare Baal Zebub in 2K 1₂; according to Fensham loc. cit. זָבוּב בַּעַל means “Baal, the Flame”. Because there is only a single instance in Ug. of dbb (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1:iii:45f) which is parallel with išt (cf. Gibson loc. cit.: I did destroy Ishat the bitch of the gods, I did make an end of Zabib the daughter of El (see also note 10: Ishat meaning fire); preference should be given to the first interpretation (a), even though there is no concurrence of sibilants with the cognate languages; Akk. šībūbu spark (?) < Arm. שְׂבִיבָא (AHw. 1229b; CAD Š/2, 399b: the word occurs only in synonym lists; there is also a reference to von Soden Orientalia 46: 195); Mnd. šambibia pl. sparks (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 443a): cstr. שְׂבִיב שֵׁבִיב a spark from the fire of the wicked does not shine (with נְגִדָה לֹא) Jb 18₅; Sir 8₁₀ 45₁₉. †

*שְׂבִיס: hapax legomenon, pl. שְׂבִיסִים, primary noun (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 470n); MHeb. שְׂבִיסִים a woman's headdress (Dalman Wb. 413b; cf. Levy Wb. 4: 498b); the same in JArm. שְׂבִיסִים; the Vrss. vary: Sept. (acc.) τὸς κοσμήτους the hairnets (Liddell-Scott Lex. 985b); Vulg. ornatum calciamentorum jewellery worn by shoemakers; Pesh. sebthēn their jewellery, Tg. the same as MT: šbīsayyā: traditionally jewellery worn by a woman on the head (Zorell Lexicon 816b), and specifically a headband (e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL). But these interpretations have now become outdated in the light of Ug. špš corresponding to šapšu (Ugaritica 5 (1968) 352b) “sun”, on which see especially Wildberger Jes. 141, but see also earlier König Wb. 479a, who refers to the parallel שְׂהַרְנִים, and also to Σαβις “an Arabic designation of the sun in Theophrastus etc.” (2: 144); on Ug. špš → שְׂשׁוּשׁ: small sun disc, used as jewellery or alternatively as an amulet Is 3₁₈, cf. Gray *Legacy*² 261; Stähli Solare Elemente im Jahwerglauben des Alten Testaments (OBO 66 (1985) 11f); and Schroer

9329 שְׁבִיעִי

שְׁבִיעִי (95 times): שָׁבַע, Bauer-Leander Heb. 628v, x; SamP. šē'bī; שְׁבִיעִי, fem. שְׁבִיעִית, שְׁבִיעַת, שְׁבִיעִית, שְׁבִיעַת; seventh: הַיּוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי Gn 2₂ (40 times), יוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי Gn 2₃ (4 times), see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §126w; Meyer Gramm. §97.2a; הַשְּׁבִיעִת הַשְּׁבִיעַת Lv 23₁₆; הַחֹדֶשׁ הַשְּׁבִיעִי Gn 8₄ (23 times); בַּפְּעַם הַשְּׁבִיעִית on the seventh occasion Jos 6₁₆ corresponding to בְּשִׁבְעִית 1K 18₄₄, see Bauer-Leander Heb. 629c; Meyer Gramm. §60, 5; צוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי the fast observed in the seventh month Zech 8₁₉, cf. 9330 שְׁבִית

שְׁבִית: שְׁבָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 458x; JArm. שְׁבִיתָ GenAp. 22:12; SamP. šebət*; Syr. šbītā; CPArm. šbyt (→ שְׁבִי): captivity Nu 21₂₉, with בְּשִׁבְיָ מוֹאָב Moab handed over his daughters as captives to Sihon the king of the Amorites. †

*שָׁבַל: Arb. sabala to hang down (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL); similarly Dozy Suppléments 1: 629a: a) to let the hair hang loose; b) to stretch right out, so according to Gesenius-Buhl Handw., with reference to Landberg Glossaire 1895.

Der. שָׁבַל can probably be associated with the first meaning (a), but see the entry there; שָׁבִיל belongs to the second meaning (b), so Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL, where both substantives are listed as derivatives of this root. The older Arabic meanings are clearly at variance with the evidence in Lane Lex. 1301, and in Freytag Lexicon 2: 281; in both places there is mention of the verb sabala I, but only as used in one of the derived forms (conjugations), especially in the II and IV forms. The forms of expression attested suggest that the idea of “way” has been preserved and enable the vb. to be derived from the sbst. sabīl; this word could then be taken as a primary noun like Heb. *שָׁבִיל. The personal name אֲשָׁבֵל is to be derived from the first meaning above (as HAL 89b, HALOT 92b); on I שְׁבַלְתָּ, II שְׁבַלְתָּ, and also on שְׁבַלְלוּ, see the respective sbst. entries.

שָׁבַל, hapax legomenon Is 47₂ (with הִשָּׁחֵף); 1Q Is^a שׁוּלִיךְ. The Vrss. differ: Sept. ἀνακάλυσαι τὰς πολιὰς exposing grey hair, similarly Pesh. gawwzī hewwārātēky let your grey hair disappear (the lexicographers of the Middle Ages interpret it as “hair hanging loose”; cf. Arb. sabalat moustache, Lane Lex. 1302a); Vulg. discoperi umerum uncovering the shoulder; Tg. differently. There are apparently two possible ways of explaining the sbst.: a) שָׁבַל can be taken as associated with the vb. שָׁבַל (particularly in its first sense, a) and it means the train of a dress, the hem of a skirt, really “that which hangs down from a long garment or dress”; so Driver in Albright Fschr. B 96; see also p. 92 with reference to Arb. sabal long garments which hang down; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: sabalat the train of a dress; see further KBL; König Wb. 479b; Martin-Achard in Fohrer Fschr. 84; b) שָׁבַל is similar in meaning to Arb. sabīl, which as well as the general meaning “pathway, track” can also have the special meaning “public drinking fountain” (Dozy Suppléments 1: 630b; Lane Lex. 1302c: an expression of the present day); this meaning was mentioned hesitantly by Beeston JSS 24 (1979) 176f. In the light of the reading in 1Q Is^a and the overall context this meaning is less likely, as Beeston noted; moreover this proposed special meaning of sabīl appears not to have been attested in older Arabic. †

9333 שְׁבִלוֹל

שְׁבִלוֹל (daghesh dirimens, see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §10 v, w; Meyer Gramm. §14.2b; Bauer-Leander Heb. 485f). The derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; for a connection with → בָּלַל to make a pathway wet see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Bauer-Leander Heb. 485f :: König Wb. 479b: stretching oneself out (for which → *שְׁבַל b, cf. also KBL); the same in MHeb. and JArm. (Dalman Wb. 413b; and also תְּבַלְלָא snail, see 438a); the Vrss. (Sept. κηρός; Vulg. iuxta Sept. cera; Pesh. š'ūtā) all offer a word meaning “wax”; but Vulg. iuxta Hebr. on the contrary has vermis worm: snail Ps 58₉, with תִּמְסַ יְהִלֵּךְ (→ תִּמְסַ) which dissolves into slime (NRSV) :: Driver JTS (1983) 34, 41ff suggests miscarriage (cf. REB and NEB: an abortive birth which melts away), but this is very unlikely in view of MHeb., JArm. and Vulg. iuxta Hebr. †

9334 שְׁבִלָת

I שְׁבִלָת: the derivation of this sbst. is questionable; perhaps it is from *שְׁבַל (see especially meaning a), or it may be a primary noun (Bauer-Leander Heb. 614; Meyer Gramm. §38.4); Common Semitic, see Bergsträsser *Einführung*² 183; Salonen Agricultura 30f; SamP. pl. šabbēlēm; MHeb. שְׁבִלָת; JArm. שְׁבִלָתָא, שְׁבִלָתָא, pl. שְׁבִלָיא ears of grain, שְׁבִלִין twig, branch; Samaritan שְׁבִלִין; Ug. šblt (Gordon Textbook §19: 2377; Aistleitner Wb. 2575; Gibson *Myths*² 158a; cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 344 no. 528; Akk. šubultu(m), also šubiltu ear of barley (AHw. 1258b; CAD Š/3, 187b); Syr. šebbelā, pl. šebbelē; CPArm. šwbl*, pl. šwbylyn; OSArb. sblt ear of corn (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 123); Eth. sabl (Dillmann Lex. 356), collective sanbil; Arb. sabal, sunbul ears of corn; both occur with the fem. ending as unitary nouns; for Egyptian (?) see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. sabar(e) branch laden with fruit: pl. שְׁבִלִים, cstr. שְׁבִלֵי; on the pl. masc. see Michel Grundl. 1: 36, 59: a number of items gathered into a group or treated as a unit.

9335 שְׁבִלָת

II שְׁבִלָת: the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; sometimes it is not connected with *שְׁבַל but treated as a primary noun, cf. Arb. sabal flowing rain, flowing blood; sublat widespread rain (Lane Lex. 1301c; 1302a); cf. sabbālat well (Dozy Suppléments 1:630b; cf. probably Egyptian *šá-bí-rú-ta*₂ (corresponding to שְׁבִלָת), in a list of the names of wadis, see Helck *Beziehungen*² 242: flood of water (cf. Reymond L'eau 270) Ps 69₃₋₁₆ (vs. 13: מַיִם שְׁבִלָת); JArm. with שָׁרַף; Sir 4₂₆ לפני שבלת ואל

9336 שְׁבַלְתַּ

III שְׁבַלְתַּ: Ju 12₆ and Is 27₁₂ the sbst. may belong to I שְׁבַלְתַּ or to II שְׁבַלְתַּ.

—1. in Ju 12₆ שְׁבַלְתַּ is used together with סְבַלְתַּ in the sense of a password. Its linguistic meaning is unimportant, and so it can be traced through either of the two suggested derivations: a) Vrss.: Sept.^A Σύμβολον word, password; Sept.^B Στάχυς; Vulg. sebboleth quod interpretatur spica; Pesh. šebblē :: sebblē; Tg. šūbaltā :: sūbaltā; Sept.^B and Vulg. clearly favour the first meaning (I שְׁבַלְתַּ), and probably this is also true for Pesh. and Tg., but the second meaning (II שְׁבַלְתַּ) is not completely excluded, for in Syr. and JArm. the sbst. can also have the meaning “stream”. For Syr. cf. šebbaltā de nahrā translated as fluctus (Brockelmann Lex. 752b) see 2a; and for JArm. cf. Dalman Wb. 413b שׁוּבַלְתַּ (שְׁבַלְתַּ) stream (?); cf. Dalman Gramm. §29.1α (160). Sept.^A offers an alternative with its Σύμβολον; b) both possibilities are supported by more recent commentators; for I שְׁבַלְתַּ see e.g. KBL; TOB; Gray Jos.-Ju.-Ru. 340; for II שְׁבַלְתַּ see e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon; König Wb. 479b; Weinberg ZAW 92 (1980) 185; Swiggers JSS 26 (1981) 205-207; c) for סְבַלְתַּ as an Ephraimite expression see HAL 700a, HALOT 741b; and see further Speiser BASOR 85 (1942) 10-13; Weinberg loc. cit. 185; Swiggers loc. cit. 207: it is an attempt to represent Proto-Semitic t (th) :: Kutscher in Hartmann Wortforschung 174.

I שָׁבַע: MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216) nif. and hif., the same as BibHeb.; JArm. itpe. to swear, af. to cause to take an oath; Samaritan itp. af.; Mnd. ŠBA III (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 447a) pa. (?), af. to cause to take an oath; in the other Semitic languages different verbs are used: there is in Arm. the root ym’ (for EgArm. see GenAp 2:14 20:30; Syr.; CPArm.; Samaritan; for Mnd. see Drower-Macuch Dictionary 192b; Palmyrene), cf. Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 108; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 459: to swear, take an oath; in Akk. the comparable root is tamû, Assyrian tamā’u(m) (AHw. 1317f); see also zakāru(m) (AHw. 1503f; CAD Z 16: zakāru A: to declare under oath); it is not yet (?) attested in Ugaritic; OSArb. ḥlf (Conti Rossini Chrest 149a; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 67); Eth. (ḥalafa) taḥalafa to curse; maḥala to swear (Dillmann Lex. 70 and 155); the same in Tigr. (Littmann-Höfner Wb. 110b); Arb. ḥalafa.

The etymology of שבע has not been explained; in JArm. and Samaritan it is apparently a loanword. Some relevant suggestions are mentioned by Giesen BBB 56 (1981), see further below 5-10. The radical consonants of the vb. suggest some connection with the Common Semitic numeral שבע seven, and also with II שבע, cf. Arb. sabaġa “to be ample, be complete”. But the previously mentioned details seem to argue against this inasmuch as שבע in the sense of “to swear” is not attested anywhere else except Hebrew. The cognate languages use other, different words for the same idea. It seems then that there is no Common Semitic expression for “to swear” shared by Hebrew.

In this connection it has been suggested that in oaths the numeral seven plays only a passing role and that it is not a constitutive element (on which cf. THAT 2: 856); nowhere in the OT is there any fusion of the concepts of oath with seven or fullness; for the most part the idea of fullness would in fact correspond to the numeral twelve.

For a long time it was thought that a precursor or cognate of the Hebrew verb could be found in Arabic sabaʿa to tear, tear up (referring to the behaviour of a wild animal), which also means to malign, slander, attack verbally, curse (on which see Giesen loc. cit. 9f, and THAT 2: 856); but that is now considered far-fetched. A similar judgement is probably to be applied to the attempt by Giesen loc. cit. 9 to link שבע with the Akk. vb. šapû(m) G-theme: to be (become) dense, thick, loud; N-theme: to become very loud (of a shout) (AHw. 1177a: šapû(m) II; CAD Š/1, 487b: šapû A, to flare, surge (of the voice), billow; the N-theme is interpreted there as ingressive, see p. 489b).

The facts show that שבע nif. occurs only rarely in expressions concerned with swearing by oneself (→ I עִשָּׂה qal 14, HALOT 892a) and in the oath formulas like יְהוָה (→ I יְהוָה A 2, HALOT 307b-308a), which leads to the conclusion that in many cases šbʿ nif. simply means a solemn, irrevocable promise, whatever circumstances may arise, to undertake to do something, or not to do it.

In contrast to this Giesen (BBB 56 (1981) 28) sees in an oath which is formulated with שבע nif. a more closely defined form of swearing on oath; it is to be distinguished from other types of oath formulation inasmuch as “it involves a strongly judicial form of expression concluding with an invocation to God to be a witness to the oath, as distinct from a more generalising and informal oath implied by uttering one of the oath formulas”.

—b) with the formula חַי יְהוָה 1S 19₆ 20₃ 28₁₀ Jr 4₂ 12₁₆ 38₁₆ 38₁₆ Hos 4₁₅; also in Tur-Sinai Lachish 3:9, 6:12f, 12:3; חַי אֱלֹהִים 2S 2₂₇, חַי-אֵל Jb 27₂, חַי-אֲנִי Nu 14₂₁; חַי > חַי when making an oath in the presence of the king Gn 42_{15f} 1S 17₅₅ 25₂₆ 2S 11₁₁ 15₂₁, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 204w with note 3; expressions like חַי יְהוָה have become fossilised formulas and it is not possible to explain the original sense of the words, see Horst Recht 307f. According to Horst (p. 308) it means “as Yahweh lives, so will it be”; but by contrast according to KBL (p. 943 שָׁבַע 2) “by the life of Yahweh” means that the life of Yahweh has been pledged, and that if the terms of the oath are not fulfilled Yahweh will not live.

—3. בָּ may also be used to introduce the name of God as the witness and the guarantor of the oath: a) בְּאֱלֹהִים Gn 21₂₃ 1S 30₁₅, בְּאֱלֹהֵי אֱמֵן Is 65₁₆ by the god whose name is Amen (REB; NRSV: the god of faithfulness), on which see Giesen loc. cit. 160 with note 371 :: the alternative cj. pr. אֱמֵן prop. אֱמוּן or אֱמוֹן (BHS).

I שָׁבַע: primary noun (Bauer-L. Heb. 456 l; 624i), cf. R. Meyer Gramm. §59.1 (p. 85); for Semitic see Brockelmann Gramm. 1: 486 η; G. Bergsträsser Einführung 191; SamP. šāba, fem. šābā (שבועה); MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216); Moabite fem. שבעת (Mesha. = Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 181:16; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 289); JArm. שָׁבַע; Samaritan; → BArm. *שָׁבַע, also for examples from the remaining Arm. dialects; Ph., Punic šbʿ (Friedrich *Ph. Gramm.*² §242 and 243; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 289); Ug. šbʿ, šbʿt, šbʿm (Gordon Textbook §19:2381, and §7: 15, 36; Aistleitner Wb. 2580; cf. A.S. Kapelrud The Number Seven in Ugaritic Texts VT 18 (1968) 494-499); Akk. sebe, also seba, fem. sebet(tu) seven (AHw. 1033b; CAD S, 203), cf. von Soden Gramm. §69: 1b; OSArb. sbʿ (Conti Rossini Chrest. 193b; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 123); Eth. sabū (Dillmann Lex. 362); the same in Tigr. (Littmann-H. Wb. 185a); Arb. sabʿ; Egyptian šfh (Erman-G. Wb. 4: 115); cstr. שָׁבַע, וְשָׁבַע (Bergsträsser Gramm. 1: §21w) 1K 14₂₁, fem. שְׁבוּעָה, cstr. שְׁבוּעַת, sf. שְׁבוּעָתָם (K 1S 21₉), pl. שְׁבוּעִים, Q שְׁבוּעָתָם 2S 21₉), pl. שְׁבוּעִים.

—1. seven, a group of seven (401 times): שָׁבַע שָׁנִים Gn 5₇, שְׁבוּעָה פָּרִים וְשְׁבוּעָה אֵילִים Nu 23₁, יָמִים וְשְׁבוּעָה Gn 8₁₀, שְׁבוּעַת בְּנָיו 1S 16₁₀, שְׁבוּעָה אֵילִים 2C 13₉, שְׁבוּעָתָם (Q) literally “their sevenness”, meaning the seven of them, or alternatively all seven 2S 21₉; שְׁבַע-עָשָׂרָה seventeen Gn 37₂, וְשִׁמְנִים וְשָׁבַע eighty-seven Gn 5₂₅, מֵאוֹת שְׁבַע seven hundred Gn 5₂₆; one hundred and thirty-seven Ex 6₁₆, one thousand and seven hundred Ju 8₂₆, fifty-seven thousand and four hundred Nu 1₃₁, twenty-seven thousand 1K 20₃₀; on the cj. שְׁבוּעָה pr. שְׁבָכָה 1K 7₁₇ → שְׁבָכָה 3.

—2. used as a distributive and as a multiplier, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 629b, c; R. Meyer Gramm. §60.4, 5: שְׁבוּעָה שְׁבוּעָה in groups of seven Gn 7₂₆, cf. Westermann Gen. 575, 576; שְׁבוּעָתָם a seven-fold vengeance Gn 4₁₅; שְׁבַע seven times Lv 26₁₈ (possibly I שְׁבַע, cf. SamP. šēbā).

—3. pl. שְׁבוּעִים (often used as a round number): שְׁבוּעִים אִישׁ Nu 11₁₆₋₂₄₋₂₅ Ju 9_{2.5-18} etc.; כָּל-הַנְּפֹשׁ שְׁבוּעִים Gn 46₂₇, נְפֹשׁ/נְפֹשׁ שׁ Ex 15 Dt 10₂₂; שׁ יוֹם Gn 50₃; שׁ שָׁנָה e.g. Gn 5₁₂ 11₂₆ Is 23₁₅₋₁₇ Jr 25₁₂ 29₁₀, see Rudolph *Jer.*³ 184f; Zech 1₁₂ 7₅ Da 9₂, see Plöger KAT 18:136; שׁ עֵרִירִים Ju 12₁₄; וְשְׁבוּעָה שְׁבוּעִים seventy-seven, meaning seventy-seven times Gn 4₂₄ (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §134r).

—4. to express dates (Bauer-L. Heb. 629z; R. Meyer Gramm. §61: 4): בְּשִׁבְעָה־עָשָׂר יוֹם on the seventeenth day Gn 7₁₁, בְּשִׁבְעָה יוֹם בְּעֶשְׂרִים יוֹם on the twenty-seventh day Gn 8₁₄, שְׁנַת־הַשְּׁבַע the seventh year Dt 15₉; לְ בְּשִׁבְעָה לְחָדָשׁ on the seventh day of the month Ezk 30₂₀.

—5. לְ שִׁבְעָה עָשָׂר לְ the seventeenth lot was for 1C 25₂₄; for לְ before the numeral, cf. HAL 484b, HALOT 509b, לְ 19) and Rudolph Chr. 168.

—6. cj. 2S 24₁₃ pr. שְׁבַע שָׁנִים rd. with Sept. and 1C 21₁₂ שְׁבַע שָׁנִים.

Der. place name שְׁבַע בְּאֵר; שְׁבֹועַ, שְׁבִיעִי, שְׁבַעֲנָה.

9344 שְׁבַע

II שְׁבַע: II שְׁבַע, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 456 l: שְׁבַע: abundance, plenty Pr 3₁₀, with מְלֵא nif. †

9345 שְׁבַע

III שְׁבַע: n.m. corresponding to I or II שְׁבַע: “abundance, perfection”, so Noth Personennamen 146f. Perhaps a translation involving the idea of “completeness” as meaning “perfection” is not to be excluded, inasmuch as a family which has been reduced by the death of one of its members becomes complete again with the birth of a new child; Sept. Σαβεε (2S 20, passim), and Σεβεε (1C 5₁₃); Josephus Σαβαλοος (Schalit Namen. 103); Heb. inscr., Tell Arad 38:4 šbʿ (Pardee UF 10 (1978) 335), cf. šbʿt (Vattioni Sigilli 73 (OLB 2) 54); EgArm. šbʿh (Cowley Arm. Papyri 82:2; Noth Personennamen 258a). The meaning of the Judaeo-Babylonian personal name Šá-ba-aḥ-ta-ni-ʿ is not certain (Coogan Personal Names 34, 85; see also earlier Gesenius-Buhl Handw.). Wallis Persica 9 (1980) 167f makes the following suggestions: a) “you have made me wealthy” (II שְׁבַע); and b) “you bring me (or you have brought me) into quietness” (II שְׁבַח); an alternative reading may also be considered (see Coogan Personal Names 85) Šá-ma-aḥ-ta-ni-ʿ “you have listened to me”, and this probably deserves precedence; cf. names in Akk. such as Ili-išmeanni “my god has listened to me” (Stamm Namengebung 189).

—1. a man belonging to Benjamin, who instigated a revolt against David 2S 20_{1f.6f.}_{10.13.21f.}

—2. a member of the family of אֲבִיחַיִל associated with the tribe of Gad, 1C 5₁₃, see Rudolph Chr. 47. †

9346 שְׁבַע

[IV שְׁבַע: place name Jos 19₂; textual error, by dittography following the preceding place name בְּאֵר־שְׁבַע; cj. with Sept.^B, Vet. Lat., 1C 4₂₈ (Sept.) as 1C 15₂₆: וְשִׁמְעַ, on which see BHS; and Noth Jos. 110; Abel Géographie 2: 452; Simons Geog. §321.]

9347 שְׁבַעָה

שְׁבַעָה: place name, the name of a spring Gn 26₃₃, II שְׁבַע (Bauer-L. Heb. 458s, cf. שְׁמֹלָה and especially בְּקָעָה); SamP. šēbā; Sept. Ὀρκος; Vulg. (acc.) abundantiam, Pesh. sabā satisfaction, overflow, Tg. šibā: the original meaning of the name of the spring is not certain: a) Vulg., Pesh., Tg., and according to Zorell Lexicon 818f also Aquila, Symmachus, support “abundance, overflow”; so especially Koehler ZAW 55 (1937) 166 (KBL does not give any translation); b) Sept. by contrast supports “oath”, so e.g. A. Dillmann *Die Genesis*⁶ (1892) 326: MT שְׁבַעָה corresponding to שְׁבַעָה; Speiser Gen., and subsequently Westermann Gen. 515, reading שְׁבַעָה “judgement”: a) corresponds to the original meaning of the name of the spring, while b), whether or not the MT is changed, represents the meaning of the old name as derived from the narrative. †

שְׁבַעָה: Jb 42₁₃: a form which is not clear but which is derived from שְׁבַעָה; attempted explanations include: a) textual error for שְׁבַעָה, so Bauer-L. Heb. 624i; Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §97c.

—b) a mixed formation comprising שְׁבַעָה seven, and שְׁבַעַן two times seven (KBL: twice seven times; see also Fohrer Kommentar 16: 531). This form may well be explained as a correction to MT, following the remark in vs. _{10b} where Job was given twice as much as he had had before.

—c) cf. Ug. šb “seven” with an adverbial suffix -ny, which leads on to the suggestion that שְׁבַעָה can also be understood as an archaic form (Fohrer loc. cit.); šb + ny “seven times” (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 23:64) which is compared with שְׁבַעָה in Gordon Textbook §11: 3; cf. also KBL, which traces the parallel back to Dussaud. It could be perhaps that the citation in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 23:64 does not involve the numeral seven but an impf. 3rd. pl. masc. form of the vb. šb “to be satisfied”, with the y belonging to the next sentence: wl tšb’n. y att “and they will not be satisfied. O women ...”, so Aistleitner Wb. 2579, and Pope UF 11 (1979) 707.

—d) from these three possibilities the first two can be selected as possible, and of these the second (b) is preferable. †

I שְׁבַץ: MHeb. to apply ornamentation to wood or metal, see Levy Wb. 4: 501b; cognate roots in Semitic are uncertain: Akk. sabsû/šabsû sack maker, sabsinnūtu the craft of sack making (AHw. 1000a; CAD S, 4b); Syr. šbaš to mix; Arb. presents different possibilities: 1) šbš Vulg. to be interwoven, with reference to trees, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. following Gesenius Thes.; cf. G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 389b; 2) ḍabata to seize (KBL); 3) baḏa’a his body is so fat that the fat hangs down in folds, so Rabin ErIsr. 9 (1969, Fschr. Albright) 154.

pi: pf. שְׁבַצָה: to weave patterns Ex 28₃₉; NRSV, REB: make a chequered tunic. † pu: pt. מְשַׁבְּצִים: set (jewels set in זָהָב gold) Ex 28₂₀; cj. Ps 45₁₄ pr. מְשַׁבְּצוֹת פְּנִימָה זָהָב prop. זָהָב מְשַׁבְּצוֹת פְּנִינִים corals set in gold, so Kraus Bibl. Kommentar 15⁵: 486, 487; KBL; cf. BHS. †

Der. תְּשַׁבֵּץ, מְשַׁבְּצוֹת.

II *שְׁבַץ: perhaps the root is comparable with Eth. dabsa (Dillmann Lex. 1331) to be (become) weak, be invalid, be untenable, on which see Zorell Lex. 818b (with reference to de Lagarde Übersicht über die im Aram. ...

übliche Bildung der Nomina (1889) 143. Any connection with Akk. šapsu “strong, resistant, stubborn” (AHw. 1176a; CAD Š/1, 481b) is not to be accepted (:: KBL, where another meaning of this Akkadian word was hesitantly considered).

Der. שָׁבַץ.

9351 שָׁבַץ

שָׁבַץ: hapax legomenon 2S 1₉ (with אֶחָז): II *שָׁבַץ (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 462s); Eth. dabas (Dillmann Lex. 1331) feebleness, frailness; the exact sense of the Hebrew sbst. is uncertain, and the Vrss. differ: Sept. σκοτός δεινόν; Vulg. angustiae; Pesh. šaurānē dizziness; Tg. ītēta (רְתִיתָא) trembling. Differences like this suggest two possible translations: a) following Pesh. and Tg., dizziness, trembling; b) following Eth., weakness. NRSV: convulsions; REB: the throes of death; JPS: for I am in agony. †

9352 שָׁבַר

I שָׁבַר: for Semitic see G. Bergsträsser Einführung 190; for a possible connection with the root פָּרַר see Labuschagne OTSt (Pretoria 1971) 56; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 216); JArm. תְּבַר; Ph. šbr (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 26 A:i:8; cf. Friedrich *Gramm.*² §131); the same in OArm. (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 222 A:38; cf. Degen Altaram. Gr. §57a; see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 290; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1105-1106, *šbr*₁; Samaritan; → BArm. תְּבַר, also for references to further Arm. dialects; Ug. tbr (Gordon Textbook §19:2642; Aistleitner Wb. 2834; Gibson *Canaanite Myths*² 160a), cf. RSP 1: p. 377, no. 598; 2: p. 13 no. 17; p. 33 no. 66; Akk. šebēru(m), Old Akk. šabārum, Assyrian šabāru(m) to break (AHw. 1206f; CAD Š/2, 246b); OSArb. tbr (Conti Rossini Chrest. 258b; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 149); Eth. sabara (Dillmann Lex. 358); Tigr. sabra (Littmann-H. Wb. 183); the meaning of Arb. tabara to annihilate, destroy, perish (Wehr-Cowan 102a) is distinct from the other Semitic languages, where it generally has the meaning “to break, shatter” (in OSArb. it also means “to conquer”). For the relationship between the qal and the pi. see Jenni Pi‘el 181: in the qal only items which can be actually broken, like wood, bones and pottery, are used as objects; but by contrast in the pi. objects made of stone and metal are used, which cannot actually be broken in one action but as a result of some other wasting process can be finally destroyed. In the Samaritan tradition the pi. is often found instead of the Tiberian qal (Ben Hayyim Lešonenu 22, 236ff, and LOT 5: 164-166).

9355 שָׁבֵר

II שָׁבֵר > II שָׁבֵר, ? Bauer-L. Heb. 456f; SamP. šábār, the etymology of the sbst. is uncertain; according to its form it is more likely to be derived from a verb than to be taken as a primary noun; suggestions for a verbal root include: 1) a connection with I שָׁבַר, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: “outbreak”, that which breaks out easily from the husk; KBL: roughly broken grains, similarly Zorell Lex. 819b; but differently Bauer ZS 10 (1935) 8: “breaking” from the separation of a piece of silver from a larger bar to make a purchase; 2) a connection with a non-Hebrew root, so König Wb. 482a: from the vb. *שָׁבַר corresponding to Arb. tamara and Eth. samra to be fruitful (Dillmann Lex. 333), on which see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; the root for the vb. and the sbst. is found in Cushitic languages with the meaning “to be hungry”, “hunger”, as shown by Chaim Rabin Hebräische Etymologien aufgrund kuschitischer Sprachen (Haifa 1976) 253; this is also cognate with Tigr. safṛā hunger (Littmann-H. Wb. 201b), which also has the vb. safṛā to be hungry, starve; cf. MHeb. שְׂבִירוֹן the price of grain: sf. שְׂבִירוֹ, שְׂבִירָם (SamP. šabru, šabrimma).

III שָׁבֵר: n.m., Sept. Σαβερ; cf. Lihyanic. sbr, Sabr (Ryckmans Noms Propores 1: 305b); the sense of the personal name is not clear. Noth Personennamen 230 adduces two possible cognates: 1) Arb. sabr “lion” (Lane Lex. 1293b); 2) JArm. Syr. šabrā “a simple minded person”. Both of these seem possible; on the first compare Nöldeke Beiträge 77f; and on the second compare Akk. Saklu(m), if this personal name is to be linked with the adj. saklu(m) “stupid, clumsy, idle” (AHw. 1012b); in CAD S, 80f the two words are treated separately: saklu adj., barbarous; saklu sbst., simpleton; even so the personal name is derived from the sbst.; see also Stamm

Namengebung 250. Despite the identical pronunciation III שָׁבַר is to be treated separately from I שָׁבַר, for any connection with the idea of “breaking” is for the moment improbable and unclear (so König Wb. 482a), on which see previously Noth loc. cit.; but it may have been that a reference to some physical abnormality was intended: a son of Caleb 1C 2₄₈. †

9359 שְׁבָרִים

שְׁבָרִים, Jos 7₅: probably pl. of I שָׁבַר, place name; the Vrss. differ: Sept. leaves the word out; Vulg. has a proper noun Sabarim; Pesh. and Tg. each give a form which is derived from the Arm. vb. הִתְבַּר “to shatter” with the sense of the Pesh. “until they were vanquished”, or alternatively “until they were overthrown”; Tg. “until they had vanquished them”; Pesh. seems to represent Heb. עֲרַה־הַשְׁבָּרִים, so Zorell Lex. 820a: it is not certain that the sbst. “breaking” is meant; according to Noth Jos. 48 “it is the original designation of a specific locality” (cf. previously Qimhi). Perhaps the name is to be associated with the fragments of stone that were lying around the site of הָעַי, so e.g. ZüB; Hertzberg ATD 9: 46, 50; and (with some reservation) also J. Gray Joshua, Judges and Ruth (1967) 84⁵. †

שַׁבַּת: A. General remarks: although it has been suggested that there is some connection between the vb. and the sbst. שַׁבַּת it is nevertheless disputed whether the sbst. is to be derived from the vb., or whether the sbst. is primary and the vb. is to be regarded as denominative; on this see the summary by A.T. Patrick The Unity and Origin of the Decalogue, A Bibliographical and Exegetical Approach (Diss. theol. (typescript), Louvain 1963), cited in Jörn Halbe Das Privilegrecht Jahwes Ex 34, 10-26 (FRLANT 114, 1975) 188¹⁷. Kutsch in RGG³ 5: 1258ff is one of those who support the first proposal, and the second, regarding the verb as denominative, is supported by North in Biblica 36 (1955) 182-201. Very often the question is left open, as in e.g. O.H. Steck Der Schöpfungsbericht der Priesterschrift (FRLANT 115, 1975) 187⁷⁹²; Halbe loc. cit.; see also Westermann Genesis (Bibl. Kommentar 1/1: 237f and THAT 2: 863. From time to time the (original) connection between the vb. and the sbst. is challenged, so Bauer-L. Heb. 476²; W.H. Schmidt Die Schöpfungsgeschichte der Priesterschrift (WMANT 17², 1967) 156; and G. Robinson ZAW 92 (1980) 40.

For substantives which belong to the vb. שָׁבַת but which cannot be reckoned as a derivative of it with certainty → שַׁבַּת A (under the general remarks); and see also perhaps שְׁבַת, שְׁבַתוֹן, *מִשְׁבַּת, n.m. שְׁבַתִּי.

שְׁבַת: the sbst. is either a) to be interpreted as a verbal noun of שָׁבַת, cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 458s (SamP. šabtu and Samaritan Tg. בטלחה point to a derivation from the root שָׁבַת); or b) as a substantivised infinitive of יָשַׁב (Bauer-L. Heb. 378o, p; Bergsträsser Gramm. 2: §26b).

—1) instances which are certainly substantival are Ex 21₁₉ (with נִתָּן), and Pr 20₃, though deciding whether the derivation is in the sense of שָׁבַת or יָשַׁב is not clear; on this see Kopf VT 9 (1959) 258, who prefers the second alternative in the light of Arb. qa'ada “to sit down” and, with ‘an, “to refrain from” (Wehr-Cowan 779a). This is clearly the case in Ex 21₁₉ with the translation sitting quietly, inaction (KBL); cf. also Noth ATD 5: 136: “he should pay only for his enforced stay at home”. But it is possible to take Pr 20₃ in both ways, on which see Plöger BK 17: 230; for the first alternative, translating “to cease”, see Plöger loc. cit. 230; for the second, translating “to be absent” (ZüB; Gemser *Sprüche*² 78), or alternatively “to desist”, see Plöger loc. cit. 229); NRSV: it is honourable to refrain from strife; REB: to draw back from a dispute.

—2. a more likely instance (though with less certain meaning) of the sbst. שְׁבַת is Am 6₃ שְׁבַת חַמָּס וַתִּגִּישׁוּן, and this can be interpreted either in the first or in the second sense; if the first שְׁבַת חַמָּס וַתִּגִּישׁוּן would mean cessation, and שְׁבַת חַמָּס “the violent termination, the end” (so Rudolph KAT 13/2: 215, 216); if the second שְׁבַת חַמָּס would mean “throne” which comes to mean “rule”, and שְׁבַת חַמָּס the rule of sin (so Wellhausen *Die kleinen Propheten*² (1898) 10, 84; and subsequently Wolff BK 19/2: 316; and Ludwig Markert Struktur und Bezeichnung des Scheltworts (BZAW 140, 1977) 164; also M. Delcor La Sainte Bible 8 (Paris 1961): 219: the reign of violence; :: cj.: α) pr. שְׁבַת prop. שְׁנַת the year of distress; β) שְׁבַת וְחַמָּס disaster and violence ; γ) שְׁבַת וְחַמָּס a wrongful and violent action; for bibliography on these three cj. see Wolff BK 14/2: 316; cf. also BHS.

—3. שְׁבַת is not to be considered as a sbst.; in Sept. בְּשַׁבַּת is rendered as ἀήχλυν-221 ἄπτων corresponding to Heb. בְּשַׁבַּת, on which see e.g. Budde KHC 8 (1902): 327; proposals for the emendation of the text include: α) delete בְּשַׁבַּת, which has been introduced from vs. 8 בְּשַׁבַּת יָשַׁב (a deformation of a masc. name, see HAL 425a, HALOT 445b), so e.g. Budde loc. cit.; KBL; β) pr. בְּשַׁבַּת (שְׁבַת) prop. בְּשַׁלְהֶבֶת and in the flame (or fire), so Procksch in Fschr. R. Kittel (1913) 113⁷; and Hertzberg ATD 10²: 329⁴ :: Johnson Sacral Kingship 19: MT “and they must be burned with fire on the spot”; so also NRSV.

The root שַׁבָּת is also the basis for the Akkadian sbst., see Landsberger Kult Kal. 133, 135. In contrast to the etymological connection between the Akkadian and the Hebrew sbst. there is no functional connection, for in the OT שַׁבָּת is a day which is independent of the phases of the moon; it does not signify the day of the full-moon, but a weekly day of rest: cstr. שַׁבְּת, sf. שַׁבְּתוֹ/תָּהּ, שַׁבְּתֵיכֶם, שַׁבְּתוֹת, pl. שַׁבְּתוֹת, cstr. שַׁבְּתַת, sf. שַׁבְּת(וֹ)תִי, שַׁבְּת(וֹ)תֵיךְ, שַׁבְּת(וֹ)תֵיךְ; fem. Ex 31¹⁴ Lv 25⁶, masc. Is 56²⁻⁶ 58¹³; cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 512c; R. Meyer Gramm. §42.6; שַׁבְּת שַׁבְּתוֹן with הֵיאָה Lv 16³¹, with הֵיאָה 23³².

It should be noted that in the Aramaic dialects it is common to find a fem. pl. form occurring alongside the masc. pl. Landsberger has suggested (orally in a lecture, West Semitic, 1934/35) that in Akk. and Heb. the masc. pl. functions as a pl. of the non-determined state, and the fem. pl. as a determined pl., and that this notion should probably be applied to שַׁבְּתוֹת. Michel Grundl. 1, does not mention the sbst. שַׁבָּת; according to p. 63 the pl. would “indicate a majority of individual members”. In a personal letter von Soden suggests that the fem. may perhaps be explained as a reminiscence of the fem. šapattu(m). For the older bibliography see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL; see also H.H. Rowley Moses and the Decalogue (BJRL 34/2 (1951) 109³) = Men of God (1963) 27³; more recently see THAT 2: 865-869; see further TWNT 7:2-6; de Vaux Inst. 2:371ff = Lebensordnungen 2:330ff; V. Fritz Wüste 45f; Tsevat The Basic Meaning of Biblical Sabbath (ZAW 84 (1972) 447-459); Wolff Anthropologie 200ff; Childs Exodus 412ff; Andreassen Recent studies of the Old Testament Sabbath: some observations (ZAW 86 (1974) 453-469) including many bibliographical citations; G. The questions raised in these studies concern the origin of the sabbath, and also concern its meaning and development in the OT. These latter questions can often be answered from textual evidence, but when the answers are given points of varying degrees of value emerge; as for the former questions there are always varying answers and the matter still remains open. This is not the place to join the discussion: sabbath.

שַׁבְּתוֹן: Bauer-Leander Heb. 498c; SamP. šabbāton; to be derived from an unclear specific sense of שַׁבַּת; possible explanations include: a) an artificial amplification of שַׁבַּת (KBL); b) a diminutive of שַׁבַּת, so Barth Nominalbildung §196b; c) by comparing the Akk. suffix -ān, ānum (von Soden Gramm. §56r) the suggestion emerges that שַׁבְּתוֹן can be distinguished from the basic lexeme as signifying one individual and particular שַׁבַּת, such as one that is to be observed in a particularly strict way, or one observed as a special celebration; the second of these suggestions (b) should probably not be considered any further, and the first (a) is extremely weak; this leaves the third (c) as the preferred explanation; it seems not to occur in MHeb., for it is not mentioned by Dalman Wb. or by Levy Wb. vol. 4 (and it is not listed in Kuhn Konkordanz); JArm. שַׁבְּתוֹן שַׁבַּת Ex 31¹⁵ corresponds to שַׁבְּתוֹת/שַׁבְּתוֹת אֶת שַׁבַּת a sabbath of the sabbaths, cf. Dalman Wb. 414b, 415a: שַׁבְּתוֹן.

—1. a sabbath that is markedly different from the usual שַׁבַּת inasmuch as it is to be observed strictly and to be celebrated in a special way. Such a special sense is given to the word not only by the structure of the word (see above) but also by the usage of the term; see Ex 16²³ where שַׁבְּתוֹן is explained as קָדַשׁ שַׁבַּת; an association between שַׁבְּתוֹן and קָדַשׁ is also made in Ex 31¹⁵ 35², see further Lv 23^{3,24} שַׁבְּתוֹן and קָדַשׁ מִמֶּקְרָא. The phrase שַׁבַּת שַׁבְּתוֹן clearly involves a construct expression which is to be interpreted as “a sabbath with special sabbath celebrations”, cf. John 19³¹ that sabbath was a day of great solemnity (NRSV).

—2. the word occurs in the following passages: a) שְׁבִתוֹן Ex 16₂₃ 31₁₅ Lv 23₂₄₋₃₉₋₃₉; b α) שֵׁבֶת שְׁבִתוֹן Lv 23₃; β) לְיִהוּדָה Ex 31₁₅ 35₂; γ) לָכֶם Lv 16₃₁ 23₃₂; δ) לְאַרְצֵךְ Lv 25_{4f}. †

9364 שְׁבִתִּי

שְׁבִתִּי: n.m., sbst. from שְׁבִת, with the suffix -ai marking affinity, really “the one who belongs to the sabbath”, denoting someone who has been born on the sabbath day, see Noth Personennamen 222. This -ai ending may perhaps have a foreign origin according to Bauer-Leander Heb. 502e, cf. the Akk. ending -ay (von Soden Gramm. 56p), which can also appear in names as -a (Stamm Namengebung 268f); Sept. Σαββαταίος; MHeb., JArm. שְׁבִתִּי (Dalman Wb. 415a). שָׁנִיּוֹן: Ps 7₁ Hab 3₁: the etymology and exact meaning of the sbst. (it is a technical term for a specific type of cultic song) are unknown: לְדָרוֹד שָׁנִיּוֹן Ps 7₁; pl. שָׁנִינֹת (עַל) Hab 3₁.

—1. Vrss.: a) Ps 7₁: Sept. Ψαλμὸς τῷ Δαυιδ; Vulg. iuxta Sept. Psalmus David; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. pro ignoratione David for the ignorance (lack of knowledge) of David (on which see under b); in Pesh. the words are missing; b) Hab 3₁: Sept. μετὰ ὠδῆς; Vulg. pro ignorantia; this translation is also repeated in Aquila, Symmachus and Theodotion, on which see Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 233; it presumes deriving the word from the vb. → שָׁגָה (especially from meaning 3).

—2. attempted explanations for the meaning of the word include: a) שָׁנִיּוֹן < Akk. šigû lamentation (CAD Š/2, 413a); according to AHW. 1231b the Akkadian term means a dirge, which also occurs in the colophons of prayers, on which see Falkenstein and von Soden Hymnen 44f.; deriving the Hebrew sbst. from the Akkadian is supported by Mowinckel, see e.g. Ps. Stud. 4: 7, and also Israel's Worship 2:209; see also Humbert Hab. 25; Keller Commentaire de l'AT 11b: 170; KBL; Kraus Ps. 20. Kraus translates as “animated song of lamentation”; but this is questionable on linguistic grounds, and also because of the Hebrew textual literary genre, in particular that of Ps 7; on this see M.J. Seux “Šiggayōn = šigû” in Cazelles Fschr. 421-438); b) for the derivation of the sbst. שָׁנִיּוֹן from a vb. cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 498c: α) taking it from → שָׁגָה “to stagger” (see qal 2) could give שָׁנִיּוֹן שָׁגָה the meaning “staggering verse”, which could be the song of an ecstatic, so Sellin Zwölfprophetenbuch 2: 406; β) it could alternatively be taken from Arb. sajā(w) to stimulate to great excitement; so B.D. Eerdmans Hebr. Ps. 76f: שָׁנִיּוֹן שָׁגָה would be a song which provoked great excitement by its performance; on this see also Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 233: a type of wildly exciting dithramb; see also Dahood Psalms 1: 41.

—3. an assessment of these questions shows that it is not possible to make a clear distinction between the effect of deriving it from Akk. (see 2a), or from Heb. or Arb. (see 2b), and so whatever meaning for the sbst. is preferred it should not be regarded as certain; linguistic arguments tend to give more support to 2b, but there are no contextual references to make the proposal definite in either Ps 7 or Hab 3. †

9373 שָׁגַל

שָׁגַל: the etymology of the vb. is uncertain, but suggestions include: a) a denominative from the sbst. שָׁגַל, so KBL; b) an archaic šafel formation from גָּלַה to uncover, so Wächter ZAW 83 (1971) 385; c) שָׁגַל corresponding to Akk. šagālu(m) to confiscate, seize (AHw. 1125b; CAD Š/1, 62); cf. also the sbst. šigiltu(m) improper seizure (?), unlawful action (AHw. 1231; CAD Š/1, 412); d) the situation is that the last suggestion (c) has most to support it; what goes against the first suggestion (a, taking it as a denominative) is that it does not explain the passive meaning of the vb. (on which see also Landsberger in Baumgartner Fschr. 199); as for the second suggestion (b) it is too uncertain. It is obviously an uncouth word, for which Q substitutes שָׁכַב; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Gordis Biblical Text 86.

*שָׁגַר: MHeb. שָׁגַר qal to run, pi. to send, hif. to leap over; Samaritan pa.; JArm. שָׁגַר pe. to spill, pa. to throw out, throw away, send, give birth (Delcor UF 6 (1974) 14); af. to throw away, jump over; Syr. šgar pe. to flow, go down, go away; pa. to cause to flow, let down (Brockelmann Lex. 756a); CPArm. *šgr pa. to send; Mnd. ŠGR I to introduce oneself, come into existence, be brought to birth (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 448b); Arb. sajara to drift far away (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Fraenkel Fremdw. 114¹); II-form to make water overflow (see Wehr-Cowan Dict. 398a, who gives a different meaning for the I-form). According to Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL the sbst. שָׁגַר is to be derived from this root; this contrasts with the view that the development of the root as a verb in later Arm. must have been as a denominative, so H.P. Müller ZDPV 94 (1978) 64.

שָׁגַר: SamP. šāgār, Samaritan שגרה, cf. שגרה (MM 102f) product, result; for the connection of this sbst. with the root → *שגר: Ug. šgr (Gordon Textbook §19:2384; Aistleitner Wb. 2582): 1) šgr Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:iii:16f; 2) šgr w itm Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 148:31. In both these passages šgr is to be taken as a deity of cattle, so Gibson *Canaanite Myths*² 158b (cf. Driver *Canaanite Myths*¹ 147: šgr offspring, but also cognate with the Hebrew sbst.). It is suggested in Caquot Textes Oug. 246 that šgr w itm were minor deities associated with Ba'al which perhaps held control over the flocks, on which see also the supporting remarks of J.M. de Tarragon Le culte à Ugarit (CRB 19 (1980) 172, with bibliography); Deir 'Alla, see 1:14f (16f) šgr w štr, Hoftijzer-vdK. Deir Alla 218f; cf. Heb. אֱלֹפִיךָ וְעִשְׂתֶּרֶת (ו)ת צֵאנֶיךָ שֶׁגַר Dt 7₁₃ 28_{4,18-51}; in the Aramaic of Deir 'Alla it can also be used as an appellative as compared with the expression in Hebrew, but it is also possible to understand it as a divine name, on which see H. and M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 100f; on the latter point see especially H.P. Müller ZDPV 94 (1978) 64f: it is a mythological personification of the similarly pronounced appellative to designate people who are great. On šgr w štr see also Müller ZAW 94 (1982) 217, 224; and also Ringgren in A. Rofe and Y. Zakovitch (eds.) Sefer Yizhaq Aryeh Zeligman (Jerusalem 1983) 3: 96f. On three further (though uncertain) instances of šgr as a deity in the fragments of the inscription see Hoftijzer-vdK. Deir Alla 273; see also H. and M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 101, 103; and on line 5 see Müller ZAW 94 (1982) 218, 221; see further Sasson UF 17 (1986) 280, line 20: lš[gr]; and p. 89, line 54: šgr w štr (see 295f and 307); Punic n.m. bdšgr (Benz Personal Names 163; for the divine name šgr see p. 413): cstr. שָׁגַר (and once שָׁגַר) Ex 13₁₂: what is dropped, thrown, litter (i.e. apparently what the mother animal drops or thrusts down at birth, a newborn animal (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); see under שגר JArm.: פֶּטֶר שָׁגַר בְּהֵמָה the firstborn offspring of the animals (REB); the firstborn of the livestock (NRSV) Ex 13₁₂, שָׁגַר אֱלֹפִיךָ together with עִשְׂתֶּרֶת (ו)ת צֵאנֶיךָ Dt 7₁₃ 28_{4,18-51} → עִשְׂתֶּרֶת. In Hebrew presumably the older appellative meaning of the word has been preserved, and in Ug. (and Deir 'Alla) it has become a proper name for a deity. It is less likely that the change occurred in the opposite direction, from divine name to appellative. †

*שָׂדֵי, pl. שָׂדִים Dt 32₁₇ Ps 106₃₇, Sept. dative (τοῖς) δαίμονοις.

—1. SamP. pl. šīdām; MHeb. שָׂדֵי, שָׂדֵי; JArm. שָׂדֵי, pl. שָׂדֵי: demon (male or female); Akk. šēdu(m) sg. vitality, spirit, demon (AHw. 1208; CAD Š/2, 256: šēdu A): a) beneficial, protecting spirit; b) malevolent demon; pl. (rarely) šēdū lā pādūtum/tu “merciless demons” (AHw. 808b, under pādū), cf. AHw. 1208a under 4; Syr. šē-dā; CPArm. šyd and šd demon; cf. (?) Mnd. šdum a spirit of the darkness, one of those ruling the underworld (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 449b); Egyptian the divine name šd as an element in šdrp' Šadrapa, a god of healing > Σαδρητράπης, on which see F. Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem (BZAW 118 (1970) 206f); Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 198ff; Pauly-W. Kl. Real-Enz. 4: 1566f.

—2. a) when considering the question of the divine name it is significant that Akk. šēdu(m) occurs everywhere most frequently as a singular (the pl. is rare), while in Biblical Hebrew only the plural is used; in MHeb., JArm., Syr. and CPArm. the singular is more common although the plural is attested. There is no doubt that שָׂדֵי, שָׂדִים is a loanword from Akk., as suggested by Zimmern Fremdwörter 69; AHw. 1208; KBL; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. Moreover in Akk. šēdu(m) has a double meaning; it is primarily used to indicate a protective spirit, but it is also used for a malevolent demon, particularly in the pl. šēdū (see above).

In the cognate languages the meaning demon has become predominant. The relationship of the pl. with the original singular is to be explained by a disintegration of the essence of the divine being šēdu(m) into a number of different manifestations, on which see Caquot Syria 29 (1952) 74ff.

—b) alternatively the relationship may be explained with Stolz loc. cit. 206f, with reference to Haussig Wb. Myth. 1: 49; he maintains that it appears from Dt 32₁₇ and Ps 106₃₇ that the שָׂדֵי were local gods which were worshipped particularly in Jerusalem, but which were also recognised in Mesopotamia; but this idea fails to explain the relationship to the singular šēdu(m). It may have been that one such deity could have risen to prominence from that group of deities. On the Egyptian god of healing Šadrapa see above under 1.

—3. the rendering of Sept. δαίμονοις mentioned in the introduction supports a translation of שָׂדֵי in Dt 32₁₇ Ps 106₃₇ (both times with חָבֵי) as fiend, demon.

—4. the suggestion that שְׂרִיִּם could have been recognised in Mesopotamia as coming from the west does not completely exclude the connection with the Arabic colour words 'iswadda “to be black”, adj. 'aswadu “black”, as mentioned by Koehler ZAW 54 (1936) 291f and KBL; see also Koehler Mensche 121. †

9381 שָׂר

I שָׂר: any connection of this sbst. with שָׂר is disputed; it may be either a by-form of שָׂר (KBL), or it may be a textual error (or rather an error in the Tiberian vocalisation), so Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 121; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; König Wb. 484b; Bab. שָׂר (Yeivin Decade 773s); this seems preferable to the idea of a by-form, on which see Nöldeke and König loc. cit.: cstr. as abs.

שָׁדָה: וְשָׁדוֹת Qoh 2₈: there is no really certain interpretation of these words; a) for other examples of the repetition of an identical sbst. in the sg. or in the pl. (with an intensive significance) cf. Ju 5₃₀ Ps 72₅, also Is 51₈ Ps 102₂₅ (דוֹר דוֹרִים), cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §123e.

—b) the Vrss. differ, on which see Lauha Koh. 51: Sept. (cf. Pesh. and Theodotion) has σήνοχόον καὶ σήνοχόας which must have come from Arm. šāqyā, šāqītā “cup-bearer” (masc. or fem.); cf. also the Arm. vb. šdā’ to pour (see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); Aquila and Symmachus κυλίκιον καὶ κυλίκια goblets; Vulg. scyphos et urceos goblets and jugs.

—c) according to a Jewish interpretation the words could mean demons, see Lauha Koh. 51.

—d) a more recent explanation is based on a connection with Ug. št (< šdt) mistress, lady (Gordon Textbook §19:2500; Aistleitner Wb. 2704; Gibson *Canaanite Myths*² 159a), on which see also Milik RB 59 (1952) 590; the Ug. sbst. corresponds to Arb. sitt lady (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 397a), which in Hispano-Arabic also means “concubine”, see Dozy Suppléments 1: 631. Qimḥi prefers to interpret שָׁדוֹת, pl. שָׁדוֹת “captured girl”; see also E. Bons šiddāw = šiddōt. Überlegungen zum Verständnis eines Hapaxlegomenons (BN 36 (1987) 12-16), see especially 15. There is a suggestion made by Loretz Qohelet 155⁹⁴ (for which see also Zimmerli ATD 16/1³ 154) of a connection with Akk. šadītum “a designation for a girl in the harem”; this can be rejected, particularly since the sbst. is not listed in AHw. (and it has not been listed subsequently in CAD). Instead of the suggested transliteration ša-di-tum it is better to read with Rainey *El-Amarna Tablets*² 369:8 (p. 40), ša-qī-tum female cup-bearer (cf. AHw. 1179a sv. šaqītu; CAD Š/2, 30, sv. šāqū A, b: beautiful women cupbearers).

—e) but it remains open just how to translate the two sbst. together; suggestions include: α) all kinds of lasses in the harem (see D.C. Siegfried, Göttinger Hand-Kommentar 2: 3/2 (1898) 33f); crowds of women (ZüB; Zimmerli Prediger 151, 153f); a mistress, mistresses (TOB); a woman, even women (Lauha loc. cit.; Bons loc. cit. 15); NRSV: many concubines; REB: everything that affords delight; NEB: all that man delights in.

—f) cj. pr. MT prop. שָׂרָה וְשָׂרוֹת, perhaps a corruption from שָׂרִים וְשָׂרוֹת, so BHK; but it is not easy to see how such a clear expression could have been changed into the difficult formulation of the MT. Even if we assume that it is a gloss (see BHS, with hesitation) that is of no further help. †

—2. for the renderings in older translations see especially THAT 2: 874f; also KBL, and Zorell Lexicon: e.g. Sept.: ἰ ἐπουράνιος, ἰ θεός, (ἰ) ἡκανός (so also Aquila, Symmachus, Theodotion), cf. Bertram ZAW 70 (1958) 20-31; what is used most frequently here is παντοκράτωρ corresponding to omnipotens in Vulg.; Tg. always follows the MT (ʿēl) šadday.

—3. there are some instances of שִׁדְיָ outside the OT; a) some of them are clear: Egyptian ša-di-‘m-i, to be vocalised šadê-‘ammī, corresponding to Heb. šdy ‘my “šdy is my blood-relative (or paternal uncle)”; see THAT 2: 873f (with bibliography); cf. e.g. Cross Myth 53 with note 38; see further H.P. Müller ZDPV 94 (1978) 66.

—b) other instances are less clear or even questionable: α) Thamudic ʾšdy (van den Branden Inscriptions 347), on which see Oldenburg ZAW 82 (1970) 205¹¹⁵: the name of the deity has an Arabian origin, and šdy corresponding to שִׁדְיָ would belong to the Arabic root šdd “to be strong”; see further Knauf BN 16 (1981) 20-26; β) šdym (Deir ʿAlla 1:8f (6f), a group of divine beings which are probably to be linked with אֱלֹהֵי שִׁדְיָ; so Hoftijzer-vdK. Deir Alla 275f; as also H. and M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 88; see further H.P. Müller ZDPV 94 (1978) 65f, and also his study in Keel Monotheismus 130: “Shaddai is evidently one of the names for the ancestral gods, so that šdym presumably develops from a harmonising of what were originally different individual Shaddais”; see also Sasson UF 17 (1986) p. 287 line 16; p. 288 line 19; and p. 295; γ) Palm. šdy?, is listed as a n.m. in Stark Names 50b, but according to the citations on p. 61a šaddayyā* is used much more to indicate the plural for a group of deities which are described on a votive inscription as ʾlhyʾ tbyʾ (ʾilāhayyā tābayyā) “the good gods”; on this see H.P. Müller in Keel Monotheismus 131, and ZAW 94 (1982) 233.

—4. Despite several attempted and suggested explanations the etymology of שִׁדְיָ has still not been completely clarified. There is a long list of references in THAT 2: 875-880; see also Vorländer Mein Gott 215ff and Koch VT 26 (1976) 308; cf. further Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL. Some of the suggestions from these lists will be mentioned here (especially from THAT vol. 2), but they will be restricted to those that seem to us most likely and which have been most widely accepted.

שְׂרַי from Akk. šadû(m) mountain, range of mountains (AHw. 1124; CAD Š/1, 49b, šadû A); also the adj. šaddā'û “mountain-dwelling”, really “someone who lives in the mountain(s)” (cf. CAD Š/1, 43a: šaddû'a, sbst., mountain dweller, highlander); so Albright JBL 54 (1935) 173-193, and more recently in Yahweh 94¹⁴⁰. While the adj. šaddā'û does include the doubled d postulated for שְׂרַיִר, this doubling appears first only in the Neo-Assyrian period (cf. AHw. 1123f); it may not therefore be accepted for the Old Babylonian period. This means that the suggestions of Albright need modifying in the following way: the (doubling of the) d in שְׂרַי is secondary, and the ending -ay is the normal North-West Semitic gentilic termination (*-ayyu); so Cross Myth 52³³, and subsequently THAT 2: 879 and 879f.

—5. The origin and history of the name of the deity.

—a) שְׂרַי (אֵל) was already known as a divine name in Israel in the earlier period, as is evident from Gn 49₁₅ Nu 24_{4,16} Ps 68₁₅ 91₁ (?) as well as from older personal names embodying the element שְׂרַי; on this question see THAT 2: 873, 880; see also below under the derivatives. Apart from a few exceptions (in Ezekiel, Joel, Psalms and Ruth) this divine name then fell into disuse, but was subsequently given a distinctive new meaning in P and in Job (on which see especially Koch VT 26 (1976) 299-332).

—b) the name of the deity שְׂרַי (אֵל) is pre-Israelite, and it must have been taken over by Israel from its Canaanite neighbours. The probable etymological connection with the Akkadian sbst. šadû “mountain” (see above 4) emphasises a non-Israelite origin for the word, but it does not allow us to come to any certain conclusion about to which deity the word שְׂרַי originally referred. One deity that does come into consideration is the Syrian weather god Baal-Hadad, whose dwelling place was the mountain of Šāpōn; on this see Gese RAAM 133f. But the chief god El is also to be considered, so Cross Myth 46ff; F. Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem (BZAW 118 (1970) 157-163); THAT 2: 880; cf. also Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3: 386-397, especially 396¹. In the texts of the OT שְׂרַי (אֵל) is however always a designation of Yahweh; in P similarly it functioned for a time as a particular name of revelation, and later was made equivalent to it (Ex 6₃).

—c) in Gn 49_{25a} שְׂרַי, or rather אֵל שְׂרַי (on which see above 1) is parallel to אֵל אֲבִיךָ, and it occurs there in vs. 24_b as the divine name יַעֲקֹב אֲבִיר, which is clearly to be taken as a member of the group of ancestral gods. This could also be the case for the parallel expression רַעָה אֲבִן יִשְׂרָאֵל if the word אֲבִן is to be deleted and the expression can be reduced to רַעָה יִשְׂרָאֵל; but that is uncertain (on which see רַעָה B sbst. 4a). Even so the divine name in vs. 24_b and the parallel expressions in vs. 25_a make it probable that in any case in the early period שְׂרַי (אֵל) was one of the ancestral gods, so THAT 2: 880f; see further H.P. Müller ZDPV 94 (1978) 66; ZDPV 96 (1980) 6; cf. also Müller in Keel Monotheismus 119, 125.

The opinion of Koch VT 26 (1976) 332 is similar but a little different; for Gn 49₂₅ he preferred to assume that there was “an ancient cultic connection between the ancestral god and Šadday, and from this basis they both functioned extremely closely together, but they could not be regarded as completely identical”.

Bibliography: THAT 2: 873-881 (with its own long bibliography); as well as the references mentioned above, see also Knauf BZ (new series) 28 (1984) 97-103; Seebass ZAW 96 (1984) 338 with note 22. †

Der. ? שְׂדֵמָה.

9391 שְׂדֵמָה

שְׂדֵמָה: ? שדמ (cf. Bauer-L. Heb. 465i).

It should first be noted that support for deriving this sbst. from שדמ comes from the similarly constructed words quoted in Bauer-L. Heb. 465i; if this derivation is correct then the sbst. should not be separated into two elements, as if it were like Ug. šd mt, corresponding to Heb. מִוֶּת שְׂדֵה “a field of death”, or “a field of (the god) Môt”. On the supposed connection between šd mt and מִוֶּת שְׂדֵה see e.g. Lehmann VT 3 (1953) 361-371; Croatto-Soggin ZAW 74 (1962) 44-50; Mulder Kanaanitische Goden 68; Labuschagne Incomparability of Yahweh 71. But this is not possible for the Hebrew language, which does not use combination words; on this see Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 238; and in Ug. we are dealing with a simple sbst. šdmt, see Gordon Textbook §19:2388 fields, vineyards; Caquot Textes 370: vineyard (following Dt 32₃₂); Aartun Partikeln 2: 30: territory.

שְׂרַרְךָ: n.m.; Sept. Σερραχ, the origin and meaning of this personal name are uncertain; suggestions include: a) probably from Persian, so Nyberg in Bentzen Daniel 17; etymological possibilities from Iranian are given in Zadok VT 26 (1976) 247.

—b) a derivation from Babylonian is given by Berger ZA 64 (1975) 224, who quotes Assyrian šadurāku, corresponding to Babylonian šūdurāku (a stative form of the Š-theme of adāru(m) B, to be afraid, see AHW. 11 and CAD A/1 108-109) “I have been made to feel very much afraid”, a plaintive name, which Berger compares with the personal name Šumrušāku “I am suffering deeply” (Stamm Namengebung 163). Although this derivation remains uncertain the other personal names בְּלִטְשָׁאֲצַר and עִבְדֵּי נָגוּ, which occur together with שְׂרַרְךָ, are in any case originally Babylonian personal names, which means it is preferable to the first suggestion (a); on this → BArm.: the name given to one of Daniel’s companions הַנְּנִיחָה when he was attached to the Babylonian court Da 1⁷ (in Hebrew); in Aramaic 2⁴⁹ 3¹²⁻¹⁴⁻¹⁶.19f.22f.26.28-30, → BArm. †

9396 שָׂרַשׁ

*שדש: → I שד.

9397 שד

I שד: General remarks:

—1. a) while the meaning of this word has been confirmed through Akk. (see below b), the derivation of it is uncertain. According to Bauer-L. Heb. 460h it is based on a primary noun, and this also seems to be possible for Ug. šmt (Aistleitner Wb. 2644; Aartun Partikeln 2: 43, who also arrives at the meaning through Akkadian.

—b) the question is difficult to resolve for Akkadian; there is the sbst. sāmtu(m), which according to AHW is multivalent, whereas CAD lists separate homonyms; according to AHW. 1019 sāmtu(m) means: 1. redness; 2. the red glow of dawn (corresponding to sāmtu B in CAD S, 124); it also has a third meaning, a red stone, carnelian (corresponding to sāmtu A in CAD S, 121); there is also the sbst. sūmu(m) redness, red spot (AHW. 1058b; CAD S, 381); the vb. siāmum, sāmu to be (become) red, brown (AHW. 1038f; CAD S, 131); and the adj. sāmu(m) red, brown (AHW. 1019f; CAD S, 126). It would seem therefore that the vb. is primary and that the substantives as well as the adj. are derived from it. By contrast the opposite view, as represented in Bauer-L. Heb. 460h, appears less likely.

—c) cf. Eth. sōm and sāwim (Dillmann Lex. 384a), a traditon which follows Sept., see 2.

—2. there are different renderings in Sept.: a) transcription (accusative) λίθους σοομ 1C 29₂.

—b) ἰ λίθος ἰ πράσινος the bright green stone Gn 2₁₂, σάρδιον Ex 25₇ 35₉ Ezk 28₁₃, σμάραγδος Ex 28₉ 35₂₇ 39₆, βηρύλλιον Ex 28₂₀ 39₁₃, ὄνυξ Jb 28₁₆, on this, and also on Aquila, Symmachus and Theodotion, cf. Dillmann *Genesis*⁶ (1892) 58; Josephus σαρδόνυξ.

—3. translation: that there has long been uncertainty about the rendering of this sbst. is shown by the differences in Sept., on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: a precious stone, so also Zimmern Fremdwörter 59. More recently the translation of the Akk. sbst. (see above, 1b) as the red coloured carnelian has been established, and this should also be accepted for the sbst. in Ug. and Heb., so e.g. Quiring Edelsteine 208; KBL :: Speiser in Friedrich Fschr. 480f (= Gen. 17): lapis lazuli.

*שׂוֹא: by interchange of radicals connected with a) II נִשָּׂא; and b) I שָׂאָה, cf. THAT 2: 882; KBL takes the first alternative (referring to נִיָּחַ: נִוְהַ as a related form) giving for the instances that are cited there the meaning “to treat badly”, Ps 55₁₆ and 89₂₃, → II נִשָּׂא (HAL 688, HALOT 728b). It is particularly Ps 55₁₆ which raises questions of meaning: יִשִּׂי מוֹת עֲלֵימוֹ (equivalent to יִשִּׂי) “death treats them badly”. On the other hand for Ps 89₂₃ it is much better to make a cj. and instead of יִשִּׂי to read יִשָּׂא (see II נִשָּׂא hif.).

If in fact there does remain any one instance in Heb., consideration must be given to words in the cognate languages which shed light on the vb. שׂוֹא hif. “to treat badly”, such as OSArb. sw’ nasty, wicked (Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 315), or bad, unfavourable (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 129); Eth. sayi’ (Dillmann Lex. 394) scandal; Arb. sā’a(w) to be bad, evil, wicked, adj. sayyi’ bad, evil, wicked, sbst. sū’ evil, injustice, wrong, sau’a scandal, wicked action ; cf. Egyptian šw to be empty (Erman-G. Wb. 4: 426f).

9403 שׂוֹ/שׂוֹאָ

שׂוֹ and שׂוֹ Jb 15₃₁: שׂוֹ. SamP. šū. The singular form of the sbst. can be defined in rather different ways: a) Barth Nominalbildung §80c: intransitive qatl; b) Bauer-L. Heb. 583w: a new formation on the analogy of שׂוֹאָ, מוֹת etc.; c) R. Meyer Gramm. §52.3b, c: from the segholate of a II-w (ע׳׳ו) root with שׂ elided, cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §93o; MHeb. falseness, mendacity (Dalman Wb. 416b), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 217): lie, deception, triviality, with different spellings שׂוֹ, שׂוֹ, שׂוֹאָ, on which see Elliger Hab. 67f; Secunda σαυ Ps 31₇, see R. Meyer Gramm. §52.3c (Brönno Morphologie 141), Ps 35₁₇ מוֹשֵׁאֵי יְהוָה, Secunda *μεσσωηεμ (Brönno Morphologie 141), textual uncertainty.

Bibliography: Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 1: 50-57, and Isr. Worship 2: 250 (with qualifying remarks about Ps. Stud. 1); Pedersen Isr. 1-2: 413f; von Rad Theologie 1⁶: 197, and ATD 8, 42; Klopfenstein Lüge 315-320; THAT 2: 882-884; on שׂוֹ cf. further e.g. G. Giesen Die Wurzel שב׳׳ע “schwören” (BBB 56 (1981) 165); also M. Görg Missbrauch des Gottesnamens (BN 16 (1981) 16, 17); 53 occurrences.

General remarks: In Ps. Stud. 1: 56 Mowinckel maintains that the essential elements of the word שׂוֹ consist of injustice and deception, triviality and lying. On p. 57 he summarises his conclusions on the sbst. with the sentence, “We therefore conclude that šāw very often stands as a straightforward term for magic and a magic spell, and that in this sense it comes to include those who perpetrate injustice as well as sinners, those who break the covenant, and the ‘false ones’; also any trivialities or lapses of the chief of the magicians which give him a false reputation.” This thesis of Mowinckel has been well summarised by Giesen loc. cit. 165. To what extent (if at all) the idea of magic, or rather of a magic spell, has to be considered as the origin for this aspect of the word is a matter of judgement, for which on the one hand see Klopfenstein Lüge 315f, and on the other hand THAT 2: 882f. In KBL the essential ideas of the word שָׁוְא are summarised in the head-words, something bad, evil, worthless.

—1. worthless: a) with מְנַחֵת Is 1₁₃; b) לְשָׁוְא futile, inconsequential Jr 2₃₀ 4₃₀ 6₂₉ 46₁₁, Ps 139₂₀, on which cf. Kraus Jes. 1092; c) הַבֶּרֶשׁ שָׁוְא unrestrained speech Is 59₄ Ezk 13₈ Ps 12₃ 41₇ 144_{8.11}; נִשְׂא שֵׁם לְשָׁוְא to utter a name in vain, unnecessarily to abuse a name in an evil way (in a magic ritual or in an oath) Ex 20₇ Dt 5₁₁; on the third commandment see now e.g. Hossfeld Dekalog 77ff, 243-247 (with bibliography); see further Crüsemann Bewahrung 50-53; see also THAT 2: 883: לְשָׁוְא “with disastrous consequences, abusively”; d) שָׁוְא שִׂמְעֵי hasty, false (rumour) Ex 23₁, equivalent to עֵר שָׁוְא Dt 5₂₀, on which see e.g. W.H. Schmidt VTSupp. 22 (1972) 203, and Crüsemann Bewahrung 73-75; e) שָׁוְא vanity, triviality Jb 15_{31a} (שָׁוְא equivalent to שָׁוְא), or rather what is trivial, meaning idols Jr 18₁₅, הַבְּלִי שָׁוְא trivial idols Jon 2₉ Ps 31₇.

—2. meanings which it is not always possible to distinguish clearly from those under 1: שָׁוְא worthless, unrestrained: a) deceit Ezk 13_{6.9.23} 21₃₄ 22₂₈ Ps 24₄ 60₁₃ = 108₁₃ 119₃₇ Lam 2₁₄.

—b) שָׁוְא חֲזוֹן a look of deceitfulness Ezk 12₂₄; שָׁוְא מַחֲזֵה־שָׁוְא deceitful appearance Ezk 13₇; שָׁוְא קֶסֶם deceptive oracle Ezk 21₂₈, textual emendation, see BHS; שָׁוְא חֲלֻמוֹת הַשָּׁוְא deceitful, trivial dreams Zech 10₂; שָׁוְא חַבְלֵי הַשָּׁוְא unreliable ropes Is 5₁₈, for suggested (but not acceptable) cj. see Wildberger Jes. 178; THAT 2: 882; c) שָׁוְא parallel to כָּזָב Ezk 21₃₄ Pr 30₈; cj. Jeremias ATD 24/1 (1983) 148: MT; מְרִמָּה parallel with שָׁוְא Jb 31₅ cf. Klopfenstein Lüge 316.

—3. a) destruction: to sift the nations with שָׁוְא נֶפֶת the sieve of destruction (NRSV; cf. REB: he sieves out the nations for destruction) Is 30₂₈ (→ I נִפְדָּה*) or a yoke to force the nations to their ruin (NEB; → II נִפְדָּה and KBL 624a); see also Klopfenstein Lüge 316; שָׁוְא יְרַחֵי שָׁוְא disastrous months Jb 7₃ (parallel with לַיְלֹת עֲמָל), so with Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 1: 50f; cf. ZüB; KBL (with ?): months of suffering :: Horst Hi. 93: worthless months, cf. TOB.

—b) magic: שָׁוְא אֲלוֹת magical oaths, empty oaths (NRSV), false oaths (REB) Hos 10₄, so Mowinckel loc. cit. 52 :: HALOT → I אֲלוֹת where אֲלוֹת is understood as an inf., to utter an oath, a curse, meaning to make a false declaration, commit perjury, or rather to swear deceitfully, so Wolff *Hos.*² 221; J. Jeremias ATD 24/1 (1983) 126; שָׁוְא מְתֵי שָׁוְא false people Ps 26₄ Jb 11₁₁ Sir 15₇, so KBL, agreeing with Klopfenstein Lüge 316: magicians and soothsayers.

—4. in other contexts: a) worthless, meaning futile, in vain: cj. Ps 89₄₈ pr. שָׁוְא prop. הַשָּׁוְא (BHS), Ps 127_{1f}.

—b) שָׁוְא הִיָּה to come to nothing Hos 12₁₂, Jb 15_{31b}.

—c) שָׁוְא אֵין־שָׁוְא it is all to no purpose (REB) Jb 35₁₃; שָׁוְא with inf. it is purposeless to ... Mal 3₁₄.

—d) cj. Ps 63₁₀ pr. לְשָׁוְאָה prop. with Sept. εἰς μάτην שָׁוְא futile.

שָׁנָא: n.m.: I שׁוּהָ.

—1. a) because of its form, and because of its repeated appearance in EgArm. it is probably an Arm. personal name. On the form see Bauer-L. Heb. 463x; R. Meyer Gramm. §37.1; Wagner Aram. 122, B §2; for occurrences in EgArm. see Cowley Arm. Papyri 23:15; 40:1; Kraeling Arm. Papyri 13:9; cf. Kornfeld Onomastica 72.

—2. Sept. σοῦς, ηἰσοῦς 2S 20₂₅ σοῦσα, see also BHS; 1C 2₄₉ σαου; Josephus (probably on 2S 20₂₅) Σισαῦς (Scahalit Namen. 114).

—3. taking it from the root שׁוּהָ Noth Personennamen 222 has concluded that the personal name has the meaning of similarity, suggesting the resemblance of the new-born child to, for example, its father or its brother, so also Kornfeld Onomastica 72; see also Grelot Documents 492, where the name Šawā is interpreted as meaning “similar to his father (or to his brother)”; also comparable is the personal name k‘mh attested in Sinaitic and Safaitic inscriptions meaning “like his paternal uncle”, see Nöldeke Beiträge 96f. According to Rudolph Chr. 27 Heb. כְּלֹאֲב meaning “just like the father” can be added for comparison, but this explanation is completely uncertain; see Stamm Fschr. 160¹⁰.

—4. a) one of David’s scribes (סֹפֵר) 2S 20₂₅; according to Mettinger Officials 25ⁿ it may not have been a proper noun but an appellative, a title for the position he held which was derived from the Egyptian expression title sš št “the writer of letters”; b) a descendant of Caleb (a member of one of the tribes of Caleb) 1C 2₄₉. † שׁוּאָה, שׁוּאָה: < שׁוּאָה, שׁוּאָה, Bauer-L. Heb. 458v; R. Meyer Gramm. §55: 2; from the root שׁוּאָה :: from the root שׁוּאָה, so that שׁוּאָה would be a participle meaning “what breaks out suddenly”; probably II שׁוּאָה fem. of שׁוּאָה (so BenYehuda Thesaurus 6931: ruin Ps 63₁₀, cf. שׁוּאָה 4d, see שׁוּאָה 5b; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 215) שׁוּאָה: 1QH 5:30 storm, thunderstorm (Lohse Texte 133), desert (Maier Texte 1: 86); 1QH 9:6 ruin (Lohse Texte 147), desert (Maier Texte 1: 97); on both occasions occurring together with מְשׁוּאָה.

General remark: according to Fohrer HAT 13² (1955): 215 (on Ezk 38₉) שׂוֹאָה really means “a storm that breaks out violently and suddenly”, so with Scott ZAW 64 (1952) 24; also cf. H.-M. Lutz Jahwe, Jerusalem und die Völker (WMANT 27 (1968) 133, 134 with note): cstr. שְׂאוֹת.

Akk. tāru to make a revision of the terms of a decree, see AHw. 1333 sv. 4; NRSV: a word that shall not return; REB: a promise that will not be broken;

שָׁב רִיקָם a message without repercussion Is 55₁₁, NRSV, REB: my word shall not return to me empty (NEB: fruitless).

—5. שָׁב followed by a second verb: to do again, be again (Joüon Gramm. §177b; in Akk. the vb. târu, see AHW. 1333b sv. 6, is used in a correspondingly similar way), אֶשְׂבֶּה אֶרְעָה I will feed your flock again (Jacob speaking to Laban) Gn 30₃₁; שָׁבוּ שָׁבְרוּ buy some more grain! (Jacob requesting a second expedition to Egypt) Gn 43₂; וַיִּחְפֹּר וַיִּשָּׁב he dug out again (Isaac reopening the wells that had been stopped up by the Philistines) Gn 26₁₈; וַיִּלְךְ וַיִּשָּׁב he spent another night (the Levite in Bethlehem) Ju 19₇; שׁוּב with לְ and inf. Hos 11₉, on which see Wolff *Hos.*² 247. 261f; Ps 104, Jb 7₇.

—6. שׁוּב used transitively (corresponding to hif.): a) this usage seems to be certainly attested in the expression שָׁבֵת שׁוּבֵת to make a turning, on which see under שָׁבֵת, שְׁבִית.

—b) other instances involve some kind of question, on which see Holladay loc. cit. 114f: α) the most certain occurrence is שׁוּבֵנוּ restore us again! Ps 85₅; β) less certain are Nu 10₃₆ Is 52₈ 63₁₇; in the last of these occurrences שׁוּב may be followed by an acc. of place and simply mean to turn around; however NRSV explicitly sustains the sense of the preposition לְמַעַן for both dependent phrases; REB obtains the same effect simply by punctuation.

—8. particular instances: מְלַחֲמָה שׁוּבֵי מִלְחָמָה Mi 2₈ passive participle qal in an active sense, on which see Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 58, who refers to König Gramm. §235d; see also Wolff Mi. 41: שׁוּבֵי is to be understood as a passive participle qal in a construct phrase, which on this occasion is a substitute for the preposition מִן; compare Joüon Gramm. §121n. The translation can be either “those who have returned from the battle” (so e.g. Rudolph loc. cit. 56; TOB; REB: men returning from the battle), or “those who have had nothing to do with the war” (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.), or alternatively “those who have an aversion to conflict” (so e.g. ZüB; Wolff loc. cit. 38; see also Rudolph loc. cit. 58); NRSV: those with no thought of war.

—b) הָשִׁיב נַפְשׁ to restore liveliness, vitality; to refresh (corresponding to שׁוּבְבִי נַפְשׁ → pil 1a) Ps 19₈ Ru 4₁₅ Lam 1₁₁.

—9. a) הָשִׁיב יָד עַל to turn, direct the hand against someone: it may be concluded that the thought which could perhaps lie behind Jr 6₉ is one of repeated action (see below b). This would have affected the remnant of Israel, but they would nevertheless sur-vive the threatened violence and judgement, see the comments in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 811b sv. 7; see also KBL (p. 953, subheading 9), where the expression is treated under the category of repetition, “to do again”; Is 1_{25a} (probably a gloss), Ezk 38₁₂ Am 1₈ Zech 13₇ Ps 81₁₅; b) obj. סָלְסְלוּת (עַל-) to let the hand pass in and out through the tendrils of a vine, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 42: Jr 6₉; NRSV: like a grape-gatherer pass your hand again over its branches; REB: similarly.

—10. expressions which, according to KBL, contain an element of repetition which in these particular occurrences is not apparent from the context: a) הָשִׁיב פָּנָיו לְ he turned his face in the direction of, meaning to turn to with the intention of destroying Da 11_{18f}.

—b) הָשִׁיב אֶל-לְבוֹ/לְבָבָם Dt 4₃₉ 1K 8₄₇ and הָשִׁיב עַל-לֵב Is 46₈ to take to heart, call to mind (NRSV).

—c) הָשִׁיב רוּחוֹ אֶל (for אֶל equivalent to עַל see BHS) to direct one's anger or displeasure against Jb 15₁₃.

—11. cj.: a) Gn 15₁₁ pr. וַיִּשָּׁב אֹתָם prop. וַיִּשָּׁב אֹתָם “then he made them turn around”, so von Soden in Molin F Schr. 361, but such an idea probably does not belong to the OT.

—b) Hab 2_{1b}<grc rend=sub>b pr. אָשִׁיב prop. with Pesh. יִשָּׁיב (BHS, so e.g. also Humbert Hab. 43 :: Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 211, 212; TOB: MT).

—c) Zech 10₆ וְהוֹשְׁבוּתֵימָם for which see above hif. under the forms, and under 1a.

—d) Ps 89⁴⁴ MT צור חֲרְבוֹ אֶפְתָּשִׁיב צור prop. צר flint: sharpness of the sword (→ I צר); on this cf. Veijola ZAW 95 (1983) 12-16: you have turned the edge of the sword against him (the anointed one), with reference to Ahiqar 9: 1 (Cowley Arm. Papyri 126; Grelot Documents 440).

9411 שׁוּבָב

*שׁוּבָב: שׁוּבָב, < ? מְשׁוּבָב cf. Zorell Lexicon 827b. From this it appears that שׁוּבָב is an original pi. participle with the meaning “turning away, seducing” (→ שׁוּבָב pil. 3): fem. הַשׁוּבָבָה: traditionally backsliding, faithless (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lexicon; König Wb.) Jr 31²² 49⁴. The traditional translation is questionable for both instances, for the words הַשׁוּבָבָה הַבַּת do not fit in well with it according to the context, which is why a cj. has been suggested (see below b). Furthermore the versions differ from one another (see below a).

—a) Vrss.: α) Jr 31₂₂ Sept. θύγατηρ ἡτιμωμένη an unworthy daughter; Vulg. filia vaga; Pesh. bartā tayyābtā a repentant, or alternatively a rebellious daughter, see Brockelmann Lex. 817b; β) Jr 49₄ Sept. θυγάτηρ ἡταμίας an unashamed, precocious daughter, (ἡταμία equivalent to ἡταμότης unashamedness, precociousness); Vulg. filia delicata; Pesh. barta ḥabbībtā beloved daughter.

—b) cj. (with Rudolph *Jer.*³ 196, 286 and BHS): α) Jr 31₂₂ prop. הַשׁוֹבֵבָה equivalent to הַמְשׁוֹבֵבָה po. pt. in a gerundive sense; literally the one who restores again, or alternatively the one who leads back home; Rudolph: the one who beckons to go back home; β) Jr 49₄ prop. הַשְּׂאֲנָנָה (הַבֵּת) the carefree daughter; Rudolph: the self-confident daughter.

—c) cj. Jr 8₅ pr. שׁוֹבֵבָה prop. שׁוֹבֵב → שׁוֹב po. †

שׁוֹבָה: שׁוֹב, Bauer-Leander Heb. 452t, hapax legomenon Is 30₁₅ בְּשׁוֹבָה וְנִחַת הַתְּשׁוּעוֹן 1Q Is^a בְּשִׁיבָה, on which see Wildberger Jes. 1180; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219): 1QS 3: 2-3 וְגֵאוּלִים בְּשׁוֹבָתוֹ “his turning is defiled”; “stains mark his repentance”, so Lohse Texte 8f; Maier Texte 1: 24.

—1. According to Bauer-Leander Heb. 452t the most obvious of the possible derivations for שׁוֹבָה on the grounds of similarly constructed substantives is to take it from שׁוֹב (but see below 2). Then שׁוֹבָה would mean “turning back”, a translation which has been widely accepted (see e.g. KBL; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lex.; ZüB; TOB; NRSV: in returning and rest you shall be saved); for the supporting reasons see especially Wildberger Jes. 1181, who refers to Is 6₁₀, and in particular to the name → יְשׁוֹבֵב שְׂאָר (on this see also p. 1185). This idea is supported in the Vrss., primarily by Tg. dittūbūn l’ōrāyfi tnūhūn “when you turn towards my law you will have peace”.

As well as this meaning what must also be mentioned is the view of Duhm *Jes.*⁴ 221 (which is followed by e.g. Fohrer Jes. 2: 101, 102) of שׁוֹבָה meaning turning away from war (for which Duhm refers to מִלְחָמָה שׁוֹבֵי Mi 2₈, → שׁוֹב qal 8b). But this sense of שׁוֹבָה demands an explanatory word to be used with it. Even so it could have a remote reference to Sept. Ὅταν ἀποστραφῆς στενάξ-]22]ς τότε σωθήσ-]22] “if you sigh after you turn away you shall be saved”; for both the suggestions mentioned here and further ones see F. Huber Jahwe, Juda und die anderen Völker (BZAW 137 (1976) 143-147); see especially 144, with bibliography. Huber himself supports the first mentioned suggestion (see p. 145), as also does e.g. Lescow ZAW 85 (1975) 318.

—2. שׁוֹבָה meaning sitting still, which would be derived either from יָשַׁב, or from a hypothetical שׁוֹב as a by-form of יָשַׁב with the meaning to sit, sit still; on this see Dahood Psalms 1: 148 (with bibliography); see further Sauer in Eichrodt Fschr. 277-295; also W. Dietrich Jesaja und die Politik 149, 150⁸³: through quietness and rest will you be helped”; cf. further Driver JSS 13 (1968) 51; Avishur UF 7 (1975) 35⁵⁵, 36⁵⁶.

—3. in conclusion, for שׁוֹב as it is used in Isaiah the first meaning (1) is to be preferred to the second (2). It would have been different if שׁוֹבָה could have been read rather as שׁוֹבָת, so Ehrlich Randgl. 4: 108, but that is hardly relevant. †

שׁוֹבֵךְ: n.m. 2S 10₁₆₋₁₈; Sept. Σωβακ; equivalent to שׁוֹפֵךְ 1C 19₁₆₋₁₈, Sept. Σωφαχ, Josephus Σαβαίος, Σέβεκος (Schalit Namen. 103, 109); the personal name is missing in Noth Personennamen. The origin of the person who bore this name makes it possible to take it as Aramaic but the meaning is obscure. It is cited by Kraeling Aram und Israel 43¹, and subsequently in KBL, as occurring in Aramaic as Sākap or Sa'kap; this probably goes back to Sagab, or Sa'gab, or Sakap (Tallqvist Names 189f) and could be derived from the root → שׁגב; cf. also the personal name → שׁגוב. Sagab/Sa'gab would then be a Western Semitic personal name rather than a specifically Aramaic one. More questions remain about the free interchange of the forms שׁוֹפֵךְ/שׁוֹבֵךְ: the military commander of Hadad-Ezer, the king of Zoba 2S 10₁₆₋₁₈ 1C 19₁₆₋₁₈. †

9414 שׁוֹבַל

שׁוֹבַל: n.m.; Sept. Σωβαλ, 1C 4_{1f} Σουβαλ. The meaning of this personal name is disputed, but suggestions include:

—1. Moritz ZAW 44 (1926) 90 recalls the name of the mountain Sôbala, in the lower reaches of the Wadi Hēsā, but any connection with the personal name remains unclear.

—2. Noth Personennamen 226: “basket”, takes it from Arb. sābal (see G.W. Freytag Lexicon 2: 281a).

—3. Procksch Gen. 219 gives the meaning “lion”, taking it from Arb. šibl “lion cub”; see also Nöldeke Beiträge 78; cf. also Sabaeen and Safaitic šbl (Ryckmans Noms 1: 205a). Nöldeke Beiträge 78 does not mention the Heb. sbst., and in ZDMG 40 (1886) 168 for phonological reasons he rejects explaining שׁוֹבַל as being derived from šibl. But perhaps the form could have come about through the influence of dialect differences, which were possible and did happen; on this see Procksch loc. cit. For Westermann Gen. 2: 691 שׁוֹבַל is also to be explained as “lion”.

—4. Weippert Edom 237 says that the meaning adopted by Noth (see above 2) has not been proved; he explains it by taking it from the Ug. sentence-name tbln (to be divided tb ln) “turn back towards us!”, see Gröndahl Personennamen 43, 200, 416b.

Of these four proposals probably the third is to be preferred, for šbl was evidently a widespread personal name, and it fits in well with the other names of animals which are used as personal names, and which occur especially frequently in Gn 36; on this see Westermann Gen. 2: 691.

—1. a son of Seir the Horite (שׁעִיר הַהֹרִי) and a tribal chief (אֶלֹךְ) of the Horites Gn 36₂₀₋₂₃₋₂₉ 1C 1₃₈₋₄₀.

—2. a Judaeen from the family (or clan) of Caleb (an ancestor of a Calebite clan) 1C 2₅₀₋₅₂ 4_{1f}. †

9415 שׁוֹבֵק

שׁוֹבֵק: n.m.; Sept. Σωβηκ; according to Noth Personennamen 231 the meaning of the personal name is “pre-eminent, leader”, taking it from Arb. sabaqa to precede, win, sābiq winner; to be ahead of, preceding (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 394b; 395b); to precede, outstrip; one of the first (Lane Lex. 1299b; 1300b): a representative of the clans from the רֵאשֵׁי הָעַמִּים, the chiefs of the peoples Neh 10₂₅. †

שׁוּד: → II שׁוּד.

I שׁוּה: etymology uncertain: a) MHeb. hif. to make the same, treat as equal, adj. שׁוּה: 1) comparable, 2) esteemed (Dalmann Wb. 416b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219) שׁוּה to match (1 QH 15: 23), to be of the same value, be sufficient: שׁוּה לא יִשׁוּה וכּוּל מוֹחֵיר no purchase price would be enough (DJD 1: p. 105, ii:9); unclear and fragmentary שׁוּה, DJD p. 105 ii:2 and Dam. 15: 14 בוּ שׁוּה א [והו] א שׁוּה, cf. Lohse Texte 98; → BArm. שׁוּה, also for the further Arm. dialects; Ug. twy “to resemble, be similar”, see Dietrich-Loretz UF 17 (1986) 126 on Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 16:vi:31, 46; Arb. sawiya to be of comparable value, be the same, be equal; II to make level, make sufficient, equalise etc., see Wehr-Cowan Dict. 444b.

—b) a special attempt is made to explain the root by Labuschagne Incomparability of Jahwe 29, by taking שׁוּה as a šafʿel form from הוּוה/הוּה; the original meaning must then have been “to arrange for, bring about”, and then by comparison to become “to give rise to, achieve”, which develops into “to be the same, be similar”; Labuschagne suggests the juxtaposition of “to be like” and “to be alike”.

qal: pf. שׁוּה; impf. תִּשׁוּה, אֲשׁוּה, יִשׁוּוּ; pt. שׁוּה.

—1. to be (become) the same, be equal with אֵל of the person Is 40₂₅ (parallel with I רַמְה pi.); with לְ of the person Pr 26₄; with בְּ of the thing of the same value Pr 3₁₅ 8₁₁.

—2. a) with לְ of the person, to be appropriate, be in accordance with Est 3₈ 5₁₃.

—b) with בְּ of the thing, to be enough, be sufficient, בְּנִיזָק הַמֶּלֶךְ, שׁוּה הַצָּר אֵין הַצָּר because it is not a need sufficient to trouble the king, on which see Bardtke Est. 354, particularly for the translation of הַצָּר: Est 7₄.

—3. Jb 33₂₇ textual uncertainty לִי שׁוּה לִי וְלֹא: a) Vrss.: Sept. καὶ οὐκ ἄξια -]142[τασέν με ὦν ἡμαρτον “and he did not judge me according to the impropriety which I had committed” (ἐτάζω equivalent to ἐξέτάζω, Liddell-Scott Lex. 700); Vulg. et ut eram dignus non recepi; Pesh. wlā ’ahnyat napšy “and I (myself) had no use”.

—b) translations which follow the MT: α) “and the like did not happen to me”, sc. because of God’s retaliation, so Peters Job 381; similarly TOB “he has not done the same to me”; β) “he has not made me pay (atone) for it, it has not cost me”, so Dhorme Job 460.

—c) cj., on which see also e.g. Dhorme Job: α) לֹא שׁוּה לִי (or וְהוּא לִי) “and God (and he) has not repaid me for it”, so with Budde Hiob 1²: 211; β) וְלֹא שׁוּה לִי כְעוֹנִי “but he has not repaid me according to my guilt”, so Duhm Hiob 162; similarly Hölscher *Hiob*² 81; γ) וְלֹא שָׁלַם לִי “but he has not repaid me”, so e.g.

Fohrer Hi. 453, 455. Whereas the MT can be preserved, reading it as a qal is rather difficult; it seems reasonable to prefer changing it slightly and, with Sept., to read it as pi., as noted in the cj. above (see α). † nif: pf. 3rd. pl. fem. נִשְׁתַּתֵּה textual error, rd. נִשְׁתַּתֵּה see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §20b and §301; on the (archaic) ending -ā see Bauer-Leander Heb. 315o; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §4b; R. Meyer Gramm. §64.2b :: assuming no textual error, taking it as nitpa'el, reflexive of qal (Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §20b in brackets): to be alike Pr 27₁₅. †

pi. (Jenni Pi. 21, 35, 111): pf. שָׁוֶה, שְׁוִיתִי; pt. מְשַׁוֶּה, Secunda μoσaυε Ps 18₃₄ (Brönno Morph. 84).

—1. with acc. and שְׁ of the thing, to make like 2S 22₃₄/Ps 18₃₄; he made my feet like the feet of a deer (NRSV).

—2. a) to even out, level off arable land Is 28₂₅; b) to settle, meaning to soothe (obj. נַפְשִׁי my soul) Ps 131₂ or as → II שוה.

—3. Hos 10₁ textual uncertainty MT פְּרִי לֹוּ יִשְׁוֶה-לוֹ: a) Vrss.: Sept. ἰ καρπὸς αὐτῆς εὐθηνῶν “its fruit developed”; Vulg. fructus adaequatus est ei; Pesh. d'ebdat pē'rē “which brought forth fruit”.

—b) translations: α) following the MT: “it produced fruit commensurately”, so Wolff *Hos.*² 221, 222, TOB; β) :: Rudolph Hos. 191, “that makes fruit ripen over and over again”; Jeremias Hos. 126: that makes fruit ripen all the time; similarly also Weiser ATD 24/1 (1949) 62; thus following Nyberg Hos. 71, who adduces Arb. sawā(y) II “to cause to be ripe”, istawā(y) VIII “to become ripe”; Zorell Lexicon 828a refers also to Eth. šawaya to be ripe, causative ʾašwaya to make ripe (Dillmann Lex. 258a); γ) Gesenius-Buhl Handw. also maintains the reading of the MT, but construes the vb. as II שוה “to make, produce”.

—c) cj.: α) J. Vollmer Geschichtliche Rückblicke und Motive in der Prophetie des Amos, Hosea und Jesaja (BZAW 119 (1971) 82f): prop. qal יִשְׁוֶה pr. pi. “fruit is like him”; β) KBL under II שוה prop. יִשְׁוֶה, cf. BHS. In conclusion it is probably better to abandon cj. emendations and to follow the MT; of the three interpretations that have been mentioned it is probably best to follow the second (β), though it seems that the first (βα) should not be excluded. †

hif. (Jenni Pi'el 35): impf. אֲשַׁוֶּה, תִּשְׁוֶה: to treat as being the same as, meaning to make like, compare with, with לְ of the person Is 46₅ וְתִשְׁוֶה לְ, Lam 2₁₃. †

pi. (Jenni Pi'el 240): pf. שְׁוִיתִי; impf. תִּשְׁוֶה.

—1. to place with לְנֶגֶד before Ps 16₈, with עַל on Ps 21₆ 89₂₀ (pr. עֵזַר prop. נָזַר, BHS).

—2. to lie, lie down Is 38_{13a}, so with Kl. Seybold Das Gebet der Kranken im Alten Testament (BWANT 99 (1973) 151); this meaning is found also in Ps 131₂ (: I שׁוּהַ pi. 1); for the reading שְׁפוּתִי for Is 38_{13a} in 1Q Is^a see especially Wildberger Jes. 1440, 1443, where as well as the popular cj. שְׁוַעֲתִי (BHS) (accepted by Wildberger himself) further explanations are also suggested; cf. also Shlomo Izre'el in UF 8 (1976) 446f: שׁוּהַ in Is 38₁₃ “to produce sounds” is equivalent to Ug. twy in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 16:vi:31, 44, but this translation of the Ug. vb. is completely uncertain, on which see Gray *Krt*² 29, 77: Ug. twy from Arb. tawa(y) to stay, dwell :: Gordon Textbook §19:2662; Aistleitner Wb. 2851.

—3. cj. Ps 119₃₀ pr. שְׁוַעֲתִי prop. אֲוַעֲתִי, so e.g. HAL 20a, HALOT 20b, אֲוַהַ pi.), cf. BHS :: Deissler Ps. 119 125f: MT שְׁוַהַ “to think about, consider”; but this seems questionable and probably the cj. is to be preferred.

Ap.*² 21, 29 שׁוּהַ[ריב] הקריות see also p. 165: Shaweh-Hakerioth; the sbst. *שׁוּהַ corresponds to Akk. (Mari) sawûm something like “wasteland” (AHw. 1033b; CAD S, 202b); cf. Kupper in Kramer Fschr. 302 line 35: burned fields parallel with qaqqar wašmîm “thirsty territory”: the plain of קְרִיתִים; on the place name → קְרִי'קְרִיתִים; the plain associated with the name is described by Schwarzenbach Geog. 36 in somewhat general terms as “a high place to the north of the Arnon valley”; for this see also Schatz Gen. 14 170, 192; it is defined a little more precisely in Simons Geog. §364 (though with hesitation) as a small plain between קְרִי'קְרִיתִים and Mōteh. †

שׁוּהַ: ? I שׁוּהַ; Sept. Σαυη, in place names the same as *שׁוּהַ: שׁוּהַ הַמֶּלֶךְ Gn 14₁₇; SamP. ēmāq aššēbi. According to 2S 18₁₈ שׁוּהַ הַמֶּלֶךְ הַזֶּה הוּא הַמֶּלֶךְ הַזֶּה is the historical site where Absalom had a memorial (מִצְבֵּת) erected; for the location of the valley see the bibliography listed under הַמֶּלֶךְ הַזֶּה, on which see also Simons Geog. §364, who considers that one of the possibilities could be the low-lying area in the north of Jerusalem :: F. Stolz 1-2 Sam. 267. The king’s valley is probably identical to the valley marking out the City of David in the west, “which in later times was filled up by a series of building activities and restoration projects”. Equating שׁוּהַ הַמֶּלֶךְ in Gn 14₁₇ with the King’s Valley is probably a secondary tradition which could have arisen from the text of vs. 18-20 (שְׁלֵם), on which see Schatz Gen. 14 186f, and Westermann Gen. 2: 238. †

Der. I שְׁחָה, ? n.m. II שְׁחָה, שְׁחָת, שְׁחָה.

שְׁחָה: n.m. coming from a topographical or from a tribal name; Sept. Gn 25₂ Σωθε, 1C 1₃₂ Σωε; Josephus Σοῦος (Schalit Namen. 115).

—1. one of the sons of Abraham by קַטְוִרָה, Gn 25₂ 1C 1₃₂.

—2. as a topographical name שְׁחָה corresponds to Assyrian Sūhu (Parpola Toponyms 316), “the area on the Middle Euphrates downstream from the confluence with the River Habur”, so with Horst Hiob 33 (with bibliography), see also Simons Geog. §253.

—3. In the passage mentioned above (1) it appears to be used in a different way from the Assyrian toponym; it is rather a tribal name to indicate one of the tribes of the Syro-Arabian desert. It is reasonable to assume that there is a connection between this and the topographical usage (2), on which see e.g. Fohrer Hiob 106; Horst loc. cit. It must then probably have been used to indicate people who had wandered out westwards and become a tribal unit in the territory of Sūhu. It is also possible that the connection between 2 and 3 is only phonological and has no ethnic implications, so Dhorme Job xxiii; cf. also Westermann Gen. 2: 484. †

9439 שׁוּלָמִית

שׁוּלָמִית: for -ī, -it as an ending expressing affinity see Bauer-Leander Heb. 501w-z and a-b; Song 7₁, for Vrss. see Rudolph Rt.-HL.-Kl. 168; Gerleman Ru.-HL. 188; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1888: most mss. of Sept. Σουλαμίτις, Sept.^B Σουμμελιτις; Vulg. Sulamitis; Pesh. šilōmītā: Shulamite, or rather a Shulamite woman (ZüB). The meaning is uncertain, but possibilities include.

—a) שׁוֹלְכַמִּית for שׁוֹנְכַמִּית “from Shunem”, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. with reference to Ružicka Dissimilation 101.

—b) שׁוֹלְכַמִּית adj. from *שׁוֹלְכַם, which is an unidentified place name, so KBL.

—c) שׁוֹלְכַמִּית a feminine formation from שׁוֹלְכַמִּה, so Rowley *Servant of the Lord*² 228⁸; Rudolph Rt.-HL.-Kl. 168, 170.

—d) שׁוֹלְכַמִּית “it is probably a mistake for a passive participle with a feminine ending” from which the initial כַּ has dropped out, on which see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §52s; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §17f; Joüon Gramm. §58a, b.; שׁוֹלְכַמִּית < מְשֻׁלְכַמִּית = “she who has been substituted”; cf. Stamm Ersatznamen 421b = Stamm Fschr. 74f.

None of these three suggestions can with certainty be excluded as possibilities, but the first and the last (a and c) are to be given first consideration. †

שׁוֹמֵר: n.m., I שׁוֹמֵר, Sept.^B Σαμρη, Sept.^A Σωμηρ 1C 7₃₂, = שׁוֹמֵר Sept.^B Σεμμηρ, Sept.^A Σωμηρ 1C 7₃₄; comments on the meaning of the n.m. include:

—1. according to Noth Personennamen 259a, and Rudolph Chr. 74 שׁוֹמֵר in vs. 32, is much better read as in vs. 34 שׁוֹמֵר, and according to Noth Personennamen 38 the latter is a hypocoristic formation.

—2. it is a question of two different forms, or two different styles of the same personal name: a) שׁוֹמֵר meaning keeper, guardian, one who watches over, which allows for either Yahweh or the bearer of the name to be the subject; compare n.m. עֲזָר helper, or “someone who has been helped”. Parallel names in Akkadian would be Nāširu(m) protector, and Ētiru(m) saviour, on which see Stamm in Fohrer Fschr. 140ff.

—b) שָׁמַר keeping, used for (ו)שְׁמֵרִיהַ, as פָּלַט is used for (ו)פְּלִטְיָה; on the latter name see Noth Personennamen 156; for the sbst. פָּלַט and שָׁמַר cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 458s.

Der. I שׁוּעַ; n.m. אֲבִישׁוּעַ, n.f. בַּת-שׁוּעַ, n.m. יְהוֹשׁוּעַ, מִלְכֵי-שׁוּעַ.

9449 שׁוּעַ

*שׁוּעַ: I שׁוּעַ, sf. שׁוּעִי: cry for help Ps 5₃ (שׁוּעִי קוֹל). †

9450 שׁוּעַ

I שׁוּעַ: II *שׁוּעַ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 451n; JArm. (Tg. Jb 34₁₉ probably a Heb. loanword) noble, eminent, שׁוּעֵא lucky; various etymologies have been suggested.

A. Ug. t: 1) vb. t'y to make an offering, sacrifice; 2) sbst. t' offering; 3) t' as a title of krt (Kāritu), see Gordon Textbook §19:2713, 2715; Aistleitner Wb. 2907; cf. Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 5 (1973) 117. Of these only the third idea is important for Hebrew, but the meaning of it is disputed, on which see Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes 529^u. Suggestions include: a) from Arb. wasi'a (see below under b) generous (Driver *Canaanite Myths*¹ 33b, 151a), magnanimous (Gray *Krt*², 16, line 200, 56; and Gray *Legacy*² 262).

—b) leader, chief, master (Gibson *Canaanite Myths*² 160b); cf. Greenfield ErIsr. 9 (1969) 60f; Sasson UF 14 (1982) 201-208, especially 204.

—c) sacrificial priest (Aistleitner Wb. 2907), cf. de Tarragon Culte 58f.

—d) t' meaning a designation or the actual name of the tribe to which Krt belonged (Gordon Textbook §19:2713); on this cf. with Aistleitner loc. cit. OSArb. mt'y sacrifice; cf. further Eth. šaw'a to make a sacrifice, šawi' and šawā'ī the one who is making a sacrifice (Dillmann Lex. 256).

Deciding which of the different possibilities to choose is difficult, but perhaps the third (c) has most to support it, or even the last (d).

B. Arb. wasi'a to be wide, spacious; II to give generously; IV to be prosperous; VIII and X to be noble, generous: cj. pl. שׁוּעִים Jb 34₂₀: noble, eminent Is 32₅ (: כִּילִי, parallel with נְדִיב, Jb 34₁₉ (: דָּל), cj. 34₂₀ pr. שׁוּעִים יִגְעְשׁוּ עָם prop. יִגְעְשׁוּ שׁוּעִים the noblest perish, so Fohrer Hiob 463, 464, cf. BHS. † II שׁוֹעַ: hapax legomenon, Is 22₅: the Vrss. vary from one another and among themselves, so the meaning is uncertain; suggestions include: a) שׁוֹעַ corresponding to the Babylonian name of a people Sutû (→ III שׁוֹעַ), so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; cf. Zorell Lexicon 829b.

—b) שׁוֹעַ: α) = *שׁוֹעַ, so König Wb. 489b; β) a verbal noun from I שׁוֹעַ: “cry for help”, so O. Kaiser Jes. 13-39 112 with note 6; γ) שׁוֹעַ “scream”, by-form of שׁוֹעַה = → I שׁוֹעַ, so Wildberger Jes. 805, 807.

Because of the parallelism between שׁוֹעַ and → *קֶר “noise, row” the second suggestion (b) is to be preferred to the first (a); cf. Wildberger loc. cit. 807. †

9452 שׁוֹעַ

III שׁוֹעַ: the name of a people; Sept. Σουε corresponding to Babylonian Sutû “a group of nomads in the Syrian desert, who inhabited the area to the east of the Diyāla”, so Zimmerli Ezekiel 548; see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (both with bibliography): Sutaeans Ezk 23₂₃. †

9453 שׁוֹעַ

I שׁוֹעַ: I שׁוֹעַ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 452t; by-form of שׁוֹעַה, so Wildberger Jes. 807 (on Is 22₅): cry for help, scream Jb 30₂₄ 36₁₉, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon 829b; König Wb. 489b :: alternatively cj. †

9454 שׁוֹעַ

II שׁוֹעַ n.m., I שׁוֹעַ, Sept. Σαυα(ς); for the explanation of this personal name שׁוֹעַ is taken as a sbst. and probably as a by-form of יִשַׁע = I עֵזֶר, which occurs as a personal name under II עֵזֶר. Like that name שׁוֹעַ may either be a full form “help” (which has been shared with the parents by the one who is given the name), or it could be a shortened form (so Noth Personennamen 154) of a sentence name like אֲבִישׁוֹעַ: the father-in-law of יְהוֹרָדָה Gn 38₂₋₁₂; בַּת־שׁוֹעַ the daughter of שׁוֹעַ (but her own name is not given) 1C 2₃. †

שׁוֹעָא: n.f.; Sept. Σωλα; a short form for which the full form is uncertain; possible explanations include: a) as a personal name constructed with שׁוֹעַ, so Noth Personennamen 38, 154; b) for II שׁוֹעַל; since there is no other fem. name constructed with שׁוֹעַ, and moreover in general fem. theophoric names are rare in the OT (see Stamm Frauennamen 337ff = Stamm Fschr. 133ff), the second suggestion (b) is to be taken in preference to the first (a); however even that may be uncertain.

—1. the daughter of חֶבֶר from the tribe of Asher 1C 7₃₂ (→ II חֶבֶר 2).

—2. cj. 1C 7₃₉ for עֶלְא, Sept. Ωλα prop. following vs. ³²שׁוֹעָא, so KBL; but that is completely uncertain; further suggestions are given in Rudolph Chr. 74; also → עֶלְא. †
