שׁוּף: 1) it should be noted that in general for the translation of this verb we follow Gesenius-Buhl Handw., Zorell Lexicon, and König Wb. 490a, in supposing that there is only one verbal root שׁוּף; so also von Soden UF 13 (1981) 160f (= Bibel und Alter Orient, BZAW 162 (1985) 200f); the same verb is used twice also in Sept. for Gn 3₁₅ τηρήσει, τηρήσεις :: KBL which takes the two forms as coming from separate verbs: I שׁוּף to bruise someone’s head Gn 3₁₅; and II שׁוּף to snap at, snatch (? a by-form of → שׁאַף), to snatch someone’s heel Gn 3₁₅; to snatch someone (with acc. of the person) Jb 9₁₇; d) identical or comparable verbs in other Semitic languages are attested in MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219), to rub, rub away; so also JArm. I שׁוּף; II to blow; Syr. šāp to stroke, spread; Mnd. ŠUPI to rub away, spread (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 455f); OSArb. (a cognate or homonymous root ?) šwp to look at, examine (Conti Rossini Chrest. 248b); Arb.: a) to polish, make shining; b) (with the opposite (?) meaning) to smear a camel with pitch; c) cf. 9468 שׁוּפָר

שׁוּפָר, שׁוּפָר: a primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 475s; see also Akk; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219) 6 times in IQM; JArm. שׁוּפָרָה; Akk. s/šapparu(m) a type of wild goat, a Sumerian loanword (AHw. 1027a); on this see also Landsberger Fauna 97: šanpar > šāpar, Heb. שׁוּפָר :: Landsberger JNES 24 (1965) 296⁴⁰: wild boar; more recently the sbst. has been defined by Salonen Jagd 260ff, but no longer with any reference to Heb.

שׁוֹפָר and with the Akk. sbst. transcribed as sapparu (or šapparu), see AHW. 1027a: something like a wild ram or goat; CAD S, 166a: a bovid. In the light of this no connection can be made between the Heb. and the Akk. sbst., and the origin of שׁוֹפָר must remain obscure. The precise definition of a word for a particular species of animal is often difficult (such difficulty is avoided by giving an imprecise definition of the word, as in AHW., see above) so any connection between the Akk. sbst. and שׁוֹפָר should not be discarded simply on the basis of that translation; there does seem to be a similar relationship between s/šapparu(m) and שׁוֹפָר as between → עֵתוֹד and its Akk. equivalent atūdu wild sheep (AHW. 88b; CAD A/2, 521); Ug. špr horn, so according to Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 108:9f: št[ilt ḥ]mr špr “drink wine from the horn, O goddess!”, on which see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin UF 7 (1975) 118: cstr. שׁוֹפָר, pl. שׁוֹפָרוֹת, cstr. שׁוֹפָרוֹת, sf. שׁוֹפָרוֹתֵיהֶם; horn, used as a wind instrument.

שׁוֹק: primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 452r; it should be noted in general that there is disagreement about the origin of the sbst. on whether a) the word is cognate with Akk. sūqu(m) street, or whether b) it has been borrowed from Akkadian (through Aramaic). On a see Landsberger in Fschr. W. Baumgartner 185; on b see Zimmern Fremdw. 43; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (quoting Akk. sūqāqu alley, and especially von Soden UF 13 (1981) 164 = BZAW 162 (1985) 204); also cf. 9474 שׁוֹר

I שׁוֹר: Akk. šurru(m) D-theme, to go down, bend down, lean over, bend in one particular direction (AHw. 1285; CAD Š/3, 356); for the relationship between the Akk. and the Heb. verbs see von Soden UF 13 (1981) 167 (= BZAW 162 (1985) 204), who adds the comment that it is quite uncertain whether there is an Akk. verb šāru (AHw. 1193a); on I שׁוֹר and II שׁוֹר see also Xella UF 14 (1982) 299, 302.

It is uncertain whether or not the root is attested in Ug.; there are three proposals to be considered: a) the root ḏr (= Heb. שׁוֹר), which may be preserved in the sbst. ḏrt, ḏhrt dream, vision (Gordon Textbook §19:735, 723; Aistleitner Wb. 2722, 2714; cf. Gibson *Myths*² 145a and Fisher Parallels 1: p. 182f no. 192: Ug. ḏr equivalent to שׁוֹר; b) šr (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 19:i:11), but the meaning of this word is disputed; suggestions include: α) to look, behold (equivalent to שׁוֹר), so Margalit UF 8 (1976) 171, and UF 16 (1985) 125; β) to sing (equivalent to שׁוֹר), so Dijkstra-de Moor UF 7 (1975) 197; c) leader (שׁוֹר), so Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes 442 and note n.

qal: impf. יִשֹּׁר, יִשֹּׁרֵי Jb 33₂₇ see below under 2, תִּשְׁוֹרֵי Song 4₈, אֲשֹׁר, sf. יִשְׁוֹרְנָה, יִשְׁוֹרְנֵי, תִּשְׁוֹרְנֵי, אֲשֹׁרְנֵי; impv. שֹׁר: to look at from a bent position (so KBL: “to regard bending”, taking the basic meaning from “Akk. šēru to bend (?)”; see also previously Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: to look at from a high position).

—1. instances where the text is certain: Nu 23₉ (parallel with רָאָה), 24₁₇ Jb 7₈ 17₁₅ (for וְתִקְוֹתֵי prop. e.g. וְטוֹבֹתַי), 20₉ (with מִקוֹמוֹ as sbj. and the fem. of a (predicative) vb., see Fohrer Hiob 325; cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §122 l), 24₁₅ 33₁₄ 34₂₉ (obj. אֵל vs. 23), 35₅ (parallel with נִבַּט hif. and רָאָה), 35₁₃ (sbj. שָׂרֵי), 35₁₄ (obj. שָׂרֵי vs. 13).

—2. instances where the text is uncertain, or alternatively the reading is disputed: a) Jr 5₂₆ for MT יִקְוֹשִׁים: יִקְוֹשִׁים prop.: α) יִשְׁרְכוּ (→ שָׂרַךְ); β) כְּשֹׁךְ prop. כְּשֹׁךְ → *שָׁךְ 4; γ) for יִשֹּׁר prop. יִשְׁוֹרוּ: יִשְׁוֹרוּ “they keep watch as though in the lair of the bird-catcher”, so Emerton in Cazelles Fschr. 125-133.

—b) Hos 13₇: MT אֲשֹׁר עַל-דֶּרֶךְ כְּנֹמֵר: suggested interpretations include: α) “I will lurk like a panther by the wayside”, so e.g. ZüB; TOB; also Wolff *Hos.*² 285, 294; β) “I will leap out like a panther at the wayside”, so Rudolph Hos. 235, 238 (שֹׁר as in Aram. שָׁר and Arb. III sāwara (from root swr) cf. Wehr-Cowan Dict. 441a: swr, III-form, to leap at someone, assault). I. Willi-Plein Vorformen der Schriftexegese innerhalb des AT's (BZAW 123 (1971) 223) suggests that either α or β may be chosen, but α is to be preferred; the cj. אֲשֹׁקֵד for אֲשֹׁר (BHS) is not necessary.

—c) Hos 14₉: MT וְאֲשֹׁרְנֵי “and I look after it (or him)”, so Wolff *Hos.*² 300, 302 and van der Woude in Cazelles Fschr. 484; similarly ZüB; TOB; NRSV: “and I look after it (margin: him) :: cj. וְאֲאֲשֹׁרְנֵי “and it brings happiness”, so Rudolph Hos. 247, 249; KBL; BHS; for further cj. see Wolff and Rudolph loc. cit.; cf. REB and NEB: I affirm it.

—d) Ps 17₁₁ for אֲשֹׁרֵינוּ “our steps”? prop. e.g. יִשְׁרֹנֵי “they waylay me” (ZüB); NRSV: they track me down; REB and NEB: they press me hard; see also BHS, and Kraus Ps. 272, where together with the rendering of Sept. and Pesh. the cj. of Lindblom ZAW 59 (1942/43) 9 is also mentioned: סָבְבוּנִי אֲשֹׁרֵמוֹ עִתָּה “now their steps have surrounded me”, cf. TOB “they are here on our heels; now they surround me” :: McKay ZAW 91 (1979) 237: “they come straight up to me; now they are all around me”.

—e) Jb 33₂₇ for יִשֹּׁר prop. יִשֹּׁר “he will sing in exultation” (ZüB); similarly TOB and Fohrer Hiob 455, cf. BHS; NRSV: that person sings to others :: REB: if he affirms before everyone; NEB: if he declares before all men.

—3. Song 4₈ is a particularly difficult instance of the word; the vb. in אֲמַנָּה תִּשְׁוֹרֵי מִרְאֵשׁ can be derived from I שֹׁר, or from II שֹׁר, so with Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and especially Zorell Lexicon 830: a) from I שֹׁר “to look”, as in König Wb. 491a; this is also suggested as a possibility by Pope Songs 474, and by Xella loc. cit. 300 (but see also below under b), who makes reference to Pope.

—b) “descend!, climb down!” (cf. II שֹׁר), which is followed by most of the modern commentators, see KBL; ZüB; TOB; Würthwein HbAT 18² (1969) 52; H. Ringgren ATD 16/2³ (1981) 272; and Xella loc. cit. 299; cf. also Gerleman Ru.-HL. 151: “go away!”; NRSV: depart!; REB and NEB: hurry down.

—c) according to the contextual evidence it would be possible to decide in favour of either verb, but both Sept. and Pesh. have a verb of motion (on which see Gerleman loc. cit.) which rather favours the second suggestion (b). Vulg. is exceptional in rendering תְּשׁוּרִי as coronaberis you will surround. †

Der. תְּשׁוּרָה ?

II שׁוּר: it is to be generally noted that a) the meaning of this verb suggests a connection with Akk. šurru(m) to go down, bend down (→ I שׁוּר); in fact the two suggested roots (I שׁוּר and II שׁוּר) may have developed in distinctive ways from one original root, with the meaning of the second remaining closer than the first to the meaning of the original root; and b) according to KBL (cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.) another cognate root is to be found in Arb. sāra(y) to make a journey, sbst. sayyārat; Palm. abs. šyr?, cstr. šyrt (see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 298; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1130: šyrh caravan); c) The Arabic etymology (b) is acceptable only for the sbst. *שְׁרוֹתַי Ezk 27₂₅, (participle fem. pl.), where according to Dalman Arbeit 6: 160 a better reading may be *שְׁרִוֹתַי (following the sg. in MHeb.; see also Zimmerli Ezechiel 633); however the verbal forms in Is 57₉ and Song 4₈ belong rather to the earlier suggestion (a).

qal: impf. תְּשׁוּרִי Song 4₈, וַתִּשְׁרִי Is 57₉; pt. pl. fem. sf. שְׁרוֹתֶיךָ Ezk 27₂₅ (see above under c): to climb down to, or to bend down towards, with לְ Is 57₉; for the translation of this last passage see Xella UF 14 (1982) 300; with מִן from, Song 4₈ (on which see I שׁוּר 3). †

Der. from the sense of the Arb. etymology (see above, b) *שְׁרָה, and also *שְׁרִה.

9476 שׁוּר

III *שׁוּר: Arb. tāra(w) with ‘alā (‘ly) to be opposed to someone, rise up against someone; see Kopf VT 9 (1959) 284; also Wehr-Cowan Dict. 109a, to be aroused, be excited.

Der. *שׁוּרָר, שְׁרָר, so according to Kopf loc. cit. (see further König Wb. 491b; but see also I שְׁרָר).

שׁוּר: primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 451m :: Labuschagne OTSt. (Pretoria 1971) 59f; an ancient cultural and migratory word, so Salonen Hipp. 78¹; for the different forms of the word in Indo-Germanic and the Semitic languages see Brown JSS 24 (1979) 159ff; cf. also VT 19 (1969) 164; for Semitic see further G. Bergsträsser Einführung 183; MHeb. שׁוּר, pl. שְׁוּרִים; JArm. תּוּר; SamP. šor; perhaps Ph. (cited in Plutarch Sulla as θῶρ, see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 325, sv. twr); OArm. šrh (used collectively) “cow” (Sefire, Donner-Röllig Inschriften 222 A: 23, Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 294; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1118 *šwr*₄ who mentions towards the bottom of the page that Blau, Israel Oriental Series 2: 571, understands the word as non-collective), equivalent to Tell Fekherye swr (see Abou Assaf La statue de Tell Fekherye p. 23 line 20, cf. p. 35); BArm. → תּוּר, also for the instances in the other Arm. dialects; Ug. tr (Gordon Textbook §19:2664 and 2738; Aistleitner Wb. 2932; Gibson *Myths*² 160b), cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 115, no. 45 alp parallel with tr; p. 381 no. 607 tr parallel with il, and il parallel with tr; p. 382 no. 608 tr parallel with gl; Akk. šūru(m) bull (AHw. 1287; CAD Š/3, 369b, šūru B); OSArb. twr bull (Conti Rossini Chrest. 259b; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 152), also appellative as the name of a deity, and n.m., on which see also Ryckmans Noms 1: 215b; Eth. sōr bull (Dillmann Lex. 384); Tigr. sōr ox; Tigrin. sōr a castrated billy goat (Littmann-H. Wb. 193a); Arb. taur bull, steer, also n.m., see Nöldeke Beiträge 83; τᾰῦρος (Boisacq Dict. étym. 945; Lokotsch Etym. Wb. 2048); taurus: sf. שׁוֹרָה, שׁוֹרָה, שׁוֹרוֹ, pl. שׁוֹרִים (R. Meyer Gramm. §23.4d; see 3e).

—1. the sbst. has different meanings: a) one single beast, bovid (unitary noun for בִּקְרָה; compare שֶׁה as a unitary noun corresponding to לְאִין) without defining age or sex (cf. βους, bos); so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon; and in particular Péter VT 25 (1975) 486-496, especially 492-496; :: b) Elliger Lev. 70: שׁוֹר indicates the male of the species without defining its age; KBL a mature male animal, bull; c) the first suggestion (a) is preferable to the second (b).

For שׁוֹר as a female beast see especially Lv 22²⁸ and also Péter loc. cit. 493; Ex 34¹⁹ Nu 18¹⁷ Dt 15¹⁹; cf. also OArm. swr “cow” (in the Tell Fekherye inscription, see above); according to Ex 22²⁹ Lv 22²⁷ 27²⁶ שׁוֹר is a young, first-born animal that has to be sacrificed on the eighth day. The sbst. has a general meaning which supersedes that of a mature, male animal in the following passages: Gn 32⁶ Ex 21²⁸⁻³⁷ 22^{3,9} 23⁴; see Péter loc. cit. 493. In the decalogue שׁוֹר can be taken to mean either a male or a female animal or both Ex 20¹⁷ Dt 5¹⁴⁻²¹ (cf. Ex 23¹²).

The meaning “bull” which is predominant in the cognate languages is evident in Ezk 1¹⁰ Ps 106²⁰ (see 3d), Hos 12¹² (see 3e), Jb 21¹⁰ and probably also in Gn 49⁶, and metaphorically in Dt 33¹⁷; there is some hesitation about whether שׁוֹר אֵלֶּיךָ זָנָה Jb 24³ should be translated as “the widow’s ox” (NRSV, REB), or as “the widow’s cow”.

—2. for the usage of the sbst. cf. KBL: a) part of the livestock constituting someone’s possessions Gn 32⁶ Ex 20¹⁷ 21²⁸⁻³⁷ 22^{3,8f,29} 23^{4,12} Dt 5¹⁴⁻²¹ 15¹⁹ (שׁוֹר :: לְאִין), 22¹⁻⁴ Jos 6²¹ 7²⁴ Ju 6⁴ 1S 12³ 15³ 22¹⁹ Is 1³ 7²⁵ 32²⁰; Jb 6⁵ Pr 14⁴.

—b) collocations: שׁוֹר רֶשֶׁה Ex 34¹⁹ Lv 22²³ Dt 17¹ cf. 1S 14³⁴; on which see J. Halbe Das Privilegrecht Yahwes Ex 34¹⁰⁻²⁶ (FRLANT 114 (1975) 177): this collocation does not normally specifically indicate “an ox and a sheep”, but, using the idiom of a part for the whole, an overall description of the animals in someone’s possession, both larger and smaller ones; for שׁוֹר אוֹ שֶׁה → שֶׁה, also for the sequence שׁוֹר, חֲמוֹר, שֶׁה and שׁוֹר, אֵיל, שֶׁה; see further שׁוֹר וְכֶשֶׁב וְעֵז Lv 7²³, שׁוֹר וְאֵיל Lv 9⁴.

—c) שׁוֹר used for ploughing Dt 22¹⁰, cf. Sir 25⁸, used for threshing Dt 25⁴.

—e) שׁוֹר as an animal to be sacrificed, on which see above under 1: Ex 22²⁹ Lv 4¹⁰ 9^{4,18f} 22^{27f} 27²⁶ Nu 7³ 15¹¹ 18¹⁷ Dt 15¹⁹ 17¹ 18³ 2S 6¹³ Ps 69³².

—3. Special and particular instances: a) שׁוֹר נִנְחָה an ox which is prone to gore Ex 21²⁹⁻³⁶, cf. Akk. alpum nakkāpūm (Code of Hammurabi §251; Goetze Laws of Eshnunna §54; see AHW. 722b and CAD N/1, 186a).

—b) שׁוֹר אֲבוּס a fattened ox Pr 15¹⁷.

—c) לֶחֶךְ הַשׁוֹר אֵת יֶרֶק הַשָּׂדֶה as cattle eat away the grass in a field Nu 22⁴, see Jenni Pi’el 146, 192f.

—d) פְּנֵי שׂוֹר the face of an ox Ezk 1₁₀, on which see Keel Visionen 239ff; תְּבִנִית שׂוֹר an image, a representation of an ox Ps 106₂₀ (referring to the golden calf).

—e) שְׂוָרִים oxen Hos 12₁₂, on which see Grimm ZAW 85 (1973) 339-347, especially 346: it seems to suppose that whereas the sacrificial oxen worthy of Yahweh were designated by the term פְּרִים, in the time of Hosea the word שְׂוָרִים designated sacrificial animals destined for Baal. For the translation “oxen” see e.g. Wolff *Hos.*² 267, and J. Jeremias ATD 24/1 (1983) 149; there is no need for the cj. שְׂרִים (following Sept. ἄρχοντες), or alternatively שְׂרִים (cf. BHS); on this see Grimm loc. cit. 340-342.

I שׂוֹר: probably a primary noun, Wagner Aram. 304a, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 452r; BLA 180 l; MHeb. שׂוֹר; SamP. šor, Samaritan; JArm. שׂוֹרָא; BArm. *שׂוֹר, also for instances in the rest of the Arm. dialects; Arb. sūr, Arm. loanword, cf. Fraenkel Fremdw. 237: wall around a well Gn 49₂₂, as a barrier between fields 2S 22₃₀ Ps 18₃₀, with I דָּלַג pi.: cj. Ps 92₁₂ for I בְּשׂוֹרָי prop. with Vrss. בְּשׂוֹרָי, → *שׂוֹרָי. †

Der. n.m. אֲבִישׂוֹר (Stamm Fschr. 67).

II *שׁוֹר: place name; the same as I; SamP. šor, Sept. Σοῦρ; locative שׁוֹרָה 1S 27⁸: בּוֹאֵךְ שׁוֹרָה מְעוֹלָם: ἀπὸ Γελαμψοῦρ τετειχισμένων, on which see Stoebe I. Sam. 474. Gn 16⁷ 20¹ 25¹⁸ 1S 15⁷ 27⁸. שׁוֹר מְדָבַר Ex 15²².

There are three possibilities for the meaning of the word: a) שׁוֹר designates the wall built to defend the eastern border of Egypt, so V. Fritz Israel in der Wüste (1970) 37, see further Simons OTSt 5 (1948) 99; KBL (with bibliography).

—b) שׁוֹר designates an area of territory, the name of which is taken from the wall referred to above (a), so Zorell Lexicon 831a with reference to Abel Géographie 1: 434.

—c) שׁוֹר designates a region in the north-eastern part of Egypt, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; see also e.g. Stoebe I. Sam. 285. But for phonological reasons the identification of the word with the Egyptian borderfort tr must be abandoned, on which see Fritz loc. cit. 38; the location of the place is uncertain, see Simons Geog. §684, and Abel loc. cit.; cf. Westermann Genesis 2: 291 (with bibliography). There is a suggestion (N. Naʿaman Tell Aviv 7 (1980) 100-105) of identifying it with Tell el-Farʿa (Tell Fara), and this is accepted by Keel-Küchler-Uehlingen Orte 2: 129.

—d) The third suggestion (c) is preferable to the first (a) because שׁוֹר is never used with the article, and this would suggest a proper name; but the second suggestion (b) is just as likely because of the expression שׁוֹר מְדָבַר Ex 15²², which would be the pastureland (or desert) located in that neighbourhood. †

*שׁוֹרָה: Wagner Aram. 304c, fem. from I שׁוֹר; the relationship of the masc. with the fem. form is not clear; perhaps the fem. is used in a diminutive sense, to mark the opposition wall :: little wall; cf. Michel Grundl. 1: 68; MHeb. שׁוֹרָה row, line, the same as JArm. שׁוֹרְתָא; Arb. sūrat line, series, layer: pl. sf. שׁוֹרְתָם: supporting wall for terraces Jb 24¹¹; KBL, cf. N. Peters Job 261: שׁוֹרְתֵי שׁוֹרָה designates the walls for the terraces of the vineyards; on this see Dalman Arbeit 4: 314, 320; ? cj. Jr 5¹⁰ for שׁוֹרְתֵיהֶּ prop. שׁוֹרְתֵיהֶּ, so e.g. KBL and Peters loc. cit. :: Rudolph *Jer*³ 38: שׁוֹרָה is a hapax legomenon, probably not meaning שׁוֹר wall, but the terrace of a vineyard; this cj. is not mentioned either in BHK or in BHS. †

*שׁוֹרֵר, שׁוֹרֵר < מְשׁוֹרֵר; so Zorell Lexicon 831a (participle poʿel, or alternatively poʿlel), cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §52s, 55c; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §17f. The participle may belong either a) to III *שׁוֹר, or b) to *שׁוֹרֵר; if the II-w root is preferred (a), then the Heb. sbst. (really a participle) would indicate someone who is opposed to someone else, or alternatively someone who rebels against someone else; the reduplicated root (b) could be taken to mean someone who criticises someone else, or alternatively treats him with animosity, hostility. It is uncertain whether there is any etymological relationship between Akk. šāru inimical, foe (which occurs in documents from El-Amarna, with a political and military connotation, see CAD Š/2, 132b) and the vb. šāru (see Knudtzon El-Amarna 2: 1518) to castigate, malign (?); see AHw. 1193a; CAD Š/2, 140a: a Western Semitic word with uncertain meaning; used twice as a parenthetical gloss for “to accuse”. According to Knudtzon loc. cit. the vb. would be denominative from the adj./sbst. šāru, but this is not mentioned by von Soden, see AHW. loc. cit.: pl. sf. שׁוֹרְרִי, שׁוֹרְרִי, שׁוֹרְרִי Ps 59₁₁.

שׁוֹשָׁא: 1C 18₁₆ Sept. Σουσα, ησους, σους, Josephus Σισάς (Schalit Namenwb. 114) equivalent to שׁוֹשָׁא 1K 4₃.

The meaning of שׁוֹשָׁא is uncertain, but possibilities include: a) n.m., of which the original form can no longer be reconstructed, so Noth Personennamen 40, and subsequently Rudolph Chr. 136; for attempts to recover the full form of this personal name see KBL; b) it may also be an Egyptian loanword denoting the (royal) scribe or secretary of state, on which → שׁוֹשָׁא. †

I שׁוֹשָׁן/שׁוֹשָׁן: Bauer-Leander Heb. 475s; MHeb. שׁוֹשָׁן, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219): 1QH 10:31 [כשׁוֹשָׁן/ה], see Lohse Texte 152; cf. Maier Texte 2: 104; JArm. שׁוֹשָׁן and שׁוֹשָׁן; Zimmern Lexicon 58 refers to Akk. šešanu, but this sbst. is not found in AHW. or CAD; instead they have šišnu, šišanu (AHW. 1250b; CAD Š/3, 126) a kind of rush, which occurs in a list of names of plants; Syr. šaušantā; CPArm. šwšn?, unitary noun šwšnt (Schulthess Lex. 204a); Nab. n.f. šwšnt (Cantineau Nab. 2: 149b); Neo-Syr. šušānā, šušantā (KBL); Arb. sausan/sūsan lily (Freytag Lexicon 2: 375b); Greek σοῦσον, on which see Masson Recherches 58f, who refers to Egyptian sšn (Erman-G. Wb. 3: 485). The Hebrew sbst. is also to be derived from the Egyptian word, which becomes in Coptic šošen, see Masson loc. cit., see further Ellenbogen Foreign Words 159; Lambdin Loan Words 154; Lokotsch Etym. Wb. no. 1958; Noth Könige 151. Against this suggestion is the attempt by J. Feliks in Reicke-Rost Hw. 1093 to derive the word from within Hebrew, but this is less likely. He maintains that the name comes from שׁוֹשׁ meaning six, because the flower of this plant has six sepals and six filaments: שׁוֹשָׁן 1K 7₂₂₋₂₆, fem. שׁוֹשָׁן, cstr. שׁוֹשָׁן, pl. שׁוֹשָׁן; the fem. sg. is a unitary noun and the masc. pl. a group-plural, on which see Michel Grundl. 1: 64f: שׁוֹשָׁן is a form of the collective singular without a suffix.

—1. lily, a flower of which there are many different types, see Löw Flora 2: 164-184; Dalman Arbeit 1/2: 357ff; Reicke-Rost Hw. loc. cit.; Moldenke Plants 41f, 114ff, 117f, 129. The instances in the OT suggest that the species most likely to be considered is Lilium candidum: Hos 14₆ Song 2_{1f-16} 4₅ 5₁₃ 6_{2f} 7₃ (Sir 50₈).

—2. a technical term meaning either “the flower of the lily” or “lotus blossom” (nymphaea lotus L.), see Moldenke loc. cit. 154f. The various types of lily belong to a different family from those of the lotus; the lily grows primarily in soil, while the lotus is by contrast a water-plant. According to Keel-Küchler-Uehlingen Orte 1: 85-88 the Heb. sbst., despite the rendering preferred in the Sept. κρίνον, is not to be translated as lily but rather as water-lily, lotus, and this applies to the instances in the Song of Songs as much as to 1K 7₁₉₋₂₂₋₂₆; see also Keel Deine Blicke sind Tauben. Zur Metaphorik des Hohen Liedes (SBS 114/115; 1984) 63ff; cf. also Pritchard Pictures 799, 800; and S. Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74), 55ff and 60. For the following instances water-lily or lotus is the only likely solution: a) מַעֲשֵׂה שׁוֹשַׁן 1K 7^{19,22} “lotus-design” (Noth Könige 141, 151: for the capitals of the pillars of the temple יָכִין and בָּעָז were in the shape of a water-lily, or alternatively of a lotus; b) פָּרַח שׁוֹשַׁן 1K 7²⁶, פָּרַח שׁוֹשַׁנָּה 2C 4⁵.

—3. in the titles of Psalms: a) עַל-שְׁנַיִם (ו) Ps 45¹ 69¹; b) עַל-שׁוֹשַׁן עֲדוּת 60¹; c) אֶל-שְׁנַיִם עֲדוּת (mss. לַעַל) 80¹; no certain meaning for this has yet been found, on which cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; suggestions include e.g.: α) Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 458 (with cj.); Kraus Ps. 26 (no. 21); cf. Zorell Lexicon 831b; König Wb. 492a: an instruction concerning the tune; β) Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 29-33: either flowers that were placed on or in front of the Ark (perhaps as a gift of allegiance), or, (if עֲדוּת means offering) “the lilies must have been offered as flowers which were to be used in some way to obtain a divine answer to a question that had been presented to a deity”; Mowinckel in Is. Wor. 2: 214 mentions only the second of these possibilities; γ) B.D. Eerdmans Hebr. Ps. 66f: in Ps 45¹ the title indicates that it was originally a love-song which was subsequently used with wider relevance; δ) Glaser ZS 8 (1932) 195 takes שְׁנַיִם (ו) etc. from Akk. šuššu “one-sixth”, and here it would mean “a six-stringed instrument”; on this see also Kraus loc. cit.; ε) compare further Preuss Die Psalmenüberschriften in Targum und Midrasch (ZAW 71; 1959) 44-54, especially 47. Deciding which of these suggestions is best must be left open, but the fourth one (δ) has least to support it. †

9489 שׁוֹתָלַח

שׁוֹתָלַח: n.m. > name of a tribe; SamP. šūtāla; Sept. Nu 26^{35f} Σουταλα, 1C 7^{20f} Σωθαλαῆ Σωθαλαε, Sept.^B vs. 20 Σωθαλαθ; the personal name has not been explained, see Noth Personennamen 258a: שׁוֹתָלַח: the son of Ephraim, but really probably an ancestor of a clan within that tribe Nu 26^{35f} 1C 7^{20f}; also 1Ch 7²⁵ → II רְשָׁף and תָּלַח; on 1C 7^{20f} cf. Rudolph Chr. 71. †

שזף: ? by-form of → שדף; MHeb. to burn, scorch, turn brown; Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL compare Arb. lāḥa(w) with the meanings (according to Gesenius-Buhl Handw.) to flash, and to appear suddenly; and also ʿilā(y) to turn the gaze towards someone; of the sun, to turn something brown, burn; see also Wehr-Cowan Dict. 882a: to appear, scorch, singe.

qal: pf. sf. שִׁזַּפְתוּ, שִׁזַּפְתָּנִי.

—1. of the eyes, to catch sight of Jb 20₉ 28₇.

—2. of the sun, to turn brown, tan the skin Song 1₆.

—3. it should be noted in general that the relationship between the two meanings can be explained as follows: a) from a basic meaning “to look at steadfastly” comes “to turn brown (by the sun)”, so e.g. Rudolph Rt.-HL.-Kl. 123; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (cf. Arb.); b) from a basic meaning of “to scorch” come meanings associated with eyes that stare intensely, “to flash” and “to spot”; so e.g. Peters Job 218; König Wb. 492a; c) it is hardly possible to decide which of these two suggestions is more likely, but if שזף really is a by-form of שדף the second (b) is perhaps preferable to the first (a). †

9500 שַׁחַט

II שַׁחַט, so following KBL and Zorell Lexicon :: Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 493a, who consider that there is only one vb. שַׁחַט; the instance of II שַׁחַט in Jr 9₇ dis-cussed below (2) has also been discussed in I שַׁחַט (3).

qal: pt. שָׁחַט, passive שָׁחַטָה.

—1. שָׁחַטָה pt. passive, 1K 10₁₆₋₁₇/2C 9₁₅₋₁₆, both as an attribute to צָנָה, or alternatively מְגֻנֵּי; Vrss.: Sept. ἐλατός (ἐλατά, -τούς, -τάς) “beaten (of metal)”; Vulg. 1K 10₁₆₋₁₇ de auro puro/probato, 2C 9₁₅₋₁₆ hastas aureas/scuta aurea; Pesh. 1K 10₁₆₋₁₇ ddahbā snīnā made of pure gold (Brockelmann Lex. 483a), 2C 9₁₅₋₁₆ ddahbā tābā made of fine gold.

Two possible explanations have been proposed: a) שָׁחַטָה meaning beaten, hammered out, so with Sept. e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; ZüB; TOB; Zorell Lexicon; König Wb. 493a; Snaith Verbs 245; Rudolph Chr. 222; and Gray *Kings*³ 265 with cj. pr. שָׁחַטָה prop. שָׁחַטָה beaten gold, literally “spread out” gold, → שַׁחַט (SamP. variant Nu 11₃₂, root שַׁחַט instead of MT root שַׁחַט); an explanation which accords with Sept. is also supported by the adj. נִשְׁחַט “finely woven” (to describe a woollen garment) Cowley Arm. Pap. 15:10; so also Leander Laut- und Formenlehre §21b, who with Lidzbarski Ephemeris 3: 80 sees in the Heb. pt. nif. a technical term from the language of the Phoenician traders; cf. also Fitzmyer in Albright Fschr. B 154f; in Grelot Documents 38 (p. 193) נִשְׁחַט appears to be “a garment with fringes”, on which see earlier Cowley Arm. Pap. 48.

—b) שָׁחַטָה alloy, what is amalgamated with another metal, so KBL, and subsequently Noth Könige. 201, 204, and (with noticeable reservation) Würthwein Kg. 1: 123f. As a basis for this Koehler refers to the Syr. vb. šahḥet in its meaning “to wound”, and to the sbst. šuhḥātā “destruction” (Brockelmann Lexicon 768b), cf. Nöldeke Syr. Gramm. §117.

—2. שִׁחַט (K) Jr 9^a a murderous arrow → I שחט 3: שִׁחַטָּה (Q) perhaps a whetted (sharpened) arrow, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 64 :: Iwry JAOS 81 (1961) 29: a blunted arrow, an arrow that has made a kill; the sbst. *שִׁחַטָּה, as reconstructed in KBL (p. 955) from שִׁחַטָּה, is accepted by Rudolph loc. cit. †

According to Gemayel Hygiène 20 the plague in Egypt, as mentioned in 2, was an outbreak of smallpox (see also KBL) but that remains uncertain; on Is 38₂₁ (under 1) see Wildberger Jes. 1448; on 3b שִׁחִין occurs in Jb 2₇ (in the prologue) and refers to a type of skin disease, one which is to be distinguished from the leprosy which afflicted Job for the greater part of his life (it is mentioned from Chapter 3 onwards); on this see Koehler Mensche 45, and Fohrer Hiob 101; see also Dhorme Job 16f: Jb 2₇ an inflammation of the skin and of parts of the flesh resulting in small blisters.

שִׁחִים Is 37₃₀, but instead in 2K 19₂₉ there is → סִחִישׁ; 1Q Is^a has שְׁעִים; Wildberger Jes. 1419 maintained that this second form of the sbst. was original because of Akk. suḥuššu “young date-palm” (AHW. 1055a; CAD S,

[שְׁחִיף Ezk 41₁₆: (→ שְׁחִיף) the word can be omitted, for both Bomberg as well as Leningrad have only שְׁחִיף; furthermore Zimmerli Ezechiel 1044 does not mention שְׁחִיף (despite Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); König Wb. 493a takes a different view, saying that שְׁחִיף Ezk 41₁₆ is a variant scribal reading, see above שְׁחִיף !]

—1. a primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 461m, see also Michel Grundl. 1:74 :: Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: sbst. from a vb. שָׁחַל, with reference to Nöldeke ZDMG 40 (1886) 725. There Noth cited the Arb. vb. saḥala which is used with many meanings (see Lane Lexicon 1319f; Freytag Lexicon 2: 292) including the braying of a donkey. Noth does not bring into the discussion the sbst. שָׁחַל, and maintains that a vb. שָׁחַל in Heb. is uncertain. Nevertheless the idea has been accepted by e.g. König Wb. 493b, where שָׁחַל is taken to mean “howler, bellower”.

—1. lion (on this translation see under 4a. b) Hos 5₁₄ 13 Pr 26₁₃ Jb 4₁₀ 10₁₆ 28₂; for Ps 91₃₃ see under 5.

—2. MHeb. and the cognate languages: MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219): 4Qp Hos^a: [כַּשְׁחַלָּה]; JArm. שְׁחִלָּה lion (Dalman Wb. 419b, so also Levy Wb. 4:532b); there is in Ug. the phrase šd šḥlmmt (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:v:19; 1, 6:ii:20) which, if it does include this same sbst., has to be considered; Aistleitner Wb. 2589: “the lion of Mametu” referring to Nergal; but this interpretation is completely uncertain, on which see Gordon Textbook §19: 2385 and 2396; Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes Ougaritiques 249¹ disagrees with Aistleitner; see also Aartun UF 17 (1986) 31: bšd šhl mmt “in the fields at the edge of the desert”.

—3. Vrss.: Sept. Hos 5₁₄ 13₇ ὤς πάλιθρηρ, Jb 4₁₀ λέαινα, Jb 10₁₆ 28₈ Pr 26₁₃ λέων; Vulg. without exception leaena; Pesh. ’aryā “lion” except for Jb 4₁₀: gūryā d’aryā “lion cub”, where it occurs in the same verse as אַרְיָה corresponding to ’aryā.

—4. although there is some dispute about the proper translation the Vrss. exclude the rendering “lizard”, as Mowinckel in G.R. Driver Fschr. 95-103. The main question is the meaning of שְׁחַל; a) it may mean simply “lion” (so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; König Wb. 493b, and especially Rudolph Hos. 125);

—b) or it may mean “lion cub, young lion” (so Koehler ZDPV 62 (1939) 121, and KBL, and subsequently e.g. Wolff *Hos.*² 147).

The Vrss., except for Pesh. at Jb 4₁₀ gūryā d’aryā, (see above 3), support the first suggestion (a), as do the instances where שְׁחַל is used in parallel with another word for lion or a similar term; see especially Jb 28₈ בְּנֵי שְׁחַץ “proud animals” (→ שְׁחַץ), a phrase used in parallel with שְׁחַל, and probably also Hos 5₁₄ שְׁחַל in parallel with כַּפִּיר; on this see Rudolph Hos. 125.

There is support for the second suggestion (b) from Arb. sahlal in its meaning “the offspring, young of a lion”, which is cited by Koehler ZDPV 62 (1939) 121 from Lisān, but he does not repeat it in KBL, preferring there to cite a different Arb. subst. hisl “the offspring, young, of a lizard”; this seems “to throw very little light on the problem”, according to Kopf VT 8 (1958) 207.

Kopf himself wonders whether some reference should perhaps be made to Arb. sahl “lamb”; even with a change in meaning it could still mean a young animal. A crucial reference for the evidence from Heb. is Jb 4₁₀ where אַרְיָה is parallel to שְׁחַל; according to Wolff *Hos.*² 147 Hos 5₁₄ (see above a) could be similarly crucial. But whether Hos 13₇, where נִמֵּר is parallel to שְׁחַל, should be translated as lion or lizard must probably remain an open question (cf. NRSV: like a lion; REB and NEB: like a panther).

—c) while there is more evidence to support the first translation lion (a) than the second lizard (b), deciding between them is not easy.

—5. Ps 91₁₃ עַל-שְׁחַל וּפְתָן תִּדְרֹךְ “you will stride over lions and vipers”, so ZüB, similarly Kraus Ps. 802, TOB :: Vrss. pr. שְׁחַל: Sept. ἐπ’ ἀσπίδα; Vulg. super aspidem; Pesh. ’al gārsē (gārsā = Latin aspis); subsequently cj. pr. שְׁחַל prop. with Vrss. זֶחַל “reptile”, so Duhm *Ps.*² 346, cf. BHS; but MT as “the more difficult reading” is to be retained.

—6. expressions: with עַל דְּרֹךְ Ps 91₁₃; with הָיָה (כְּמוֹ שְׁחַל) Hos 13₇; with (עַל) I עֲדָה Jb 28₈; with צִוַּר (כְּשְׁחַל) Jb 10₁₆. †

Levy Wb. 4: 215b: צְפוּרָן 3 a type of spice, onycha (unguis odoratus, “devil’s claw”, “smoked claw”, “sea-nail”), the tip of a type of spiral shell (Latin strombus, wing-shell) which has a strong smell when it is burned, on which see also Dillmann Ex.-Lev. 361.

—b) MHeb. שְׁחָלִים, שְׁחָלִיִּים (Jastrow Dict. 1584, Dalman Wb. 419b); JArm. pl. det. תְּחָלִי (Dalman Wb. loc. cit. 441a; Löw Flora 1: 507; in Palestine the Aramaising form שְׁחָלִיא (pl.) has displaced the true Arm. form תְּחָלִי garden cress; cf. Dalman Arbeit 2:295f = Syr. tahlā (Brockelmann Lex. 820b); OArm. šhlyn “weeds, cress” or similar (Sefire, Donner-Röllig Inschriften 222 A: 36; Dupont-Sommer Sfiré 52f; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 295; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1121), cf. Degen Gramm. §31.3 (p. 50), and WdO 4 (1967) 58; Akk. šeḫlātum foodstuff (AHw. 1209a; CAD Š/2, 264a: a Western Semitic word), on which see von Soden UF 13 (1981) 164 (= BZAW 162 (1985) 204): an Old Canaanite word which has been identified with שְׁחָלִית (see a), but that is questionable.

—c) Ug. šhlt (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 4, 14: 4, 16); see Gordon Textbook §19:2397; Aistleitner Wb. 2590; Fisher Parallels 1: p. 447, no. 115; cf. Caquot-Masson Semitica 27 (1977) 14. The sbst. is listed together with the names of edible vegetables or other usable products, which suggests that it is associated with the second rather than the first of the words discussed above; this has already been noted, see especially Aistleitner Wb., and Fisher Parallels loc. cit. But the question must also be raised of whether the two meanings are really both parts of the same word (see Degen WdO 4 (1967) 58⁴⁸).

*שָׁחַן: MHeb. שָׁחַן to provide warmth, pi. to heat; JArm. שָׁחִין, שָׁחִין to become warm, give off heat, pa. causative; Ug. šhn (Gordon Textbook §19:2403; Aistleitner Wb. 2596; Gibson *Myths*² 158b): a) to be (become) warm, see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 161: 18, cf. Dietrich-Loretz UF 15 (1983) 24; b) to be (become) hot, feverish, see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 12:ii:38, cf. Kapelrud Ugaritica 6 (1969) 327; Akk. šaḫānu(m) to become warm, warm oneself up (AHw. 1128b; CAD Š/1 78a); Syr. šhen to warm oneself up, be made warm; CPArm. šhn* to warm oneself up; Mnd. ŠHN to be (become) hot (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 451a); Eth. sihina and saḫana to be warm, warm oneself up (Dillmann Lex. 367); Tigr. saḫana to warm oneself, smoke, to take a steam-bath (Littmann-H. Wb. 151f); Arb. saḫana/saḫuna/saḫina to be (become) hot or warm, warm oneself up, have a fever.

*שָׁחַף: MHeb. pt. passive שָׁחַף (but mss. read nif. נִשְׁחַף): 1) to be weakened; 2) to be impotent; pi. to suffer from consumption, have a wasting disease (Dalman Wb. 420a). These forms are probably derived from the sbst. → שָׁחַפָּת. The original meaning of the root is probably preserved in JArm. שָׁחַף to fade, flow, creep etc., see Levy Wb. 4:534b, Dalman Wb. 420a, corresponding to Mnd. ŠHP I to flow (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 451a). But thereafter the meaning of the vb. is based on that of the sbst., which according to its nominal pattern can (but not must) be taken as a primary noun. Seybold Gebet 34 suggests for the original meaning of שָׁחַפָּת “she who creeps”.

General remarks: a) in BibHeb. and Syr. the word could primarily be taken as a verb, but the use of hif/af. in the cognate languages rather support the idea of a denominative vb., → שָׁחֹר; on this cf. Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §19d; Syr. šhar could also be denominative, cf. Jenni Pi'el 265; see also von Soden Gramm. §50d and 73e).

III שִׁחַר: (? = II). General remarks: the pt. qal *שִׁחַר (see below 1) is probably to be de-ri-ved directly from the root šhr/šhr. Perhaps like Arb. sāḥir (see below) it has been borrowed from Akk. sāḥiru. The pi. (see 2a) can likewise probably be taken as a verbal construction from šhr with the resultative meaning “to cause to disappear by magic”, cf. Jenni Pi'el 126f. But it is also possible to take the pi. as denominative from the sbst. III *שִׁחַר: Akk. saḥāru(m) (AHw. 1005b, sub 4; CAD S, 37, see especially p. 46, sv. 3d) to encircle (particularly in the context of magic or sorcery), bewitch, and the substantivised pt. sāḥiru(m) “someone who turns around”, a sorcerer (AHw. 1009b; CAD S, 60, sāḥiru A); fem. sāḥertu(m) a sorceress (AHw. 1008b; CAD loc. cit.); Arb. saḥara to bewitch, enchant, fascinate; sāḥir sorcerer, enchanter, magician, charmer (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 400a); Zimmern Fremdw. 67 maintains that sāḥir is a loanword from Akk. sāḥiru; on the Arb. vb. see also Lane Lexicon 1316a: to turn someone (or something) away from his (its) course or manner of being, deceive, delude, beguile, circumvent, outwit.

—1. cj. qal pt. pl. sf.: pr. סַחְרִיָּם prop. שִׁחְרִיָּם your sorcerers Is 47¹⁵ (→ סַחַר 2: סַחַר) :: Martin-Achard in Fohrer Fschr. 87: MT “your traders”, cf. TOB: “those who exploit you”, see also Martin-Achard loc. cit., note t.

—2. שִׁחַרְהָ Is 47¹¹: לֹא תִדְעֵי שִׁחַרְהָ; the meaning is disputed, but there are two possibilities (on which see especially Duhm *Jes.*⁴ 358): a) שִׁחַרְהָ < שִׁחַרְהָ (cf. Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2:§23c) inf. pi. from III שִׁחַר “to cause to disappear by magic” (obj. רָעָה): “you do not know how to make it disappear”, cf. Tg. (with BHS): lā tidd'in Imib'e ālah “you do not understand how to pray against it”.

—b) שִׁחַרְהָ: sbst. → II *שִׁחַר: with sf., magic against it, or alternatively magic which is effective against the evil; on both suggestions (a and b) see also Wildberger Jes. 343 (with bibliography); the first alternative is to be preferred to the second, particularly because of the interpretation of שִׁחַרְהָ in Tg., as well as because of the parallelism (vs. 11b) with כִּפְרָה, which is unambiguously a pi. inf. with sf. (→ I כִּפַּר pi. 1c) “to cover up evil, avert disaster”. † šhr as a divine name occurs as 1) the first element in the name of the twin gods šhr w šlm (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 23:52, 53; 1, 100:51f; it occurs also as 2) a personal name.

I שָׁחַר: primary noun, see Bauer-Leander Heb. 456k :: Labuschagne OTSt. (Pretoria 1971) 56: < šafel from I שָׁחַר: MHeb. שָׁחַר, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 219): 1QH 4, 6 כַּשְׁחַר “like the dawn”; SamP. šār, Samaritan שָׁחַר det. Gn 32²⁵; JArm. שָׁחַרְא; Moabite שָׁחַרְת daybreak (Mesha. 15); see Donner-Röllig Inschriften 181:15; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 295; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1122: dawn; Ug. šhr (Gordon Textbook §19:2399; Aistleitner Wb. 2592; Gibson *Myths*² 158b) daybreak, an appellative name and a divine name; for the appellative see the instances in Gordon Textbook and in Aistleitner Wb.; see further Fisher Parallels 1: p. 349 no. 538: šhr parallel with qdm.

—a) with reference to the twin gods: šhr and šlm are not used simply to mean natural phenomena but also the deities controlling them; on this see Stolz Strukturen und Figuren in Kult von Jerusalem 182ff, especially 183; the deities šhr and šlm could also be embodied as stars, specifically the morning and the evening star, see Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 80f; Haussig Wb. Myth. 1: 306f, 525f; for šhr as the morning star in particular see Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes Ougaritiques 358, where there is reference to the expression in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 100: 51f ʿm šhr w šlm šmmh “to Šahar and Šalim in Heaven” (Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 157).

—b) with reference the personal name: cf. il šhr “Šahar is (my) God” (Gröndahl Personennamen 95, 192, 370); Akk. šē/irtu(m), šēru(m) morning, morning star (AHw. 1218b and 1219a; CAD Š/1, 322, šērtu A, and 331a, šēru A; on this see also von Soden UF 13 (1981) 164 (= BZAW 162 (1985) 208); OSArb. divine name Sahar “daybreak” (Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 253, 271f, 317; cf. Conti Rossini Chrest. 194); Punic divine name in the personal names ʿbdšhr = ? ʿbdšh, šhrbʿl (Benz Names 163; 180; cf. 415); Neo-Punic šhrbʿl (Jongeling Names 206); Arb. saḥar the time before daybreak, early morning (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 400a); cf. Lane Lexicon 1317a: the time of the departure of the night and the coming of the day.

For שָׁחַר meaning the reddish glow which precedes the dawn, daybreak in a wider sense, so KBL, see also Koehler ZAW 44 (1926) 56-59, where the rendering of the sbst. in the Vrss. is also discussed (see p. 58) :: Rudolph Jl.-Am.-Ob.-Jon. 51: שָׁחַר is not daybreak as such but “the first light of the morning”, which actually marks the beginning of every day, in contrast to “daybreak” (Dalman Arbeit 1: 601); see also Hertzberg KAT 17/4-5 206: שָׁחַר is the very first sign of brightness preceding the break of day (cf. the Samaritan translation עֲשָׂשָׁה Gn 32²⁵).

The traditional translation of the word as “dawn” (with any necessary qualifiers) can be maintained; alternatively perhaps the more correct “greyness of the morning” or “morning twilight” may be preferable. For שָׁחַר in the latter meaning see THAT 2: 990-992 (with bibliography and further examples of the use of the sbst.).

—2. expressions: a) with verbs: with בקע nif. to break Is 58₈; with III רמה nif. Hos 10₁₅; with ידע pi. to make the dawn informed Jb 38₁₂ (rd. with Q הַשְׁחַר הַיְדַעַתְּ (יְדַעַתְּ הַשְׁחַר)); with II עור hif. (obj. שָׁחַר) Ps 57₉ 108₃; with עָלָה Gn 19₁₅ 32₂₅₋₂₇ Jos 6₁₅ Ju 19₂₅ 1S 9₂₆ Jon 4₇ Neh 4₁₅; with עָשָׂה (עֵיפָה) Am 4₁₃ (sbj. יְהוָה); with פָּרַשׁ (פָּרַשׁ) Jl 2₂; with שָׁקַף nif. —b) with adj.: נָכוֹן (כְּשִׁחַר נְנֻכּוֹן) as sure as there will be morning Hos 6₃, → כּוֹן nif. 2a.

—c) with subst.: α) הַיְלָל בְּנִי-שָׁחַר Is 14₁₂, on which see Wildberger Jes. 551f (with bibliography); Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem (BZAW 118 (1970) 210f); Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 80f; β) כְּנַפְי־שָׁחַר Ps 139₉; γ) שָׁחַר עֲפַעְפִּי Jb 3₉ 41₁₀ → עֲפַעְפִּים 1 and 2.

—3. in the titles of the Psalms: Ps 22₁ הַשְׁחַר הַיְלָל עַל-אֵילָת: a) the Vrss. differ: Sept. (for Symmachus see BHS) ὑπὲρ τῆς ἀντιλήψεως τῆς ἑωθινης: ἀντίληψις = ? אֵילָת help, succour (cf. vs. 20); Vulg. iuxta Hebr. victori pro cervo matutino canticum; Vulg. iuxta Sept. in finem pro adsumptione matutina psalmus meaning “for raising up in the morning”; missing in Pesh.; Tg. “as a song of praise for the efficacy of the regular morning sacrifice”, so Preuss ZAW 71 (1959) 52; the same rendering is adopted by TOB (אֵילָת) as in Sept., corresponding to אֵילָת; another rendering of the Tg. is given in Delekat ZAW 76 (1964) 297, but in any case he takes אֵילָת as meaning אֵילָת.

—b) the original meaning of the Heb. wording has evidently been lost, and there are corresponding variations in more recent interpretations, of which a selection are noted here.

—α) MT: according (to the melody known as) “hind of the dawn”; so REB; also e.g. Gunkel Ps. 88; Kraus Ps. 26; TOB; similarly NRSV: “deer of the dawn”; also Zorell Lexicon 835a; König Wb. 494b.

—β) cj.

—i. Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 458: ‘al ‘ēlāfīt “according to the woman of Elat”, fem. gentilic from Elat on the Red Sea, and probably also used to designate a particular melody, or alternatively the style of the performance; what is meant by šhr is obscure.

—ii. Eerdmans OTSt. 1 (1942) 117, and 4 (1947) 65f: “concerning the help of the morning” (אֵילָת fem. of אֵיל); the Psalm would have been recited as a defence against nightmares and evil spirits.

—iii. Delekat ZAW 76 (1964) 296f for אֵילָת following vs. 20 also accepts *אֵילוֹת, or alternatively אֵילוֹת, which he understands together with שָׁחַר to mean morning breezes (the strength of the morning); the Psalm was to be sung in such conditions.

—iv. Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4:26-29 linked Ps 22 with an atonement ceremony in which an animal is presented as an offering for sin; it is the animal which is designated by אֵילָת, which he changes to āyil “ewe, female sheep” as a hypothetical fem. from I אֵיל ram; for him the title means that Ps 22 was recited “over the female sheep that is offered at the first light of day”. In Is. Wor. 2:214 he retrospectively modifies this slightly, when he suggests that עַל-אַיִלַת הַשָּׁחַר alludes to an animal that was presented for sacrifice in the early morning.

—c) it is hardly possible to de-cide which of the treatments or suggestions is the best, but of those mentioned special consideration should be given to “hind of the morning” (bα) because of its closeness to the MT. Among the cj. that of Eerdmans (ii) is to be given prior consideration to the others, which by contrast have gone too far away from the MT.

—4. for bibliographical references for pos-sible instances of שָׁחַר as the name of a deity in the OT see KBL; and see further Jirku ZAW 65 (1953) 85: a) שָׁחַר may have been the name of a deity in the Eastern Jordan (and the Early Israelite) place name הַשָּׁחַר צָרַת Jos 13₁₉, although the meaning of the first element of the name is not clear.

—b) שָׁחַר is a theophoric element in the personal name → אַחִישָׁחַר 1C 7₁₀ “Shahar is my brother”, or (less probably) “brother of Shahar”, and in → שָׁחַרְיָה 1C 8₂₆ “Yahweh is Shahar”. Both personal names are late, and as such traditional or artificially constructed, and in any case to be understood in some sort of figurative way; on this see Noth Personennamen 169. As such they are different in their inner meaning from the ancient Ugaritic personal name il šhr (see above, introductory paragraph, b). On the other hand it may perhaps be an example of scholarly revival of archaic ideas.

—c) traces of the earlier deity שָׁחַר can probably be found in בְּנֵי-שָׁחַר הַיָּלִל Is 14₁₂, כְּנִפֵי-שָׁחַר Ps 139₉, and עַפְעָפֵי שָׁחַר Jb 3₉, 41₁₀, on which see Wildberger Jes. 551. The characteristics of a divine being are particularly evident in Is 14₁₂, whereas in Ps 139₉ and in Jb 3₉, 41₁₀ the expressions can be understood more as poetic diction. †

The original meaning is unknown, but there are two suggested possibilities: a) from I שְׁחָר, literally black-ness, meaning black hair; b) from I שְׁחָר the prime of youth (KBL), cf. Arb. šahr early youth, the first stage of youth (Lane Lexicon 1515c; Freytag Lexicon 2:401a). Despite their different explanations regarding content both suggestions (a and b) come to the same conclusion, “that the word must be an indication of youth”, so Zimmerli *Pred.*³ 238³. †

שְׁחָרִים: n.m., Sept. Σααρημ; this transcription argues against the cj. that in place of the MT it would be much better to rd. אֲחִירָם (cf. BHS; see also Rudolph Chr. 76). In contrast to → צְהָרִים the dual ending is to be regarded as genuine and original, as also in → הָעֶרְבִים (with בֵּין); so the personal name would then mean “both dawns” (→ I שְׁחָר), which would refer to the time between the first appearance of light and the first shining ray of the dawn, cf. Ju 19_{25f}; if this is correct the name could be connected with the time when the one who was given this name was born; so also KBL: born at the time of שְׁחָר; cf. also Noth Personennamen 223⁵: a Benjaminite, whose clan settled in Moab 1C 8₈. †

שַׁחַת: according to Wächter ZAW 83 (1971) 384f and Labuschagne OTSt. (Pretoria 1971) 56 שַׁחַת was originally a šafel formation from → שַׁחַת, but this is completely uncertain. —4. אֲלֵ-תִשְׁחַת as the title of several Psalms, Ps 57₁ 58₁ 59₁ 75₁, but as yet no certain meaning has been given. The Vrss. (Sept. Vulg. Tg.) translate literally as “do not destroy!” (on Sept. and Vulg. see for the details Baethgen Ps. XI and on Tg. see Preuss ZAW 71 (1959) 52); the meaning of the Hebrew wording had probably already been lost in the Vrss., and what we are left with are assumptions: a) following MT: α) אֲלֵ-תִשְׁחַת indicates the “opening words of a song, an incipit which would serve as an example for the musical accompaniment”, so Baethgen loc. cit.; cf. Kraus Ps. 26; β) Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 46-49 proposed that תִּשְׁחַת should be connected with the expression עַל-תִּשְׁחִיתָהּ of Is 65₈, which is assumed to have been a well-known ancient ritual to do with the juice of the grape; as this particular psalm was being recited someone would have been handling the grapes “which in turn may have been a symbol of the community”; this idea is repeated in essence in Mowinckel Is. Wor. 2: 214f; γ) the title is linked with the Psalm itself and appears to be a prayer that the king and the people should be spared, so Zorell Lexicon 836a; δ) אֲלֵ-תִשְׁחַת with the meaning “you should not shorten!”; this would refer to the text of the whole Psalm which has to be recited, so Eerdmans OTSt. 4 (1947) 67f.

—b) possible cj.: Gunkel-Begriff Einl. Ps. 457: pr. אֶל-תַּחֲשַׁת prop. עַל תַּחֲשַׁת “according to tahšit”, which would have been a particular melody or a style of presentation; the name was derived from the Aramaic tribal name תַּחֲשַׁת Gn 22₂₄, “in the style of the Tahash”.

—c) a reconsideration of all these proposals suggests that probably the cj. (b) is to be disregarded, and of those following the MT, the first of them (α) deserves to be given prime consideration.

—5. pt. → מְשַׁחֵת (SamP. māšīt, pl. māšittam): a) adj. and, which then becomes a sbst. אַרְיֵה מְשַׁחֵת a ravening lion Jr 2₃₀; מְשַׁחֵת גּוֹיִם a destroyer of nations Jr 4₇; מְשַׁחֵת רִיחַ the spirit of a destroyer (so NRSV margin; but in main text: destructive wind; REB and NEB similarly) Jr 51₁; מְשַׁחֵת הַמַּלְאָךְ הַמְּרַחֵחַ the angel bringing destruction 2S 24_{16b} 1C 21_{15b}, corresponding to הַמַּלְאָךְ 2S 24_{16a}, and corresponding to מַלְאָךְ הָאֱלֹהִים (with textual emendation, see BHS) 1C 21_{15a}; הַמְּשַׁחֵת the destroyer, destroying angel Ex 12₂₃, on which see Keel ZAW 84 (1972) 422-427, especially 426, and THAT 2: 893; on מְשַׁחֵת 1C 21₁₂ see above 1b.

—b) מְשַׁחֵת (substantivising participle → מְשַׁחֵת 2 (HAL 609a, HALOT 644b): α) ruin, destruction: מְשַׁחֵת לִים נִגְף plague which brings destruction Ex 12₁₃; מְשַׁחֵת חֲרָשֵׁי those metal-smiths who cast destruction Ezk 21₃₆ (→ חֲרָשׁ); לֹ מְשַׁחֵת for his own destruction 2C 22₄; β) disfigurement of the face Da 10₈, so THAT 2: 894, cf. ZüB; NRSV: my complexion grew deathly pale; REB and NEB: I became a sorry figure of a man :: Plöger Daniel 144: disaster after disaster.

—c) הַמְּשַׁחֵת “the destroyer” 1S 13₁₇ 14₁₅, מְשַׁחֵתִים “destroyer” Jr 22₇: military terminology to describe a special group of Israelite (or foreign) soldiers, but with no more exact description than that; on this see e.g. KBL and THAT 2: 892.

—1. ruined (of a well) Pr 25₂₆ (SamP. Lv 22₂₅ pl. or sbst. māšāttam (< מְשַׁחֵתִים)).

—2. Mal 1₁₄ referring to a cherished animal which is to be presented as a sacrifice; the meaning of this second occurrence of the adj. is not completely certain; according to the Vrss. it refers to an animal which is weak or sickly: Sept. διεφθαρμένον; Vulg. debile; Pesh. dakrīh “one which is ill, debilitated”; that is why more recent translations give “harmed” (ZüB), or “poor quality” (Rudolph Hg.-Zch.-Mal. 258), or damaged (TOB and Vuilleumier Zch. 9-14 227; REB and NEB); NRSV: blemished. Considering the prohibition of Lv 22_{24f}, where it is stated that an animal with crushed testicles is not to be sacrificed, rendering the word as “castrated” would also be possible; so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (with a question mark); König Wb. 495a; cf. also Zorell Lexicon 836a; however this notion is not suggested by any of the Vrss. †

*שָׁטַר: a vb. from < Akk. šatāru to write (AHw. 1203b šatāru II; CAD Š/2, 225a), occurring in the official title שָׁטַר (שׁוֹטְרִים), which is the only occurrence of this verb in Heb.; see Zimmern Fremdw. 29; Ellenbogen Words 161; cf. also the Akk. sbst. šatāru exemplar, inscription (AHw. 1203b šatāru I; CAD Š/2, 221b); Samaritan אַשְׁטַר document, writing (Ben Hayyim Midr. 281a); MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 220): שׁוֹטְרִים officials, see Maier Texte 2: 122 on 1QM 7:1; the loanword is derived from a) the Akk. vb. šatāru(m) (see above) to write, write on, write to, write down; also to list personnel (AHw. 1204a; CAD Š/2, 234-235, sv. 3a); JArm. EmpArm., Pun. see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 295, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1123: štr₁ (but without any reference to EmpArm.; OSArb. štr Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 315; Arb. šatara to write.

—b) sbst. Akk. šatāru writing, document (AHw. 1203b; CAD Š/2, 221); > JArm. שָׁטַר and שָׁטְרָא (Dalman Wb. 421a); EgArm. štr, pl. emph. štry’ (Cowley Arm. Pap. 312a); Syr. štārā and ʿeštārā (Brockelmann Lex. 773a); Nab. štr, emph. štr’ (Cantineau Nab. 2: 149b); Palm. sg. cstr. štr (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 295; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1124 štr₂: the document concerning the lease). The meaning always follows that of the Akk. word; for the occurrences in all languages see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 295f, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1124.

שֹׁטְרִי, K: n.m. (a few mss. Q, Sept.^B, Tg. שְׁרֵטִי), Vulg. Setrai: a shortened form plus the ending -ai, see Noth Personennamen 38, 49; there is no corresponding full form of the name attested, which makes the explanation of the meaning of the name difficult; for Q see Noth Personennamen 258b (no. 1327), who makes some suggestions from Arb.: tirfiyatun “sluggish, small”, or suratun “gluttonous”; it would perhaps also be possible to understand the K as hypocoristic, “little bureaucrat, petty official”: a herdsman in the time of David 1C 27₂₉. †

שִׁי: cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 449f; etymology uncertain, but perhaps from I שִׁי, on which see bibliography in KBL and Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 296, which is supplemented in Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1125; KBL still quotes Arb. šai thing, matter, something; OArm. שִׁי (Zenzjirli, Panammu, see Donner-Röllig Inschriften 214: 18). The meaning is uncertain, cf. Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 296; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1125: gift, donation; see Donner-Röllig Inschriften 2: (p. 220): it is not certain whether to link שִׁי with Heb. “gift, tribute”. Gibson Syrian Semitic 2: 66-67, 73 associates the OArm. sbst. with Heb. שִׁי, supposing that שִׁי corresponds to [šay/e]; Ug. ty (according to Sivan UF 14 (1982) 211, originally tayū*); Gordon Textbook §19:2666: tribute, present; Aistleitner Wb. 2857: votive gift, suggested because the sbst. in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 2, 13:14 and 30:13 is linked with the vb. ndr, on which see also Hoftijzer in W. Baumgartner Fschr. 130, but that is not noted in the translation of Aistleitner Wb. 2857; see also Aartun Partikeln 1:3; Soq. še to give (Leslau Lexique Soqotri 53): שִׁי: gift, present (for יְהוּה, or alternatively for אֱלֹהִים) Is 18₇, with I יבל hof., Ps 68₃₀ 76₁₂ with יבל hif. †

שִׁיָּא: n.m. 2S 20₂₅ K, Q → שִׁיָּא 4a. †

שִׁיאָן: place name in Issachar Jos 19₁₉, Sept.^B Σιωνα, Sept.^A Σιαν; there is no certain location for this place: a) according to Simons Geog. §330(5) it is perhaps to be identified with ‘Ayun eš-Še‘ain, 4 km east of Nazareth; b) according to Abel Géogr. Pal. 2:464 perhaps it is to be identified with ‘Ayun eš-Še‘ain or Ša‘in, 3 km north-west of Dabūriya; against the first suggestion (a) see Albright ZAW 44 (1926) 228f, but his arguments are not convincing; on this cf. Noth Jos. 116f and Bibl. Land. 1: 261: in Jos 19_{18b-21} only Jezreel and Shunem are located with any certainty. It may be that both suggestions (a and b) refer to the same place. †

I שִׁיבָה* (Bauer-Leander Heb. 452q: cf. especially *קִיבָה sbst. from קוּם); MHeb. שִׁיבָה returning, coming back (Levy Wb. 4: 544b; Dalman Wb. 421b); OArm. (Sefire) šbyt turning, restoration (on this see under שְׁבוּת, שְׁבִית): cstr. שִׁיבַת: restoration Ps 126₁, with שִׁיב in a transitive usage, on which → שׁוּב qal, sv. 6: שִׁיבָה יְהוּה אֶת-שִׁיבַת צִיּוֹן “when Yahweh restores Zion”, see Beyerlin Ps. 126, 41f. and 71). The unusual sbst. שְׁבִית/שְׁבוּת occurs in vs. 4 but because of OArm. šbyt שְׁבִיַּת in vs. 1 is not to be regarded as a textual error and changed to accord with vs. 4 (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.), on which see Beyerlin loc. cit. 41f. †

9546 שְׁבִיָּה

II *שְׁבִיָּה: יֵשֵׁב (Bauer-Leander Heb. 382c, see below) 2S 19₃₃: sf. שְׁבִיָּתוֹ. No explanation of this form is certain, but possibilities include:

—a) cj. pr. שְׁבִיָּתוֹ prop. with mss. and Vrss. שְׁבִיָּתוֹ see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; BHS.

—b) *שְׁבִיָּה (probably a confusion of roots between יֵשֵׁב and שׁוּב, similarly in SamP. (Ben Hayyim Lit. Or. 5: 163 §2.15.3), or a by-form of the more usual שְׁבִיָּת, cf. דָּעָה Ex 24 together with דָּעַת and לָרָה 2K 19₃ = Is 37₃ Jr 13₂₁ Hos 9₁₁ (Bauer-Leander Heb. 382c on יָדַע; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §26c).

—c) *שְׁבִיָּה may have been shortened from יְשִׁיבָה residence, so König Wb. 496a.

—d) of these possibilities the last (c) falls out of consideration for the sbst. *יְשִׁיבָה is not attested; similarly for the second (b) the corresponding form with י is not attested; without that, the preferred suggestion is clearly the first (a), possibly with the meaning dwelling or staying. †

9547 שִׁיָּה

שִׁיָּה: qal: impf. תִּשִּׂי: textual corruption Dt 32₁₈; SamP. תִּשָּׂא = tiššā; possibly from the root נִשָּׂה, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 423-424; on the absence of gemination cf. Ben Hayyim Lit. Or. 5: 108 § 2.5.13; cj. תִּשָּׂא or better תִּשָּׂה → I נִשָּׂה qal (HAL 688a; HALOT 729a). †

qal: pf. שָׁחָה; impf. תִּשְׁחַח Lam 2₂₀, Q תִּשְׁחַח → שָׁחַח qal b: to melt away (sbj. נִפְּשׂ) Ps 44₂₆, with לְעֶפְרָה into dust; Lam 3₂₀ (וְתִשְׁחַח עָלַי נַפְשִׁי). †

hitpal: impf. תִּשְׁתַּחֲחַח, תִּשְׁתַּחֲחִי: to appear to have dissolved away, be dissolved (sbj. נִפְּשׂ) Ps 42_{6f-12} 43₅. †

—c) for the geographical identification see e.g. Alt ZAW 57 (1939) 147f (: Koehler ZAW 54 (1936) 289-291); Noth *Jos.*² 70. 75; Rudolph *Jer.*³ 18; Wildberger Jes. 872; Saebø ZDPV 90 (1974) 30f; Wüst Untersuchungen 1: 33ff; Simons Geog. §181; see further Ward VT 24 (1974) 341: α) ש'מן “one of the eastern branches of the Nile or one of the lakes in the eastern delta” (Rudolph loc. cit. 18), as in Jos 13₃ (see Noth loc. cit. 70), and 1C 13₅; β) abs., as a part for the whole, the Nile as a whole Jr 2₁₈ (מי ש'ן parallel with מי נהר), and Is 23₃ (מי ש'ן parallel with מי נהר); but on this see also Wüst loc. cit.: Egyptian records never use š-hr (see above) to indicate the whole extent of the Nile but only a specified area of water. †

שיט K, Q שוט Is 28₁₅, → I שוט ca.

שיט: I שוט, Bauer-Leander Heb. 458v; hapax legomenon Is 33₂₁: oar, in the collocation שיט-אני rowing-craft (for an illustration of such boats with their oars see Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*² 276, 279, especially 277b; Reicke-

שִׁילָה, Q שִׁילוֹ, 39 mss. and SamP.^{MSS} שִׁלָּה, SamP. šilā: a particular word, the meaning of which is still disputed, which is used in the clause עַד-כִּי יָבֵא שִׁילָה Gn 49₁₀; for relevant bibliography see especially Westermann Gen. 3: 244f, and Müller VT 14 (1964) 276-81; apart from the lexicons (Gesenius-B.; KBL; Zorell Wb.) cf. also e.g. Holzinger in Kautzsch AT⁴ 93; Dillmann *Genesis*⁶ 462ff; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1794.

There are three possible explanations which predominate the discussion: a) with Vrss. rd. שִׁלָּה corresponding to שִׁלוֹ “until the one comes to whom it (the sceptre) belongs”; see Sept.^{RA} τὰ ἀποκειμένα αὐτῶ; Sept.^{MSS} ὃ ἀπόκειται; Vetus Latina (Cod. Lugdun.) qui reposita sunt; Pesh. man dđilēh hī “the one to whom it (authority) belongs”; Tg. Onq. ‘ad dyētē mšihā dđilēh hī malkūtā “until the Messiah comes to whom the kingdom belongs”; so e.g. Holzinger Genesis 258; Zorell Lexicon 838a; Müller loc. cit. 278, and 277², where further adherents of this view are mentioned. Compare with Tg. Onq. also the Qumran text 4Q Patr. 3f (Lohse Qumran 246, 247): שִׁילָה עַד בּוֹא מְשִׁיחַ הַצְּדִק צִמָּח “until the one anointed with righteousness comes, the scion (offshoot) of David”, on which see also Maier Texte 2: 164.

—b) שִׁילָה a place name; “until he comes to Shiloh”, where “he” refers either α) to David, or β) to the tribe of Judah; on α) see e.g. Lindblom VTSupp. 1 (1953) 78-87; Lindblom Prophecy 77f; Otto Mazzot 363, and ThZ 32 (1976) 70f; cf. also Noth Ges. Stud. 2:135; Emerton in Winton Thomas Fschr. 83-88 (but see also cβ); on β) see Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3:417ff, and Zobel Stammespruch und Geschichte (BZAW 95 (1965) 75f.

—c) of the many cj. that have been proposed only the following are now to be considered: α) מְשִׁלָּה his ruler, so e.g. Gressmann Messias 221 with note 3; von Rad *Gen.*⁹ 345; Westermann Gen. 3: 248; β) כִּי יִבָּא שִׁי לוֹ “until tribute is brought to him”, so Moran Biblica 39 (1958) 405ff; Emerton in Winton Thomas Fschr. 83-88 (see above, βα) has also considered this as a possibility; cf. also Speiser Gen. 365f: שִׁלוֹ (יִבָּל) “until tribute will be brought to him”; γ) שִׁילָה could be a caritative form of a masculine name used here instead of שִׁלְמָה, so Caquot Sem. 26 (1976) 27f; δ) Seebass ZAW 96 (1984) 346 has constructed a Heb. sbst. derived from Egyptian šr prince, reading it as šīara < Egyptian šyr(w) šyalô* with the meaning “prince”, which he adduces as the original form.

—d) it is hard to reach a certain decision between all the various possibilities noted above, but because of the Vrss. the first (a) is perhaps to be preferred to the other two. † שִׁילוֹ: place name, Sept. Σηλω, Σηλων, Σηλωμ; Josephus Σιλωθς (Schalit Namenwb. 112): Shiloh; written in Hebrew as: a) שִׁילוֹ Ju 21₂₁ Jr 7₁₂; b) שִׁלוֹ Ju 21₁₉ 1S 1₂₄ 3₂₁ Jr 7₁₄ 14₃ 26₉ 41₅ Ps 78₆₀; c) שִׁלָּה Jos 18₁ 8-10 19₅₁ 21₂ 22₉₋₁₂ Ju 21₁₂ 1S 1₃₋₉ 2₁₄ 3₂₁ 4_{3f-12} 1K 2₂₇ 14₂₋₄ Jr 26₆ (→ תִּאֲנַת שִׁלָּה Jos 16₆); cj. Ju 18₃₁ pr. בְּשִׁלָּה prop. בְּלִישָׁה or בְּשִׁלָּה (BHS), cf. Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru. 242; see also TOB note, ad loc.; שִׁילוֹ and similar to be identified with Khirbet Sēlūn, 22 km south of Shechem; Abel Géog. 2: 462f; Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*² 307f; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1794f; Ute (Wagner-) Lux ZDPV 90 (1974) 194 (with bibliography); in Hebrew the original form of this name would probably have been Šilōn, see Borée Ortsnamen 66f, and subsequently Galling *Bibl. Der., or primary sbst., שִׁירָה, שִׁיר.

—I. usually derived from שִׁיר (Bauer-Leander Heb. 452q) :: Nöldeke Beitr. 43, who suggests that the vb. is derived from the sbst., see above שִׁיר; on שִׁיר “singing, song” :: שִׁירָה as the corresponding unitary noun, see Michel Grundl. 1: 65.

—II. MHeb. שִׁיר; SamP. Gn 31₂₇ pl. šārəm; JArm. שִׁירָה song; Ug. šīru Ugaritica 5 (1968) 352b, corresponding to mšr song, singing, mšr mšr a song of songs; on this see (with instances) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin UF 7 (1975) 105f; cf. Aistleitner Wb. 2682; Akk. šēru(m) song (AHw. 1219b; CAD Š/2, 335a, šēru

B); CPArm. *šyr, pl. šyryn songs of praise (hymns, see Schulthess Lex. 205b): sg. sf. שִׁירָה, שִׁירוֹ, שִׁירֵי Ps 42₉; pl. שִׁירֵי(ם), sf. שִׁירֵיךָ, שִׁירֵיךְ, שִׁירֵיכֶם, שִׁירֵיכֶם, (for bibliography → שִׁיר).

—1. worldly, secular songs: שִׁירִים sung on an inappropriate occasion, such as לְבִרְקָעֵךְ עַל to someone whose heart is discontented Pr 25₂₀; sung when drinking wine Is 24₉; the song of זֹנָה the prostitute Is 23₁₆; the songs of שְׁלֹמֹה 1K 5₁₂; the song of הַבֹּרָה Ju 5₁₂, on which see Michel Grundl. 1:65: הַבְּרִי־שִׁיר “give a song”; singing in Tyre Ezk 26₁₃; שִׁיר כְּסִילִים Qoh 7₅ the song of fools (Zimmerli *Pred.*³ 1:199) or the singing of jesters (Hertzberg Pred. 136); jubilant singing in a wedding procession Gn 31₂₇; שִׁיר יְדִידָתַי a love-song Ps 45₁, or a song of female friends, see Wildberger Jes. 167; שִׁיר הַשִּׁירִים the most beautiful song Song 1₁.

—2. ceremonial-religious songs: α) for a festival in the cult (without being more closely defined) Is 30₂₉ Am 5₂₃ 8₁₀; β) for the consecration of the temple Ps 30₁, cf. 2C 29₂₈, see Rudolph Chr. 297; for the official opening of the wall in the time of Nehemiah Neh 12₂₇; on the sabbath (לְיוֹם הַשַּׁבָּת) Ps 92₁.

—βα) שִׁיר 1C 6₁₇, שִׁירִים 1C 13₈; שִׁיר Ps 69₃₁ (parallel with תוֹדָה), שִׁיר 2C 23₁₈ (parallel with שְׂמֵחָה), שִׁיר תְּהִלָּה a song of praise Neh 12₄₆; β) שִׁיר חֲזָשׁ Is 42₁₀ Ps 33₃ 40₄ 96₁ 98₁ 144₉ 149₁, on Is 42₁₀ see Elliger Di. Jes. 1: 248; on Ps 40₄ and 96₁ see Kraus Ps. 461, 835f; see further THAT 2: 897.

—c) שִׁיר יהוה Ps 137₄ 2C 29₂₇, שִׁיר לַיהוָה 1C 25₇, שִׁיר בֵּית יְהוָה 1C 6₁₆, cf. שִׁיר בֵּית יְהוָה Ps 137₃, cf. שִׁיר הַיָּהוּ Is 26₁ see Wildberger Jes. 977.

—d) שִׁיר (הַ) כְּלֵי מוֹסָף musical instruments, KBL: with instruments accompanying the singing Am 6₅ (textual uncertainty), Neh 12₃₆ 1C 16₄₂ 2C 7₆ 23₁₃ 34₁₂, singing listed with other instruments 1C 15₁₆ 2C 5₁₃.

—3. שִׁיר in the titles of the Psalms: a) שִׁיר and מְזֻמָּר; both terms are usually so closely linked that either one or the other can come first; α) מְזֻמָּר שִׁיר Ps 30₁ 65₁ 67₁ 68₁ 75₁ 76₁ 87₁ 92₁; β) שִׁיר מְזֻמָּר Ps 48₁ 66₁ 83₁ 88₁ 108₁; γ) שִׁיר occurs only in Ps 46₁; “no particular difference between שִׁיר and מְזֻמָּר can be recognised”, so Kraus Jes. 14f; similarly THAT 2: 897 :: Delekat ZAW 76 (1964) 280-297, who suggests that מְזֻמָּר is an artistically composed song performed with instrumental accompaniment, whereas שִׁיר would originally have been the words of a song recited without any instrumental accompaniment; but against this see THAT 2: 897. The most likely assumption, according to Kraus Ps. 15, would be that “שִׁיר was originally and predominantly used to designate the vocal performance of a Psalm with cantillation, whereas מְזֻמָּר primarily indicated a song performed with instrumental accompaniment”.

For bibliography see further Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 2f, and Is. Wor. 2: 207f.

—b) שִׁיר הַמַּעֲלֹת Ps 120₁ 122₁nd.134:1, שִׁיר לְמַ' Ps 121₁ (→ מַעֲלָה 1b); Sept. ὠδὴ τῶν ἀναβαθμῶν “song of ascents” = Vulg. canticum graduum; Theodotion ᾠδὴ τῶν ἀναβάσεων; Aquila, Symmachus ᾠδὴ εἰς τὰς ἀναβάσεις meaning ascents; missing from Pesh.; for Tg. see Preuss ZAW 71 (1959) 48: the Tg. always has “a song which is said to be about rising up from the deep (תְּהוֹמָא)”.

As can be seen the exact meaning is uncertain, but for other suggestions and possibilities see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. under מַעֲלָה 4 (p. 446), and Kraus Ps. 17. Since an important idea associated with the vb. עָלָה is “to pull up” as a technical term for drawing up the Ark in ceremonial procession and journeys (→ עלה qal 2c), an appropriate translation of שיר המעלה would be “pilgrimage song”, or alternatively “processional song”; so e.g. Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 3f, and Isr. Worship 2: 208f; Kraus loc. cit.; THAT 2: 897.

—4. particular expressions: a) Ps 28⁷ וּבְשִׁירֵי and with my song, so Kraus Ps. 371; so also Duhm Ps. 117: out of my song “as though it were offered from the substance of a sacrifice of praise (תּוֹדָה)” :: cj. pr. MT prop. וּבְשִׁירֵי, so Gelston VT 25 (1975) 214-216.

—b) Ps 42⁹ שִׁירָה his song, meaning a song that is worthy of Yahweh, or alternatively of his mercy (חַסְדּוֹ); on this see TOB and Tournay RB 79 (1972) 39-43 :: cj. e.g. Kraus Ps. 472: אֲשִׁירָה I will sing.

—c) Ps 137³ שִׁיר דְּבָרֵי the words of a song, with שְׂאֵל.

—d) Ps 124⁴ בָּנוֹת הַשִּׁיר the daughters of song, with שָׁחַח; no certain explanation of the meaning of this expression has been given, but suggestions include: α) sounds, so Hertzberg Pred. 205, 212; β) voices (KBL); γ) singing, so Zimmerli *Pred.*³ 1:238; δ) female singers, so Galling *Koh.*² 120.

—e) in Sir 40²¹ and 47⁹ שִׁיר can perhaps be rendered with “music”, or alternatively with “instrumental music”; so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. following Smend; that is also possible for Sir 50¹⁸ קוּלוֹ הַשִּׁיר “and the singing resounded”, in the light of 2C 29²⁸ (see above 2α); even so Smend translates as singers, following Sept. ψαλμοδοί.

Der. *שָׁכַח.

? II שָׁכַח: < Ug. tkh where there are three instances: a) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:i:4, 30f; b) Texte 1, 11: 1, 2; c) Texte 1, 24:4; attempted interpretations include Gordon Textbook §19:2673: for a and also for c, to shine (referring to the host of heaven); for b, to be passionate; Aistleitner Wb. 2863: for all three instances, to find, meet; Gibson *Myths*² 160a: for a and also for c, to burn strongly; for b, to be hot (sexually).

For these and further suggestions see Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 406, and Caquot-Szzyner-Herdner Textes Ougaritiques 239^f; for this whole collection of citations, “to be hot, burn, be burned” is a meaning that can perhaps be accepted; and from this could have also been derived the meanings “to wilt, wither”, on which see especially Pope JSS 11 (1960) 240, who proposes the sequence “to be hot, sticky passionate, wither (before heat)”. For this last meaning what fits especially well is the first mentioned passage (a) ttkh ttrp šmm the heavens wilt and languish; cf. e.g. Gray *Legacy*² 30³; see also Albright Fschr. B 195f. Dahood Ps. 3:271 proceeds to adopt the meanings “to wilt, wither” also as suggestions for Ps 31₁₃ 59₁₂ 77₁₀ 102₅ 137_{5b}; of these Ps 137_{5b} is the most illuminating, because the word is set in opposition to I שָׁכַח (see qal 1aβ) in vs. a, “if I forget you, Jerusalem, my right hand will wither”. It is also possible that it occurs in Ps 102₅ (→ I שָׁכַח qal 1b): “I am too wilted (too limp) to eat”. But for the other references the suggested derivation from II שָׁכַח is not so close; on Ps 31₁₃ see already above I שָׁכַח sv. nif. b.

General remarks:

—a) Roberts VT 25 (1975) 797-801 rejects the meaning “to wilt, wither” both for Ug. tkh and also for II שָׁכַח. According to him the Ug. vb. in the passages mentioned above (paragraph 1) means “to bow down, sink low”, and the same meaning can be accepted for Ps 137_{5b} and 102₅. The first instance can be explained as an expression for the weakening of the hands (→ רָפָה with יָדַי); and for the second passage he proposes a translation “I had been knocked down so much that I could not eat my food”. According to Dick in VT 29 (1979) 216-221, especially 218, a more appropriate rendering of the vb. would be “to bow down, sink low”, and this should also be taken into consideration for הִנְשַׁכְּתִים Jb 28_{4b}.

—b) In retrospect it seems that the only reasonably convincing example of II שָׁכַח which has to be taken into account is Ps 137_{5b}; all other instances are to be derived from I שָׁכַח. This leaves the outstanding question of whether perhaps the older course should be followed for Ps 137_{5b} and a cj. adopted; on this see BHS, following Sept., prop. תִּשְׁכַּח; alternatively תִּכְשַׁח, תִּכְשַׁח (→ כָּשַׁח cj.) with e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; see also KBL; in that case we can dispense altogether with II שָׁכַח.

שָׂכַם: only hif. (no instance of qal :: SamP. always qal except Gn 19₂) and as such is probably a denominative vb. from → I שָׂכַם, with the original sense of “to load up the animals in the morning”, so e.g. de Vaux Inst. 1:30 = Lebensord. 1:36; Bauer-Leander Heb. 294c; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lexicon; König Wb. 499b; also Delcor VT 25 (1975) 309f (:: von Soden UF 13 (1981) 161f = Bibel und alter Orient BZAW 162 (1985) 201f): הַשְּׂכָמִים is not a denominative from שָׂכַם, but much more likely a replacement for an unattested *שָׂכַם. bqqr < הַבְּקִיר*. The base word for הַשְּׂכָמִים is perhaps a putative *שָׂכַם.

But the traditional view is to be preferred to this new derivation, on which see especially KBL: to load on to the backs of beasts in the early morning > to do something early > to do something eagerly; MHeb. שָׂכַם hif. to do something early (Dalman Wb. 423b); DSS Dam. 10:19 inf. לְמַשְׂכִּים to do something on the next day (Kuhn Konkordanz 220); Ug. tkm to place on the shoulders (Gordon Textbook §19:2675; Aistleitner Wb. 2866; Gibson *Myths*² 160a): pgt tkmt my/mym (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 19:ii:1, 6 and 1, 19:iv:28, 36f); Eth. sakama to place on the shoulders (Dillmann Lex. 378); šh škum to break open at night (Leslau Contributions 53): OSArb. tkmtn the first year of an eponymous official, the commencement of his official duties (Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 315).

—1. to do early; the earliness of the action is often emphasised by adding an adverbial expression such as בְּבֹקֶר, e.g. Gn 19₂₇ 20₈ 21₁₄ 22₃ Jos 3₁ 6₁₂ Ju 6₂₈ 2K 19₃₅ Is 37₃₆ etc.; less commonly מִמּוֹחֶרֶת on the following day, Ex 32₆ Ju 6₃₈ 1S 5_{3f}, similarly מִזְחָר Ju 19₉; see also הַשְּׂחָר פְּעֵלוֹת Jos 6₁₅, בְּבֹקֶר הַשְּׂמֹשׁ Ju 9₃₃, but a particular indication of time is not always given, so Gn 19₂ Jos 8₁₄ Ju 7₁.

—a) to get up early (separating such instances from b (see below) is not always certain): α) pt. מְשַׂכֵּימִי קוּם Ps 127₂ = מְשַׂכֵּימִי בְּבֹקֶר Is 5₁₁; β) finite vb. Ju 6₂₈ 1S 5_{3f} 9₂₆ 2K 6₁₅ 19₃₅ Is 37₃₆; see especially בְּבֹקֶר מְשַׂכֵּימִי Ju 19₅, cf. vs. 8 בְּבֹקֶר וַיִּשְׂכַּם לְלֶכֶת and 1S 29₁₁, see b).

—b) to start out early: הָ אֶל-הַמָּקוֹם הָ לְדַרְכּוֹ Gn 19₂₇; הָ לְדַרְכּוֹ Ju 19₉; בְּבֹקֶר הָ לְקַרְאֵת 1S 15₁₂; בְּבֹקֶר הָ לְקַרְאֵת 1S 29₁₀ 2K 3₂₂; בְּבֹקֶר הָ לְלֶכֶת 1S 29₁₁; הָ לְפָרְמִים to go into the vineyard early Song 7₁₃; מְשַׂכֵּימִי הַלֵּךְ dew that disappears in the morning Hos 6₄ 13₃.

—c) וַיִּשְׁכֶּם, or alternatively וַיִּשְׁכִּימוּ, is often linked with a second vb. using a consecutive imperfect, as in: וַיִּשְׁכֶּם בְּבֹקֶר וַיִּקְרָא Gn 20₈, וַיִּשְׁכֶּם בְּבֹקֶר וַיַּחֲבֹשׁ Gn 22₃; see further Gn 21₁₄ 26₃₁ (pl.), 28₁₈ 32₁ etc.; also with a consecutive perfect Gn 19₂ Ju 9₃₃, or impv. Ex 8₁₆ 9₁₃. In these passages it cannot be decided with certainty whether וַיִּשְׁכֶּם should be understood as an independent vb. or as an auxiliary vb. (it is often understood thus in ZüB); Gn 20₈ could be taken to mean either that Abimelech rose (set out) early in the morning and called all his servants (as NRSV; REB; NEB), or that he called them in the early morning; and in Gn 22₃ “Abraham rose (set out) early in the morning and saddled his donkey” (as NRSV; NEB), or “Abraham saddled his donkey in the early morning” (as REB); on this see also Pope Job 8.

—d) used adverbially בַּבֹּקֶר הַשְּׁכִימִים rising in the early morning Pr 27₁₄, cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §113k; וְהָעֶרֶב הַשְּׁכִימִים the Philistine (Goliath) took up his position “early and late”, or “again and again, in the morning and in the evening” 1S 17₁₆; for this second translation see Stoebe I. Sam. 321; see also Solá-Solé L’infinitif 88: 6.

—2. to do early, meaning to do again and again, do eagerly: a) הִשְׁכִּימוּ הַשְּׁחִיתוֹ they practised their wickedness with even more eagerness, they were the more eager to make all their deeds corrupt (NRSV) Zeph 3₇; on the fact that the two verses are not formally connected see Brockelmann Heb. Gr. 2:§6f; this is in contrast to renderings with a past tense, such as Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 285: they have perpetrated destructive acts in the early morning.

Priebatsch UF 9 (1977) 253: it has the accent on the ultimate syllable as in Amorite, and there is elision of the vowel in the penultimate syllable (cf. Ybús, Snír, mšád); Sept. III שָׁכָם: = II שָׁכָם; place name (the name of a town) > the name of a person; SamP. aškəm; Sept. Συχεμ; Heb. inscr. Diringer Iscrizioni 354; OSArb. → I שָׁכָם; the use of the name of the town as a personal name is anticipated by the collocation עִיר שְׁשִׁכָמָה Gn 33₁₈, see von Rad *Gen.*⁹ 269: Gn 34₂₋₂₆ (11 times), מִי־שָׁכָם Ju 9₂₈; the precise meaning of this question is not absolutely clear, but two possible suggestions have been made: a) with MT, “what is Shechem?”, so Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru. 201; on מִי in a neuter sense cf Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §37a; Meyer Gramm. §31.2a; HAL 545a; HALOT 575b, line 2f; b) with Sept. insert בְּנֵי־שָׁכָם: בְּנֵי־שָׁכָם “who is the son of Shechem?”. †

שָׁכָם: n.m. = II שָׁכָם, place name (the name of a town) > name of a person; SamP. aškəm Nu 26₃₁; Sept. Συχεμ; the meaning of the difference in vocalisation between forms I and II (but → שָׁכָם as a pausal form under I שָׁכָם) is not clear, but even so it does not have to be changed to שָׁכָם with KBL.

A. שָׁכָם in genealogical lists.

—1. a son of Gilead, grandson of Machir, great-grandson of Manasseh Nu 26₃₁, cj. pr. לְשָׁכָם rd. וְשָׁכָם with Sept.

—2. son of Manasseh Jos 17₂.

—3. son of Shemida (שְׁמִידָע) 1C 7₁₉, who is himself a son of Gilead according to Nu 26₃₂; so also from 1C 7₁₉ (textual emendation following Nu 26₃₀₋₃₂, BHS) שָׁכָם appears first to have been a son of Gilead, and then a son of Shemida; on this see Rudolph Chr. 70.

B. The meaning of the name.

In the first two instances mentioned above (under 1 and 2) what is meant by שָׁכָם is the town of Shechem (II שָׁכָם). It reflects the fact that “Shechem was accepted in association with the tribe of Manasseh into the status of one of the clans of Manasseh” (Noth *Gesch. Isr.*² 135); see also Alt Kl. Schr. 1:127f. From a literary point of view the words which were attached to Gilead in the first instance (1) could be supplementary; on this see Noth Nu. 174, 180. This would have been based historically on the settlement of clans be-longing to Machir (Manasseh) in Gilead (see Noth *Gesch. Isr.*² 61f). Shemida may have been such a clan, and it is described as con-nected with Gilead (in the third occurrence above), and with Manasseh (Jos 17₂). There is therefore a possibility of raising the question of whether שָׁכָם is to be identified here with II שָׁכָם, about which there is still considerable uncertainty. †

9597 שָׁכַן

שָׁכַן: šaʿel from כּוֹן, so e.g. Brockelmann *Vergl. Because of Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:ii:50f and iv:29f (of locusts settling on a field), and because of Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 4:vii:14 (of establishing justice), the vb. has the meaning “to settle, occupy” (Fisher Parallels 1: p. 65 no. 51) and also “to establish justice” (cf. Schmidt ZAW 75 (1963) 91⁵; also Pardee UF 7 (1975) 370); so these meanings now have to be added to the root; Akk. šakānu(m) G-theme: to set in place, set out, put at someone’s disposal; S-theme: to cause to be placed, cause to be present, have a camp set up, make to dwell; N-theme: to be placed etc. (AHw. 1134-1139; CAD S/1, 116); not a well attested root in Eth. sakana (Dillmann Lex. 381); Tigr. to settle, dwell sakna (Littmann-H. Wb. 191f); Arb. sakana dwell, inhabit.

On the relationship of שָׁכַן with יָשַׁב, see Merendino Deut. 12-26 393: שָׁכַן does not have such a strongly defined local significance as in יָשַׁב, which has the meaning of to dwell in a precise, clearly demarcated area, and so to be in a fixed position, or to sit.

B. Bibliography: THAT 2: 921f offers a long list of studies, all of which need not be repeated here; those that need to be mentioned include Pedersen Isr. 1-2: 311-335; von Rad TWNT 2: 400-405; Gross Die Idee des ewigen und allgemeinen Weltfriedens; W. Eisenbeis Die Wurzel šlm in AT; Westermann Der Frieden (shalom) im AT (= Westermann Ges. St. 2) 196-229; H.H. Schmid Frieden ohne Illusionen; H.H. Schmid šalôm “Frieden” im Alten Orient und im AT; Steck Friedensvorstellungen; Gerleman Die Wurzel šlm (ZAW 85; 1973) 1-14; the article שְׁלֹם šlm in THAT 2: 915-935 was also written by Gerleman; Kraus Ps. (BK 15/3) 100.

C. General remarks:

—a) according to Bauer-Leander Heb. 469e שְׁלֹם should be taken as a “primary substantive”; this view is taken up by Eisenbeis who says that שְׁלֹם is to be regarded as a base-word without any derivation. However there can be no doubt that the Heb. sbst., as also for example the sbst. in Akk. (see AHW. 1145b), is derived from the verb, which according to the usual opinions would mean something like to remain intact and to be in good health (KBL 979b; similarly Akk. šalāmu(m) to be (become) in good condition, be intact, be in good health, stay well, be successful (AHw. 1143b; CAD Š/1, 208b).

Accordingly the basic meaning of שְׁלֹם is often taken to be completeness, intactness, see e.g. Eisenbeis loc. cit. 12; see further Westermann loc. cit. 200 who says that the primary meaning of the word can be characterised as the healthiness, or the completeness, or the intactness of a community; cf. also the quotation from Pedersen Isr. 1-2 in THAT 2: 922.

—b) against this the meaning of the verb (in the qal) is described by Gerleman as to have satisfaction and to be contented, with the meaning of the sbst. as satisfaction and sufficiency. There are many interesting aspects to this interpretation that he has suggested, but even so it should not be accepted. Furthermore it makes the semantic field of the vb. and of the sbst. deviate too much from that of the closely comparable Akk. words.

—c) in what follows we are inclined to support the first suggestion above (a), and to recall a relevant sentence from von Rad from TWNT 2: 400 (which in general is followed by KBL): seeing that שְׁלֹם is a general idea with an extremely wide circle of associated meanings in almost all its occurrences, it has something of an enigmatic character.

—d) for gaining a clear understanding of the idea of the word שְׁלֹם the Sept. is fundamental; there (with only a few exceptions) it is rendered with the word εἰρήνη, on which see TWNT 2: 405, 407, and Schmitt ZAW 86 (1974) 140; “from this the other translations are excluded” (see H.H. Schmid Frieden ohne Illusionen 19; cf. also Vulg. pax).

—3. greeting formula, cf. Akk. lū šalmāta may you be well (Salonen Die Gruss- und Höflichkeitsformeln in babylonisch-assyrischen Briefen, StOr. 38 (1967) 31ff); also lū šulmu ana muhḫika health to you!, as well as similar formulaic expressions (see Salonen loc. cit. 73ff): a) שְׁלוֹם לְךָ may you have success!, or peace be with you! Ju 19₂₀ (for the first translation see Lande Formelhafte Wendungen 4); in THAT 2: 928 it is translated “may you have sufficient!”; cf. also Eisenbeis loc. cit. 120ff; the formula is expanded in 1S 25₆. Lande loc. cit. 4 suggests that for 2S 18₂₈ שְׁלוֹם alone is probably to be taken a greeting formula in the sense of calling to someone, “Hail!”, “Hello!”; see Hertzberg *Sam.*² 293; also ZüB.

—b) for the greeting together with the so-called “disclosure formula” see Lande loc. cit. 4f; KBL 974b: אֶתִּירָא לְךָ שְׁלוֹם Ju 6₂₃; similarly Da 10₁₉; pl. Gn 43₂₃; with דָּבַר לְשָׁלוֹם to greet in a friendly way Gn 37₄, see Westermann Gen. 3:21 :: THAT 2: 928: to speak in someone's favour.

—5b. peace in a private sense: α) שְׁ דְּבַר שְׁ to speak with someone peaceably Jr 9₇; מֵאֵת בְּשִׁעֵבֶר שְׁ הִלְךְ to separate from one another contentedly, depart in peace Gn 26₃₁; וּבְמִישׁוֹר בְּשִׁעֵבֶר to walk in peace and honesty Mal 2₆; הוֹצִיא שְׁלוֹם to have an offer of peace issued Song 8₁₀; on this see Gerleman Ru.-HL. 219, 221; שְׁ עֲצַת שְׁשָׁלוֹם peaceful advice Zech 6₁₃; שְׁ בְּשִׁעֵבֶר in peace Jb 15₂₁.

—β) people to whom a commitment has been made, or alternatively to live in peace, in friendship, cf. Eisenbeis loc. cit. 156f: שְׁלוֹמֵי אֲנוֹשׁ Jr 20₁₀, אֲנוֹשֵׁי שְׁלוֹמְךָ Jr 38₂₂ Ob 7, cf. אֲנוֹשֵׁי בְרִיתְךָ your allies, your colleagues Ob 7.

—γ) of the dying, who pass away בְּשָׁלוֹם in peace: with אֶסְף nif. 2K 22₂₀/2C 34₂₈; with בּוֹא Gn 15₁₅; with יָרַד hif. 1K 2₆ (obj. שִׁיבְתוּ); with מוֹת Jr 34₅.

—δ) the meaning of the expression אִישׁ שָׁלוֹם Ps 37₃₇ is not clear; literally a man of peace, so Pesh. gabrā dašlāmā a peaceable man; and so Sept. ἀνθρώπου ἐρηνηνακῶ; Vulg. iuxta Sept. homini pacifico :: Vulg. iuxta Hebr. quia erit ad extremum viri pax; cf. Kraus Ps. 438: because for such a man at the end there will be peace :: THAT 2: 930: the end for such a man is requital.

—6. שָׁלוֹם peace in a weakened meaning: friendliness: אֶסַף שְׁלוֹמוֹ מֵאֵת he removed his good will away from him Jr 16₅; לֹא שָׁאֶסַף שְׁלוֹמוֹ מֵאֵת unfriendliness Ps 35₂₀, with דָּבַר pi, cf. Kraus Ps. 425: they do not speak for peace; דְּבָרֵי שָׁלוֹם עִם those who speak as friends with Ps 28₃; וְאֵמֶת וְדְבָרֵי שָׁלוֹם friendly and trustworthy words (ZüB); NRSV and NEB: letters wishing (REB: to ensure) peace and security Est 9₃₀ :: Bardtke Est. 397: words of salvation and truth; בְּשָׁלוֹם voluntarily Ju 11₁₃; with שׁוּב hif. to give back land peaceably (NRSV and REB), so with ZüB, also Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru. 211; NEB: in peace.

—7. deliverance, salvation: α) דָּבַר שָׁלוֹם to announce deliverance Ps 85₉ (sbj. יְהוָה); עָנָה שָׁלוֹם פִּרְעֹה to proclaim deliverance for Pharaoh; NRSV: to give Pharaoh a favourable answer; REB: to give an answer which will reassure Pharaoh; NEB: to answer for Pharaoh's welfare Gn 41₁₆ (sbj. אֱלֹהִים), see Westermann Gen. 3:82; שָׁאַל שָׁלוֹם יְרוּשָׁלַיִם to plead for the deliverance of Jerusalem Ps 122₆, → שָׁאַל 5c, and see above 4b.

—β) שָׁלוֹם with different verbs Is 26₃ 57₁₉ Jr 8₁₅ 14₁₉ 33₉ Ezk 7₂₅ Hag 2₉ Ps 72₃.

—γ) וְלִקְרוֹב יְהוָה מֵעַם יְהוּדָה deliverance (NRSV: peace; REB and NEB: prosperity) from Yahweh 1K 2₃₃; וְלִקְרוֹב יְהוָה לְרַחוּק שָׁלוֹם peace (meaning peacefulness) for far and near Is 57₁₉, cf. Westermann Jes. 263; שָׁלוֹם parallel with עָזָה Ps 29₁₁; שָׁלוֹם :: רָעָה :: woe Is 45₇, on which see Haag in Ziegler Fschr. 2: 179-185; לִי מֵרָעָה לְשָׁלוֹם מֵרָעָה for me bitterness means deliverance Is 38₁₇, see Wildberger Jes. 1440, 1445.

—b) collocations with other sbst.: שְׁלוֹמֵנוּ מוֹסַר a beating for our salvation Is 53₅; בְּרִיתִי שָׁלוֹם my covenant bringing salvation (KBL) or my covenant as salvation (Noth Nu. 170), with נָתַן Nu 25₁₂; שָׁלוֹם מוֹשָׁפֵט saving judgement, NRSV: judgements that make for peace Zech 8₁₆; שִׁבְתֵּי מוֹשָׁפֵט thoughts of salvation Jr 29₁₁, see already above 1a; וְהַחַיִּים וְהַשָּׁלוֹם life and welfare Mal 2₅; רַב שָׁלוֹם abundant salvation Ps 37₁₁ 72₇; see also 3 above on שָׁלוֹם in a greeting formula; on הַשָּׁלוֹם Zech 8₁₂ see below 9 cj. c.

—8. שָׁלוֹם in the meaning peace, or salva-tion: a) as promised by the so-called false prophets, cf. Eisenbeis loc. cit. 164ff: Jr 6₁₄ 8₁₁ 23₁₇ Ezk 13₁₀₋₁₆ Mi 3₅.

—b) instances in various contexts: Jr 28₉ Ps 119₁₆₅ 147₁₄.

—c) as the name of an altar Ju 6₂₄ שָׁלוֹם יְהוָה α) Yahweh is peace, so Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru. 183; TOB; β) Yahweh is salvation, so ZüB; Eisenbeis loc. cit. 125-127; γ) the name, which is constructed with יְהוָה, is perhaps a development from an older form ēl šalôm or ba'al šalôm, so Schmidt Erfolg 33.

—d) collocations with other sbst.: בְּרִית שְׁלוֹם covenant of peace (deliverance) Ezk 34₂₅ 37₂₆; בְּרִית שְׁלוֹמִי my covenant of salvation (peace) Is 54₁₀ :: THAT 2: 929: covenant (agreement) for repayment, obligation to substitute.

—9. cj.: a) Is 33₇ pr. מִלְּאֲכֵי שְׁלוֹם prop. II שְׁלֵם מִן, see Wildberger Jes. 1294, 1298f :: e.g. ZüB; TOB follows MT.

—b) Jr 13₁₉ pr. הִנָּלַת שְׁלֵמִים prop. with Vrss. as in Am 1₆ גְּלוֹת שְׁלֵמָה (BHS) :: Rudolph *Jer.*³ 92 following MT “carried away completely”, understanding שְׁלֵמִים as “in a complete manner”, a modal acc., dependent on הִנָּלַת; NRSV: wholly taken into exile; REB and NEB: swept clean away; see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §30 1.

—c) Zech 8₁₂ pr. הִזְרַע הַשְּׁלוֹם prop. either אֶזְרְעָה שְׁזָרַע הַשְּׁלוֹם or שְׁזָרַע אֶזְרְעָה or זָרְעָה שְׁלוֹם, see BHS :: Rudolph Hg.-Zch.-Mal. 141 and especially 143, following MT: there is a sowing of well-being there.

—d) Ps 55₂₁ pr. בְּשִׁלְמוֹ בְּשִׁלְמוֹ prop. בְּשִׁלְמוֹ (BHS) or בְּשִׁלְמוֹ (KBL).

—e) Ps 69₂₃ pr. לְשִׁלְמוֹמִים prop. וְשִׁלְמוֹמִים (KBL; Kraus Ps. 640, 641; cf. BHS).

—10. for the denominative vb. from שְׁלוֹם → שָׁלַם hif. 3.

The sbst. is an element in the following personal names: אֲבִישָׁלוֹם, שְׁלֹמָה; on these see Stamm Fschr. 45-57 and 67, with note 40.

שְׁלוֹן: n.m. Neh 13₁₅; the personal name is missing from the main text of Sept.^{RA}, but it appears as σαλωμων in an introductory sentence to vs. 15, which is quoted by Rahlfs in the critical apparatus, and which Sept.^{BSAV} add as compared with the MT. The personal name is unexplained, but suggestions include: a) pr. שְׁלוֹן rd. with mss. and Pesh. שְׁלוֹם, on which see Noth Personennamen 258b, and Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 118; b) the personal name may contain the root of the vb. שָׁלַח and be analysed as שָׁלוּ/י with a suffix נ in the sense of placid, carefree; c) for a discussion of these suggestions (a and b), and for σαλωμων in Sept., see Kornfeld in Cazelles Fschr. 216. †

—1) šlh in Semitic: MHeb. to send, pi. to dismiss, send away (Dalman Wb. 424b); for DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 211), see THAT 2: 915; Heb. inscr. Lachish 3:1, 6, 7, 21; 4:2, 4, 8; 5:4 (?); 6:3 (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3:

24a; Gibson Syrian Semitic Inscr. 1: 38, 41, 43, 45; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 300; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1136); often in Tell Arad, especially in the impv. šlh send!: 5:2, [11]; 6:2; 7:[9]; 13:4; 14:3; see Pardee UF 10 (1978) 303f; Ug. šlh (Gordon Textbook §19:2419; Aistleitner Wb. 2610; Gibson *Myths*² 158b) to send, stretch out, give (lend); cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 62 no. 48; p. 219 no. 269; p. 352 no. 544; for šlh as a term used for casting metal → II שלח; Ph. šlh to send, stretch out, Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3: 24a; Tomback Lexicon 317; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 300; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1136; cf. Friedrich *Gramm.*² §131; šuluḥtu shipment, consignment (AHw. 1270b; CAD Š/3, 261b) is probably a Canaanite loanword in El Amarna, see Knudtzon El-Amarna letter 265:8.

The Akk. vb. šalû(m) etc. to throw away, fling (AHw. 1152a-b: šalû II), or to swish up dust, hurl weapons, reject, (?) throw away (cf. CAD Š/1, 272a: šalû A), can be compared etymologically with שלח, but it has developed in meaning in a far different way. Dossin in Parrot Studia Mariana 58 mentions an instance of the word šelû* to send, but it is not recorded in AHw. or in CAD; although AHw. does mention an instance of a vb. šelû III occurring in Neo-Babylonian it is taken as a variant of šalû II, where it is noted as being different from Western Semitic. According to the dictionaries the main meaning of šelû as a vb. is to be careless (AHw. šelû IV; CAD šelû A); AHw. suggests that the meaning for a homonymous vb. (AHw. šelû II; CAD šelû B) is to be blunt, but CAD leaves it as “meaning uncertain”; the meaning of the other vb. šalû (AHw. šalû I; CAD šalû B) as to submerge is irrelevant.

It is also uncertain whether to link the Arb. vb. saraḥa to allow cattle to graze freely with שלח (so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and Kopf VT 8 (1958) 207-209); but on this see also Wehr-Cowan Dict. 406b, where saraḥa in the II-form is taken to mean to drive cattle to pasture, send, despatch, let go, dismiss a woman by divorce, as well as several other associated meanings.

For further remarks on the etymology see also THAT 2: 909; for further bibliography see THAT 2: 909-916, and see also below under the various sub-sections.

—δ) with God (Yahweh) as subj.: with אֵל of the person Ex 24₁₁; and a following vb. with a condemnatory meaning וְהַכִּיתִי Ex 3₂₀, וְאָךְ Ex 9₁₅; or with the idea of deliverance וְתוֹשִׁיעֵנִי יְמִינֶךָ Ps 138₇.

—2. to let free, give free rein to: שָׁלַחַת בְּרַעַה פִּיךָ you give your mouth free rein in evil, or perhaps for evil (so NRSV) Ps 50₁₉ (→ בָּ 9); pt. passive שָׁלַחַה wandering free Gn 49₂₁, adj. describing אֵילָה the doe.

—3. to send, despatch (THAT 2: 912; Stähli Wort und Dienst, new series 17 (1983), 50-52; see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.): a) with a human subj.: α) with acc. of the person אֶת-הַנְּעָר 1S 20₃₁, cf. Pr 9₃; שְׁלֹחָיו those who have sent him out Pr 10₂₆, שְׁלֹחֶיךָ those who have sent you Pr 22₂₁; with acc. of the person and a prepositional phrase: with אֵל often with מַלְאָכִים messengers Gn 32₄ 2S 2₅ 3₁₂₋₁₄ 12₂₇ 1K 20₂; otherwise with acc. of the person and אֵל Gn 37₁₃ Jr 27₃ (rd. וְשָׁלַחַת), 42₆; there are other occurrences, with עַל Jr 29₃₁ Neh 6₃; with לְ 2S 10₃; with עִם Neh 2₉; with II אֶת Gn 43₈; with לְקָרְאתָם to send to meet them 2S 10₅; מִלְפָּנָיו to send someone away from his presence 2K 6₃₂.

—β) with ellipsis of the obj., see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Stähli loc. cit. 51¹¹⁰: וַיִּשְׁלַח וַיִּקְרָא Gn 31₄ 41₈₋₁₄ Ex 9₂₇ Jos 24₉ etc., וַתִּשְׁלַח וַתִּקְרָא Gn 27₄₂ Ju 4₆ 16₁₈, with the finite form of a different vb., with לָקַח Gn 20₂ Dt 19₁₂ 1S 16₁₁, or with other verbs Gn 28₅ Ju 21₁₃ 1S 4₄ 20₁₂ 5₈₋₁₁ 25₃₉ etc.

—γ) this elliptical usage occurs also with שָׁלַחַת and לְ with inf. Gn 32₆ Nu 16₁₂ 21₃₂ 22₃₇ Jos 6₂₅ etc.

—b) with אֵלֶי/מִיְהוָה and acc. of the person (Yahweh, God sends): מִלְאָךְ Ex 23₂₀ 33₂ Nu 20₁₆, מִלְאָכֹו Gn 24₄₀, יוֹסֵף, with לְפָנֶיכֶם God sent me before you Gn 45₅₋₇; מוֹשֶׁה Ex 3₁₂₋₁₅ etc., judges 1S 12₁₁, prophets Is 6₈ Jr 1₇ Ezk 2₃ 2C 25₁₅, שְׁלֹחִי the one who sends me, or alternatively the one who has sent me 2S 24₁₃ (for שָׁלַח in connection with prophets see Richter Die sogenannten vorprophetischen Berufsberichte (FRLANT 101 (1970) 156ff), see also Herrmann BK 12/1: 64).

—1. שָׁלַח יָד לְאַבְיוֹן to stretch out the hand towards the poor Pr 31₂₀, בְּכִישׁוֹר towards the spindle, > to lay the hand on Pr 31₁₉.

—2. to give free rein to, let go free: α) of people: to allow Jacob to go home Gn 30₂₅; prisoners Zech 9₁₁; nations Ps 44₃; to let someone down on ropes into a cistern Jr 38₆₋₁₁.

—β) to allow animals to graze freely Ex 22₄, or alternatively to let such animals (oxen and donkeys) range freely on someone else's land Is 32₂₀; to let a bird fly away Gn 8₇; הַשְּׂרָה עַל פְּנֵי Lv 14₇.

—γ) to cast out bread over water (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: to make it float) Qoh 11₁.

—δ) to make water flow: מַיִם Ezk 31₄, springs (מַעְיָנִים) Ps 104₁₀.

—b) to let פָּרַע the hair hang loose Ezk 44₂₀, to unleash מְדַיְנִים, מְדַיְנִים, מְדַיְנִים strife Pr 6₁₄₋₁₉ 16₂₈, to be rid of חֲבָלֵי־הַיָּהוָה the pains of childbirth Jb 39₃, see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §135o.

—c) a tree, spreading שָׂרְשָׁיו its roots Jr 17₈, of a vine producing פְּאֵרוֹת shoots Ezk 17₆, tendrils (דְּלִיּוֹתֶיהָ textual emendation) Ezk 17₇, branches (קַצְיֵיהָ) Ps 80₁₂.

—d) to let go רָסַן the rein, to give full vent to one's feelings Jb 30₁₁ (→ רָסַן 1).

—3. to let go, dismiss: α) a person: Jonathan dismissing David 1S 20₅₋₁₃, the opponent with whom one is wrestling Gn 32₂₇, a people (אֶת־עַמִּי) Ex 7₁₆₋₂₆ 8₁₆ 9₁₋₁₃ 10₃, as in the repeated demand for freedom in the series of plagues, “let my people go!”; on this see Floss Jahwe dienen

—Göttern dienen. Terminologische, literarische und semantische Untersuchungen einer theologischen Aussage zum Gottesverhältnis im Alten Testament (BBB 45 (1975) 198); cf. further Ex 3₂₀ 4₂₁ 4₂₃ (אֶת־בְּנֵי) 5₂ etc.; in Ex 6₁ and 11₁ שָׁלַח is parallel with גָּרַשׁ (similarly Gn 3₂₃, see below 4a) and it must therefore be distinguished in meaning from the second verb meaning to drive away; the second term amplifies and defines more precisely the action of the first; on the wording of 11₁ see especially Noth Ex. 65, and similarly Childs Ex. 127.

—β) to let an animal loose: to let the scapegoat free (שְׁעִיר) Lv 16₂₂.

—b) in legal terminology: α) to dismiss a woman from the state of marriage, see Scharbert in Kornfeld Fschr. 216, 219f: Dt 24₁, 21₁₄ (לְנַפְשָׁהּ) to go wherever she wants to go (so KBL), or freely disposing of her, so von Rad ATD 8: 96; Is 50₁ Jr 3₁₋₈.

—β) an Israelite slave (male or female), with חֲפָשִׁי(מִ) Dt 15₁₂ Jr 34₉₋₁₁₋₁₄₋₁₆; with לְחַפְּשִׁי Ex 21₂₆.

—γ) רְצוּצִים the oppressed, subjugated (→ רָצִין 1b), with חֲפָשִׁים Is 58₆.

—δ) the wild ass Jb 39₅, on which see β-δ; see also T. Willi in Zimmerli Fschr. 537.

—c) with רִיקָם to make someone move on empty handed Gn 31₄₂; with טוֹבָה בְּדַרְךְךָ to send on one's way peacefully 1S 24₂₀; תִּשְׁלַחְנִי בְּבִרְיִת (textual emendation, see BHS) you must let me go for the cost of this agreement 1K 20₃₄, so with Würthwein Kg. 2: 236; with הַחֲוֹצְהָה to let marriageable daughters go away outside the clan Ju 12₉; with לְאָהֳלָיו to send back to his home town, literally to send home to his tents Ju 7₈ 1S 13₂; cf. e.g. 1K 8₆₆, on which see Alt Kl. Schr. 3: 240, and Stoebe I. Sam. 243.

—4. to accompany, escort Gn 12₂₀ 18₁₈ 31₂₇.

—5. to send away, expel: a) Gn 3₂₃, see Paul Humbert Etudes sur le récit du paradis et de la chute dans la Genèse (1940), 37; Westermann Gen. 1: 251, 367f; Jb 14₂₀, with מֵעַל Gn 25₆ Jr 15₁ (pr. שֶׁלַח rd. שְׁלַחֵם, see BHS).

—b) with בְּ, or alternatively with בְּיַד of the thing, to hand over to Ps 81₁₃ (pr. אֲשַׁלְּחֵהוּ rd. הֶחֱם, BHS) and Jb 8₄.

—c) with עַד to send back עַד-הַגְּבוּל over the border Ob 7, on which see Rudolph Jl.-Am.-Ob.-Jon. 303, 307f; Wolff BK 14/3: 14, 32f.

—6. to send, dismiss (not so common as qal, see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and THAT 2: 914):

—a. with acc. of the person Gn 19₁₃ 28₆ Is 43₁₄ (textual emendation); with acc. of the thing 1S 31₉ Neh 8₁₂ (מְנוֹת to send portions of food); with עַל to someone 2C 32₃₁; with אֶל and בְּיַד of the person Jr 27₃; עַד-מְרָחוֹק far away, remotely Is 57₉ (→ רָחוֹק 4).

—bα. especially of God, who sends pestilences and the like against the object which is linked to the verb with a preposition (see Gesenius-B.) Dt 7₂₀ 32₂₄ 2K 17₂₅ Is 10₆ Jr 8₁₇ Mal 2₂ Ps 78₄₅, הָרַבַּר, הָרַבֵּר etc. Jr 24₁₀ Ezk 28₂₃ Am 4₁₀, בְּרָקִים Jb 38₃₅.

—β. the רוּחַ, which was sent out from Yahweh, and whose generative power (יְבִרְתָּאֵין) was present at the creation, and is the power which renews the soil on the arable land Ps 104₃₀.

—7. special and particular usages: a) idiomatic expressions: שֶׁלַח בְּאֵשׁ to set on fire Ju 1₈ 20₄₈ 2K 8₁₂ Ps 74₇ :: שֶׁלַח אֵשׁ בְּ to send fire on Ezk 39₆ Hos 8₁₄ Am 1₄₋₇₋₁₀₋₁₂ 2₂.

—b) Ex 14_{5b} כִּי-שֶׁלַחְנוּ אֶת-יִשְׂרָאֵל that we have let Israel go away (ZüB), as proposed by Floss loc. cit. (see above 3α) 198; so also NRSV, REB, NEB: that we have allowed Israel to escape unnoticed.

—α. 2S 18₂ pr. וַיִּשְׁלַח prop. with Sept.^L וַיִּשְׁלַח, see BHK; so also e.g. ZüB :: TOB following MT: then David gave the people the sign to move off (Sept.^{Rahlfs} καὶ ἀπέστειλεν Δαυιδ τὸν λαόν).

—β. 1K 9₇ pr. אֲשַׁלְּחָה מֵעַל prop. with 2C 7₂₀ and Sept. אֲשַׁלְּיךְ, see BHS :: Noth Könige 194 who follows MT.

—γ. Ezk 31₅ textual uncertainty בְּשֶׁלַחֹו, probably a gloss, Zimmerli Ezekiel 748f prop. (with a question mark) בְּשֶׁלַחֹם when they were sent out (746); other suggestions for emendation are mentioned there.

—2. וּמְשַׁלַּח מְדָנִים בֵּין אֶחָיו Pr 6₁₉ and he devises disputes between brothers, so Dahood in Fisher Parallels 2: p. 23 no. 42 (with bibliography).

—3. Dahood Ug. Heb. Philology p. 73 no. 2420 accepts the above meaning for the posited II שֶׁלַח also for Ps 50₁₉ 110₂ Pr 6₁₄ 16₂₈ Sir 43₄; on this see Smend Weisheit 401; but in all these instances the idea seems forced and is not convincing; it is not necessary to depart from the usual translations.

I שֶׁלַח: probably a subst. from I שֶׁלַח rather than from the putative II שֶׁלַח (Bauer-Leander Heb. 458u); MHeb. שֶׁלַח a cast-off fleece, the width of a step; pl. שֶׁלָּחִים irrigation channels; JArm. שֶׁלָּחִים: 1) fleece; 2) weapon; Ug. šlh in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:i:20f, where the meaning is uncertain, but it is usually taken as a weapon, so Gordon Textbook §19:2421; Aistleitner Wb. 2611; Gibson *Myths*² 158b; Gray *Krt*² 11, 33; and also Gray *Legacy*² 134; on this see further Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 204⁶⁷; however they do not exactly agree with this meaning (on which → II שֶׁלַח), but prefer to understand שֶׁלַח, sf. שֶׁלַחֹ as a weapon which is held in the hand, a spear, or something smaller like a dart; on this see de Vaux Inst. 2: 51f = Lebensordnungen 2: 50.

—1. וַיִּפְּלוּ יַפְּלוּ הַשֶּׁלַח יַפְּלוּ cf. Sept. ἐν τοῖς βέλεσιν αὐτῶν πεσοῦνται they fell under a hail of missiles, so Wolff Jl.-Am. 43, 45; similarly e.g. Keller CAT 11a: 122; TOB; ZüB :: Rudolph Jl.-Am.-Ob.-Jon. 50, 52: from III שֶׁלַח water duct, but that is not convincing; נֶחֱם 4₁₁ with חִזְקֵי hif; עָשָׂה 2C 23₁₀, 32₅ with עָשָׂה.

—2. cj.: a) אִישׁ שֶׁלַחֹ הָיָה מִיָּמֵינוּ prop. אִישׁ שֶׁלַחֹ הָיָה מִיָּמֵינוּ each person carried a weapon on his right, so Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 126, 127, BHS.

—b) for שֶׁבֶט 2S 18₁₄ pr. שֶׁבֶטִים prop. שֶׁלָּחִים, → שֶׁבֶט 1ay. †

II * שֶׁלַח: probably to be identified with I שֶׁלַח from which it has developed the specialised meaning of “offshoot”, see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., Zorell Lexicon, and König Wb. 503b; see also V שֶׁלַח c; the Vrss. support this interpretation, presupposing that the word when used in the context of a garden or park is like the hapax legomenon שֶׁלִּיחֵיךָ Song 4₁₃, for which the accepted translation is your shoots; so Vulg. emissiones tuae, and Pesh. šlīḥwātēky; cf. also Sept.^o which here has ἀποστολαί σου (but for 1K 9₁₆ the rendering is different) where it should be rendered branch, or shoot; on this see Payne Smith Lex. 4175a.

II שֶׁלַח has to be separated from the homonymous form III שֶׁלַח. Dhorme JPOS 3 (1923) 45-48 has accepted that there is a connection between them (assuming that the meaning of III שֶׁלַח develops from canal to shoot), but even so he suggests that the subst. “can be seen as a general description of a garden”; on this see Raymond L'eau 130.

Here however Ug. tlh Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 24:47 (Gordon Textbook §19:2682; Aistleitner Wb. 2873; Gibson *Myths*² 160a) is not to be brought into consideration; rather it is probably to be taken together with Heb. שֶׁלַחִים as meaning a going away present, a dowry, so with Gordon Textbook §19:2682; Gibson *Myths*² 160a; also de Moor UF 2 (1970) 200; for further bibliography see Herrmann Yariḥ und Nikkal und der Preis der Kutarāt-Göttinnen (BZAW 106 (1968) 24); see also Fisher Parallels 2: p. 73 no. 2. Herrmann himself (see p. 23 and 46f) interprets Ug. tlh as the name of a deity (so also Aistleitner Wb. 2873), which he then connects with III שְׁלַח in the meaning birth-canal, vagina, with special reference to Song 4₁₃ in Biblical Hebrew. But this suggestion is not acceptable, not only because of the pl. suffix but also because of the context in the Song of Songs: pl. *שְׁלַחִים, sf. שְׁלַחִיךָ: shoot, small shoot. †

III שְׁלַח: hapax legomenon Neh 3₁₅ in the collocation הַשְּׁלַח בְּרִכַּת הַשְּׁלַח; the etymology is uncertain, but possibilities include: a) from I שָׁלַח to let loose, give free rein to (see especially qal 2); or to cause water (a spring) to flow (see especially pi. 2aδ); b) from the putative II שָׁלַח, provided that the special meaning of to forge can be established for this vb.; c) perhaps a comparison may also be made with Akk. šilihūtu part of a canal, a branch canal (AHw. 1235b; CAD Š/2, 443b), on which see already Gesenius-Buhl Handw. It may perhaps be that III שְׁלַח is a sbst. occurring only in the later period of the language, and it may be a loanword from Akk.; see also the linguistically related שָׁלַח; MHeb. pl. שְׁלַחִים irrigation channels, הַשְּׁלַחִין בֵּית הַשְּׁלַחִין irrigated land (Dalman Wb. 425a; see also Levy Wb. 4: 559b): for Neh 3₁₅ the Vrss. differ, on which see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 118, who refers especially to the rendering in Pesh.: wšūrā dapsāqīn dmappqē' mayyā lga(n)t (lgannat) malkā and the walls of the canals which make the water flow away to the royal garden: aqueduct, canal, water channel, with בְּרִכַּת הַשְּׁלַח the pool of the water channel Neh 3₁₅, cf. Dalman Jerusalem und sein Gelände 171; Reicke-Rost Hw. 843. †

IV שְׁלַח: it should be first noted that no collection of references to prove that there is a fourth meaning for this sbst. will be given here; the references that are given seem much more likely to create uncertainty about whether they are to be assigned to meaning I or to meaning III: a) for Ug. šlh (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:i:20f) could be taken as I שְׁלַח, see above; Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 204⁶⁷ place it with III שְׁלַח; for them šlh designates “the river of the underworld which is effective as a harbinger of trouble”; so also already Loretz UF 7 (1975) 584f, and in particular Tsevat The Canaanite God Šālah (VT 4 (1954) 41-49). He does not refer to Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:i:20f, but takes as instances of the name of the deity שְׁלַח the Hebrew personal names שְׁלַח, שְׁלַחִי, שְׁלַחִי, and the Phoenician personal names 'bšlh, 'šršlh (Harris Gr. 73, 83); on this see also Loretz loc. cit., and Benz Names 416.

—b) in Jb 33₁₈ and 36₁₂ בְּשֵׁלַח / עָבַר בְּשֵׁלַח can have two distinct meanings: α) It may mean to fall on to a spear, so Fohrer Hiob 453, 454 (in 36₁₂ בְּשֵׁלַח is a gloss, see p. 473); similarly e.g. Peters Job 370 and 403 (בְּשֵׁלַח but not taken as a gloss); so also TOB; cf. ZüB, which follows MT for 36₁₂, taking שְׁלַח to mean missile; cf. NRSV: but if they do not listen they shall perish by the sword :: REB and NEB: they cross the river of death (see below β); but for 33₁₈ ZüB. assumes cj. pr. בְּשֵׁלַח prop. בְּשֵׁאֲלָה, see BHK³: and his life before the transition to the underworld. β) alternatively שְׁלַח may mean canal, and in particular the canal that leads away to the underworld; עָבַר בְּשֵׁלַח would then mean to wade through the canal, so Dhorme Job 452f, and subsequently Tsevat loc. cit., and Pope Job 250; NRSV: to spare their lives from traversing the river; REB and NEB for Jb 33₁₈: and stops him from crossing the river of death.

—c) the possibility should be carefully considered of whether I שְׁלַח should not be preferred to IV שְׁלַח; it is more widely attested than III שְׁלַח and it would provide a satisfactory meaning for Jb 33₁₈ as well as for Jb

36₁₂; and at the same time it solves the problem of our not being able to establish the meaning of III שְׁלַח from Ug. with any degree of certainty.

V שְׁלַח: n.m., SamP. šāla, Sept. Σαλα, Josephus Σέλης (Schalit Namenwb. 109); Punic šlh (Benz Names 180, 416), cf. Lihyanic slhn = Salhân (Ryckmans Noms 1: 149b); the same in OSArb. SLHN (Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 315): שְׁלַח. The meaning of the personal name is uncertain, but possibilities include: a) Noth Personennamen 173 makes reference only to שְׁלַחִי but not to שְׁלַח; the former may be a short form of a name, the full form of which is constructed with the vb. שָׁלַח; it could then be that the translation to send is to be understood as a paraphrase of to be born, but that is completely uncertain.

—b) a short form of the corresponding full form בְּזַתוֹשְׁלַח, so Tsevat VT 4 (1954) 41, 42.

—c) שְׁלַח is identical to II שְׁלַח and means “offshoot, sprout” as a profane descriptive name, compare Akk. per'u(m), perhu “shoot”; see AHW. 856, where it is taken as the short form of a theophoric personal name, so also Stamm Namengebung 242, who nevertheless leaves open the possibility of it being a full, unshortened form or a descriptive name.

—d) of these possibilities the second and third (b and c) are probably worthy of special consideration: the son of אֶרְפַּכְשָׁדַר Gn 10₂₄ 11₁₂₋₁₅ 1C 1₁₈₋₂₄. † שְׁלַח: place name, identical to III שְׁלַח with a secondary vocalisation probably modelled on גִּיחוֹן, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Bauer-Leander Heb. 476v (: 481b); and also Noth Welt 144²; cf. Reymond L'eau 130; Sept. Σ(ε)λωαμ, Josephus Σιλωά (Schalit Namenwb. 113); John 9₇ Σιλωάμ reflects an original שְׁלַח; for lengthening in place of gemination see Ben Hayyim Literary and Oral Tradition 5: 82-83); for שְׁלַח as a by-form of שְׁלַח cf. M. Bar-Asher The Tradition of Mishanic Hebrew in the Communities of Italy 113-115; for שְׁלַח(ו) pt. passive qal, like שְׁלַח as distinct from שְׁלַח, see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §27b; Barth Nominalbildung 41, §27g, note 2; on the meaning of the name cf. John 9₇: Σιλωάμ (-]21⁵ ἐρμηνεύεται ἀπεσταλμένος): Siloam: הַשְּׁלַח הַגִּי, on which see Wildberger Jes. 323: there is no doubt that שְׁלַח does not mean the so-called Siloam tunnel ... what must be considered much more likely is a canal that conducts the water from Gihon (modern Ēn 'Umm ed-daraj, or the so-called “Mary’s well”), on the eastern slope of the city leading towards the south”; see also Simons Jerusalem in the OT 176ff; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1795, 1796: Is 8₆. †

*שְׁלַחֹת: (I) שְׁלַח, Bauer-Leander Heb. 318o: sf. שְׁלַחֹתִיהָ: tendrils Is 16₈, cf. Rüthy Pflanze 59. †

9644 שְׁלַחִי

under V שְׁלַח a; b) the name is connected with the name of a deity (see IV שְׁלַח) and means the one belonging to Šelah, so Tsevat VT 4 (1954) 41. The divine name was amplified by the suffix ī indicating a possessive relationship; this meaning is comparable to the connotation of personal names in Akk. constructed with the determinative pronoun šu/ša/šāt such as Ša-ili(m), meaning the one who belongs to the god, see Stamm Namengebung 263.

—c) the personal name is to be taken in a profane sense (see V שְׁלַח c) as meaning “my sprout, my offshoot”; that שְׁלַח־י occurs together with שְׁלַח is comparable to Akk. Ahūa my brother occurring together with Ahūm brother, and also Ahāti my sister occurring together with Ahātum sister (Stamm Namengebung 246). †

*שְׁלַח־יָם: Song 4₁₃, → II שְׁלַח.

שְׁלַח־יָם: place name Jos 15₃₂, Sept.^A Σελεϊμ, Sept.^B Σαλη, Josephus Σάλλις (Schalit Namenwb. 105); part of (the greater territory of) Judah corresponding to שְׁרֵיָהוּן Jos 19₆; missing from Sept., Saroen in Vulg. In the view of the older tradition (on which see Keel-Küchler-Uehlingen Orte 2: 100) it was regarded as part of Simeon; on this different classification, corresponding to historico-geographical developments, see Noth Jos. 89; also Nadav Na'man ZDPV 96 (1980) 148.

In 1C 4₃₁ שְׁעָרַיִם arises from a textual corruption and not from a third form of the name of the city (as Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Zorell Lexicon). On the different terms for the place, with on the one hand Jos 15₃₂, and on the other hand 19₆, and also for its identification → שְׁרֵיָהוּן . †

שְׁלַח־יָם: the derivation is uncertain, because the Ug. word tlhn table has no connection with the root šlh, though it is taken as such in e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (p. 976b); Dalman Arbeit 7: 218 :: KBL Supplement 190a (where any suggestion between this word and Arb. salaha is excluded); cf. Blau VT 6 (1956) 243, who is also against the connection with the root šlh; it is not mentioned in Bauer-Leander Heb. 499m; perhaps it is a primary noun.

SamP. šālān; MHeb., DSS see Maier Tempelrolle 14: 26: in the fragmentary text of col. 8:5, the instructions for the shew-bread table and the shew-bread ritual are dealt with; Ug. tlhn, dual or pl. masc. tlhnm (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 3:ii:30 bn_tlhnm), pl. fem. tlhnt table (see Gordon Textbook §19:2681; Aistleitner Wb. 2870; Gibson *Myths*² 160a; cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 21 no. 15; p. 234 no. 300 (ksu parallel with tlhn); p. 252 no. 336 (lhm + tlhn); p. 378 no. 600 (tlhn ... yn); p. 379 no. 601 (tlhn parallel with ks); see further Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 114:6, and Ugaritica 7 p. 16 line 31: cstr. שְׁלַח־יָם, sf. שְׁלַח־יָם, שְׁלַח־יָם, שְׁלַח־יָם, pl. שְׁלַח־יָם, cstr. שְׁלַח־יָם.

A. General remarks: a) even though any connection between the sbst. שְׁלַח־יָם and the root šlh has to be dispensed with because of the evidence from Ugaritic, it is nevertheless possible that among the Israelite tribes in the period before the conquest a שֻׁלְחָן consisted of a mat, or the skin of an animal spread out over the ground, around which people would have lain down in preparation for their meal; for the settlers in Canaan the normal practice could still have been as it was for the people in rural areas, where the older simpler ways of life are maintained, which is suggested by Noth Könige 291 as a possibility for 1K 13₂₀.

But there is no place (with the possible exception of Ps 78₁₉, on which see below B 1b) where any reference to this ancient type of שֻׁלְחָן can be presupposed, not even at Ps 69₂₃ (: e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); this is much more likely to refer to the festivals for sacrifice which the enemies of the Psalmist often organised in the temple area, during which Yahweh would appear as judge, not as a proof of their victory but of their wrongdoing. So for those who organised them these feasts would turn into a פָּחַ according to vs. _a, and according to vs. _b into a מוֹקֵשׁ, also cj. for שְׁלוֹמִים.

—b) in Ug. there are the expressions tht tlhnt under the table (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 114:5f), and bn tlhnm between the (two ?) tables (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 3:ii:30); these citations show that the table was a sturdy and important piece of household equipment, standing on legs and providing a flat surface (the table top).

—c) that was the situation that was accepted as normal, particularly in towns and probably also in the more sophisticated levels of society; but in the remoter areas, on the fringes of cultivated society, the older practice of using the skin of an animal or a mat must still have been customary.

On the shapes of tables in Israel and the surrounding areas see Reicke-Rost Hw. 1991; see further Pritchard Pictures 630-637; also Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*² 230f; the table was used as a place at which to eat and also it was used ceremonially, but these two functions can easily overlap; there are no examples of a table as the place for the craftsman to do his work.

B. 1. dining table: a) among commoners, those not in the royal household 1K 13₂₀ 2K 4₁₀ Ps 128₃, Jb 36₁₆ (textual corruption → II נחת II): שֻׁלְחָנְךָ מְלֵא דֶשֶׁן your table was full of fat.

—b) a table in the wilderness (בְּמִדְבָּר) for a people demanding food Ps 78_{18f}. In a situation like this the שֻׁלְחָן must still have been in the style of an animal skin or a mat, but it is questionable whether this should still have to be presupposed in this late psalm, (on the date of the psalm see Kraus Ps. 704f).

—c) for people at the head of society: α) for a king Ju 1₇ 1S 20₂₉₋₃₄ 2S 9₇₋₁₀₋₁₁₋₁₃ 19₂₉ 1K 2₇ 5₇ 10_{5/2C 9}₄; the table of אִיזְבֵּל 1K 18₁₉; עַל־שֻׁלְחָן אֶחָד two kings shall sit at one table Da 11₂₇; β) one hundred and fifty people at the personal table of a governor, עַל־שֻׁלְחָנִי at my table Neh 5₁₇; γ) the nobles of Babylon spread their table Is 21₅; cf. Wildberger Jes. 778.

—c) the table for the shew-bread (הַפְּנִים לֶחֶם), on which see de Vaux Inst. 2: 300f = Lebensordnungen 2: 268; V. Fritz Tempel 141; Noth Ex. 167; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1688 (also → לֶחֶם 3); α) in the tent of meeting שֵׁלֶחַן עֵצֵי שִׁטִּים a table made from acacia wood Ex 25₂₃, cf. —d) שֵׁלֶחָנוֹת עֶשְׂרֵה ten tables 2C 4₈ in the temple of Solomon, on which see Rudolph Chr. 209: the function of these tables is not stated so we have to rely on supposition; they are distributed in the same way as the lampstands, and so what the Chronicler could have been conveying was that the lampstands were set on the tables.

Der. שְׁלִיט, שְׁלִיטָה, שְׁלִיטוֹן.

שְׁלִיט: primary noun, Bauer-Leander Heb. 456j.

A. MHeb. שְׁלִיטוֹן, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 221) 1QM 6:2 הַשְׁלִיט missile, a weapon that is thrown, so Maier Texte 1: 130, on which see also 2: 121 (with bibliography); a weapon of this type corresponds to the inscription which is found on it: לְאֵל דָּם לְהַפִּיל חַלְלִים בְּאֵף אֵל bloody arrows for bringing down those pierced by God's wrath; Qumran Aramaic שְׁלִיט quiver; this sbst. is used in Tg. Job xxxiii: 23 as the rendering of Heb. אֲשָׁפָה (Jb 39₂₃), on which see Borger VT 22 (1972) 398; also Borger VT 27 (1977) 102-105; on the text of the Targum see Jongeling-Labuschagne-van der Woude Aramaic Texts from Qumran 1: 64-65; JArm. שְׁלִיטָא; pl. det. שְׁלִיטָיא with a citation from Jr 51₁₁, where in the Arm. version which follows the Heb. it cannot mean anything else except "quiver": šannīnū girrayyā mlō šiltayyā sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers :: Dalman Wb. 425a: shield; שְׁלִיטוֹנָה small shield (used by a woman as protection for the head), see Dalman loc. cit.

Akk. šaltu bow-and-arrow case (CAD A/1, 272b; —, 74b; and see now Š/1, 271b; see especially Borger VT 22 (1972) 392f, and subsequently von Soden AHW. 1151a, and Orientalia 46 (1977) 195): a quiver for the bow, or a quiver for the arrows (so Borger loc. cit.), or alternatively bow-case (so von Soden loc. cit.) :: Salonen Waffen 130f: a type of shield made of leather; but this translation has been proved wrong by Borger loc. cit. According to AHW. 1151a the sbst. was borrowed from Aramaic, but that is uncertain, on which see Zimmern Fremdw. 12, and Borger VT 22 (1972) 393.

Syr. šaltā quiver (Payne Smith Lex. 4180); on this see also Borger VT 22, 386, who refers to two late occurrences where šaltā cannot mean quiver but some sort of dart or missile that is thrown (and in any case not a shield); Syr. šlatā (Brockelmann Lex. 780f) has two meanings: 1) quiver; 2) missile; cf. OSArb. slt divinatory arrows (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 126); Arb. silṭat a long, thin arrow (Freitag Lexicon 2: 341a); see also Borger VT 22 (1972) 387.

B. The exact meaning of the sbst. had already been lost for the Vrss., as is shown by the different renderings they use; six different words are used in Sept. for the seven instances where שְׁלִיט is attested; of these φάρετρα (Jr 51₁₁ (= Sept. 28₁₁), Ezk 27₁₁) is used twice (see the list in Gerleman Ru.-HL 149); Vulg. has faretra (Jr 51₁₁ Ezk 27₁₁ 1C 18₇), arma (2S 8₇ 2K 11₁₀), cf. armatura (HL 4₄), pelta shield (2C 23₉); for this cf. Borger VT 22 (1972) 385f, who adds the comment: the prevalent rendering in later translations of shield is not supported by the Sept. for any single occurrence; it is supported only by the Vulg. for 2C 23₉. Pesh. suggests that the Heb.

word שָׁלְטָה can be taken as corresponding to šaltā in the sense of quiver, but not unambiguously nor on every occasion can it be understood thus.

C. a) *שָׁלְטָה: pl. שָׁלְטִים, cstr. שָׁלְטֵי, sf. שָׁלְטֵיהֶם: as used by a horseman it was a combined case for bows and arrows (in Greek a bow-case with a quiver is γωρυστός; see Or des Scythes, Editions des musées nationaux (Paris, 1975) p. 88 and 89): 2S 8₇ 2K 11₁₀ Jr 51₁₁ Ezk 27₁₁ Song 4₄ 1C 18₇ 2C 23₉, so with Borger VT 22 (1972) 385-398, and VT 27 (1977) 102-105 :: KBL: small, circular shield, as at Ezk 27₁₁, with reference to Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*¹ 497-498: the towers of Lachish were fortified with shields, cf. Gressmann Bilder 141; Pritchard Pictures 373 (on p. 372 the Assyrian attackers can be seen holding the small, round shields in their hands); it is less clear in Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*² 39, plate 14/1.

Gesenius-Buhl Handw. gives support for the translation quiver at Jr 51₁₁ (and 2C 23₉), though the preferred rendering is usually shield; Zorell Lexicon 850: sword, or girdle; König Wb. 504a: most probably a shield; in the commentaries and in modern translations the meaning shield has probably become established as a result of the occurrences of שָׁלְטָה used in association with מִגֶּן (Ezk 27_{10f} Song 4₄ 2C 23₉); nevertheless quiver or bow-case, as mentioned above, is a better suggestion; see also Weippert Edom 275f.

—b) the cognate languages lend support to this idea (see above under A): 1) Akk. šaltu; 2) JArm. שָׁלְטָה; Qumran Aramaic: שָׁלְטָה; 3) less clearly is Syr. šaltā and šlātā, and from Heb. itself where this is the primary meaning in Jr 51₁₁ הַשְּׁלֵטִים מְלֵאוּ הַחֲצִים הַיְּבֵרוּ sharpen the arrows, fill up the quiver!; so also Sept. (= Jr 28₁₁) παρασκευάζετε τὰ τοξείματα, πληροῦτε τὰς φαρέτρας; Vulg. acuite sagittas implete faretras; Pesh. is a little different: kannešw šaltē mlaw gē'rē collect the quivers, fill them with arrows! This instance at Jr 51₁₁ is very clear (so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.), but coming close to it is the series of words in 2C 23₉ הַחֲנִיתִים הַמְּגִנּוֹת הַשְּׁלֵטִים; the other instances are not so clear, for they allow the possibility of also translating the word as shield; however since שָׁלְטָה can certainly mean quiver, and it cannot be another word for shield (for it is used together with מִגֶּן and II צְנִיָּה), it is in general to be rendered in BHeb. as quiver; this will create some difficulties for Ezk 27₁₁ and Song 4₄, but they are not insuperable, as Borger VT 22 (1972) 394f has shown. From the later texts it can be shown that there is a clear development in meaning towards the idea of a weapon that is thrown, a missile; so at Song 4₄, where Heb. has שָׁלְטֵי הַגְּבוּרִים Sept. corresponds with βολίδες τῶν δυνάτω; also in 1QM 6:2, and in two places in Syriac (on this see above A).

D. expressions: with לָקַח 2S 8₇ 2C 18₇; with מָלָא Jr 51₁₁; with נָתַן 2K 11₁₀ 2C 23₉; with תָּלַח qal Song 4₄, pi. Ezk 27₁₁. †

I שְׁלִישׁ and שְׁלֹשׁ: שֶׁשׁ: used to express a fraction, together with the more common שְׁלִישִׁית (Bauer-Leander Heb. 629a, and especially Meyer Gramm. §60.3; MHeb. שְׁלִישׁ one-third, שְׁלִישׁ intermediary; JArm. and Samaritan תְּלֹתוֹת = תְּלִישִׁית 2K 11₅; for Ug. mtltt (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:i:16) → שֶׁשׁ; Akk. šalšu(m), fem. š/šalištum, šaluštu(m) third in rank or quality, one-third (AHw. 1150, see also von Soden Gramm. §70h; CAD Š/1, 263); šullušu(m) one-third, three-fold, tripled, worked for a third time (AHw. 1267b; CAD Š/3, 243a, šullušu A); and šulšu one-third (AHw. 1269b; CAD Š/3, 258b: šulšu numeral); Syr. tītāytā = tūltā the third part; Nab. tlt one-third, tlt tryn two-thirds (Cantineau Nab. 2: 156b; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 329; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1216); Eth. šālista 'id the third part (Dillmann Lex. 231; cf. Dillmann Gramm. §159f); Tigr. masallas a third (Littmann-H. Wb. 168b); Arb. tult and talīt one-third: one-third, a third of a measure (the full quantity of which is not known) Is 40₁₂ Ps 80₆, on which see de Vaux Inst. 1: 304 = Lebensordnungen 1: 321: שְׁלִישׁ(י) is an object used for measuring which fixes an amount corresponding to one-third of a predetermined (but as yet unknown) quantity; cf. Reicke-Rost Hw. 1163.

—a) Is 40₁₂ with כּוֹל; Sept. τίς ἐμέτρησεν ... καὶ πᾶσαν τὴν γῆν δρακί measured by hand; Vulg. quis adpendit tribus digitis molem terrae to suspend (? in order to assess the weight); Pesh. wa'kil bazwārēh 'aprāh d'ar'ā and he has measured out in his hands the dust of the earth (on zwārā corresponding to δράξ see Payne Smith Lex. 1: 1113a); Tg. w'aprā d'ar'ā k'illū bimkilā ittkāl and the dust of the earth as though it were contained in a measuring-pan. It is clear that for the Vrss. the meaning of שְׁלִישׁ(י) was no longer sure, but at least a glimmer of it shines through the Vulgate Elliger BK XI/1 48f proposes among other suggestions that one-third means one-third of a seah (equivalent to 4.4 litres), compare Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*¹ 367, and Reicke-Rost Hw. 1163.

—b) Ps 80₆ שְׁלִישׁ בְּדִמְעוֹת בְּדִמְעוֹת וְתִשְׁקֶמוּ; here it is just the last word of the clause that makes the meaning uncertain; it functions as an adverbial acc., see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §118q, and Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §101. The suggestions of the Vrss. are similar: Sept. ἐν μέτρ; Vulg. iuxta Sept. in mensura, Vulg. iuxta Hebr. tripliciter threefold; the word is missing from Pesh.

As for later commentators, either they prefer the first interpretation following Sept. and Vulg. iuxta Sept. with “in measure” (for which see Baethgen Ps. 2: 253; Duhm *Ps.*² 312); alternatively they follow the second interpretation, probably making a connection with Is 40₁₂ “one-third of a measure” (for which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; TOB; cf. also KBL); others use a phrase expected within the context like “the full measure” (see NRSV: in full measure; REB: copious) or “an excessive amount” (for which see Gunkel Ps. 351, 354; Weiser ATD 14/15⁷ (1966), 371; ZüB; Kraus Ps. 718); it is noticeable that tripliciter threefold of Vulg. iuxta Hebr. never seems to be suggested, even though this is the closest to the original meaning of the MT. †

II *שְׁלִישׁ: שֶׁלֶשׁ: pl. שְׁלִישִׁים; בְּשָׁלְשִׁים hapax legomenon 1S 18₆; a) Vrss.: Sept. ἐν κυμβάλοις; Vulg. in sistris; Pesh. bṣeṣṣlē; Tg. ubṣalṣlin with cymbals.

—b) for possible meanings see F. Ellermeier in Galling Fschr. 82: the term שְׁלִישׁ remains somewhat problematic; that is why two alternative suggestions are found in Galling *Bibl. Reallex.*²: 1) a lute with three strings (see p. 235a); 2) a sistrum with three sounding strings opposite each other (p. 236a); both these suggestions are found again elsewhere; so Stoebe I. Sam. 344: a three-stringed lute; on the other hand Weg-ner Musikinstr. 41 takes it to signify a three stringed sistrum; cf. also Reicke-Rost Hw. 1258: a small harp, or lute; see further Kolari Musikinstrumente 74ff, who describes it as a three stringed stem-lute without tuning pegs. †

III שְׁלִישׁ: שֶׁלֶשׁ; SamP. pl. šēlišəm, Samaritan Tg. תְּלִיתָאִים a third man; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 221) 1QM 11:9f: כַּפְרֵעוּהָ וּכְשִׁלְיִשִׁי מִרְכַּבּוֹתָיו בֵּים סוֹנֵפָן וְתַעַשׂ לַהֲמָה and you have treated them as Pharaoh and as the warriors in his chariots at the Sea of Reeds (Lohse *Qumran*³ 207; cf. Maier Texte 1: 137: ... and as the commanders in his chariots ...).

A. General remarks: a) there is no word in the languages of the ancient Near East corresponding to Biblical Hebrew שְׁלִישׁ; it has no connection with the Hittite adj. šalliš great, mighty, as had been suggested earlier (see KBL), on which see Donner ZAW 73 (1961) 275; nor does it have any obvious connection with the Egyptian vb. srs to be in command of a contingent of soldiers, as suggested by Craigie VT 20 (1970) 83-86 for Ex 15₄; the closest parallel to the Heb. appellative name is Akk. tašlišu the third man in a chariot (AHw. 1339a), which is attested in Neo-Assyrian, Neo-Babylonian and Late Babylonian sources; on this see also Salonen Hippologica 213-218; but the nominal pattern qātil as used in Heb. שְׁלִישׁ distinguishes it from the Akk. word which follows the pattern qatīl, and so, as suggested by Donner loc. cit. 277, it is perhaps “an independent and unilateral development of the word in Hebrew”; see also especially Noth Könige 217.

The meaning of the word in Biblical Hebrew can be taken to be the same as in Akk., which would imply that the three manned chariot was known in Israel from the time of Solomon onwards. Such chariots were used by the Hittites and the Assyrians, but not by the Egyptians; but how they spread into Israel from Asia Minor is hard to explain. It was not only the Assyrians but also the city-states of Syria and Palestine or the Philistines that could possibly have been the intermediaries; on this see Donner loc. cit. 277; for illustrations see Gressmann Bilder 106, 118, 137.

—b) the Ug. word tlt is found most frequently in the Epic of Krt, where it occurs in the expression tlt sswm mrkbt (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:ii:2f; iii:24, 36; v:36f; vi:6f, 20f); for suggested translations of this expression see Dietrich-Loretz UF 11 (1979) 197 with note 73; included there is also the suggestion of Del Olmo Lete UF 7 (1975) 96-102 that tlt is the same as שְׁלִישׁ, and means the third person in a chariot :: Dietrich-Loretz loc. cit. 197f, who says that tlt is a metal, probably copper, or alternatively bronze; for the occurrences in the Epic of Krt they propose the translation bronze, horses, a chariot.

Der. I שִׁלַּכְתִּי.

II שִׁלַּךְ: according to Noth Personennamen 181¹ this vb. is to be distinguished from I שִׁלַּךְ, and taken as meaning the same as Colloquial Arabic slk II to save, release; as well as the instances mentioned by Noth loc. cit., see also Dozy Suppl. 677a: to save oneself, save, escape from danger; for II שִׁלַּךְ see also Zorell Lexicon 852a; Benz Names 416 and Kornfeld Onomastica 75, who follow Noth.

The vb. can be found a) in Heb. personal names from Elephantine; b) in Phoenician and Punic personal names; c) perhaps elsewhere in the OT other than in personal names; e.g. Ps 55₂₃ Jb 29₁₇.

For a) cf. Šmšlk < Šmššlk (Cowley Arm. Papyri no. 26: [4], 8; equivalent to Shemsillek (see p. 90), but according to Grelot Documents 492 equivalent to Šamaššillek; Noth Personennamen 123 prefers to take [ʔ]šm as a theophoric element, on which see also Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 190⁸⁴. It is probably also in the descriptive name mšlk (equivalent to מִשְׁלַךְ; Cowley Arm. Papyri 298a), on which see Noth Personennamen 181; this name can be taken as a hof. pt. meaning the one who has been saved; on the other hand the meaning of the personal name could be understood as the abandoned one, and it would then be associated with I שִׁלַּךְ hif. 1d and hof. 2bβ; for somewhat remoter parallels in Akkadian see Kraus Vom mesop. Menschen der altbab. Zeit und seiner Welt (1973) 57.

On b) cf. šmnšlk (Benz Names 73), šmn equivalent to Ešmun, see Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 189ff; see also b'šlk (pp. 98-100); štršlk (p. 174); šmššlk (p. 181); šlkb'l, and as a short form šlk he has saved (Harris Grammar 150).

As for c, according to Dahood Psalms 2: 29, 38 this vb. can also be found in Ps 55₂₃; in any case the cj. for הַשִּׁלֵּךְ rd. הַשִּׁלֵּךְ the one who cares for you, and understanding עַל to be used to indicate the name of a deity, and so translating “the one who cares for you is Yahweh the most high”, is less likely; for the supposed divine name עַל/עֵל → I עַל.

Another possible instance of II שִׁלַּךְ is Jb 29₁₇: וּבְמִשְׁנֵי אֲשִׁלֵּךְ טַרְיָה and I rescued the prey from the teeth of עוֹל the unrighteous (→ I שִׁלַּךְ hif. 4g); this would make the cj. אֲשִׁלֵּךְ (e.g. KBL, BHS) superfluous. †

שִׁלַּךְ: primary noun, Bauer-Leander Heb. 462o; SamP. šēlāk; MHeb., the meaning is uncertain: heron (Dalman Wb. 426a), heron or falling/diving pelican, sea-raven (Levy Wb. 4: 562f); Sept. καταρ(ρ)άκτης: an unclean bird, (?) the cormorant (so KBL with reference to Aharoni 470: fish-owl, Ketupa zeylonensis (?): Lv 11₁₇ Dt 14₁₇. †

9667 שִׁלְכָת

I שִׁלְכָת: I שִׁלַּךְ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 477z: the felling of a tree, or its fallen state; Is 6₁₃, on which see Rignell Studia Theologica 11 (1957) 100: the state of having been felled. †

9670 שָׁלַל

II שָׁלַל: MHeb. qal 1: to congregate, assemble together in order to rob > to rob, cf. שָׁרַד; Mnd., Arb., Tigr.: hitp. to be robbed (see Dalman Wb. 426a).

DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 222) qal: a) 1 QM 7: 2 שׁוֹלְלֵי שָׁלַל those who gather the booty (Lohse *Texte*³ 196-197); b) 1 QM 10: 1f לְפָנֵינוּ לְשׁוֹל אֶת כּוֹל אוֹיְבֵינוּ לְפָנֵינוּ to drive out all our enemies before us (Lohse *Texte*³ 202-203); c) 1 QM 12: 10f וּשׁוֹל שָׁלַלְכֶם and seize your booty (Lohse *Texte*³ 208-209); d) 1 QM 19: 3f = c (Lohse *Texte*³ 222-223).

Ug. tl to plunder: 1) 2nd. sg. perfect tlit khn(m) (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 107:47) you have plundered (robbed) priests, on which see van Zijl UF 7 (1975) 510; 2) the active pt. of the vb. is also to be found, in the personal name (bn) tln, see Gröndahl Personennamen 198, 417a; see further Gordon Textbook §19:2684; Aistleitner Wb. 2875. According to the explanations of Alt Kl. Schr. 3: 198ff (see also VT 2 (1952) 156-159) this should not be taken as a personal name, but as signifying a particular group of people who performed a service for the king, but the nature of this service remains unclear.

General notes:

—a) In the article on the subject by Stoebe in Hartmann Wortforschung 340-354 the relationship of the sbst. to the vb. is considered; on p. 346 he characterises the sbst. more as a stative idea, wherein the object has come into someone's possession consequentially and not during the act of plundering, so that the centre of the meaning of the word is subsequent to the actual event.

—b) The synonymy of the verbs בָּזַז and שָׁלַל is also significant for the meaning of the corresponding substantives, which is shown by the way they are used in parallelism, and by the expression בָּזַז שָׁלַל, on which see below 1c and 1d.

—1. booty, spoil, goods that have been plundered: a) Jos 7₂₁ 2S 3₂₂; שָׁלַל הַדָּוִד, booty that David has taken 1S 30₂₀; הַדְּרֵעֶזֶר שׁ booty taken from Hadadezer 2S 8₁₂; for שָׁלַל (שָׁלַל) with a following genitive, see further Stoebe loc. cit. 347; לְשָׁלַל to the booty! 2K 3₂₃.

—b) what was taken as booty (שָׁלַל) included (cf. Gesenius-B.) prisoners of war (Ru 5₃₀ (→ רַחֲמָה*, from which 2C 28₈, 1S 30₁₉ (?) are to be distinguished), livestock 1S 14₃₂ 15_{19,21} and elsewhere, clothing Ju 5₃₀, property and goods from plundered cities Dt 2₃₅ 3₇ 13₁₇ 20₁₄ Jos 8_{2,27} 11₁₄ 2S 12₃₀.

For the bibliography see above under שָׁלוֹם, since many of the items are relevant to the vb. as well as to the sbst.; see especially Gerleman ZAW 85 (1973) 1-14, and THAT 2: 919-935; see further the collection of essays edited by Koch Um das Prinzip der Vergeltung in Religion und Recht; of these the following are important, especially for the pi.: K. Koch Gibt es ein Vergeltungsdogma im AT (pp. 130-180); J. Scharbert šlm im AT (pp. 300-329). We have earlier (→ שָׁלוֹם Cb) rejected Gerleman's translation for the qal of "to have satisfaction, to be contented" because it was too far removed from the usage in Akk.; as well as Gerleman, see also below, pi.

C. The forms of the verb and its meaning: qal: pf. שָׁלַם (Gn 15₁₆ (= Tg.^o שָׁלִים; Neofiti שלימו pl.), SamP. šālām), שָׁלַמוּ; impf. וַיִּשְׁלַם, וַתִּשְׁלַם; impv. שְׁלַם; pt. → שָׁלַם sf. שְׁוֹלְמֵי Ps 7₅, passive pt. pl. cstr. שְׁוֹלְמֵי 2S 20₁₉.

—1. to be completed, ready: a wall Neh 6₁₅, work, construction 1K 7₅₁ 2C 5₁; to come to an end (a period of mourning) Is 60₂₀.

—2. to remain healthy, unharmed: to be in opposition (הִקְשָׁה) to God and succeed Jb 9₄; in a confrontation with Leviathan, cj. Jb 41₃ pr. וַאֲשַׁלֵּם prop. with Sept. וַיִּשְׁלַם (e.g. BHK, Fohrer Hiob 527) :: TOB and Peters Job 474, who follow the MT, translating “I leave him in health”; on Jb 21₉ (MT) → שְׁלוֹם D2γ.

—3. to keep peace: a) Jb 22₂₁ וַיִּשְׁלַם and keep peace, so e.g. ZüB and Fohrer Hiob 350, 351; NRSV: agree with God and be at peace; REB: come to terms with God and you will prosper :: Eisenbeis loc. cit. 300: but surrender, O God!; for the bibliography on this translation see Fohrer loc. cit. 351.

—b) שׁוֹלְמֵי the one who is involved with me, meaning my friend Ps 7₅; NRSV: my ally; according to Sept. it should be read as a pl. שׁוֹלְמֵי, but it is better to preserve the MT; instead of שְׁלֹמָיו “those who have his confidence, his friends” in Ps 55₂₁, it has been proposed to read the singular שְׁלֹמוֹ (BHS) with a cross reference to Ps 7₅; this change is possible but not necessary.

—c) 2S 20₁₉ textual uncertainty אֲנֹכִי שְׁלָמֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל: אֲנֹכִי שְׁלָמֵי Sept. ἐγὼ εἴμι εἰρηναῖκὰ τῶν στηρικμάτων Ἰσραὴλ I am one of the supporters of Israel who is ready for peace; Tg. מְשַׁלְמֵי בְּהֵי מְנִיתָא עִם יִשְׂרָאֵל אֲנַחְנָא we will conclude a faithful peace treaty with Israel; Vulg. and Pesh. are different, but they both preserve the first person of the MT; TOB (probably with the Sept. in mind) translates the MT without any alteration: I am the one most ready for peace and the one that is most secure (the one that is most reliable) in Israel.

It is reasonable to suppose (also from Tg.), that the אֲנֹכִי of MT has been replaced by אֲנַחְנֵנוּ, so Hertzberg *Sam.*² 305: we are the most peaceable and the most trustworthy in Israel; but even such a small change from אֲנֹכִי, which is not presupposed by Sept., Vulg. or Pesh., is difficult; that is also true for the other wording which Budde Sam. 303 takes as the “real LXX”, which is also followed by ZüB. For the passive pt. *אֲמוֹן reliable, to indicate an inherent quality and condition, see Gesenius-Kautzsch §50f; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §15d. †

—b) modern translators favour rendering the word as salvation offering, or alternatively as peace offering, following the Sept., on which see Schmid Bundesopfer 14, and also Elliger Lev. 51. Of the other suggestions discussed by Schmid loc. cit. the following should be mentioned: α) conclusion offering (from שָׁלַם pi.), so

—4. שְׁלִים with II אֵת one people enjoying a peaceful relationship with another Gn 34₂₁.

—5. various other expressions: a) שְׁלִים (SamP. version שְׁלוֹם) Gn 33₁₈, traditionally taken as an adv.; NRSV, REB: Jacob came safely to the city of Shechem; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: unharmed; KBL: intact; so also Tg. שְׁלִים, see above; cf. SamP. שְׁלוֹם :: Sept. Pesh. Vulg.: where it is taken as a place name (Sept. Understanding the word as a place name, and then making שְׁכֵם a personal name (the city belonging to Shechem), is also mentioned by Westermann Gen. 2: 637, 643f, who remarks (see p. 644): calling the place Salem in vs. 18 can be explained by assuming that Shechem already lay in ruins during the times of the editor, but that Salem was still an active town.

II שְׁלָם: place name; = I: Gn 14₁₈ Ps 76₃; Gn 14₁₈: SamP. šālām; according to the Arabic Tg. of the Samaritans it is an adj. (as it is in the Sept.) sālm; Sept. Σαλημ; Vulg. Salem; Pesh. šlym; Tg. יְרוּשָׁלַם; Ps 76₃: Sept. καὶ ἐγενήθη ἐν ἐρήρῃν-221 ἰ τόπος αὐτοῦ = Vulg. iuxta Sept. in pace; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. in Salem, Pesh. šlym.

—a) traditionally equivalent to יְרוּשָׁלַם, on which see Josephus Antiquities 1: 181 τὴν μέντοι Σολυμᾶ ὕστερον ἐκάλεσεν Ἱεροσόλυμα; Avigad-Yadin Gen. Ap. 22:13 הִיא יְרוּשָׁלַם שְׁלָם, as previously suggested by the parallelism of בְּשָׁלָם and בְּצִיּוֹן in Ps 76₃.

—b) another very early Christian tradition understands that שְׁלָם refers to the place Sālim (→ I שְׁלָם 5a), on which see Schatz Gen. 14 187; so also Fitzmyer *Gen. Ap.*² 172f; on the early Christian tradition, cf. Abel Géogr. Pal. 2: 441f; cf. Hebrews 7 βασιλεὺς Σαλήμ, ὃ ἐστὶν βασιλεὺς ἐρήρῃνης.

—c) other interpretations include: α) Albright BASOR 163 (1961) 52: pr. מֶלֶךְ שְׁלָם prop. שְׁלָמוֹ a king in alliance with him; β) Smith ZAW 77 (1965) 129-153, especially 145 שְׁלָם equivalent to I שְׁלָם, a submissive, obsequious king; on this see also p. 141ff.

—d) of those three interpretations mentioned above (a-c) the first (a) has most to be said in support of it; so e.g. Gunkel Gen. 285; also von Rad *Gen.*⁹ 138, and Westermann Gen. 2: 241; cf. Schatz Gen. 14 188: Salem may designate the city of Jerusalem; if this is so, according to the vocalic pattern of the word, שְׁלָם would be a hypocoristic name, in which the name יְרוּשָׁלַם has been shortened by the removal of one of its elements; on this see W. Zimmerli, 1. Mose 12-25 43. †

שְׁלָמָה: n.m.: A. Sept. Σαλωμων; Josephus Σολόμων (Schalit Namenwb. 115); Vulg. Salomon, 1C 22₉ pacificus; Heb. seal inscr. (Moscatti Epigrafia 77, but uncertain); Nab. שְׁלָמָה, שְׁלָמו (Cantineau Nabatéen 2: 151a).

B. The following derivations from the vb. שָׁלַם and the sbst. שְׁלָמָה (for which see above 1C 22₉) could be compared with (or alternatively linked to) the personal name שְׁלָמָה.

—a) the name of a deity; for Assyrian Šulmānu see Meissner Bab. Ass. 2: 33, 40, 48; for Syrian-Old Canaanite Šalim/Šalēm, see Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 170, and Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem 181ff, 204ff; Haussig Wb. Myth. 1: 306; and for Lihyanic. s/šlmn (S/Šalmān) see Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 372; Haussig Wb. Myth. 1: 466f; here also for Greek ΣαήΣελεμανης.

—b) the n.m.; for Safaitic šlmn (Šalmān) see Ryckmans Noms 1: 209f; for Western Semitic Š(S)almānu see Tallqvist Names 190b; see especially no. 2 Sa-la-ma-nu sup māt Ma,a-ba-a-a, which occurs in a list of kings or rulers from whom Tiglathpileser III received tribute; see also Gressmann Texte 348; Luckenbill Ancient Records 287 (§801); for Aramaic (Hatra) šlmn see Degen Jaarbericht ... Ex Oriente Lux 23 (1973/74) 407; Degen-Müller-Röllig Neue Ephemeris 3: 103 no. 315; Nab. שְׁלָמָן (Cantineau Nabatéen 2: 151a); Palmyrene šlwm (Stark Names 114b).

C. Solomon, the king of Israel, Reicke-Rost Hw. 1651-53: a) occurrences in the OT: (162 times) 2S 5₁₄ 1K 1_{10f} 2_{1nd.11:43} 2K 21₇ 23₁₃ 24₁₃ 25₁₆ (according to KBL 109 times in 1 and 2 Kings) Jr 52₂₀ Ps 72₁ Song 1_{1.5} (see below E, cj.), 3_{7.9-11} 8_{11f} Neh 12₄₅ 13₂₆ 1C 3₅₋₁₀ 2C 1_{1nd.9:31} 10_{2.6}; for Sir see Zorell Lexicon 854a.

—b) the son of דָּוִד and בַּת־שֶׁבַע 2S 12₂₄, born in Jerusalem; an alternative name for him was יְרִידִיָּה; this was the name given him by נְתַן, perhaps thereby deliberately intend-ing to avoid antiquated ideas of substitution that were linked to the name שְׁלֹמֹה; שְׁלֹמֹה; מִשְׁלֵי Pr 1₁ 10₁ 25₁, שְׁ Ezr 2₅₅₋₅₈ Neh 7₅₇₋₆₀ 11₃.

D. attempted explanations of the meaning of the name: for older suggestions see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; also Stamm Der Name des Königs Salomo ThZ 16 (1960) 285-297, especially 286-91 = Stamm Fschr. 45-57, especially 46-51.

—1) a short form with a hypocoristic ending -ō from a full form such as שְׁלֹמִיאֵל, so Noth Personennamen 38, 165.

—2) שְׁשְׁלֹמִיאֵל is simply taken as equivalent to שְׁשְׁלֹמוֹ meaning his (David's) peace; so Stamm ThZ 16 (1960) 294f = Stamm Fschr. 54; (but see further under 4).

—3) the name is linked together with the name of the deity Šālim/Šālēm (see above B), so Gray *Legacy*² 185f; Ahlström VT 11 (1961) 122; Stolz Strukturen und Figuren im Kult von Jerusalem 204.

—4) שְׁשְׁלֹמוֹ is what is known as a substitution name and means his intactness, his freedom from harm; it would be a reference to the previous child of David and Bathsheba who had died, but is now again present completely with this new-born child; so Stamm ThZ 16 (1960) 295 = Stamm Fschr. 55f; see also Stamm Ersatznamen 421b = Stamm Fschr. 75; this is the interpretation taken up by Gerleman ZAW 85 (1973) 13 = THAT 2: 932, who translates שְׁשְׁ as his substitute; so also Rainer Albertz Persönliche Frömmigkeit und offizielle Religion 60.

—5) There are good reasons to support all the suggestions outlined above (1-4); although we are not able to reject any one of them we have a liking for the second (2), but particularly favour the last (4).

E. cj. Song 1₅ pr. שְׁשְׁלֹמֹה prop. שְׁשְׁלֹמָה (parallel with קְרָר), on which see e.g. Gerleman Ru.-HL 100; BHS :: Görg BN 21 (1983) 105, 108, following MT, but not completely without reservation; see also TOB with note.

9691 שְׁלֹמָן

שְׁלֹמָן (variant שְׁלֹמָן): n.m. Hos 10₁₄: שְׁלֹמָן; Sept. Σαλαμαν; the personal name matches S/Ša-la-ma-nu mentioned above under → שְׁלֹמָן Bb, but it is completely uncertain whether he has to be identified with the king (prince) of Moab which is mentioned there. Furthermore the assumption that it is an unusual shortening of the name Šulmānu-ašarēd, the Assyrian king Shalmaneser V, remains questionable. It is best to accept the decision of Rudolph Hos. 207, that we do not know who Shalman was; on this see also H. Donner Israel unter den Völkern (VTSupp. 11 (1964) 166f. †

Der. שלש, שלישי, I-III שליש, שלשום, שלשים, n.m. שלש and שלשה.

שלש: n.m.; שלש, ? cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 459e; Sept. Σελλης; the meaning of the personal name is questionable, but possibilities include: a) obedient, gentle, from Arb. salis tractable, pliable, docile, compliant (Wehr-Cowan 421b); so Noth Personennamen 228f; b) like the Old Babylonian personal name I-ša-li-iš-ilum (AN) translated as God will act on a third occasion, and meaning God will give a third son (Stamm Namengebung 161; AHW. 1146b). But the connection between the Akk. sentence name and the Heb. descriptive name remains unclear; the latter may perhaps mean triplet, or the third child, as is mentioned by Noth Personennamen 229¹ together with his preferred etymology from Arabic: a member of the tribe of Asher, or alternatively an important member of a clan in that tribe 1C 7₃₅. †

שלשה: n.m.; Sept. Σαλισα; the meaning of the personal name is not completely certain; according to Noth Personennamen 258b it would be much better if → שלש were read for שלשה, but the different renderings of these two names in Sept. argues against it. It is much more preferable to take שלשה as a diminutive form of שלש, cf. the n.m. צַפְרָה (ו) bird, and the n.f. צַפְרָה little bird; see Stamm Ersatznamen 330 = Stamm Fschr. 126; under צַפְרָה there is a reference to the diminutive function of the Akk. ending -atu(m) in personal names: a member of the tribe of Asher, or alternatively an important member of a clan of that tribe 1C 7₃₇. †

שלשום, שלשום: שלש (Bauer-Leander Heb. 504k; Meyer Gramm. §41: 6); SamP. šal-šom; a composite form from šališ* third, and from yōm/yām* day; the same as Akk. šalšūmī, El Amarna šalšāmi the day before yesterday (AHW. 1150b; see also von Soden Gramm. §72b; CAD Š/1, 268a, sv. šalšūmī; see also 262a: šalšāmi: a western Semitic word occurring once in El Amarna).

שָׁם: locative שָׁמָּה; Heb. inscr., Tell Arad 24:20 שָׁמָּה to there (Pardee UF 10 (1978) 320); 17:4 מִשָּׁם from there (Pardee loc. cit. 312); שָׁם there (Lachish 4:5); שָׁמָּה to there (Lachish 4:8); see Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 194; Gibson Syrian Semitic Inscriptions 1: 41, 42; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 307; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1159 sv. *šm*₄; SamP. שָׁם and שָׁמָּה alternate in the Pentateuch, but both are pronounced šamma; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 223) שָׁמָּה שָׁמָּה; JArm. שָׁם there; → BArm. שָׁמָּה with instances from the other Arm. dialects; Moabite שָׁם there (Mesha. 30), מִשָּׁם from there (Mesha. 12, 17, 33); see Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 181; Gibson Syrian Semitic Inscriptions 1: 74, 77; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary loc. cit.; Ph. שָׁם (Karatepe, Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 26:ii:1); see Friedrich *Gramm.*² §248a; Tomback Lexicon 320; Neo-Punic שָׁם, see Friedrich and Tomback loc. cit.

Ug. tm, tmt, tmny (Gordon Textbook §19:2692, 2699; Aistleitner Wb. 2881; Gibson *Myths*² 160a) there; cf. Aartun Partikeln 4.

Akk. šumma if, in case (AHw. 1272f; CAD Š/3, 275); for this cf. Arb. tumma see below; according to Moran JCS 7 (1953) 78-80, who is followed by Dahood Biblica 38 (1957) 306-309, in El Amarna šumma functions in the main clause with the meaning look!; on this also cf. Whitley Biblica 55 (1974) 394-398 for an alleged use of Heb. וַשֵּׁ with the meaning look!; see further below 6a).

Deir ‘Alla I 8:7 šm there (Hoftijzer Deir Alla 196, 308); cf. Müller ZAW 94 (1982) 217, 218, 233; H. und M. Weippert ZDPV 98 (1982) 93.

Arb. tamma there, tumma then.

—1. with local significance: a) וַשֵּׁ there, over there Gn 2₁₂ Am 7₁₂, to there Gn 2₈, אֲשֶׁר where Gn 13₃ 2S 15₂₁, from where Jr 19₁₄; וַשֵּׁ וַשֵּׁ here ... there Is 28₁₀, so also Wildberger Jes. 1052; see also p. 1053f, where further suggestions are given for the interpretation of this passage.

—b) cj.: α) Jr 13₁₆ pr. לְצִלְמוֹת וְשָׁמָּה prop. with Sept. צִלְמוֹת וְשָׁם, so KBL, cf. BHS :: MT and he turns it into darkness; so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 92; ZüB; TOB; NRSV: he turns it into gloom; REB: deep gloom; β) Ezk 39₁₁ pr. בְּיִשְׂרָאֵל מִקוֹמֵשׁ קִבְר בְּיִשְׂרָאֵל prop. with Sept. Vulg. מִקוֹם שָׁם, so KBL; Fohrer Ezechiel 217 :: MT; so Zimmerli Ezechiel 923, 930 somewhere in Israel for a grave for him (for Gog), cf. ZüB; TOB.

—2. with temporal significance: (also Samaritan תְּמוֹן) a) then, at that time, just then Ps 14₅ 132₁₇.

—b) cj. Ps 36₁₃ pr. שָׁם prop. שָׁמָּה, so Gunkel Ps. 151, 153; Kraus Ps. 431, 432; for MT see ZüB; Weiser *Ps.*⁷ 205; 210; TOB (see under 3).

—3. with either local or temporal significance: a) Ps 36₁₃ MT: שָׁם in the sense of there, so Weiser loc. cit.; TOB with note; REB: there they lie; NRSV similarly :: שָׁם meaning then, so ZüB.

—b) Ps 66₆ there, so Kraus Ps. 614, 617; TOB; Weiser *Ps.*⁷ 318, 320; NRSV and REB: there we rejoiced in him :: Gunkel Ps. 276, 278 cj. then, so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon.

—c) Jb 23₇ there, so Fohrer Hiob 362, 365f; NRSV: there an upright person could reason with him; REB: there in his court the upright are vindicated :: then, so Hölscher Hiob 58; TOB.

—4. with a preposition: מִשָּׁם (see above Tell Arad and Mesha.): a) from there Gn 2₁₀ 11_{8,9} Is 65₂₀, on which see Duhm Jes. 479, 480; Ezk 5₃; Hos 2₁₇, see Rudolph Hos. 73, 77; Wolff *Hos.*² 36, 51; אֲשֶׁר מִשָּׁם from where Dt 9₂₈.

—b) locally or temporally Jr 50₉: α) from over there, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 300; Zorell Lexicon; Weiser Jer. (ATD 21) 427; cf. TOB with note; NRSV: from there; REB simi-larly; β) from thence KBL; cf. Gesenius-B.

—c) used with a preposition in a subordinate clause (Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §152b): α) יֵצְאוּ מִשָּׁם פְּלִשְׁתִּים אֲשֶׁר the place from which (פְּסָלְחִים) the Philistines come Gn 10₁₄; β) referring to הָאֲדָמָה, the arable ground אֲשֶׁר לָקַח מִשָּׁם from which he had been taken Gn 3₂₃, γ) referring to flour and oil, קִמְצָה עֲשִׂי-לִי מִשָּׁם make me a little dough cake from it 1K 17₁₃.

—5. שָׁמָּה (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 529x; Meyer Gramm. §45: 3c): a) to there Gn 19₂₀.

—b) there Gn 23₁₃ Is 34₁₅ Jr 18₂ Ps 76₄, שְׁמָהּ יְהוָה Yahweh is there (a name for Jerusalem at the time of the end) Ezk 48₃₅.

—c) אֵשֶׁר שָׁמָּה to where, whither Gn 20₁₃, where 2K 23₈.

—6. various other instances: a) שֵׁן meaning look!, corresponding to Akk. šumma in El Amarna (see above). This is the meaning that Dahood (see Biblica 38 (1957) 306-310 and Ps. 3: 410) would like to give to this Hebrew particle in the following instances: Ju 5₁₁ 1S 4₇ Ps 14₅ 36₁₃ 48₇ 53₆ 66₆ 68₂₈; Gray JSS 22 (1977) 17 agrees with him for Ps 68₂₈; and so also e.g. W.H. Irwin Isaiah 28-33: Translation with Philological Notes (Biblica et Orientalia 30, 1977) 158f, on Is 33₂₁; see also L. Sabottka Zephanja. Versuch einer Neuübersetzung mit philologischem Kommentar (Biblica et Orientalia 25, 1972) 53f, on Zeph 1₁₄. This opinion is not at all convincing, with the possible exception of 1S 7₆; but here שֵׁן is missing from the Sept. and could be treated as an addition; on this see Stoebe I. Sam. 168.

—b) Gn 49_{24b} textual uncertainty; MT רְעֵה אֶבֶן יִשְׂרָאֵל מִשָּׁם (see previously I רְעֵה B subst. 4a); of the Vrss. Vulg. supports MT with inde pastor egressus est lapis Israhel; Sept. follows MT only at the beginning and then goes its own way with ἐκεῖθεν ἰ κατισχύσας Ἰσραηλ; Pesh. (cf. Tg.) w men šem rā'yā' dkēpā' d'isrā'el from the name of the shepherd of the stone of Israel; from the Pesh. comes the cj. pr. מִשָּׁם prop. מִשָּׁם from the name (SamP. miššam; in the Samaritan Tg. also the reading מִתְּמוֹן corresponds to מִשָּׁם); here it remains open whether to leave the remaining part of MT as it is (as TOB does; so also H.J. Zobel BZAW 95 (1965) 5-23; NRSV: by the name of the Shepherd of the Rock of Israel), or whether to delete either רְעֵה (רְעֵה) or אֶבֶן as a gloss, on which cf. Gunkel Gen. 485, 486; Maag ThR 28 (1958) 8 = Maag Fschr. 120f; Westermann Gen. 3: 248, 272; ZüB; REB: by the name of the Shepherd of Israel.

It is not plausible to replace רְעֵה by עֹזֵר because of ἰ κατισχύσας of Sept., see BHS.

שָׁם (864 times): primary noun, for general Semitic, see Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 140-143; Bergsträsser Einführung 188; Brockelmann Vergl. Gramm. 1: 333-334; THAT 2: 935f (with bibliography).

A. a) Heb. inscr. שָׁם הַיּוֹם literally the name of the day, meaning the date (Tell Arad 1:4, see Pardee UF 10 (1978) 291, 294; = שָׁם הַיּוֹם Ezk 24₂; SamP. šam, Samaritan שָׁם šam; MHeb. שָׁם (Dalman Wb. 427a) and שָׁם (שָׁם and שָׁם joined with לְ and מִן; Dalman Wb. 417b), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 222f) שָׁם, according to BHeb. probably to be read as שָׁם.

—b) in the cognate languages it usually means name, the same as in Heb.; in personal names it is also analogous to descendant (i.e. the one who carries the name), see Gröndahl Personennamen 193; JArm. שָׁמָּה abs., שָׁם and שָׁם, see Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 140; Dalman Wb. 417a; → BArm. שָׁם, also for instances in the other Arm. dialects. In Ebla the personal name šum-ra-bu means the name or the descendant (of the god) is great, see H.P. Müller in Cagni Ebla 217; in Amorite personal names it occurs as sam, sum-, šum* (Huffmon Names 247f).

Ug. šm (Gordon Textbook §19:2426; Aistleitner Wb. 2620; Gibson *Myths*² 158b); for personal names see Gröndahl Personennamen 31, 34, 117, 193f, 355b, 414a; the syllabic spellings šu-um and šum (referred to on pp. 193 and 355f) support a pronunciation of the sbst. with u, cf. Amorite, Akk. and JArm., on which see already Gordon Textbook §19:2426.

Akk. šumu(m) name, fame, son, offspring (AHw. 1274f; CAD Š/3, 284a; also sv. 5e (p. 296b) meaning a line of text).

Ph., Punic and Neo-Punic šm (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 306f; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1155, *šm*₁; Tomback Lexicon 321f); for use in personal names see Benz Names 419, and Kornfeld Graffiti 194f, citing šmbʿl meaning name (in the sense of offspring) of Baal.

OSArb. sm, which is often used as the first element of a theophoric personal name (Conti Rossini Chrest 197b; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 126; see also Ryckmans Noms 1: 239a, 266, 306b); Eth. sim (Dillmann Lex. 340f), so also Tigr. (Littmann-H. Wb. 175a), the latter following Nöldeke Neue Beitr. 142 = sim; Arb. ism.

Meyer Gramm. §31.2a); cf. Akk. (Old Babylonian) mannum šumka (AHw. 1274b sv. šumu(m) A 4); the same as Eth. mannu semka (Dillmann Lex. 340).

—c) giving someone their name: α) with שָׁם שְׁמוֹ אַבְיִמֶלֶךְ/אַבְרָהָם: שֵׁם he gave him the name of Abimelech/Abraham Ju 8₃₁ Neh 9₇, שָׁם לָהֶם שְׁמוֹת, Da 1₇; β) with קָרָא שֵׁם לְ: קָרָא to announce a name for, give a name to someone > לְ קָרָא to name (→ I קָרָא A2a, where the relevant instances are given); γ) various other instances: cf. כָּנָה pi. to give someone an honorific name Is 45₄ Jb 42₁₄ etc. (→ כָּנָה); כִּי אֶמְיִשְׂרָאֵל לֹא יַעֲקֹב יְאֹמֵר עוֹד שְׁמוֹךְ (כָּנָה); וַיִּסַּב אֶת-שְׁמוֹ יְהוֹיָקִים, and he changed his name to Jehoiakim 2K 23_{34/2C} 36₄, cf. 2K 24₁₇, on which see THAT 2: 944.

—dα) שָׁם הַיּוֹם the date Ezk 24₂ (see above Aa, Tell Arad); β) שָׁם חָדַשׁ Is 62₂, יָדַע בְּשֵׁם God knew Moses by name Ex 33₁₂; בְּשֵׁמוֹת הַפְּתוּבִים those registered by name 1C 4₄₁; הַבְּאִים בְּשֵׁמוֹת textual uncertainty, traditionally those registered by name 1C 4₃₈, but on this see BHS and Rudolph Chr. 40; cf. also KBL: to bear a name; בְּשֵׁמוֹת כָּלֵם all with (known) names Ezr 10₁₆, see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 96; בְּשֵׁמוֹת נִקְבּוּ they had been designated by name Nu 1₁₇ etc. (→ נִקַּב nif.), פָּקַד בְּשֵׁמוֹת to assign by name Nu 4₃₂ (→ פָּקַד qal 4c); בְּנֵי בְלִי-שֵׁם people without a name Jb 30₈; בְּשֵׁם mentioning the name of David, meaning in the name of David 1S 25₅, of Ahasuerus Est 3₁₂; writing letters in the name of Ahab 1K 21₈, cf. EgArm. בשמי in my name (Cowley Arm. Pap. 313a).

—2. name in an intensified sense, meaning standing, reputation: a) שם name: a good name Pr 22₁ (? insert with Sept. טוב) Qoh 7₁ :: רע שם Dt 22₁₄₋₁₉ Neh 6₁₃ (on קרא שם Ru 4₁₁ → קרא A2b); טמאת השם with a sullied reputation Ezk 22₅, cf. the rendering in Zimmerli Ez. 502: you who are renowned for impurity.

—b) fame, reputation: α) עשה לו שם he made a name for himself; cf. Akk. šuma(m) šakānu(m) to make a name, establish a reputation (AHw. 1275a; CAD Š/3, 293a, sv. šumu 2c): Gn 11₄, on which see Westermann Gen. 1: 729; Is 63₁₂ Jr 32₂₀ Neh 9₁₀, cf. 2S 8₁₃; עשה שם גדול to make a great name 2S 7₉, according to Morenz ZÄgS 79 (1954) 73f it is the translation of an Egyptian expression which belongs to the royal titulary, iry rn “to make a name”. According to von Rad *Ges. Stud.*³ 212 the expression is not to be understood in the general sense of to make famous; it is much more likely to involve a deliberate reference to the ceremonial endowment of a name by the deity which was a part of the ritual for the enthronement festival in Judah; β) שם גדל Gn 12₂ (SamP. hif. wagdīla, also Samaritan variant וואגדילה); שם לשם with acc. of the person Zeph 3₁₉, and שם לנתן with acc. of the person Dt 26₁₉ to make someone famous; שם לו שם to make a name for him 2S 7₂₃; שם לך שם your fame extends Ezk 16₁₄; על-שמוך according to your reputation Ezk 16₁₅; ב שמו ער-וילך his fame stretched to 2C 26₈.

—3. שם name, commemoration, reputation after death Jb 18₁₇, שם יד נתן to establish a monument and an epitaph Is 56₅ (→ יד 6a); שם ושאר a name (fame) and posterity Is 14₂₂; שם ושארית a name and posterity, meaning descendants 2S 14₇ (→ שארית 4); זרע ושם Is 66₂₂; שם in parallelism with זכר remembrance, commemoration Jb 18₁₇ Pr 10₇.

—4. name, commemoration, continuation (in those who continue to bear the name): a) אנשי שם Nu 16₂ and אנשי שמות 1C 5₂₄ men who maintain the name of a family, who give their names to their descendants (Pedersen Isr. 1-2: 245ff) meaning famous men, cf. Gn 6₄.

—b) קם על-שם אחיו Dt 25₆ he goes under the name of his brother (KBL), cf. Zorell Lexicon 856a: registered in the name of his brother; הקים לאחיו שם בישראל to maintain upright (NRSV: to perpetuate) a name for (? the name of) his brother in Israel (referring to the obligation to enter a levirate marriage) Dt 25₇; :: הניח שם לשבועה to leave behind a name as a curse Is 65₁₅ (→ שבועה 2a), cf. מחה Dt 9₁₄ 2K 14₂₇ Ps 9₆, Dt 25₆ nif; גרע Nu 27₄, הכרית Jos 7₉ Zeph 1₄ Zech 13₂, השמיד 1S 24₂₂.

II. the name of God, cf. especially O. Grether BZAW 64 (1934) 17ff; see above C; THAT 2: 949ff.

—1. שמי יהוה Ex 6₃, שמו יהוה Jr 10₁₆ 33₂ Am 4₁₃ 5₈₋₂₇ 9₆; קנא שמו יהוה as for Yahweh his name is “jealous” Ex 34₁₄, so with Noth Ex. 5: 213; השם הנכבד והנורא הזה Dt 28₅₈; קדשי שם Lv 20₃ Ezk 36₂₀ 39₇ 43₇ Am 2₇; קדשו שם Ps 103₁.

—2. for expressions with שם יהוה, and less frequently with שם אלהים (also שמי, שמך, שמוך, משו), see the lists in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 840; Grether loc. cit. 37f (of these only some are presented here).

—a) with acc., or alternatively dative: אָהַב Is 56₆ Ps 5_{12a} 69₃₇ 119₁₃₂; בִּרְךְּ to praise the name Ps 96₂ 100₄ 103₁ etc., בָּרוּךְ שֵׁם כְּבוֹדוֹ Ps 72₁₉, הַלֵּל Jl 2₂₆ Ps 69₃₁ 74₂₁ etc.; זָכַר Ps 119₅₅, hif. to praise the name Is 26₁₃; זָמַר Ps 7₁₈ 9₃, 61₉ 66₄ with acc., Ps 18₅₀/2S 22₅₀ and Ps 66₄ with לְ; I הַלֵּל Jr 34₁₆ Ezk 20₃₉ 36₂₀₋₂₁.

—b) ... בְּשֵׁם, on which see Grether loc. cit. 44, Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 840, and especially Brongers loc. cit. —c) special expressions: α) אֶזְכֹּר Ex 20₂₄ (→ זָכַר hif. 2): I allow my name to be mentioned; NRSV: I cause my name to be remembered; REB: I cause my name to be invoked :: THAT 2: 951: where I announce my name; on this cf. also J. Halbe Das Privilegrecht Jahwes Ex 34, 10-26 (FRLANT 114 (1975) 370f); for אֱלֹהִים אֶזְכֹּר → זָכַר hif. 4), see THAT 2: 952, and Brongers loc. cit. 17f: נִזְכָּר Ps 20₈ we boast, profess (MT :: HAL 259b; HALOT 270b, sv. זָכַר hif. 4: pr. MT prop. נִגְבִּיר; NRSV: our pride; REB: our boast; β) נִקְרָא שֵׁם עַל as an expression of the right to possession and rule (→ I קרא nif. 5), THAT 2: 957f, γ) נִשָּׂא אֶת־שֵׁם־יְהוָה לְשׂוֹא to utter the name of Yahweh in vain Ex 20₇ Dt 5₁₁, see THAT 2: 953 (with bibliography); δ) שָׁכַן pi., שֵׁם, שָׁכַן (→ שָׁכַן pi. with occurrences and bibliography); cf. שָׁמוֹ שֵׁם שׁוֹמְרוֹ (with הַמְּקוֹם) Dt 12₅₋₂₁ 14₂₄ 2C 20₂₆; (with הָעִיר) 1K 11₃₆ 14₂₁/2C 12₁₃; with יְרוּשָׁלַיִם and שֵׁם (→ שֵׁם 11 a); cf. שֵׁם יְשׁוּסִים Is 18₇, מוֹשְׁכֵי־שִׁמְךָ Ps 74₇, לְהִיּוֹת שִׁמְיָא 1K 8₁₆, שֵׁם יְהוָה שִׁמְיָא 1K 8₂₉ 2K 23₂₇.

—3. in many cases שֵׁם יְהוָה means not only the name but the full being and power of Yahweh (see KBL 984a). This becomes evident in the following instances of שֵׁם.

—a) שֵׁם יְהוָה as an interchangeable expression for Yahweh; on the citations and their chronological distribution, see Grether loc. cit. 26ff and 35ff; THAT 2: 955f. Older texts, though their genuineness has been questioned, include Is 30₂₇, where שֵׁם is most probably a gloss, on which see Wildberger Jes. 207; Am 2_{7b}, on which see Wolff Jl.-Am. 160, 163; Mi 5₃, on which see (as an original title for the Messiah) Rudolph Mi.-Nah.-Hab.-Zef. 98, and Wolff Mi. 118f; see further e.g. Lv 18₂₁ 19₁₂ etc., 1K 8₃₃₋₃₅₋₄₃ = 2C 6₂₄₋₂₆₋₃₃ Is 24₁₅ 25₁ 26₁₃ etc., Ps 5₁₂ 7₁₈ 9₃₋₁₁ Ps 18₅₀/2S 22₅₀ etc.

—b) שֵׁם as an independent entity (an expression for the might and splendour of Yahweh), see Grether loc. cit. 44f; THAT 2: 956f (with bibliography); either as the sbj. of a nominal sentence (with an adj. or pt. as predicate): גָּדוֹל Jr 10₆ Mal 1₁₁, נוֹרָא Mal 1₁₄, נִשְׁגָּב Is 12₄, אֲדִיר Ps 8₂₋₁₀; or used as the sbj. of a verbal sentence, so Ps 20₂ with שָׁגַב pi., Ps 54₉ with נִצַּל hif. It is uncertain whether שֵׁם here has the function of a hypostasis (so e.g. Grether loc. cit.), or whether שֵׁם means something like Yahweh in person, or alternatively Yahweh in his splendour, so THAT 2: 956f; cf. also the n.m. > name of a tribe *שְׁמִידָע → שְׁמִידָע.

—c) שְׁמִי בְּקִרְבּוֹ my name is in him, in particular in מִלְאָךְ, the messenger of Yahweh Ex 23₂₁, which is an expression for the presence of Yahweh in the person of his messenger; see THAT 2: 957.

—4. particular instances: a) לְמַעַן שְׁמִי Is 48₉ 66₅ Ezk 20_{9,14,22,44}, לְמַעַן שְׁמִי/שְׁמִיךָ Ps 25₁₁ 31₄ 79₉ 109₂₁ 143₁₁ 2C 6₃₂, שְׁמוֹ לְמַעַן שְׁמוֹ Ps 23₃ 106₈ for my (your, his) name's sake; more often there are overtones with the might of Yahweh (1K 8₄₁) and with his glory (Is 48₉ Jr 14₂₁) associated here, so THAT 2: 959.

—b) the name of Yahweh as bringing salvation, so Kraus Ps. 1119 on Ps 143₁₁: the name is one which has the power of salvation, which is the abiding witness on the earth of God's grace and his readiness to give help; cf. also Kraus Ps. 3: 21-24.

—c) שֵׁם לְנָשִׁים gossip about the whore Oholah Ezk 23₁₀, on which see Zimmerli Ex. 528, 531.

—5. cj.: a) Gn 4₁₇ pr. בְּנֵי כְּשָׁם prop. כְּשָׁמוֹ, so e.g. BHK³ and Westermann Gen. 1: 437, 443f.

—b) Ps 138₂ pr. כָּל-שְׁמִיךָ וְאִמְרָתְךָ prop. הַשָּׁמַיִם שְׁמִיךָ or כָּל-שְׁמִיךָ וְאִמְרָתְךָ you have raised your name and your word above your (or the) heavens; see BHS, and Kraus Ps. 1086, 1087.

II שֵׁם: (= I שֵׁם, SamP. šem) name of a people > n.m.; also as n.m. in Heb inscr. אַחִיהוּ, שֵׁם, see N. Avigad A Group of Hebrew Seals (Eretz Israel 9 (1969) 5); also Ph. šm (Benz Names 180), but this is perhaps a short form of a name from a full form like šmbʿl (see above I שֵׁם A). For further possibilities, but with uncertain full forms, see Benz Names 418: Shem.

—a) the eldest son of נֹחַ Gn 5₃₂ 6₁₀ 7₁₃ 9₁₈₋₂₃. 26f 10₁. 21f. 31 11_{10f} 1C 1_{4,17-24} Sir 49₁₆; on the Semites (as a modern term) see Bauer-Leander 1b.

—b) together with אָדָם and יִפְתָּח, the ancestors of all human beings who have lived after the Flood; according to Gn 9_{26f} a covert name for later Israel, cf. Westermann Gen. 1: 659; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1769; on which see also Zobel ZAW 85 (1973) 289: Shem used to occur in the earlier (now lost) stages of these expressions to indicate a developing state organisation in the mountain territory of Judah and the Negev during the time of the Judges, which we could call “greater Judah”; cf. also Zobel Beiträge zur Geschichte Gross-Judas in früh- und vordavidischer Zeit (VTSupp. 28 (1975) 253-277); for a different view of the early אָדָם-group see H.F. Richter in BN 34 (1986) 55f. †

—1. descendant of אִשָּׁר, or alternatively leader of a clan counted as part of this tribe 1C 7₃₇.

—2. the son of one of the three heroes of David 2S 23₁₁ (→ שְׁמוֹה 5). †

9710 שְׁמַאֲבָר

9711 שְׁמַאָה

שְׁמַאָה: n.m., 1C 8₃₂ Sept.^{RA} Σεμαα, Sept.^A Σαμεα, Sept.^L Σαμαα = 1C 9₃₈ שְׁמַאָה, Sept.^{RA} Σεμαα, Sept.^A Σαμα; for the interchange of ה and מ in the two forms of the personal name see Krauss ZAW 48 (1930) 321-24, especially 324. The meaning of the personal name is uncertain, on which see Noth Personennamen 259a under שְׁמַאָה: probably a very much shortened form of שְׁמַע, שְׁמַר or similar: a Benjaminite in Jerusalem, probably the ancestor of a clan which was living there 1C 8₃₂ 9₃₈. †

9712 שְׁמִיגָר

שְׁמִיגָר: n.m., Sept. Σαμεγαρ; Josephus Σεμέγαρος (Schalit Namenwb. 106); the name is Hurrian from Šimigar(i) Šimig has given, on which see Feiler ZA 45 (1939) 221f, where further instances of Šimig/Šimike are mentioned; with reference to Ug. Šmg/Tmg, see also Aistleitner Wb. 2624 and 2882; Gröndahl Personennamen 253: šimiga was the Hurrian god of the sun (Haussig Wb. Myth. 1: 198, and V. Haas Berggötter 198).

The Assyrian form of the personal name is Šangara, which occurs as the name of a late Hittite ruler of Carchemish (Tallqvist Names 192b), see Luckenbill Ancient Records 1: 165 and 204; Pritchard Texts 235b, 277b :: van Selms VT 14 (1964) 294-309, especially 300f: the personal name is Semitic, a šafel form from the root m-g-r (Akk. magāru, see AHW. 575f; CAD M/1, 34), but this is less likely.

On this see also de Vaux Histoire 2: 127f (with bibliography): שְׁמִיגָר בֶּן-עֲנַת a figure from the early period before Israel became a nation Ju 3₃₁ 5₆. According to Ju 3₃₁ שְׁמִיגָר would have belonged to the twelve “judges”, but this verse has been inserted as a later supplement between 3₃₀ and 4₁, and therefore no conclusion can be drawn from it about any official position of the one named as such. But the tradition about the name, and probably also about the belief in his heroic actions deserves attention; unfortunately the patro-nymic בֶּן-עֲנַת which occurs in both instances does not provide us with any further clues, for the meaning of it (→ עֲנַת) is disputed.

There is a pertinent attempt to put the hero into a historical framework by Donner Geschichte 159, who suggests the possibility of Šamgar being a Canaanite city prince who gained the support of the neighbouring groups of Israelites who knew him for his antagonism towards the Philistines. On the extent of the territory under the control of Šamgar, and the period when he exercised power, see Alt Kl. Schr. 1: 261-263; cf. further Täubler Richter 170; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1662 (with bibliography). †

שְׁמַד: MHeb. 1) pi. to cause to default from the law, pu. pt. מְשַׁדֵּם apostate, hitp. to become disloyal (Dalman Wb. 427a); 2) DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 223), the same as BHeb. —2. horror Is 24₁₂, with שאר nif.; Jr 8₂₁, with חִזַּק hif; כּוּס שְׂמָה וְשֹׂמָמָה a cup of devastation and horror, NRSV: horror and desolation, REB: uttermost ruin Ezk 23₃₃.

—3. pl. שְׂמֹת an event causing horror, astonishment, agitation Ps 46₉, with שׁוֹמֵ/שִׁים :: Dahood Psalms 1: 281.

—4. cj. Is 30₆ MT מִשָּׂא בְּהֵמוֹת נִגְבַּי, while the Vrss. are united in rendering בְּהֵמוֹת by animals, they disagree with one another regarding מִשָּׂא: Sept. -]141 ὄρασις; Vulg. onus; Pesh. mašqlā proclamation (Brockelmann Lex. 800a: edictum); Tg. differently; of these Vulg. and Pesh. are equally probable. With slightly less adherence to the MT Wildberger Jes. 1157, 1158 reads מִשָּׂא בְּהֵמוֹת בְּנִגְבַּי the burden of the animals in the Negev :: ZüB: proclamation about the animals in the Negev. Although a clear choice regarding the translation of מִשָּׂא can not be made, proposing repeated emendation of בְּהֵמוֹת to בְּשִׂמֹת in the deserts of the Negev should be rejected in view of the Vrss. :: e.g. HAL 108a sub בְּהֵמָה (the first of the emendations at the end of entry); see also W. Dietrich Jesaja und die Politik (Beiträge zur evang. Theologie 74 (1976) 141); on this question see also Wildberger loc. cit. †

II שָׁמָה: n.m., SamP. šāmā; Sept. Σομε Gn 36_{13.17} 1C 1₃₇, variant Sept.^A Σομμε; Σαμ(μ)α, Σαμαα 1S 16, 17₁₃; Σαμαια 2S 23₁₁, vs. ³³ Σαμμα (with variation); Σαμαι 2S 23₂₅ (with variation); Josephus variants Σαμᾶ(ς), also Σουμᾶ(ς), Σάμαλος (cf. Schalit Namenwb. 106); Vulg. Suma; ? cuneiform *Ša-ma*³ (Tallqvist Names 208b), but, following Tallqvist Names, this is more likely to be associated with → שָׁמַע; Lihyanic šmh (Moritz ZAW 44 (1926) 87); the explanation of the personal name is questionable; according to Noth Personennamen 39, 185, it is a short form of a name constructed with שָׁמַע. This is suggested because this verb is also an element in the surviving by-forms of the name in II שָׁמָה 2. In any case it also seems possible to assume that it is a short form of שָׁמַרְיָה(ו), and this is more likely than mak-ing a connection with a personal name constructed with שָׁמַשׁ; in KBL this was still considered possible, but though it is a common pattern in Akk., it is not common in BHeb. For an attempt to find an etymology from Egyptian see Weippert Edom 254.

—1. a descendant of Esau, an Edomite tribe Gn 36₁₃ 1C 1₃₇, according to Gn 36₁₇ → אֶלְיָרִי; NRSV: clan; margin: chief.

—2. the son of Jesse, older brother of David 1S 16, 17₁₉, = שָׁמַעָה 2S 13_{3.32}; 21₂₁ (K שָׁמַעִי, Q שָׁמַעָה), = שָׁמַעָה 1C 2₁₃ 20₇.

—3. one of the thirty heroes of David, הַחֲרָדִי 2S 23₂₅, on which see Elliger Kl. Schr. 82-84 = שָׁמֹת 1C 11₂₇.

—4. the father of one of the thirty heroes of David 2S 23_{32f}, textual emendation, prop. with Sept.^{MSS} see BHS בְּנֵי־שָׁמָה יְהוֹנָתָן, cf. Elliger loc. cit. 74, 97-99.

—5. שָׁמָא (with variant שָׁמָה), the son of אֲנָא, one of the thirty heroes surrounding David 2S 23₁₁, but on this see Elliger loc. cit. 74⁵ with reference to 1C 11₃₄. 1C 27₈ → שָׁמַהוֹת. †

9717 שָׁמַהוֹת

שָׁמַהוֹת: n.m.; Sept. Σαμαωθ; for an explanation of the personal name see Noth Personennamen 259a, and subsequently Rudolph Chr. 178: Shamhuth is a combination of the variants שָׁמֹת 1C 11₂₇ and שָׁמָה 2S 23₂₅, → II שָׁמָה 3 :: KBL: the commander of the division of the army on duty for the fifth month in the time of David 1C 27₈. †

9718 שָׁמוּאֵל

שָׁמוּאֵל: n.m.; SamP. šāmuwṵal; Sept. Σαμουηλ, Nu 34₂₀ Σαλαμιηλ; a personal name which has many precedents: in Amorite and in Ugaritic the element which corresponds to Heb. שָׁמוֹ is sumu/samu/šumu; for Amorite see Buccellati Amorites 180, and especially Bauer Ostk. 38-40; see also Huffmon Names 234-249; for Ugaritic see Gröndahl Personennamen 193f; of the Amorite personal names Su-mu-AN (il or ēl) is most closely comparable with שָׁמוּאֵל; for Su-mu-AN see Bauer loc. cit. 39; furthermore for Sumu-El as the name of one of the kings of Larsa, see Walters RA 67 (1973) 21-40; Kingsbury RA 71 (1977) 9-16; also Durand RA 71 (1977) 26-32. In such personal names the element Su-mu (su-mu/šumu) can be taken either a) as a theophoric element with il/ēl as predicate: Sumu / שָׁמֹ is god, so Noth Personennamen 123, 140; KBL; R. Zadok WdO 9 (1977-1978) 54; see also Stoebe 1. Sam. 92, 97 :: Kopft VT 8 (1958) 209f: אֵל + שָׁמוֹ root שָׁמָה (cf. Arb. *samā*³) to be high, exalted; or b) as the nomen regens to the name of a deity; the son of god, so Bauer Ostk. 66.

So the meaning of this element is uncertain; any decision between these two proposals (a and b) must probably remain open. The explanation of the personal name in 1S 1₂₇ is of no further help, inasmuch as it fits שְׂאוּל rather than שְׂמוּאֵל; on this see e.g. Noth Personennamen 136², and Fichtner VT 6 (1956) 384¹: Samuel.

—1. the son of אֵלִיָּקָנָה, a judge in Israel; on his role in the establishment of the monarchy see e.g. H. Wildberger Jahwe und sein Volk. Gesammelte Aufsätze zum AT (ThB 66 (1979) 28-55); cf. Reicke-Rost Hw. 1663f; KBL; approximately 125 times; 1S 1_{20nd.25:1} 28_{3·11·12}·14-16_{.20}·Jr 15·Ps 99₆·1C 6_{13·18}, cj. vs. 12 see BHS, 9₂₂·11₃·26₂₈·29₂₉·2C 35₁₈·Sir 46₁₃.

The personal name means the one who is heard, so Wallis loc. cit.; cf. also Stamm Fschr. 46. It is a descriptive name for a sentence name composed with שָׁמַעַ, and can probably function also as a short form for such a name; so Noth Personennamen 38, 185; KBL; Kornfeld Onomastica; cf. also Bauer-Leander Heb. 480t.

Mnd. šmita, variant šmata Drower-Macuch Dictionary 469b) hearing, listening, attention; Eth. semū' pt. passive, heard, meaning renowned, pl. semūt'āt things that have been heard, meaning rumour (Dillmann Lex. 338): cstr. שְׂמוּעָת, sf. שְׂמוּעָתוֹ, pl. שְׂמוּעוֹת.

—1. report, news: a) 1S 4₁₉ (אֵל about), 2S 4₁₃₃₀·1K 2₂₈·10_{7/2C 9}₆·2K 19_{7/Is 37}₇·Is 28₁₉, see Wildberger Jes. 1070, 1078, Jr 10₂₂·49_{14/Ob 1}·Jr 51₄₆·Ezk 7₂₆·21₁₂.

—b) רָעָה שׁ bad news Jr 49₂₃ Ps 112₇, טוֹבָה שׁ good news 1S 2₂₄ Pr 15₃₀ 25₃₅.

—2. pl. rumours Da 11₄₄.

—3. a) מֵאֵת יְהוָה שׁ a message from Yahweh communicated by a prophet Jr 49₁₄/Ob 1.

—b) שְׁמוּעָה revelation Is 28₉, see Wildberger Jes. 1052, 1059.

—4. particular expressions: a) שְׁמַעְתֶּנּוּ Is 53₁ literally (KBL) the things heard by us (NRSV and REB: what we have heard), which can now of course be differently interpreted: α) what we have to reveal (KBL) meaning revelation, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Duhm *Jes.*⁴ 395; similarly Paul Volz Jesaia II, (1932) 169: passive, what has been revealed to us; β) proclamation, so König Wb. 510b; also Zorell Lexicon 858a, who together with the renderings doctrina, monitio also has praedicatio; γ) news, or more accurately our news, so Westermann Jes. 204, 210; similarly TOB: what we say we have heard. This last rendering corresponds best to the lexical meaning of the sbst. and also to the general context, and is therefore probably to be preferred; on this see especially Kaiser *Knecht*² 94f).

—b) Ezk 16₅₆: MT אַחֲוֵיךָ סֵדֶם וְלֹא הִיָּתָה בְּפִיךָ לְשִׁמוּעָה (pr. הֵלֵא prop. וְלֹא or treat it as an equivalent, see vs. 43-47, on which see Zimmerli Ez. 340). The precise rendering of שְׁמוּעָה here is uncertain, for the usual translation of the sbst., as suggested by Sept. and Pesh., is unsatisfactory: Sept. εἰς ἀκοήν ἐν τῷ στόματί σου, Pesh. lṭe'bbā bpūmēky as a rumour in your mouth. This meaning (especially the Pesh.) is closely conveyed by Fohrer *Ez.*² 91: it is infamous in your mouth (literally as news), similarly TOB: it is a subject of slander (gossip) in your mouth; it is translated more freely in ZüB: did you not always have something to talk about?; so also KBL: to be mentioned by one's mouth; REB: did you not speak contemptuously of your sister?; Zimmerli Ez. 333, 341 renders it differently, taking שְׁמוּעָה as meaning a shameful object lesson (as the counterpart of חֲרָפָה vs. 57).

—c) שְׁמוּעָה, variant טוֹבָה שְׁמִיעָה Sir 5₁₁ שְׁמוּעַת שְׁבִיִּים 8₉, according to Smend Weisheit 51 the sbst. means teaching on both occasions; so also KBL; similarly in Smend Die Weisheit des Jesus Sirach Hebräisch und Deutsch for 5₁₁, but against this for 8₉ he has “the tradition of the elders”; see now also G. Sauer Jesus Sirach, who has for 5₁₁ be quick to hear about good things, and for 8₉ you should not despise the stories of the elders; and Ben-Hayyim takes שְׁמִיעָה as the nomen actionis of שָׁמַע, MHeb. qal to maintain a tradition.

שָׁמַר: n.m. 1C 24₂₄ K, Sept. Σαμρηρ = Q → III שָׁמִיר: in accordance with its grammatical form (qal pt. passive) the personal name would mean the one who has been watched, the one who has been protected, a descriptive name for the sentence name שְׁמַרְיָה (וּ) a member of the tribe of לְוִי, the son of עֲזִיָּאל, grandson of קִהָת. †

שְׁמֹת: n.m. 1C 11₂₇, Sept. Σαμμωθ = שְׁמָה 2S 23₂₅, → II שְׁמָה 3. †

cj. שָׁמַח: Arb. samuḥa to be magnanimous, be kind; samaḥa to permit, allow.

qal: impf. יִשְׁמַח, with עָל: cj. Is 9₁₆ pr. לֹא יִשְׁמַח prop. לֹא יִשְׁמַח in 1QIs^a לֹא יִחְמוֹל, which would presumably explain the root שָׁמַח which was no longer understood: to be generous to (KBL); see Wildberger Jes. 203, 206: to take care of, spare so Meyer Gegensinn 5². †

שָׁמַט: MHeb. qal to untie, remove; pi. to loosen, make wide; to absolve sin, see Dalman Wb. 427b; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 222): DJD 1: 22:iii:4, p. 94, 95 [יִדְכֶה] וְשָׁמַטְתָּהּ you will let go your hand: to remit sins; iii:5 יִדְרוּ יִשְׁמִיט [בְּרַעְיוֹן] he will grant his neighbour release from it; JArm. שָׁמַט pe. to untie, slip away, JArm. and Samaritan af. to leave unused, absolve from guilt, cf. ? Frahang שָׁמַט to leave fallow, or perhaps to neglect (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 308) :: to detach, extricate (Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1160).

—Akk. šamātu(m) to strip off, tear loose (AHw. 1155b; CAD Š/1, 308b).

Syr. šmaṭ to pull out, strip away; Mnd. ŠMT (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 469f) to tear off, tear out, uncover, pull out, lead away; Tigrin. šāmtātā to tear out pages (Leslau Contributions 54).

Arb. samaṭa with remarkably different meanings, perhaps going back to homonymous roots: a) Lane Lex. 1426c I to remove, pluck out hair or wool, suspend; II to cleave to something (perhaps this is an opposite meaning); b) Freytag Lexicon 2: 353: I to suspend something, sharpen a knife, fall silent; II to fall silent, absolve a sinner; c) Wehr-Cowan Dict. 430a: I to scald, prepare, get ready.

It should be noted in general that the basic meaning of the root cannot be explained with certainty; according to Gray *Kings*³ 551 it would be to allow to fall. That is what is suggested by BHeb. and it would also be linked to Arb. sammaṭa to absolve a sinner; but this does not lead to a link with the meaning in Akk., Syr. and Mnd., and it could be that we are here dealing with two different roots.

qal: (SamP. only hif., also Ex 23₁₁ Dt 15₂) pf. שָׁמַטוּ, שָׁמַטוּ; impf. sf. תִּשְׁמַטְנָה, וַיִּשְׁמַטוּ; impv. sf. שְׁמַטוּהוּ (2K 9₃₃) rd. Q שְׁמַטוּהוּ; inf. abs. שָׁמַט (SamP. version שָׁמַט).

—1. to let loose, let fall: a) to throw some-one (Jezebel) out of a window 2K 9₃₃ (rd. שְׁמַטוּהוּ); with יָדוּ מִן יָדוּ you shall let go your hand from Jr 17₄ (pr. בָּרָךְ rd. יָרִיךְ following Dt 15₃); NRSV: you shall lose; REB: you shall lose possession.

—b) שָׁמַט אֶרֶץ the land is left to itself, meaning to leave fallow Ex 23₁₁, for leaving land fallow in the seventh year; see Alt Kl. Schr. 1: 327f; de Vaux Inst. 1: 264ff = Lebensordnungen 1: 123; Horst Recht 213ff, 279; and W. Dietrich ThZ 41 (1985) 38: the fallow periods were not simultaneous for the whole country but the fallow period was observed by a particular farmer on particular patches of his land in sequence.

—2. with יָדוּ מִנְשָׂה to abandon a personal debt, forgive, Dt 15₂: מִנְשָׂה יָדוּ, שָׁמַט בְּעַל מִנְשָׂה, cj. מִנְשָׂה יָדוּ (with מִנְשָׂה בְּעַל meaning creditor) the creditor writes off the debt that is owed to him :: Merendino Dt. 12-26 108f: מִנְשָׂה יָדוּ his pledge, his security; see also *מִנְשָׂה.

—3. שָׁמַטוּ הַבָּקָר 2S 6₆ 1C 13₉, no precise meaning is clear, for the Vrss. differ from one another and also translate differently for each passage; for possible interpretations, suggestions and later renderings see Budde Sam. 229. In contrast to his suggestions the plain שָׁמַטוּ can be maintained, and despite Sept., Tg. and Vulg. (on 1C 13₉) the introduction of a suffix *שָׁמַטוּ is not necessary. Among the Vrss. the Pesh. on 2S 6₆ should be taken into account: ʿeštammaṭw lhōn taurē the oxen slip away from the belt (the harness) :: on 1C 13₉ rfhetw hwau lhōn taurē lʾdrā the oxen rushed to the threshing floor. Since Budde later suggestions include: because the oxen almost overturned (ZüB); to leave a cart to itself, meaning it was nearly upset (so KBL); for 2S 6₆ TOB: the oxen were flagging (fléchissaient); and for 1C 13₉: the oxen were on the point of overturning it (the Ark); Hertzberg *Sam.*² 226: for the oxen were over on one side; for both passages NRSV: for the oxen shook it; REB: the oxen stumbled. †

nif: pf. נִשְׁמַטוּ: to be thrown down, Ps 141_{6a}, so e.g. with Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 510b (as a passive to the qal in 2K 9₃₃); but this translation is questionable for the vb. occurs in what is probably a corrupt text, with little connection between the words used in vs._a and those in vs._b, on which see especially Baethgen Ps. 2: 429; for cj. see e.g. Gunkel Ps. 596, 598 and Kraus Ps. 1107, 1108. †

hif: impf. תִּשְׁמַט: to allow to lapse, drop Dt 15₃ (rd. תִּשְׁמַט ?); NRSV: you must remit your claim. †

proclaim a remission Dt 15₂; וְזֶה דְבַר הַשְׁקָרָא שׁ 15₂ and this is how the remission should be handled (ZüB); and the remission is to be explained in the following way (von Rad Dt. 74).

שְׁמִי, שְׁמִי: n.m.; Sept. Σαμαι, Σεμαι 1C 4₁₇; the short form of a full form which can no longer be identified with certainty; according to Noth Personennamen 185 from a personal name composed with the vb. שָׁמַע, so also KBL, where there is also a further reference to שְׁמִי, as probably another form of the abbreviation of what is perhaps the same full name.

—1. a Judaeen from the clan of יְרֵחָמָאֵל, 1C 2₂₈₋₃₂.

—2. a Judaeen, a descendant of כְּלָב, 1C 2_{44f}, on which see Rudolph Chr. 20f.

9727 שְׁמִידָע

שְׁמִידָע: n.m. > name of a tribe; SamP. šēmīdā; Sept. Nu 26₃₂ (= Sept. 26₃₆) Συμαεϱ, Jos 17₂ Sept.^{RA} Συμαριμ (Sept.^B Συμαρ(ε)μ, Sept.^A Σεμιαε), 1C 7₁₉ Σεμια (Pesh. Šemīrā), Vulg. without exception Semida; Heb. inscr., Samaria Ostracon שְׁמִידָע (Diringer Iscrizioni 354); name of a tribe > name of a territory, or alternatively place name; on this cf. Jirku in Sellin Fschr. 84f, and Noth ZDPV 50 (1927) 223: as well as at first being the name of a clan it then comes to designate the territory occupied by that clan. As the original form of the unclear שְׁמִידָע Jirku loc. cit. has proposed שְׁמִידָע Shem has understood, which is accepted by Noth Jos. 96; with Noth Personennamen 181 we accept that יָדַע in personal names probably has a different meaning, to be concerned about, → יָדַע qal 7; on שָׁמַע as an independent element and the subject of sentence names → שָׁמַע 3b; see also Noth Personennamen 123ff, and see above שָׁמַע A: the son of גְּלָעָד, grandson of מְכִיר Nu 26₃₂ Jos 17₂ 1C 7₁₉. According to this genealogy שְׁמִידָע belongs to the territory east of the Jordan, and it must designate a clan of מְכִיר that had settled there; cf. Noth Gesch. Isr. 61f; de Vaux Histoire 1: 540f.

שְׁמִידָע in the Samaria Ostracon as the name of a tribe > the name of a territory in the region of Manasseh, permits the conclusion that there was an ancient connection between the clans from the west of the Jordan and those from the east of the Jordan.

9730 שָׁמַיִם

שָׁמַיִם: A. for Semitic see Bergsträsser Einführung 185; THAT 2: 965; a primary noun; the assumption that the sbst. should be composed with the relative-determinative pronoun ša, to mean that which is of the waters, or the place for water, has to be given up (so Bauer-Leander Heb. 621v; see also KBL with some hesitation; cf. Gesenius-B.) because it is too much focussed on an inner Hebrew explanation; so with e.g. TWNT 5: 501, and THAT 2: 966.

B. In the cognate languages it occurs as follows: MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 223f); Samaritan det. שרומיה šūmayyā, SamP. šāmām corresponding to שָׁמַיִם; JArm. שָׁמַיִא, → BArm. *שָׁמַיִן, also for occurrences in the other Arm. dialects; Ph. šmm (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3: 24b; see also Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 308, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1160 sv. šmym; Tomback Lexicon 322), corresponding to šamēm* (Friedrich *Gramm.*² §226a): the name of the deity bʿl šmm (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 4:3), on which see Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 2: 171-198; Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 182ff; Albright Yahweh 198ff; Haussig *Wb. Ug. šmm (Gordon Textbook §19:2427; Aistleitner Wb. 2627; Gibson *Myths*² 158b), variant šmym (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 19:iv:24, 30); ša-mu-ma (Ugaritica 5: 247 line 13, see p. 352b); cf. UF 2 (1970) 29; for personal names see Gröndahl Personennamen 194f.

Akk. šamû I (mostly tantum pl.), alternatively šamā'ū heaven (AHw. 1160; CAD Š/1 339b: šamû A), and by transferred meaning, a canopy (AHw. 1160b); cf. šamūtu(m), with variant šamû(m) II (suggested hesitantly in AHw. 1161a as coming from šamû I) rain (see also CAD Š/1 348n: šamû B with variant šamūtu).

OSArb. sm̄y (Conti Rossini Chrest. 197; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 127), cf. the divine name d-SMWY = dū-Samāwī the one from heaven (Conti Rossini loc. cit.); see especially Gese-Höfner-Rudolph RAAM 250, 253f, 300f, 376; also 253: in the end dū-Samāwī is perhaps to be identified with the Phoenician divine name bʿl šmm; Eth. samāy masc. and fem., pl. samāyāt (Dillmann Lex. 341f); Tigr. sama'i (Littmann-H. Wb. 174a); Arb. samā' masc. and fem., pl. samawāt heaven, sky, firmament (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 432b).

C. forms: שָׁמַיִם apparently a dual, but in reality a pl., see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §88d; Joüon Gr. §91f; Meyer Gramm. §58 no. 18; Michel Grundl. 1: 87f: plural of spatial extension; שָׁמַיִם Secunda σαμμαιμ Ps 89³⁰ (Brönno Morph. 183); שָׁמַיִם, cstr. שָׁמַיִ, sf. שָׁמַיִ, שָׁמַיִ, שָׁמַיִ, locative הַשָּׁמַיִם, הַשָּׁמַיִם (often construed as a pl.): heaven, sky, the apparent roof of the sky, atmosphere (420 times).

—c) the transitoriness of the heavens: בְּלִתֵּי שָׁמַיִם עַד- until heaven is no more Jb 14₁₂ (→ בְּלִתֵּי 1).

שְׁמִינִי: Bauer-Leander Heb. 626v: שְׁמִנָּה; SamP. šēmīni; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 224): fem. שְׁמִינִית: the eighth: a) הַשְּׁמִינִי בַיּוֹם הַשְּׁמִינִי Ex 22₃₀ (17 times; SamP. and Sept. insert these words into Gn 17₁₄); הַשְּׁמִינִי הַחֹדֶשׁ הַשְּׁמִינִי הַחֹדֶשׁ הַשְּׁמִינִי 1K 6₃₈ (5 times); הַשְּׁמִינִי הַחֹדֶשׁ הַשְּׁמִינִי 1C 12₁₃ (the eighth person); הַשְּׁמִינִית הַשְּׁמִינִית Lv 25₂₂.

—b) עַל-הַשְּׁמִינִית a technical term in the titles of the Psalms Ps 6₁ 12₁ and 1C 15₂₁ in association with נִצְחָה pi., literally on (according to) the eighth, but without a subst. the sense is unclear; suggestions include: 1) on an instrument of eight strings, so KBL (with a question mark), also Kraus Ps. 27; 2) the eighth string of an instrument, inferred from 1C 15₂₁ בְּכַנְרוֹת (→ כְּנֹר), so Eerdmans The Hebrew Book of Psalms (OTSt 4 (1947) 60; 3) in contrast to עַל-עֲלָמוֹת 1C 15₂₀ it perhaps means a lower octave, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 511a; 4) perhaps the term played a part in the autumnal new year festival as the eighth and concluding ceremony, which immediately preceded the answer of Yahweh and his promise, so Mowinckel Is. Wor. 2: 215f, especially 216; somewhat differently Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 35f: עֲלָמוֹת has to do with situations where a particular type of music and singing are appropriate; 5) Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 457 cj.: prop. gentilic הַשְּׁמִינִית from the name of the Canaanite city of שְׁמִירוֹן Jos 11₁ 19₁₅ > שְׁמִיִן see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and so the original form would have been עַל-הַשְּׁמִינִית.

—c) of these suggested solutions probably only the last (5) should be dropped as unlikely or even impossible, and this conjecture should be left out of consideration. Of the rest there are various shades of possibility but the final answer must remain undecided. †

—a) Christ's thorn, Paliurus aculeatus, Löw Flora 3: 133, and Post Flora 203; cf. Wildberger Jes. 1263 on Is 32₁₃: שְׁמִיר perhaps designates the Christ's thorn.

—b) wild carrot, Daucus aureus, so Dalman Arbeit 2: 321 (following Saadia).

—c) perhaps a general term for a thorn-bush, so KBL, and Rüthy Pflanze 20: Is 5₆ 7₂₃₋₂₅ 9₁₇ 10₁₇ 27₄ 32₁₃; Is 5₆ and 32₁₃ with עֲלֵה. †

II שְׁמִיר: a primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 470m; MHeb: JArm. שְׁמִירָא diamond (Dalman Wb. 428a), = Syr. šāmīrā (Payne-Smith Lex. 788a: from Heb. שְׁמִיר). The etymology of the sbst. is uncertain; perhaps it is a loanword from Egyptian '(e)smir(a), cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw., ismr a mineral (Erman-Grapow Wb. 1: 132); any connection with I שְׁמִיר (thorn > point > diamond, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 511) is less likely because of the expression שְׁמִיר צֶפֶרֶן a point like a diamond Jr 17₁; it would mean that the term for point had been expressed twice. In the Vrss. it is missing from Jr 17₁ in Sept., and for Ezk 3₉ and Zech 7₁₂ Sept. provides a looser, paraphrastic translation of the MT with nothing for the sbst. שְׁמִיר.

Conversely Vulg. has the sbst. adamas for Ezk 3₉ and Zech 7₁₂, and for Jr 17₁ it has the adj. adamantinus; in Pesh. the Heb. שְׁמִיר is taken over. The traditional rendering diamond is supported by the general sense of all three passages, Jr 17₁ Ezk 3₉ Zech 7₁₂ in Vulg. and Pesh. :: KBL: emery, which relies on a reference to an Akk. sbst. ašmur; but this word, which means a type of stone or mineral, should now be read as as/šhu/ar (see AHw. 73b; CAD A/2, 330a: ašhar a mineral used as a charm, and also in medical use; a foreign word). †

III שְׁמִיר: n.m. 1C 24₂₄ Q; Sept. Σαμηρ, K → שְׁמִיר; while the K is easy to explain as a passive pt. of שָׁמַר, the meaning of the Q is less certain. According to Noth Personennamen 231 it should be linked to I שְׁמִיר a, and taken in the meaning Christ's thorn (perhaps a mocking name); but the possibility of linking it with II שְׁמִיר diamond is not excluded: a member of the tribe of לֵוִי, the son of עֲזִיאל, grandson of קָהָת. †

IV שְׁמִיר: place name:

—1. Jos 15₄₈, Sept.^B Σαμῖρ, Sept.^A Σαφῖρ; on the identification of the site see Noth Jos. 97: clearly the name שְׁמִיר survives today in modern Khirbet Sōmera, but it is not certain whether the ancient settlement was at the same location, though it can perhaps be found in that vicinity; Alt PJb 30 (1934) 15f has suggested an identification with el-Bire lying 3 km. to the north-west; so also Abel Géogr. Pal. 2: 446; on this see also KBL, and Elliger Kl. Schr. 51; Simons Geog. §319 A/1 suggests instead of Khirbet Sōmera that Khirbet es-Sumarā, 4 km. east of ez-Zāhiriyyeh, would be a more likely identification of the site.

—2. Ju 10_{1f}: Sept.^B ἐν Σαμῖρ, Sept.^A ἐν Σαμαρείᾳ; a place in the mountain territory of אֶפְרַיִם; according to Simons Geog. §586 it is to be identified with Khirbet es-Sumarā, 11 km. south of Balatah; cf. also Gray Jos.-Ju.-Ru. 328: a place in the southern environs of the central sanctuary of Shechem. †

9736 שְׁמִיר־מוֹת

שְׁמִיר־מוֹת: n.m.; Sept. Σεμυραμωθ; both the form and the meaning of this personal name are unexplained, so Noth Personennamen 259a and (a little less strongly) Rudolph Chr. 116; whether the Heb. masc. name can be connected with the Assyrian fem. name Sammuramat (Tallqvist Names 191b), Greek Σεμίραμις, as still accepted by Baumgartner *Umwelt*³ 304, must be regarded as very questionable.

Zobel loc. cit. 216 would like to see a figurative usage also in Heb. expression מִשְׁמִינֵי הָאָרֶץ Gn 27₂₈₋₃₉ similar to the one with Ug. šmn, but that is less likely; on this → *שְׁמִינָה; c) šmt (Gordon Textbook §19:2439; Gibson *Myths*² 158b), cf. —3. special occurrences: a) בְּנִשְׁמָן fat Is 5₁ (→ בֵּן 10), so e.g. Wildberger Jes. 163; Meyer Gramm. §97 4c :: KBL: abounding in olives (?).

—b) גֵּיא־שְׁמָנִים a greasy valley Is 28₁₋₄, on the pl. see the reference above to Michel Grundl. 1: 88; NRSV: those bloated with rich food :: REB: those who drip with perfumes.

—c) מִשְׁתָּה שְׁמָנִים a meal consisting of greasy food Is 25₆, on which see Wildberger Jes. 966: שְׁמָנִים is hardly meant to suggest meat but simply food which has been smeared thickly with oil.

—4. cj. Is 10_{27b} pr. עַל מִפְּנֵי-שְׁמֶן prop. מִפְּנֵי שְׁמֶן עָלָה he has gone up from Samaria; so e.g. Wildberger Jes. 423. 424, where other suggestions are also given; NRSV: he has gone up from Rimmon (margin: a yoke has been destroyed because of fatness); REB and NEB: an invader from Rimmon; NEB margin: and a yoke shall be broken because of oil.

B. שֶׁמֶן used as part of religious ceremonial:

—1. a) to bow down before a king (לְמֶלֶךְ) with oil (בְּשֶׁמֶן), that is to bow down before a Canaanite royal deity (תְּשַׁרֵּי, → II שׁוֹר) Is 57₉; it could be that oil is being used here either as a gift or as an unction for the statue of a deity; NRSV: you journeyed to Molech (margin: the king) with oil :: REB and NEB: you drenched your tresses with oil; b) pouring out (יִצֹק) oil over a מִצִּבְּהָהּ Gn 28₁₈ 35₁₄.

—2. שֶׁמֶן used in an anointing ceremony (מִשָּׁח): a) of the king, on which see E. Kutsch Salbung als Rechtsakt (BZAW 87 (1963) 52ff): 1S 10₁ 16₁₋₁₃ 1K 1₃₉ 2K 9₁₋₃ etc.

—g) with פִּי to hear that Gn 14₁₄ 29₃₃ 34₅ 42₂ 2S 11₂₆ 1K 1₁₁ 5₁₅ and elsewhere; with מָה to hear what Ju 7₁₁; with בְּאָזְנוֹיֵנוּ to hear with our own ears 2S 7₂₂ Ps 44₂ Jb 28₂₂.

—h) with לְאָמֹר Gn 41₁₅; a direct question without introduction Dt 9₁.

—2. to listen to:

—a) with acc. of the thing Is 33₁₅ Am 5₂₃ Pr 13₁ Qoh 7₅; with בְּ Gn 27₅ Jb 15₈ 26₁₄ (in KBL both these instances are translated as to attend to), 37₂ (KBL: to listen to).

—b) with acc. of the person, to attend to someone's words carefully, or alternatively to hearken to someone Gn 23₈₋₁₁₋₁₅; with אֵל Is 46₃₋₁₂ 55₂ Ezk 3₆₋₇; אֶל-מְקוֹם שְׂבִיחְךָ even as far as the position of your thrones 1K 8₃₀, on which see Noth Könige 169, 173; with לְ of the person Jb 15₁₇ 31₃₅ Pr 8₃₄, לְקוֹלְךָ to your voice Ex 4₉; with בְּ to hear readily 2S 19₃₆ Ps 92₁₂; אָזַן שֹׁמֵעַת a listening (meaning a willing) ear Pr 25₁₂.

—3. to hear and accept a request (subj. אֱלֹהִים, or alternatively יְהוָה) with acc. of the person and לְ of the person concerned Gn 17₂₀, קוֹל פִּי לְ Ps 5₄ 6₉ 18₇ 27₇, פִּי בְּקוֹל פִּי קוֹל Gn 30₆ Dt 1₄₅, אֶל-קוֹל הַנֶּעַר Gn 21_{17b}, variant אֶת-קוֹל so vs. 17a, אֶל-עֲנִי פִּי אֶת-קוֹל Gn 16₁₁, אֶל-תַּחֲנַת פִּי אֶל-עֲנִי פִּי to listen to someone's pleading 1K 8₃₀, לִנְדָרַי you have heard my vows Ps 61₆.

—4. a) to hear > to listen to, meaning to hearken > to obey (cf. Akk.): with acc. of the thing Ex 24₇, with מִצְוָה Jr 35₁₄; with בְּ בתוֹרָתוֹ Is 42₂₄, with בְּקוֹל Gn 22₁₈ 27₁₃ 2S 12₁₈ Jr 38₂₀ Hg 1₁₂ Pr 5₁₃; with לְ לְקוֹל Ex 3₁₈ Ju 2₂₀ Ps 81₁₂, לְמִצְוֹתֶיךָ Neh 9₂₉, לְעֲצַתִּי 2C 25₁₆; with עַל עַל-דְּבָרֵי עַל (= אֵל) Jr 26₅ 35₁₈ Hg 1₁₂; with אֵל Neh 9₁₆; with אֵל of the person: Gn 28₇ Ex 6₉ Jos 1₁₇ 1K 12_{15f} and elsewhere; with לְ of the person Hos 9₁₇; used absolutely, to be obedient 1S 15₂₂ 2K 14₁₁ and elsewhere.

—b) with אֵל of the person to satisfy, obey Gn 23₁₆, so ZüB and Westermann BK 1/2, 454, but here, where Abraham “heard” Ephron, other renderings are possible, such as: α) to listen to (von Rad ATD 2-4⁹ (1972) 196), on which see above 2b, vs. 15; β) to agree, or to comply with a demand (Gunkel Gen. 276); γ) to come to an agreement (TOB); δ) to understand a suggestion (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.).

—5. to hear, meaning to understand: a) with acc. of the thing: שִׁפְּהָ a language Gn 11₇ (→ שִׁפְּהָ 4), לְשׁוֹן Dt 28₄₉ (→ לְשׁוֹן 4), דְּבָרֵיהֶם Ezk 3₆.

—b) followed by מָה (מָה יְדַבֵּר) Jr 5₁₅, followed by פִּי Ex 4₃₁.

—c) used absolutely Gn 42₂₃ Is 33₁₉ 36₁₁.

—d) לֵב שֹׁמֵעַ a listening heart 1K 3₉ (cf. vs. 12), a familiar expression in Egyptian wisdom literature, and probably taken over from there, on which see Noth Könige 51; THAT 2: 978 (both with bibliography).

—6. special instances; within the sense of hearing is also included: a) שִׁמְעֵה to appreciate with one's spiritual hearing Nu 24₄ Ezk 3₁₂ Jb 4₁₆, on which see THAT 2: 976.

—b) שָׁמַע in judicial proceedings: α) בִּינְיָן judges listening to evidence Dt 1₁₆; β) לְשָׁמַע מִשְׁפָּט הַבַּיִת insight and understanding, to reach a correct decision 1K 3₁₁, on which see Noth Könige 42, and Würthwein ATD 11/1: 31, 35; NRSV: to discern what is right.

—c) שָׁמַע הַטּוֹב וְהָרַע 2S 14₁₇ to hear out, to sense what is good and what is bad, so with Hertzberg ATD 10² 271; NRSV: discerning good and evil; REB: decide between right and wrong; a looser rendering of שָׁמַע here would be to decide, as in ZüB and KBL.

—7. cj. a) 1S 13_{3b} pr. יִשְׁמְעוּ הָעִבְרִים prop. with Sept. ἡθετήκασι יִפְשְׁעוּ, see BHK :: Stoebe KAT 8/1: 241, 243: (with Tg., Pesh., Vulg.) MT “the Hebrews should hear it”, so also TOB.

—1. to be heard: a) קוֹל in its various meanings: α) the voice of a person 1S 1₁₃ Is 15₄ Ezk 19₉ Nah 2₁₄; the voice of God, meaning thunder Jb 37₄; bird-calls, of הַתּוֹר the turtle dove Song 2₁₂; β) sounds arising for different reasons, or alternatively from different sources: weeping and lamentation Is 65₁₉ Jr 9₁₈ 31₁₅ cf. 3₂₁ Ezr 3₁₃, screaming Jr 49₂₁, joy, jubilation Jr 33₁₀ Ezr 3₁₃ Neh 12₄₃, כַּנְוֹרִים your lyres Ezk 26₁₃; γ) the sound of movement Ex 28₃₅ Ezk 10₅; δ) message, information Gn 45₁₆ Jr 49₂₁ 51₄₆.

—b) other subjects of נִשְׁמַע: α) שְׁמַע אֱלֹהִים the names of other gods should not be heard on your lips Ex 23₁₃; β) הַדְּבָר the subject of conversation Jr 38₂₇, הַדְּבָרִים the words 1S 17₃₁; הַמֶּלֶךְ the word (resolution) of the king Est 2₈, פְּתָגִם הַמֶּלֶךְ the decision (decree) of the king Est 1₂₀; γ) זַעֲקָה the outcry associated with it (with the city of Babylon when she was captured) Jr 50₄₆ (textual emendation → זַעֲקָה and זַעֲקָה), זַעֲקָה Jr 18₂₂, זַעֲקָה Is 60₁₈ Jr 6₇; δ) the sound of workmen’s tools 1K 6₇; ε) סוּסֵי נַחֲרַת the snorting of his horses Jr 8₁₆.

—c) expressions where the sbj. is not specified: α) כְּמוֹהוּ has anything like that been heard? Dt 4₃₂; β) לוֹ נִשְׁמַע it was news to him Neh 6₁₋₇, בְּ נִשְׁמַע it was heard among, meaning it was reported among (KBL), Neh 6₆, לְכֶם הֲנִשְׁמַע so have you not heard about it? (ZüB, similarly KBL: is it not unheard of with you?) Neh 13₂₇.

—2. to be listened to, or alternatively to be heard, to be granted a hearing: words Qoh 9₁₆₋₁₇.

—3. to be attended to: נִשְׁמְעוּ דְּבָרֵיךְ Da 10₁₂; וַיִּשְׁמַע בְּקוֹלָם the voices of the priests and the Levites were listened to by the people 2C 30₂₇ :: cj. pr. MT prop. שָׁמַע וַיִּיהוּ, so Rudolph Chr. 302, 303; BHS.

—4. to be heard, meaning to be (become) obedient: with לִי, when they heard of me they obeyed me 2S 22₄₅; for לְשָׁמַע אֹזֶן compare Ps 18₄₅ לְשָׁמַע אֹזֶן as soon as they had heard of me they obeyed me, or alternatively when they had only heard of me they obeyed me; אם ישמע לך if he is obsequious (be-haves obsequiously) towards you Sir 12₁₁, on which see Smend Weisheit 117.

—5. special instances: a) Ps 19₄ the news that is published from heaven from day to day and night to night is made נשמע בלי קולם with inaudible sound (Kraus BK 15⁵ 297, 302), on which see also Steck in C. Westermann Fschr. (1980) 318-324, especially 320: unarticulated speech, speech that cannot be heard (cf. 322, 324).

—b) Qoh 12₁₃ נשמע הכל: it is disputed which form of the verb is intended; possibilities include: α) pt. nif, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: all has been heard and examined (cf. NRSV; REB: you have heard it all); β) qal 1st. pl. impf./jussive “let us hear!”, with Vulg. omnes pariter audiamus, so Galling Die fünf Megilloth (HAT 18² 1969) 123, and Hertzberg KAT 17/4-5, 216, 217; γ) cj. pr. MT prop. שמע with Sept. ἄκουε (Sept.^{RA} ἀκούεται), Pesh. šma^c hear!, so C. Siegfried Prediger und Hoheslied (GHK 2 3/2, 1898) 77 and Zimmerli Pred. (ATD 16/1³) 246 with note 1; of these three possibilities probably the second (β) is to be preferred.

שָׁמַע: שמע, Bauer-Leander 460g; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 224) → I שָׁמַע; JArm.: 1) שְׁמַעָא, cstr. שְׁמַעָא reputation, hearing; 2) שְׁמַעָא reputation; both these meanings are in Dalman Wörterbuch 428b, 429a; but Levy 4: 578b mentions only the second meaning; Syr. šem‘ā rumour; Mnd. šima (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 462a) hearing; Eth. sim‘, pl. sim‘at rumour, report (Dillmann Lex. 338b); Tigr. sam‘ and sam‘at, pl. sam‘at (Littmann-H. Wb. 174b) evidence, witness; cf. Arb. sim‘ remark, reputation, report, something that has been heard; also sam‘ (Lane Lex. 1428c); sam‘ hearing, sense of hearing, ears; sum‘a reputation (specifically a good reputation), credit, standing, name (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 430b): sf. שְׁמַעִי, שְׁמַעֲךָ, שְׁמַעָהּ, שְׁמַעֵם.

—1. שָׁמַע אֶזְנִי: hearsay Ps 18₄₅ corresponding to שְׁמַעֲךָ אֶזְנִי 2S 22₄₅, with שָׁמַע nif. on which → שָׁמַע nif, 4; לְשִׁמַע אֶזְנִי שְׁמַעֲתִיךָ I have heard about you (יהוה) by hearsay (NRSV: I had heard of you by the hearing of the ear; REB: I knew of you then only by report), contrasting with: but now I see you with my own eyes Jb 42₅.

—2. report, news: a) in figura etymologica with the vb. שָׁמַע יַעֲקֹב: שמע the news about Jacob Gn 29₁₃, שָׁמַע שְׁלֹמֹה the fame of Solomon 1K 10_{1/2C 9}₁; שְׁמַעִי news about me (about יהוה), NRSV: those that have not heard of my fame Is 66₁₉, שְׁמַעֲךָ Nu 14₁₅ Hab 3₂ (about יהוה), Dt 2₂₅ (about Israel), שְׁמַעֲךָ שְׁמַעֲךָ those who hear your name (the name of the king of Assyria) Nah 3₁₉; שְׁמַעָהּ news of her (of חֵכְמָה wisdom) Jb 28₂₂; שְׁמַעֵם Jr 37₅ (חֵיל פְּרַעֲה) and Jr 50₄₃ (עַם מִצְפּוֹן).

—b) in collocations with other verbs: with I חֵיל: כְּשִׁמַע צַר like the news about Tyre Is 23₅; with נִשָּׂא to speak about (→ נִשָּׂא 9): שָׁמַע שְׂוֵא you shall not spread a false report Ex 23₁.

—3. cj.: a) Is 23₅ pr. שָׁמַע prop. with Sept. (Vulg.) יִשְׁמַע (BHS) → שָׁמַע nif. 6.

—b) Hos 7₁₂ textual uncertainty, suggestions for cj. include: α) pr. כְּשִׁמַע לְעֵדְתָם prop. כְּשִׁמַע לְעֵדְתָם as one who listens out for them flocking together, so Rudolph KAT 13/1: 150, 151; β) pr. כְּשִׁמַע prop. כְּשִׁמַע (BHS) in the hearing of their flock; γ) pr. לְעֵדְתָם prop. רָעָתָם (לְ) עַל (→ I עֲדָה 1), following Sept. with BHS, which makes it possible to render as “in hearing their wickedness”; δ) כְּשִׁמַע with MT and pr. לְעֵדְתָם prop. לְרָעָתָם corresponding to the reputation of their wickedness, so Wolff BK 14/1²: 133. 136; rather than follow α-δ rd. MT, so especially Nyberg Hos. 57: as soon as “their flock is a sound”, meaning as soon as the sound of their flock becomes audible, cf. Jörg Jeremias Hos. (ATD 24/1, 1983) 91 with note 13: as soon as they are heard to be flocking together; similarly TOB; REB: I shall take them captive when I see them gathering :: NRSV: I will discipline them according to the report made in their assembly. Despite the strength of the cj. the renderings which follow the MT are probably to be preferred. †

*שְׁמַע: שְׁמַע, Bauer-Leander 461 I; JArm. שְׁמַע, variant שְׁמַע reputation: sf. שְׁמַע: rumour, news Jos 6²⁷ 9⁹, Jr 6²⁴ Est 9⁴. †

9757 שְׁמַע

שְׁמַע: n.m., Sept. Σαμμα, Σαμαθα; Heb. seal inscr. → II שְׁמַע; Ph. or Heb. šm^c (Harris Gr. 151); on šm^c see also A. Vanel Six ostraca phéniciens Bulletin du Musée de Beirut 20 (1967) 47, line 10, 51f; Šama^c Western Semitic (Tallqvist Names 208b); the meaning of the personal name is “he (אֱלֹהִים/יְהוָה) has listened”, cf. Noth Personennamen 22, 185: a hero (גִּבּוֹר) under David 1C 11⁴⁴. †

שְׁמַע: n.m. Sept. 1C 3⁵ Σαμαα; 1C 6¹⁵ Σαμα, Σομεα 1C 6²⁴ Σαμαα; 1C 2¹³ Σαμαα, Σαμαα; 1C 20⁷ Σαμαα(ς); Josephus Σαμα(ς), Σουμα(ς) Σουμα(ς), or Σάμαλος (cf. Schalit Namenwb. 106), Σεαμμούαμα (cj., mss. vary cf. Schalit Namenwb. 108f); Old Sinaitic šm^o (Albright Proto-Sinaitic 43), as also Ph. (Benz Names 181); a short form for a fuller name with שְׁמַע, see Noth Personennamen 38, 185.

—1. a son of David 1C 3⁵ = שְׁמַע 2.

—2. a Levite from the clan of מְרָרִי 1C 6¹⁵.

—3. a Levite from the clan of גְּרָשָׁם 1C 6²⁴ (cf. vs.²⁸).

—4. an older brother of David 1C 2¹³ 20⁷, equivalent to שְׁמַע 2. †

שְׁמַע: n.m., Sept. 2S 13^{3,32} Σαμαα; 2S 21²¹ Sept.^{RA} Σεμεϊ, Sept.^{BO} Σεμε(ε)ι, Sept.^L Σαμμα; Josephus Σαμα(ς), Σουμα(ς), Σαμαλο(ς) (cf. Schalit Namenwb. 106); a short form, like שְׁמַע: an older brother of David 2S 13^{3,32} 21²¹ (K שְׁמַעִי, Q שְׁמַעָה = II שְׁמַע 2). †

9760 שְׁמַע

שְׁמַע: שְׁמַעָה 1C 12³, n.m.; Sept.^{RA} Ασμα του Γεβωθίτου (Sept.^{BS} αμα, Sept.^A σαμαα), Vulg. Samaa, Pesh. Šma'yā; the article which has been added to this proper name (as sometimes happens in these Versions) should be deleted, and שְׁמַע is to be supposed as the original form of the n.m., so BHS, and Rudolph Chr. 104; pr. בְּנֵי prop. with mss. and Sept. a singular form בֶּן: the father of one of David's helpers (הַמְלָחָמָה) from Gibeah 1C 12³. †

שְׁמַע: → שְׁמַעָה.

שְׁמֵעוֹן: name of a people and n.m..

A. SamP. šēmūn; Sept. Συμεων corresponding to New Testament Συμεών; Josephus Σεμεών (Schalit Namenwb. 110); Amorite Sa-am-ḥa-nu-um, cf. Charles-F. Jean Larsa d'après les textes cunéiformes (1939) no. 21: 21, pp. 144 and 249b; Ug. šm'n (Gröndahl Personennamen 194; Gordon Textbook §19:2441), perhaps also associated with ša-am-ú-nu (Gröndahl Personennamen 194; see also p. 57 §95b and p. 58 §96b); Hebrew in cuneiform Ša-ma-aḥ-ú-nu equivalent to Šama'ōn > Šim'ōn (Coogan Names 35, 85) Zadok WdO 9 (1977-1978) 40; EgArm. שְׁמֵעוֹן (Cowley Arm. Pap. 313b; Kornfeld Onomastica 74); as a Hebrew and also as a Nabataean personal name, see Cantineau Nab. 2: 151b.

B. According to E.Y. Kutscher The Language and Linguistic Background of the Isaiah Scroll [IQ Is^a] (Leiden, 1974) 470, the original form of the personal name should be taken as Šam'ān*.

C. There are two distinct possibilities given for the derivation of the personal name.

—1. connecting it with the root šm', as is suggested by the meaning of שְׁמֵעוֹן as given in Gn 29₃₃, so especially Noth Personennamen 38, 185; see further Gröndahl Personennamen 194, and Gordon Textbook §19:2441, both of whom associate šm'n with the vb. šm'; so also Coogan Names 85. Noth Personennamen 38 takes -ōn as a diminutive ending (cf. Bauer-Leander 500u). If it is a descriptive name to which this ending could have been added perhaps the root II שְׁמַע שְׁמַע should be considered, and then a comparison may be made with the sentence name שִׁפְטָה “he has made things right”, which is associated with the hypocoristic descriptive name שִׁפְטָן.

—2. The meaning of the name given in Gn 29₃₃ is an example of folk-etymology for a personal name; it is connected with Arb. sim' “hyena”, so KBL; שְׁמֵעוֹן would be a diminutive and mean little hyena, to be compared with the Akk. sbst. asu(m) bear, (AHw. 76; CAD A/2, 344: asu B) and the associated personal names Asatum, Asānum meaning little bear; see also Stamm Namengebung 253, where still more animal names are adduced which are used in personal names with hypocoristic endings.

This evidence from Akkadian appears to offer crucial support for the second opinion (2). Furthermore Amorite Samḥunum should not, and Ugaritic šm'n should certainly not, be used against it. However some caution is required because it so happens that Ugaritic šm'n occurs in another form šm'y (Gröndahl Personennamen 194, and Gordon Textbook §19:2441), just as BHeb. שְׁמֵעוֹן is attested together with שְׁמַעִי. It is much easier to link the forms with -ī with the root šm' than with the Arb. animal name sim' and with the hypothetical comparable forms in the more ancient languages. So the first explanation (1) should be preferred to the second (2) even though it is hard to understand that on the one hand šm'n שְׁמֵעוֹן and on the other hand šm'y שְׁמַעִי each stand independently; the one is to be taken as derived from the name of an animal, while the other is to be taken as derived from šm' and שְׁמַע, and thus understood as descriptive names.

D. שְׁמֵעוֹן: Simeon, occurring in the following instances.

—1. the tribe: a) שְׁמֵעוֹן מִטֵּה Nu 1₂₃ 2₁₂ 13₅.

—b) שְׁמֵעוֹן בְּנֵי מִטֵּה Nu 10₁₉ 34₂₀ Jos 19_{1.8} 21₉ 1C 6₅₀.

—c) שְׁמֵעוֹן בְּנֵי שְׁמֵעוֹן Ex 6¹⁵ Nu 1²² 7³⁶ 26¹² Jos 19^{1,9} 1C 4^{24,42} 12²⁶.

—e) שְׁמֵעוֹן Gn 49⁵ Nu 1⁶ Dt 27¹² Jos 19¹ Ju 1^{3,17} Ezk 48^{24f} 2C 15⁹ 34⁶.

It should be noted that in (c) and in (e) the proper name שְׁמֵעוֹן vacillates between its meaning as the name of a tribe and as a personal name.

—2. a son of יַעֲקֹב Gn 29³³ 34^{25,30} 35²³ 42^{24,36} 43²³ 46¹⁰ 48⁵ Ex 1² 1C 2¹.

Σεμ(ε)ει; Josephus Σαμουίς, Σιμουίς, Σουμουίς (Schalit Namenwb. 106, 113, 115); Heb. seal inscr. שְׁמֵעִי (Avigad Qedem 4 (1976) no. 7); explanations of the personal name include: a) according to Noth Personennamen 38 and 185, a short form with the ending -ī, for a full form composed with שָׁמַע; b) a descriptive name derived from II שָׁמַע with the sense of my listening. The same expression of thanks is expressed in the sbst. as in the verbal sentence names יְשָׁמַעֲאֵל and שְׁמֵעִיהָ (ו): for the various individuals who were given this personal name see Zorell Lexicon 863f, whom we follow here.

—1. a Levitical family from the clan of גֵּרְשֹׁן Ex 6¹⁷ Nu 3¹⁸ 1C 6^{2,27} 23^{7,10}.

שְׁמֵעָת: personal name, שְׁמֵעָ; Sept. 2K 12₂₂ Ἰεμουαθ, 2C 24₂₆ Σαμαθ (n.m.).

—1. It cannot be said for certain whether the personal name indicates a masc. or a fem. name. In 2K 12₂₂ בְּנֵי-שִׁמְרַי וַיִּזְכָּר בְּנֵי-שְׁמֵעָת וַיְהוּזָבֵד (pr. וַיִּזְכָּר prop. with mss. וַיִּזְכָּר) the fact that the second patronymic is a masc. name supports the idea that the first is also such a name, so Gray *Kings*³ 590, and Würthwein ATD 11/2: 359. But according to the names in 2C 24₂₆ בְּנֵי-שְׁמֵעָת זָבֵד בְּנֵי-שְׁמֵעָת וַיְהוּזָבֵד בְּנֵי-שְׁמֵעָת וַיְהוּזָבֵד it is quite clear that שְׁמֵעָת is a fem. name; the cj. pr. שְׁמֵעָת prop. שְׁמֵעָת probably corresponds to שְׁמֵעָת, so Noth Personennamen 259a; Rudolph Chr. 276, cf. BHS. An attempt to balance 2K 12₂₂ on the one side and 2C 24₂₆ on the other can be made in two kinds of ways: a) 2K 12₂₂ pr. שִׁמְרַי prop. שְׁמֵעָת (as a fem. name), so Noth and Rudolph loc. cit.; שְׁמֵעָת would then be a fem. name here as in 2C 24₂₆; the proper name שְׁמֵעָת is assessed as such by Gesenius-B. Hw., Zorell Lex., and König Wörterbuch 514a; b) without making any change to the text of 2K 12₂₂ (see above) and still taking שְׁמֵעָת as a n.m.; it would erroneously be taken as a n.f. in 2C 24₂₆ because of the ending -īt, so Gray *Kings*³ 591; according to Graham ZAW 97 (1985) 256-258 the national names that are added to the proper names in 2C 24₂₆ (the Ammonitess and the Moabitess) are taken from Ezr 9₁, as the Chronicler's report in general is dependent on Ezr 9-10.

—2. Deciding whether שְׁמֵעָת is to be taken as a masc. or as a fem. name is difficult, and this has already been intimated in KBL by the question mark placed after n.f. But perhaps the idea of a masc. name rather than a fem. name is to be preferred, for the latter presupposes an intrusion into the MT in 2K 12₂₂, with the cj. שְׁמֵעָת for שִׁמְרַי, which is hard to justify. On the other hand the idea that the termination -īt has been misunderstood as suggested by Gray is probably not to be excluded for Chronicles.

—3. In any case when the ending -at/-īt is found elsewhere in masc. and fem. names (see Bauer-Leander 510v) it functions as a hypocoristic ending, on which see Noth Personennamen 38, 39; cf. also the Akk. ending -atum in personal names, see von Soden Gramm. §60: 1a, and Stamm Namengebung 113f; see further e.g. p. 253. On these assumptions שְׁמֵעָת is taken together with → שְׁמֵעוֹן (sv. 1 and 3), and like it is to be derived from II שְׁמֵעָ.

—The father of one of the murderers of יֹאָשׁ Joash, king of Judah; REB: Jozachar son of Shimeath was of them who struck the fatal blow 2K 12₂₂; Zabad son of Shimeath an Ammonite woman was one of the conspirators 2C 24₂₆; NRSV similarly. †

9769 שְׂמֵעָתִי

*שְׂמֵעָתִי: gentilic, Bauer-Leander 501z; pl. שְׂמֵעָתִים; Sept. Σαμαθιιμ. The derivation of the word is not quite certain; it would be most obvious to link it with → שְׂמֵעָת, but that word occurs only as a proper name; it would be good to suppose a place name such as *שְׂמֵעָה but that is not attested; what we should then probably think of is the place name שְׂמֵעָ 1C 2_{43f} (→ II שְׂמֵעָ 1) equivalent to → שְׂמֵעָ Jos 15₂₆; so with Zorell Lexicon 864b, and Rudolph Chr. 25¹: in 1C 2₅₅ שְׂמֵעָתִים are the people who reside in this location. †

*שְׂמֹץ: according to Gesenius Thesaurus (and subsequently Gesenius-Buhl Hw.) it is cognate with Arb. šamaša to spur on, set in motion, speak quickly; the verb is not in Lane Lex., but see G.-W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 451a: the same meanings are given there as in Gesenius-B.: šamiša to speak quickly; sbst. šumās speed.

שְׂמֹץ (שְׂמֹץ and variant שְׂמֹץ, Bab. שְׂמֹץ).

A. 1. because of its form this sbst. is not to be taken as a primary noun; rather it is to be derived from a root šms, but this cannot easily be identified with the root *שְׂמֹץ presupposed above. On the construction of the sbst. cf. Bauer-Leander 460g; MHeb. שְׂמֹץ reputation, bad name; JArm. שְׂמֹץ bad reputation, blemish.

2. for the Vrss. see Norbert Peters Das Buch Job (1928) 53; Dhorme Job 44; Horst BK 16/1: 60 on Jb 4₁₂; they point to two (or three) possible renderings.

—a) whispering, murmuring; Symmachus ψιθυρισμός (Hi 4₁₂ 26₁₄); Vulg. (4₁₂) venas susurri eius “a tiny spark”, meaning a small part of his whispering; on this rendering of vena see Karl Ernst Georges Ausführliches Lateinisch-Deutsches Wörterbuch 2 (1880): 3047 :: Peters loc. cit. 53: the outpourings of his whispering. Another rendering is Sept. ἐξάίσια παρ’ αὐτοῦ “out of the ordinary for his part” :: Peters loc. cit. 53: “roaring” comes to have the transferred meaning “outpourings”, a meaning which is not found in Liddell-Scott.

—b) a little bit, something; so for Jb 26₁₄ Sept. acc. ἡκμάδα λόγου; Vulg. parvam stillam sermonis a drop, meaning a little; Pesh. š’ōr mennēh a little of it, i.e. of the word (Syr. petgāmā, 26₁₄ is different).

—c) the arguments for both these renderings (a and b) are set out in a masterly way by Hölscher *Hiob*² 1952) 18 (on Jb 4₁₂). According to him שְׂמֹץ has the original sense of whisper from which the associated meaning of a tiny fragment must have rubbed off. This is accepted for Jb 26₁₄, and also for Sir 10₁₀, and perhaps also for 18₃₂.

3. for most modern translators the first translation (2a) is the most frequently adopted, so e.g. Fohrer KAT 16: 127, 132; Horst loc. cit. 58, on 4₁₂; TOB on 4₁₂: a murmuring; on 26₁₄: a weak echo; for both passages Gesenius-B. has whisper; so also König Wb. 514a.

—b) for both occurrences see Peters loc. cit. 45 and 272, and Dhorme Job 44 and 344.

—c) Zorell Lexicon 864b has both possibilities: α) something small Sir 10₁₀ 18₃₂, and perhaps how tiny! for Jb 26₁₄; β) a weak voice, murmuring Jb 4₁₂.

—d) for Jb 4₁₂ 26₁₄ KBL mentioned both the possibilities listed above (a and b); however for Sir 10₁₀ 18₃₂ (cf. Gesenius-B. under שׁמַיִץ) the word is said to be “unexplained”.

4. when all things are considered this word שׁמַיִץ should be listed under three sub-headings.

—1. whispering, whisper Jb 4₁₂.

—2. a tiny fragment, a little Sir 10₁₀ and 18₃₂ (?).

—3. Jb 26₁₄ could belong either to 1 or to 2. †

שׁמַצָּה: 1. hapax legomenon Ex 32₂₅; *שׁמַיִץ ?, fem. of שׁמַיִץ, ? unitary noun (?), or abstract noun (?); on the form cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 459y, z.

—2. Vrss.: SamP. variant לְשׁמַצָּו alšammēšu, also inf. pi., pa., Samaritan Tg. Gn 42₁₁ לְשׁמַצָּוִין; Sept. ἐπίχαρμα τοῖς ὑπεναντίοις αὐτῶν as malicious joy, gloating, ridicule against his enemies; Vulg. propter ignominiam sordis et inter hostes nudum constituerat; Pesh. šmā saryā dishonour, disgrace (Payne-Smith Lex. 499a); Tg. šom biš Idārēhōn a bad reputation for their generation.

—3. the Versions allow for two possibilities, see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: a) with Sept. gloating, mockery, ridicule; b) according to Vulg., Pesh. and Tg. disgrace, dishonour, bad reputation, which agrees with the meaning of MHeb. שׁמַיִץ and JArm. שׁמַצָּה. Most of the more recent commentators and translators prefer the first of these (a); see for example, with special enthusiasm, G. Dillmann *Die Bücher Exodus und Leviticus*³ (1897) 378; see further B. Baentsch Exodus-Leviticus-Numeri (GHK 1/2, 1903) 272; G. Beer Exod. (HAT 3, 1939) 154; Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 199; ZüB; TOB; also König Wb. 514b; however Zorell Lexicon 864b is unclear; b) Hölscher *Hiob*² (1952) 18 on Jb 4₁₂ gives the translation bad reputation with reference to JArm. שׁמַצָּה; c) even though the second solution (b) cannot be excluded as a possibility, probably the first is to be preferred; in any case it is no longer necessary to maintain the position of KBL and leave the word as “unexplained”. †

I שׁמַר: MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 224f); JArm. סַמַר/שׁמַר itpa. to be on one's guard, beware (Dalman Wörterbuch 294b, 429a); in Amorite and Ugaritic it is striking that שׁ corresponds to z and ḡ: in Amorite personal names zmr/ḡmr means to protect (Huffmon Names 187f; see also Giorgio Buccellati The Amorites of the Ur III Period (1966) 139); Ug. ḡmr to protect, guard (Gordon Textbook §19:727; Aistleitner Wb. 2717; Gibson *Myths*² 145a); see further especially de Moor UF 7 (1975) 175f; Avishur UF 17 (1986) 52f; it is to be distinguished from the alleged vb. šmr, which is explained by Gordon Textbook §19:2443 and THAT 2: 982 as

—c) watching over locations, objects: גִּן Gn 2₁₅, דְּרֶכֶךְ Gn 3₂₄, עִיר 2K 9₁₄ (with בַּיִת), 2S 15₁₆ 16₂₁ 20₃ Ps 59₁, מְזוּזוֹת פְּתָחַי Pr 8₃₄.

—d) שׁוֹמֵר watcher, guardian (as the designation of an office-holder, an official duty: the guardian of a city Is 21_{11f} 62₆ and elsewhere, the doorkeeper (הַשְּׁמָרִים פֶּתַח בַּיִת הַמֶּלֶךְ) 1K 14₂₇, the gatekeeper (שׁוֹמֵר שַׁעַר) Neh 3₂₉, the guardian of a field (שָׂרִי) Jr 4₁₇, the guardian of a plantation (שׁוֹמֵר הַפְּרָדֵס) Neh 2₈, cf. Punic šmr mhšb inspector of a quarry (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 62:7; see THAT 2: 984).

—2. to take care of, preserve, protect (not very different from 1): a) with acc. אֶת-כָּל-אֲשֶׁר לְזֶה 1S 25₂₁; שׁוֹמֵר נַפְשׁוֹ preserve his life, so also KBL: spare his life Jb 2₆; with בַּיִת 2S 18₂ (pr. מִי rd. לִי), לִי בְנֵעַר: לִי (שׁוֹמְרוֹ), with אֵל 1S 26₁₅ = עַל vs. 16, תְּשׁוּמֵר עָלַיךְ (the instructions of one's parents) Pr 6₂₂.

—b) with acc. of the person with אֵל/אֱלֹהִים/יְהוָה as sbj. Gn 28₁₅₋₂₀ Jr 31₁₀ Ps 12₈ 16₁ 17₈ 25₂₀ and elsewhere; שׁוֹמֵר יִשְׂרָאֵל = יְהוָה Ps 121₄.

—c) with מִן to protect from something Ps 121₇ 140₅, נַפְשׁוֹ oneself, or alternatively one's life Pr 21₂₃ (see already under 1aβ); דְּרֶכַי my ways Ps 39₂, אִם (textual emendation) the blameless Ps 37₃₇.

—3. to take care of, save, retain: אָכַל to gather food Gn 41₃₅, food 1S 9₂₄, on which see Stoebe KAT 8/1: 191, 196f, and Seebass ZAW 79 (1967) 158¹⁹ :: הַשְּׁלִיךְ Qoh 3₆; with דְּבַר to keep in one's mind Gn 37₁₁; with עֲבָרָה to maintain one's anger Am 1₁₁ (for the text see above under the forms); used elliptically Jr 3₅ parallel to נָטַר.

—4. to keep > to watch, observe: a) שׁוֹמֵר פִּיָּהּ 1S 1₁₂, רַבּוֹת many things Is 42₂₀, אֲתִי me Zech 11₁₁, or cj. my sign (sbst. אֹת, on which see Rudolph KAT 13/4: 201, 202; cj. —b) שׁוֹמֵר אֵל to keep under military observation, besiege 2S 11₁₆; on which see Stoebe Biblica 67 (1986) 390: here perhaps the vb. may be a military expression :: Kopf VT 9 (1959) 278f: from Arb. samara (see above) to approach a town during the night-watch; Ps 59₁₀; with acc. Jb 24₅; שׁוֹמֵר לְמַחְלָקוֹת to have regard for לְמַחְלָקוֹת (pr. אֵין לְשׁוֹמֵר לְמַחְלָקוֹת rd. לְמַחְלָקוֹת, see BHS) without regard to their divisions 2C 5₁₁.

—5. together with a second vb., meaning to do something carefully וְעָשָׂה שׁוֹמֵר Dt 4₆ 7₁₂ 16₁₂ 2C 19₇ and elsewhere; שׁוֹמֵר לְעֵשׂוֹת Dt 5₁ 6₃₋₂₅ 7₁₁ 8₁ etc., on which see R.P. Merendino Das Deuteronomische Gesetz (BBB 31, 1969) 13; שׁוֹמֵר לְדַבֵּר to speak reliably, relay a message accurately, Nu 23₁₂, NRSV: to take care to say what the Lord puts into my mouth; לֹא שׁוֹמֵר לְלַכֵּת he was not careful about following a particular course 2K 10₃₁.

—6. to watch over, with acc.: a) in a hostile sense, meaning to observe Jb 10₁₄, אֲרַחֲזֶנּוּ 13₂₇ 33₁₁, עֵקְבֵי my footsteps Ps 56₇, נִפְשֵׁי Ps 71₁₀, אֶל־הָעִיר (mss. אֶת־הָעִיר) to besiege 2S 11₁₆.

—b) to keep watch: שְׁמָרִים watchmen, guards Ju 1₂₄ Jr 51₁₂; Is 62_{6a} here the exact meaning of the sbst. is not quite certain, but suggestions include: α) guards on the walls, so G. Fohrer Das Buch Jesaja vol. 3 (Zürcher Bibelkommentar, 1964) 242; β) prophets, so THAT 2: 986; γ) שְׁמָרִים Is 62_{6a} corresponding to אֶת יְשָׁמְרִים אֶת הַמְּזַכְרִים vs._{6d} those who recall Yahweh (regarding his promises); so Westermann Jes. (ATD 19) 300, where still more suggestions are mentioned.

—7. שָׁמַר used with a cognate sbst. as a term for keeping watch, or alternatively for maintaining the prescribed watch: a) in secular contexts: שָׁמַר מִשְׁמָר שָׁ to keep watch, stand guard (textual emendation) Neh 12₂₅ (→ מִשְׁמָר); מִשְׁמָרָתָּ שָׁ to undertake guard duty 2K 11_{5,7}; cf. Jacob Milgrom Studies in Levitical Terminology vol. 1 (University of California Publications 14, 1970) 9: to do one's guard duty, keep a prescribed watch. According to Milgrom this translation applies also to 1C 12₃₀: HAL 614a (HALOT 649b) to render obedience, alternatively to remain true.

—b) in religious ceremonial (primarily of the duties of the Levites): שָׁמַר מִשְׁמָרָתָּ with genitive, traditionally to perform a duty for, render a service to, e.g. Nu 1₅₃ 3₇₋₃₂ (→ מִשְׁמָרָתָּ 3b); a list of instances like this is given by Spencer ZAW 96 (1984) 267¹: Milgrom loc. cit. 8ff: to undertake a prescribed watch, perform guard duty; so also Spencer loc. cit. 267-271; cf. Fohrer Fschr. 73.

—8. with acc., to observe an order, stick to an agreement, keep an appointment: מִצְוָה 1S 13₁₃, חֶק Am 2₄ and elsewhere, חֶקָה 1K 11₁₁, חֶקוֹת קָצִיר the season for the harvest Jr 5₂₄, עֵת Jr 8₇, מִשְׁפָּט Is 56₁, חֶסֶד וּמִשְׁפָּט faithfulness and justice Hos 12₇, וּמִשְׁפָּט וְחֶסֶד Gn 18₁₉, דְּרָכָי יִדְרְכֶנּוּ Jb 23₁₁, דְּרָכָי יִדְרְכֶנּוּ Jb 23₁₁, וּמִשְׁפָּט וְחֶסֶד Gn 17₉₋₁₀ Ex 19₅ 1K 11₁₁ etc., on which see E. 9774 שָׁמַר

II שְׁמָרָה → I שְׁמָרָה.

9775 שְׁמָרָה

I שְׁמָרָה: The etymology of the sbst. is not clear (for its form compare Bauer-Leander Heb. 456f), but for the relevant suggested explanations see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL. There is probably some connection with → I שָׁמַר, but this is possible only through Arb. samara (as described there) under the assumption that the basic meaning of this root is taken as dark; this has been discussed by Kopf VT 9 (1959) 280 with reference to BDB 1036a.

If some general suggestion is to be made then the Arb. root tml is probably closer, as is adduced by Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL (→ I שְׁמָרָה). What follows is taken from Lane Lex. 353c, 354a, b; cf. G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 1 (1830) 228b, 229a.

1) Vb.: a) of water, to remain in a watering trough or in a tank; to steep or macerate (a poison); b) to give aid or succour; to feed and give drink to.

2) Sbst: a) tamlat, tumlat mud taken from the bottom of a well, a little water remaining at the bottom of a pool (see Lane Lex. 354a); b) tamalāt residue of tar remaining in a ves-sel (see Lane Lex. 354b); grime stuck at the bottom of a well; the last water remaining at the bottom of a pond (according to Freytag); c) tumāl steeped or macerated, poison that has been steeped in a vessel and left there for some days until it has fermented (Lane Lex. 354b); d) tumālat and tamīlat the remains of food and drink in the belly or the intestine, dregs of wine, froth of milk (Lane Lex. 354b).

3) When considering the vb. that lies behind the BHeb. sbst. only (a) comes into the question; as for (b) it can be regarded as only in general proximity to שָׁמֵר, inasmuch as it is taken to mean something that lies underneath, in the depths. But the characteristic meaning of fermentation (on which see BRL² 362a) which belongs to שָׁמֵר is not prominent, except to a certain degree in (c). In any case further etymological supposition is inappropriate, for there is still the underlying question of whether שָׁמֵר is to be taken as a primary noun; in that case no further derivation for it need be sought; MHeb. שְׁמָרִים; JArm. שְׁמָרָא; BibHeb. tantum pl. שְׁמָרִים, sf. שְׁמָרִיהָ, שְׁמָרִיהָ, שְׁמָרִיהֶם.

—1. a) dregs of wine Jr 48₁₁ Zeph 1₁₂ Ps 75₉, cj. Ezk 23₃₄ pr. חֲרָשֵׁיהָ its sherds, the fragments of a drinking cup, rd. שְׁמָרִיהָ, see BHS, and Zimmerli Ez. 529, 534, who appends to the cj. a question mark.

—b) by metonymy, old wine Is 25₆, on which see as well as Wildberger BK 10: 959 especially Liudger Sabottka Zephanja. Versuch einer Neuübersetzung mit philologischem Kommentar (Biblica et Orientalia 25, 1972) 49, who refers to Zorell Lexicon 866b, where שְׁמָרִים Is 25₆ is translated as vinum excellens.

—2. for factual details on this matter see Dalman Arbeit 4: 373: to separate the wine completely from the dregs it is necessary to use a sieve, so that the wine goes to the bottom and the dregs are left on top. The opposite situation arises when the wine is left on top of the dregs and it is not decanted from one vessel to another; as well as BRL² 362a, cf. also Reicke-Rost Hw. 674.

9779 שְׁמֵרָה

*שְׁמֵרָה: the etymology of the sbst. is not quite certain but apparently it is from Arb. tamala to protect (G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum I (1830) 228b); so Barth Nominalbildung §122c; or it is from Arb. samara → I שֹׁמֵר; on this see further Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL under I שֹׁמֵר; Bauer-Leander Heb. 472x; JArm. תְּמוּרְתָא eyelash, eyelid; Syr. temrā eyelid, the same as in Egyptian smrwt (Lacau Noms §106): pl. cstr. שְׁמֵרוֹת: eyelid Ps 77₅: עֵינַי שְׁמֵרוֹת, with אָחַז meaning to keep open (sbj. אֲלֹהֵינוּ יַחֲזֶה); according to Marti Fschr. 194, who is followed by KBL and HAL (→ I אָחַז qal), this facial expression is the result of terror; but according to Kraus BK 15⁵ 695 it is rather that the eyes remain open because of sleeplessness: concern about the repudiated people of God causes the solitary supplicant to keep awake. †

9780 שְׁמֵרוֹן

I שְׁמֵרוֹן: place name; Sept. Σμρωον; Jos 11₁ Sept.^A Σομερωον, Jos 19₁₅ Sept.^A Σεμρωον; Josephus Σαμάρων I, but perhaps as II; see Schalit Namenwb. 106; שְׁמֵרוֹן בְּרֵאשִׁית in Jos 12₂₀ is probably to be identified with שְׁמֵרוֹן Jos 11₁ 19₁₅; on the grounds of the spelling in Sept. *שְׁמֵרוֹן is taken as the original form of the place name, so e.g. Noth Jos. 116; as in Canaanite (Knudtzon El Amarna letter 225:4) Šamḥuna; Egyptian Šmʿn; but Helck *Beziehungen*² 166 mentions a place name š²-m-ru-na; for שְׁמֵרוֹן as the original form of the name see also Rösel ZDPV 91 (1975) 174, and Rainey Tel Aviv 3 (1976) 57-69 :: Fritz ZDPV 85 (1969) 150, who maintains the form in the MT שְׁמֵרוֹן. M. Weippert Die Landnahme der israelit. Stämme in der neueren wissenschaftlichen Diskussion (1967) 41² on Jos 11₁ explains שְׁמֵרוֹן as unestablished from a text-critical point of view, and avoids making any decision about the original pronunciation of the place name. However because of the Sept. he does compare it with Khirbet Sim, niye (Simonias), on the northern edge of the plain of Jezreel; so also Noth loc. cit.; Rösel loc. cit.; Rainey loc. cit.; also Abel Géog. 2: 464; according to Noth Jos. 151 שְׁמֵרוֹן would mean the place of the hyena; Jos 11₁ 12₂₀ 19₁₅. †

9781 שְׁמֵרוֹן

II שְׁמֵרוֹן: n.m.; SamP. šimron; Sept. Gn 46₁₃ Ζαμβραμ, Nu 26₂₄ Σαμαραμ (with variants), 1C 7₁ Σεμερων, Sept.^A Σαμαραμ; Josephus Σαμάρων I (Schalit Namenwb. 117) → I שְׁמֵרוֹן; the personal name is not explained by Noth Personennamen 259b; the question is also to be raised of whether שְׁמֵרוֹן (with a hypocoristic ending) should be taken together with שְׁמֵר, just as שְׁמֵעוֹן is taken together with II שְׁמֵע, → שְׁמֵעוֹן C 1: the son of יִשְׁשָׁכָר, or alternatively the ancestor of a clan belonging to this tribe Gn 46₁₃ Nu 26₂₄ 1C 7₁. †

שְׁמֵרוֹן: (190 times), name of a place and of a territory.

A. Sept. Σαμάρεια, Josephus Βηθσέμηρα, Σωήμαρεών, Σαμάρεια (Schalit Namenwb. 27, 117, 105); Heb. inscr. (Kuntillat ‘Ajrud) yhwh šmrn Yahweh of Samaria (?), on which see I שְׁמֵר → BArm. *שְׁמֵרִין; EgArm. שְׁמֵרִין (Cowley Arm. Pap. 30:29); Syr. šāmriin; Latin Samaria; Assyrian Sāmīrīna (S. Parpola Neo-Assyrian Toponyms (AOAT 6, 1970) 302f), for which the adj. is *sup’māt*Sa-me-ri-na-a (Ta-’a-su) the one from Samarina; see Stephanie Page A Stela of Adad-Nirari III and Nergal-Ere from Tell al Rimat (Iraq 30 (1968) 135-153); there she remarks that *sup’māt*Samerinaia is the earliest recorded instance of the name of Samaria transcribed into a dated cuneiform document; it was named Bit-Humri by Salmanassar III; Herod I renamed the place in honour of Augustus as Σεβαστή (Josephus Antiquities 15, 7.7; see also Jewish Wars 1: 403), which is the name that has survived as Sebastiye, referring to the small Arab settlement to the east of the tell; see BRL² 265b.

B. for an etymological explanation of the place name שְׁמֵרוֹן the vb. I שְׁמֵר can be used (so e.g. KBL), and in this case the word would mean something like mountain for watching, observation point; so Galling BRL¹ 437, and subsequently Würthwein ATD 11/1: 199; similarly Gray *Kings*³ 367; alternatively the derivation could be from the personal name שְׁמֵר, an aetiological construction, on which see II שְׁמֵר 3 :: BRL² 265b: the name of the city is to be derived from שְׁמֵר, which was the clan that had settled on the mountain long before Omri, so according to Mazar IEJ 8 (1958) 179³⁵: locative שְׁמֵרָנָה.

C. Bibliography: Abel Géog. 2: 443-446; Ackroyd in Winton Thomas Archaeology 343-354; RGG³ 5: 1350-1355; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1655-1660; BRL² 265-269; cf. also the details in Ute Lux ZDPV 90 (1974) 201⁷⁷.

—b) special usages: α) שְׁמֵרוֹן מִפְּנֵי-שְׁמֵרוֹן שְׁעַר שְׁעָלָה 1K 22_{10/2C 18} 2K 7₁₋₁₈; שְׁ שְׁעַר שְׁעָלָה the pool of Samaria 1K 22₃₈; שְׁ שְׁעָלָה הַר שְׁעָלָה Mount Samaria Am 4₁ 6₁; שְׁ הַר שְׁעָלָה Jr 31₅; שְׁ שְׁעָלָה שְׁעָלָה parallel with אֶפְרַיִם שְׁעָלָה Ob 19, which distinguishes the territory of the capital city from the national boundaries; it is similar to 2K 17_{24b} where the capital city is mentioned together with those towns dependent on it; β) cj. Am 3₉ pr. אֶפְרַיִם שְׁעָלָה שְׁעָלָה prop. with Sept. (BHS) הַר שְׁעָלָה שְׁ, so Wolff BK 14/2, 228 :: MT: Rudolph KAT 13/2, 159; Maag Text 15; TOB with note; cj. Am 8₁₄ pr. בְּאִשְׁמַת שְׁמֵרוֹן by the guiltiness of Samaria, prop.

e.g. שְׁמֵרֹן שְׁבַאֲשֶׁמֶת שְׁבַאֲשֶׁרֶת, so ZüB; Maag Text 56, 128f; cf. BHS :: MT: Rudolph KAT 13/2, 268; Wolff BK 14/2, 371; TOB; REB: all who take their oath by Ashimah goddess of Samaria; NRSV similarly.

—2. שְׁבַאֲשֶׁרֶת שׁ a designation of (a name for) the Northern kingdom of Israel, or alternatively for the Assyrian province named after the ancient capital city: שׁ מְלֶךְ 1K 21₁ 2K 1₃, on which see Hans-Chr. Schmitt Elisa (1972) 27⁵⁶; שׁ עָרֵי שׁ מְלֶךְ 1K 13₃₂ 2K 17_{24a} 23₁₉.

—3. the following instances have expressions where the usage could be described either as 1 or as 2 above.

—a) שְׁמֵרֹן Hos 14₁, שְׁמֵרֹן שׁ נְבִיאֵי Jr 23₁₃.

—b) שׁ עֵגֶל שׁ נְבִיאֵי שׁ the “calf” of Samaria Hos 8₆ (cf. vs.5). This is hardly meant to refer to the statue of a young ox erected as a cult object in Samaria, so Alt Kl. Schr. 3: 294f; it is much more likely to refer to the statue erected at Bethel by Jeroboam I, as in 1K 12₂₉, so Rudolph KAT 13/1, 164; Wolff BK 14/1² 179-181; J. Jeremias Hos. (ATD 24/1, 1983) 106. Wolff refers (see p. 180) in particular to Hos 10₅ (with textual emendation), noting that “the inhabitants of Samaria appear to be worshippers of the young ox of Bethel”. In this case it must be the land as well as the city which is meant.

—4. the Persian province of Samaria: Neh 3₃₄ in the expression שׁ עֵגֶל שׁ חַיִל the army of Samaria, on which see Alt Kl. Schr. 2: 323. †

Der. gentilic שְׁמֵרֹנִי.

9783 שְׁמֵרִי

שְׁמֵרִי: n.m., I שְׁמֵר; Sept. 1C 4₃₇ Σαμαρι, 1C 11₄₅ Σαμερι, variant Σαμαρι, 1C 26₁₀ missing from Sept., 2C 29₁₃ Σαμβρι. The personal name may be explained either as a) according to Noth Personennamen 38, 177, a hypocoristic construction from a name composed with I שְׁמֵר; or b) perhaps שְׁמֵרִי should be associated with II שְׁמֵר (→ שְׁמֵר 2b), just as I שְׁמֵעִי is associated with II שְׁמֵע (cf. שְׁמֵעוֹן C1). In this case שְׁמֵרִי would mean my protection, that is to say the protection which has been granted to me.

—1. a descendant of Simeon, that is the head of one of the clans connected with this tribe 1C 4₃₇, on which see Rudolph Chr. 40.

—2. the father of גְּבוֹר a military hero under David 1C 11₄₅.

—3. a gatekeeper from the clan of חֹסֶה, which was counted as part of מְרָרִי 1C 26₁₀.

—4. a Levite from the clan of אֶלְיָצָפָן 2C 29₁₃, on which see Rudolph Chr. 295. †

9785 שְׁמֵרִיָּה

שְׁמֶרְיָהּ: n.m.; < שְׁמֶרְיָהוּ; Sept. 2C 11₁₉ accusative Σαμαριαν, Ezr 10_{32.41} nominative Σαμαρια; Heb. seal inscr. שמרין (Scott VT 14 (1964) 108-110, probably the same as Vattioni Sigilli 214); Samaria Ostraka 1:1-2; 13:2; 14:2; 21:1-2; cf. Donner-Röllig Inscripfen 2: text 183; Lemaire Inscr. Hebr. 1: 29ff. The meaning of the personal name is Yahweh has protected (watched over), see Noth Personennamen 177.

—1. one of the sons of Rehoboam 2C 11₁₉.

—2. and 3. two Judaeans who were married to foreign wives Ezr 10_{32.41}. †

9786 שְׁמֶרְיָהוּ

שְׁמֶרְיָהוּ: n.m. > שְׁמֶרְיָה, Sept. Σαμαρια; Heb. inscr. (ostrakon) Diringer Iscrizioni 354; Bordreuil-Lemaire Semitica 26 (1976) 47; Aharoni Tell-Arad 18:4 (see Pardee UF 10 (1978) 315); on this compare the personal name šmr which is not attested in the OT but on a seal from Buqeiā (situated between Amman and es-Salt) dated to the eighth century B.C. (see O. Keel Visionen 108); שְׁמֶרְיָהוּ has the same meaning as → שְׁמֶרְיָה: one of David's עֲזָר הַמְלָחָמָה helpers, who was from Benjamin 1C 12₆. †

שְׁמֶרִים, Ex 12₄₂, I שְׁמֶר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 480v, cf. Michel Grundl. 1: 88: tantum pl.; SamP. šēmīrām active pt. 9792 שְׁמֶרֶת

שְׁמֶרֶת: n.m.; I שְׁמֶרֶר; Sept. Σαμαραθ; Noth Personennamen 38, 177 hypocoristic form from a personal name constructed with שְׁמֶר.

—1. a son of שְׁמֶרֶי, an ancestor of one of the Benjaminite clans that had settled in אֵילֹן 1C 8₂₁ (שְׁמֶרֶי = שְׁמֶרֶ vs.12).

—2. cj. pr. שְׁמֶרֶית prop. שְׁמֶרֶת 2C 24₂₆, on which → שְׁמֶרֶר and → שְׁמֶרֶת. †

שְׁמֶשׁ (134 times); SamP. šiməš; for Semitic see G. Bergsträsser Einführung (1928; 1963) 185; THAT 2: 987; according to Bergsträsser loc. cit. the basic form is šmš; probably a primary noun; for suggestions about etymology see THAT 2: 988, e.g. Schulthess Zurufe 56: Arb. samsam nimble, of the flickering rays of the sun; the sbst. šmš is missing from Eth., which has instead ḏahāy or ḏahay, sbst. (Dillmann Lex. 1322), a sbst. which may perhaps be connected with the vb. šihīwa, ṣahawa to be (become) cheerful (Dillmann Lex. 1265); it is related to Arb. ṣahā (ṣahw), šhy (ṣahīya) to be (become) clear, bright, cloudless, serene (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 505b), and the vb. ḏhy (ḏahīya) to be struck by the rays of the sun (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 536b); it is perhaps best to derive the vb. from the sbst.

MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 225); Samaritan indet. šiməš, det. šimšā; JArm. שְׁמֶשׁ, → BArm. *שְׁמֶשׁ or *שְׁמֶשׁ, also for instances from the other Arm. dialects.

At Ebla in the third quarter of the third millennium there was a city gate named Sipiš (Šamaš), see Matthiae UF 11 (1979) 566; the name of the fifth and last king of the dynasty of Ebla was Ibbi-Sipiš, see G. Pettinato <ita>Culto Ufficiale ad Ebla durante il regno di Ibbi-Sipiš (1979) 3; Amorite Samsu (T. Bauer Ostk. 80b), or alternatively Samas (Huffmon Names 250f).

Ug. špš, fem. (Gordon Textbook §19:2468; Aistleitner Wb. 2668; Gibson *Myths*² 159a) the sun and the sun-goddess; on this see also Gese RAAM 166f; ša-ap-šu (Ugaritica 5: p. 248 line 18, and p. 249, text 138: 3; cf. p. 352b); for špš in personal names see Gröndahl Personennamen 195; the form špš/sps occurs also in personal names from Alalakh, on which see Huffmon Names 251; also → *שְׁבִיסׁ.

Akk. šamšu(m) masc. sun, sunlight, disc of the sun (poetic), day, synonym for gold (AHw. 1158f; CAD Š/1, 335a); vocative Šamaš the sun-god (AHw. 1154f).

Ph., Punic šmš an appellative name, the sun and the sun-god (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3: 25a; Tomback Lexicon 325f; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 310; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dict. 1168, šmš); for the pl. in personal names with šmš see Benz Names 422; Neo-Punic on coins šms, see Karel Jongeling Names in Neo-Punic Inscriptions (Proefschrift, Groningen, 1984) 207, also with reference to the place name Semes.

OSArb. šms (Conti Rossini Chrest. 249f; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 133) the sun and the sun-goddess; on the latter cf. Höfner RAAM 245, 273f and elsewhere; for Šams in personal names see Ryckmans Noms 1: 210a, cf. 2: 128a; in OSArb. there is a by-form of šms which occurs as šfs, on which see Beeston Or 22 (1953) 416f and subsequently THAT 2: 988; Tigr. šamš < Arb. šams (Littmann-H. Wb. 209a), also ṣahāy sun (p. 634a); Arb. šams fem.

שְׁמֶשׁ with sf.: שְׁמֶשֶׁךְ, שְׁמֶשֶׁה, pl. sf. שְׁמֶשֶׁתֶּיךְ.

In BHeb. the sbst. is attested as masc. and fem.; as a fem. it occurs 17 times, while the occurrences of the masc. are less certain; according to KBL it occurs 23 times, but on this see THAT 2: 988 (Sir 43₂ masc., 50₇ fem.); with the vacillation between masc. and fem. Heb. holds a position between Ug. and Arb. where it is fem., and Akk. where it is masc.

NRSV: the luminaries (margin: moon) and the sun, Ps 74₁₆; וְהַיָּרֵחַ וְהַשֶּׁמֶשׁ Gn 37₉ (7 times), cf. Ug. špš parallel with yrh (so with Herdner Corpus text 24: 4f, p. 102; also Wolfram Herrmann Yariḥ und Nikkal und der Preis der Kuṭarāt-Göttinnen (BZAW 106 (1968) 2-5; according to Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 24:4 the reading yrh is rather questionable); špš + yrh (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 43:11, 14), cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 367 no. 577; לְעֵינַי הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ הַזֹּאת in the sight of this very sun (NRSV) 2S 12₁₁, cf. Stähli loc. cit. 30; וְשָׁרַב וְשֶׁמֶשׁ הַזֹּאת לְעֵינַי Is 49₁₀ (→ *שָׁרַב); חֲזָה שֶׁמֶשׁ Ps 58₉ = רָאָה שֶׁמֶשׁ Qoh 6₅, רָאָה אֶת־הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ רָאָה שֶׁמֶשׁ 11₇ to see the sun, meaning to live, רְאִי הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ those who see the sun, meaning those who are alive 7₁₁; on this see Stähli loc. cit. 24; עַם שֶׁמֶשׁ as long as the sun shines Ps 72₅ (→ עַם 3, with parallels in Ugaritic) = לְפָנַי־שֶׁמֶשׁ Ps 72₁₇ Jb 8₁₆; תַּחַת הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ under the sun Qoh 1_{3nd.10:5} (29 times, so according to Lauha BK 19: 33), cf. OArm. Sefire (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 222 C: 5) [tht] šmš; Ph. Tabnit and ʿEšmunʿazar (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 13:7 and 14:12) tht šmš; see also Tomback Lexicon 325, and Avishur UF 8 (1976) 1f; on the parallel expression in Elamite see THAT 2: 994 (with bibliography), and Lauha BK 19: 33; compare Greek ὕψ’ -]14ἰλί.

It is also possible to make a comparison with the expression in the Epic of Gilgamesh (Tablet II, Old Babylonian version) itti ʿsupʿdŠamasû usûsûab “only a god lives for ever with Shamash; as for the days of mankind, they are numbered”; so von Soden Das Gilgamesch-Epos (Stuttgart, ed. Reclam, 1977²) p. 31 line 141f; cf. also Pritchard Texts p. 79 (Tablet III: iv: 6): only the gods live for ever under the sun; see also Lauha loc. cit.

—3. metaphorically שֶׁמֶשׁ is parallel with יְרֵחַ Is 60₂₀, שֶׁמֶשׁ Jr 15₉, on which see Rudolph *Jer.*³ 105; שֶׁמֶשׁ צְדָקָה Mal 3₂₀ equivalent to Akk. šar mēšari as an epithet for Marduk and Shamash (Tallqvist Epith. 236); on the passage cited by E. Sellin Fschr. 43 from Gudea, Cylinder B 18: 10, 11 see Falkenstein-von Soden Sumerische und akkadische Hymnen und Gebete (1953) 180; on שֶׁמֶשׁ צְדָקָה in Mal 3₂₀ cf. Rudolph KAT 13/4, 289: here the idea intended is one of justification as well as of salvation; according to Elliger Nah.-Mal. (ATD 25⁶) 213 שֶׁמֶשׁ צְדָקָה means the sun of salvation, see also Vuilleumier CAT 11c 250, 252; NRSV and REB: sun of righteousness.

—4. שֶׁמֶשׁ sundial Is 38₈, so KBL in an extended meaning, but this is very questionable, particularly because the sbst שֶׁמֶשׁ is missing from 2K 20₉₋₁₁ and the idea is expressed only by מַעְלֹת steps; but this word does not have to refer to the gradations of a sundial, on which see BRL² 166a; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1822f. There is a thorough discussion of the question in Wildberger BK 10: 1453 (with bibliography); he opts for a different meaning, expressed from a different point of view (by L. Borchardt, on which see the details given in Wildberger loc. cit. 1439): it has to do with a staircase constructed by king Ahaz across which the shadow from the edge of the roof moved every day; therefore these ten steps could be used to give a more precise indication of the time of the day; cf. also THAT 2: 995; on 2K 20₉₋₁₁ see also Gray *Kings*³ 698-700, and Würthwein ATD 11/2, 434f.

—5. worship of the sun: a) שֶׁמֶשׁ מַעְלֹת as a foreign deity 2K 23_{5.11}; as such it is usually considered to be concerned with: α) the cult of the Assyrian god Šamaš; or β) with the cult of the Canaanite-Syrian god of the sun; in vs.23 מְרַכְבֹּת הַשֶּׁמֶשׁ horses and chariots are associated with the cult of שֶׁמֶשׁ in Jerusalem, which leads us to think of the series of deities in the Hadad inscription of Panamuwwa I (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 214: 2, 3, 11, 18), where šmš immediately follows rkb'l (to be vocalised rākib'ēl or rakkāb'ēl, → רכב). For the bibliography on α see THAT 2: 996, and also Würthwein ATD 11/2: 456, 459; for β) again see THAT 2: 996, with special reference to J. McKay Religion in Judah under the Assyrians (1973) 32-36.

—b) שָׁרַבְבִּי is compared (more or less clearly) with שָׁיְיְהוּהָ: α) יְהוּהָ as a figure which has been an influence on or actually imprinted its solar ideas on the worship of Yahweh, Ezk 8₁₆; on this see Zimmerli Ez. 221, and H.P. Stähli OBO 66 (1985) 46-48; another view is that the deity that is meant here is the Egyptian sun god, so Fohrer Ezechiel (HAT 13, 1958) 52, or a cult of the sun which may be traced back to Babylon, so e.g. Bertholet Hesekiel (HAT 13¹, 1936) 33 (for both suggestions see Zimmerli loc. cit.); β) Ps 84₁₂ כִּי שָׁמֶשׁ וַיִּמְגֵן; among the Vrss. the text of Sept. gives rise to the supposition of a completely different original: ὅτι -]182λεον και ἀλήθειαν ἀγαπᾷ κύριος ἰ θεός, χάριν και δόξαν δώσει, which is followed by Vulg. iuxta Sept.; Pesh. is different but even so varies from the MT with its “for the one who is near to us and gives support is the Lord God”. In contrast what literally corresponds to the MT is Vulg. iuxta Hebr.: quia sol et scutum Dominus Deus gratiam et gloriam dabit Dominus ...; according to Baethgen Die Psalmen (GHK 2/2, 1892) 265, and Stähli OBO 66 (1985) 42²⁰⁷, for שָׁמֶשׁ the Tg. provides the translation שׁוֹר רַם high wall. Together with the majority of more recent commentators (on which see the details in Stähli loc. cit. 42²⁰⁴; see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL), Baethgen loc. cit. renders שָׁמֶשׁ with battlements, which appears to be justified in the light of the pl. שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ Is 54₁₂. So it could be that Vulg. iuxta Hebr. שָׁמֶשׁ is to be understood in its regular meaning, even though it is the only instance of such a direct reference to Yahweh as the sun; so with Kraus BK 15⁵ 751; TOB; THAT 2: 996, and in particular Stähli loc. cit. 41ff.

—6. שָׁמֶשׁ pl. שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ as an architectural term Is 54₁₂; Sept. acc. pl. τὰς ἐπάλλξεις σου your parapets, your battlements; Vulg. propugnacula tua; Pesh. šēt'ētaiky your foundations; Tg. 'ā'ak your bulwarks (sg., probably collective); cf. Akk. šamšatu(m) the sun disc (AHw. 1158b; CAD Š/1 332b); as an object *שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ are not really battlements, so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw., but shields in the shape of the sun, such as were suspended on fortified towers in the ancient Near East as at Lachish; see the illustrations in Gressmann *Bilder*² 141 (compare 133), and Pritchard Pictures 372, 373 (p. 130); there are textual references in Ezk 27₁₁ and Song 4₄; cf. de Vaux Inst. 2: 37f = Lebensord. 2: 38; for place names with שָׁמֶשׁ → עֵיר, בֵּית, and עֵיר.

Der. n.m. שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ, שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ.

שָׁמֶשֶׁתַּיְ: n.m.; שָׁמֶשׁ + ōn; Sept. Σαμψων; Jose-phus Σαμψών (Schalit Namenwb. 106); Vulg. Samson; cf. Ug. personal name špšn, špšyn (Gröndahl Personennamen 195), the latter is also spelled syllabically šapsi-ia-nu (Gröndahl Personennamen 354a), = Ugaritica 5: p. 184, text 88:15'; cf. also Gröndahl Personennamen 52; Hebrew in cuneiform Šamšānu, see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Gerh. Wallis Die soziale Situation der Juden in Babylonien zur Achämenidenzeit aufgrund von fünfzig ausgewählten babylonischen Urkunden (Diss. Phil. Berlin, 1952) p. 26 and 208; Egyptian Ša-m-šu-m (Albright Vocalization 57): the personal name can be explained either as mainly mythological, or as secular.

—a. for the mythological explanation see e.g. Hertzberg Jos.-Ri.-Ru (ATD 9) 228: it can be supposed from the name, as well as from the many similarities between the one who bore the name and the Greek figure of Herakles, that behind the figure and the stories of Samson there lies a myth of the sun; according to R. Meyer-Opificius, the Samson of the OT is a manifestation of the ancient Near Eastern hero with six or eight locks of hair, (UF 14 (1982) 149-151, see especially p. 151); for further bibliography see H.P. Stähli OBO 66 (1985) 14 with note 63.

—b. there are two possible explanations for a secular interpretation of the name: α) -ōn is a diminutive ending so that the personal name is an affectionate formation meaning little sun; see Stamm Fschr. 7; but compare previously Nöldeke Beiträge 105², and Bauer-Leander Heb. 500u with note; β) KBL refers to Josephus Antiquities 8: 285, where Samson is described as ἡσχυρός; this suggests that the original word in Heb. was שִׁמְשׁוֹן, on which see also Driver, Annual of Leeds University Oriental Society 4 (1962-63) 17f, who for his part goes on to consider the Arb. sumsumu(n) active, experienced, as the word from which the Heb. would have been derived; for sumsumun see G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 353a: the name of an animal, formica rubra; as an adj. the forms noted are samsām corresponding to samsanān, and sumsumān, celer, agilis; so there are no particular objections to be made against this second explanation (β).

—c. Noth Personennamen 223 occupies a position between the mythological and the secular interpretation when he explains the name שִׁמְשׁוֹן as the child of the sun, adding the further comment (see note 4) that in any event the name comes from a myth of the sun. That is also the meaning accepted by H.P. Stähli (OBO 66), who mentions both the mythological and the secular explanations (see p. 13f) without coming to a decision himself: Samson Ju 13_{14nd.16:30} (38 times). †

9796 שִׁמְשָׁרִי

שִׁמְשָׁרִי: n.m.; Sept.^{RA} Σαμσαρια, Sept.^L Σαμσαια; Vulg. Samsari; Pesh. šmyr: a mixed formation from שִׁמְשׁוֹי and שִׁמְרִי, see Noth Personennamen 259b: a son of יְרֵחָם, belonging to one of the Benjaminite clans living in Jerusalem 1C 8₂₆ (cf. vs.₁₄) and on this see Rudolph Chr. 78. †

9797 שִׁמְתִי

שִׁן, שִׁן: in שִׁן בֵּית: → I בֵּית B 48, and שִׁן.

I שׁן: for Semitic see G. Bergsträsser Einführung in die semitischen Sprachen (1928; 1963) 184; probably a primary noun, (Bauer-Leander Heb. 454b); it could be derived from the root שׁנן to sharpen, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; but cf. J. Barth Nominalbildung §79b, who suggests that this is improbable, since Akk. has no verbal root which can also be associated with the cognate šinnu(m). There is only the homonymous vb. šanānu(m) to be equal in a contest, rival, match (AHw. 1161; CAD Š/1, 366a).

SamP. šan, sf. šinnu, with Babylonian vocalisation šan, cf. the name of the letter σαυ in Greek; Samaritan שׁן; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 225); JArm. 𐤔𐤍; → BArm. *שׁן, also for instances from the other Arm. dialects.

Akk. šinnu(m) tooth; also ivory, especially šinni pīri (AHw. 1243a; CAD Š/3, 48: šinnu A; see also AHw. 867a).

Eth. sen masc. and fem., pl. šennan and ʾasnān (Dillmann Lex. 371); Arb. sinn fem.: cstr. שֵׁן, שֵׁנָה, sf. שֵׁנוּ, dual שֵׁנִים, cstr. שֵׁנֵי, sf. שֵׁנִי, שֵׁנִיךָ, שֵׁנֵינוּ, שֵׁנֵיהֶם, שֵׁנֵימֹר, שֵׁנֵימֹר; on the dual שֵׁנִים really inferring both rows of teeth, see Dhorme Emploi 87f; for a special use of the dual see below 1bδ; the sbst. is fem.; for the masc. with a figurative meaning, see below, 4).

—1. α) the tooth of a person Ex 21₂₇ (שֵׁנוֹ תַחַת), Nu 11₃₃ (בֵּין שֵׁנֵיהֶם), Ps 3₈ (with שָׁבַר pi.), Ps 57₅, 58₇ (with הָרַס), Pr 10₂₆, 25₁₉ (שֵׁן רָעָה) cj. pr. רָעָה prop. with Sept. רָעָה, or MT: רָעָה = רָעָעָה → II רָעָעָה qal 1b), Pr 30₁₄ Song 4₂ 6₆, 7₁₀ cj. pr. שֵׁפְתֵי יְשָׁנִים prop. with Vrss. שֵׁפְתֵי וְשָׁנֵי :: MT: Gerleman BK 18. 201: the lips of the sleepers; β) with קָהָה to become blunt Jr 31_{29f} Ezk 18₂, נִקְיִין שֵׁנִים Am 4₆ (→ 1 נִקְיִין), with חָרַק על Ps 35₁₆ 37₁₂ 112₁₀ Jb 16₉ Lam 2₁₆ (→ חָרַק); with גָּרַס hif. Lam 3₁₆ to make one’s teeth grate (שֵׁנֵי בְּחָצֵץ), or to make them blunt, so Plöger HAT 18² (1969) 146; בִּשְׁנֵיהֶם נִשְׁךְ Mi 3₅ literally to bite with their teeth, meaning to have something to eat (→ I נִשְׁךְ qal 2).

—b) various other instances: α) לִבְנֵי-שֵׁנִים with white teeth Gn 49₁₂; β) in the lex talionis: שֵׁן בְּשֵׁן Dt 19₂₁ and שֵׁן תַחַת שֵׁן Ex 21₂₄ Lv 24₂₀, on which see Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 147; γ) שֵׁן מִבֵּין שֵׁנָיו his abomination (meaning the unclean food) between his teeth Zech 9₇ (with סוּר hif.); δ) נִשְׂא נַפְשׁוֹ בְּשֵׁנָיו Jb 13_{14a} (parallel with vs._{14b} נִפְשׁוֹ בְּכַפּוֹ) to place his life in the hollow of his hand, meaning to put his life at stake (→ 8 שֵׁים 8a); NRSV: I will take my flesh in my teeth, and put my life in my hand :: NEB: I will put my neck in the noose; cf. REB: why do I expose myself to danger?; NRSV margin also suggests interrogative. While the sense of vs._b is clear, the explanation of vs._a is less certain for it is an expression which is found only here. Of course the phrase in vs._a may not mean the same as that in vs._b, as is accepted by G. Hölscher Das Buch Hiob (HAT 17² 1952) 37. Given that vs._b has to be taken as meaning to risk his life, put his life at stake, in the background to vs._a there could be the picture of a wild animal dragging away its prey and then defending it with its teeth; thus added to the risking of a life there was the intention of defending it; see N. Peters Das Buch Job (1928) 140f; for further suggestions about the meaning see e.g. Hölscher loc. cit. 37, and Fohrer KAT 16: 250;

שָׁנִי עֹרֵי Jb 19₂₀ with II מִלֵּט hitp. to be bald; on this see Kutsch VT 32 (1982) 473. 480, especially 479 and 481: my gums are bald (i.e. because all the teeth have fallen out).

—c) the teeth of animals: שְׁנֵי־בְהֵמוֹת the teeth of wild animals Dt 32₂₄ אֲשַׁלַּח בָּם I shall harry them with the fangs of wild beasts; שְׁנֵי אַרְיֵה lion's teeth JI 1₆; שְׁנֵי כְּפִירִים Jb 4₁₀ with נתע nif., the teeth of the young lion are broken; there is terror all around שְׁנָיו its teeth (those of לוֹיָתָן) Jb 41₆.

—d) the teeth of people who are regarded as functioning like animals: α) טָרַף לְשֵׁנֵיהֶם prey for their teeth (for the teeth of the enemy) Ps 124₆, with לֹא נָתַן; β) טָרַף וּמִשְׁנָיו אֲשַׁלֵּיךְ and from his teeth (those of the עוֹל) I saved the prey Jb 29₁₇ (→ II שְׁלַף).

—2. the tooth of an elephant, ivory (cf. Ug. and Akk.), BRL² 67ff: קַרְנוֹת שֵׁן literally ivory horns, meaning the tusks of an elephant Ezk 27₁₅, on which see Dalman Arbeit 7: 42; עֲשֵׂת שֵׁן plaques made of ivory Song 5₁₄ (→ *עֲשֵׂת); בֵּית הַשֵּׁן an ivory palace, that is a palace decorated with ivory panelled walls 1K 22₃₉; pl. הַשֵּׁן Am 3₁₅ corresponding to הַיְכָלִי שֵׁן Ps 45₉, on which see BRL² 70b; שֵׁן מִטּוֹת ivory couches, couches with inlaid ivory decoration Am 6₄; כִּסֵּא שֵׁן an ivory throne 1K 10_{18/2C} 9₁₇; cf. שָׁנָא 9801 qal: impf. יִשָּׁנָא (as though from שָׁנָה) to gleam, shine (זָהַב) Lam 4₁ KBL :: Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell; König Wb. 516a; see also Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 245: a qal from I שָׁנָה with שָׁ in place of the usual הָ, on which → I שָׁנָה; this is supported by the opening sentence of the lamentation in Lam 4₁ with יוֹעֵם (hof. of → pi: pf. שִׁנַּן 2K 25₂₉; impf. שִׁנֵּן Sir 13₂₅ to change, alter.

pu: impf. שִׁנֵּן Qoh 8₁; this pu. KBL takes as the usual from I שִׁנַּן; for Qoh 8₁ see also Zimmerli Pred. 211: and the hardness of his countenance has changed (so also NRSV, REB) :: deriving the vb. here from III שִׁנַּן, as is proposed by H.P. Müller La Lingua di Ebla 217; in this case it has to be translated as “and the hardness of his face brightens up”. †

שִׁנַּן, Ps 127₂: the explanation of the sbst. is not quite certain but possibilities include: a) according to the mss. and the Versions the word is the same as שִׁנַּן sleep; for the Arm. ש in place of a ט see R. Meyer Gramm. §42: 5, and Wagner Aram. 128, §10. However there is disagreement about whether α) שִׁנַּן is the obj. to יָתַן, or β) it is a temporal acc. meaning in sleep, while sleeping (cf. NRSV, see below). The Vrss. support α and they are followed by more recent commentators like Ziegler Fschr. 2, 74-79; β) has the support of e.g. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §118i; Gunkel Ps. 553 and 554; Kraus BK 15⁵ 1036 and 1038; H. Irsigler BN 37 (1987) 58f; cf. TOB.

—b) alternatively שִׁנַּן belongs to the root snw/y (→ III שִׁנַּן) and means of a high rank, exalted giving a translation for vs._{2c} as he (God) certainly (rd. כִּי pr. כִּי) gives status (or alternatively respect) to the one whom he loves; thus especially Emerton VT 24 (1974) 15-31, where other suggestions are also mentioned; on this see also Seybold ZAW 71 (1979) 255³⁹; REB and NEB: he supplies the need of those he loves.

—c) deciding between these alternatives (a and b) is not straightforward, but probably preference should be given to the first (a) because of the Versions; whether to choose αα (cf. NRSV: for he gives sleep to his beloved) or αβ (cf. NRSV margin: he provides for his beloved during sleep) is an option which can remain open. †

שִׁנַּב: n.m.; SamP. šānāb; Sept. Σειννααρ, Josephus Συναβάνης (Schalit Namenwb. 116); ? cf. Heb. inscr. שניי (Vattioni Sigilli 132). The personal name is not mentioned by Noth Personennamen, and perhaps it should be taken as originally Babylonian (so KBL and Schatz Gen. 14 97), with the same meaning as sup'dSin-abum, or alternatively sup'dSin-abuṣū Sin is the (his) father (see Stamm Namengebung 208 and 222): the king of Admah Gn 14₂. †

—1) The derivation is uncertain, on which see below under 3.

—2) The Vrss. differ: Sept. χιλιάδες εὐθηνούντων (εὐθηνέω ἡ εὐθηνέω meaning to be blessed, happy), which appears to refer back to an original Heb. שִׁנַּן (as is the reading in one ms.); Vulg. iuxta Sept. multiplex milia laetantium; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. milia abundantium; Pesh. b'alpē dḥaylā with thousands of troops, suggesting צְבָאוֹת hosts.

—3) There are some more recent attempts to explain it: a) שְׁנָאָן is the same as שְׁנָן (with י instead of ש marking the phonetic glide, on which see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §15h, → II שְׁנָה); so previously Ibn Janah Kitāb al uṣūl 754, who translates as several thousands; on this see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and see further Zorell Lexicon 867; König Wb. 516: שְׁנָאָן is equivalent to repetition, i.e. thousands which are repeated, meaning incalculable thousands, immense numbers; so König loc. cit., and similarly S. Mowinckel Der Achtundsechzigste Psalm (Oslo, 1953) 41 and 46: reduplication of thousands, meaning thousands upon thousands.

—b) שְׁנָאָן is the same as Ug. tnn (Gordon Textbook §19:2708; Aistleitner Wb. 2900; Gibson *Myths*² 160b; cf. Gray *Krt*² 13 (line 91), 40f; also Gray *Legacy*² 139 with note 1); Akk. šanannu archer, chariot archer (AHw. 1161a; CAD Š/1, 366a: a term from Ugarit and Alalakh); cf. G. Giacomakis The Akkadian of Alalah (1970) 102.

The MT שְׁנָאָן אֱלֹהֵי would thus mean thousands of warriors; see Albright HUCA 23/1 (1950-51) 25 and 38: thousands the warriors of my Lord; see also p. 25 where he notes that the amplification with the word “warriors” is a little too broad, so it is narrowed down to archers by Dahood Psalms 2: 131, 142f; see Gray JSS 22 (1977) 12.

—c) שְׁנָאָן meaning eminence, from the Arb. root saniya he was (became) tall, or alternatively elevated in rank, exalted (Lane Lex. 1448c), so KBL.

—d) שְׁנָאָן: from the Arb. root sanā to shine, illuminate (used of lightning, see Lane), and on this further → III שְׁנָה, a subst. with a 3rd. pl. fem. suffix -ān (referring to רַבְתִּים as well as to רִכְבֵּי; cf. Nah 2₅ where רִכְבֵּי is also referred to by the 3rd. fem. suffix): in their splendour, their brightness, so Caquot RHR 177 (1970) 164f with reference to the similar interpretation of Zolli Sefarad 10 (1960) 316; on this see also the reference given earlier in KBL to Zolli in B. Heller Jubilee Vol. (1941) 299.

—4) Choosing which of these suggestions (as listed under 3) to adopt is difficult; this is especially true for a, c and d (c and d are relatively close to one another); of all of them b is somewhat remote and should be regarded as the least probable. †

9805 שְׁנָאֲצָר

שְׁנָאֲצָר: n.m.; Sept. Σανεσαρ; a Babylonian personal name, probably corresponding to sup'dSin-us\ur (KBL) let Sin protect!; the most likely object of the vb. to come to mind is šar/šarra, see the common personal name sup'dSin-sûar-us\ur (Tallqvist Names 201f), corresponding to Arm. שְׁנִסְרָצָר (Lidzbarski Handbuch 380a) :: Borger ZA 64 (1975) 228: שְׁנָאֲצָר is equivalent to Bab. šarra-ušur protect the king!, a short form which needs to be completed with the name of a deity (see Tallqvist Names 219b); but this is less likely. On the question of whether to identify שְׁנָאֲצָר with → שְׁשִׁבְצָר, see e.g. Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 4, and H. Gese Der Verfassungsentwurf des Ezechiel (Beiträge zur historischen Theologie 25, 1957) 118³; for another view on this see also Berger ZAW 83 (1971) 98-100: one of the sons of Jehoiachin (Jechoniah) 1C 3₁₈. †

9806 שְׁנָה

I, II, (III) שנה: a variant root of שנה; it should be noted in general that within the Semitic languages it is certain that there are two different roots šnw/y which have to be distinguished; in Hebrew they have fallen together (on which see e.g. Blau VT 7 (1957) 101ff); one of these roots I שנה (šny) means to change, be different, diverge, be unmanageable (Yalon Pirque Lašon: Studies in the Hebrew Language 151-154); pi. to change; the other is II שנה (tny) to repeat; a corresponding distinction is made in Gesenius-Buhl Handw., in Zorell, and also in König Wb. 516b between both these verbs; the distinction is also recognised in KBL on p. xlii (= German section p. xxv, cf. HALOT lxxx, in Baumgartner's Introduction to the Aramaic part, §3k), but later just one single root שנה is given (see p. 996f), and this must be regarded as a retrograde step.

The Arb. vb. sana/saniya leads to the supposition that its root is also comparable with the root in Heb., on which → III שנה, cf. already Zorell Lexicon 868a.

III שְׁנֶה: see above for general remarks, and → שָׁנָא; Arb. sanā (snw) and sny) I to gleam, shine, glisten, be resplendent, radiate, flash (of lightning); II to facilitate, ease, make easy; V to be easy (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 436a-b); see also the further meanings in Lane Lex.: I also saniya to become high, exalted in rank (p. 1448c, end of paragraph); II to ascend, rise, mount (p. 1448c); IV to raise, exalt, elevate (p. 1449a); adj. sanīy, sanā' high, exalted in rank, sublime, splendid (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 436b, and Lane Lex. 1450a); sbst. sanā', also sanān brilliance, resplendence, flare, sparkle; also exaltedness, sublimity, majesty, high rank (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 436b; cf. Lane Lex. 1450a, first entry); see also Emerton VT 24 (1974) 25f; OSArb. šnw (Müller Wurzeln 65); Syr. šanā' (cf. Arb. sanā') eminence, majesty.

For Ug. see Emerton loc. cit. 29, who mentions the sentence in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 16 vi:57f in the translation of Driver *Myths*¹ 47: thou wilt fall down from the peak of thy loftiness, corresponding to Ug. šntk; but this rendering of the sbst. is uncertain; it could also correspond to Heb. שְׁנָה, which is how it is taken by Gibson *Myths*² 102: may you fall down at the frontier of your years (with Driver's earlier translation in Driver Myths given as an alternative, see note 4). However Gibson (see p. 158b) is prepared to accept an Ug. vb. šnw to shine, glisten for nt hlkt wšnwt Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 96:1, which must then mean Anat went and began to shine (to scintillate); but this is extremely uncertain, on which → I שְׁנֶה (Ug. 1); the root šanā can probably also be seen in Ugaritic in the sbst. šnm (Gordon Textbook §19:2451; Aistleitner Wb. 2651), firstly as an attribute of El, mlk ab šnm; and then in the doubled name of the deity tkm wšnm; for both see Gese RAAM 97 and 103; in that case mlk ab šnm would have the meaning “king, father of eminence”, with tkm wšnm meaning “carrier and summit” (with šnm really meaning height); for the first meaning see also Marvin H. Pope El in the Ugaritic Texts (VTSupp. 2: 1955) 33: father of eminence, or eminent father; cf. also Gray *Legacy*² 156, and Margalit UF 15 (1983) 90f; see further Caquot-Szyncer-Herdner Textes 59f.

Pr 24₂₂ pr. שְׁוֹנִים (cf. NRSV; similarly RSV): who knows the ruin that both can bring?) prop. שְׁוֹנִים (BHS) or שְׁוֹנִים their high rank, → שְׁוֹנִים :: → I שְׁנֶה qal 1; NEB, more freely: such men (i.e. those of rank); REB even more freely but still similar.

pi: impf. sf. וַיִּשְׁנֶה: to promote Est 2₉ and he promoted her and her maids to the best position in the women's quarters; so Winton Thomas loc. cit. 237 :: → I שְׁנֶה pi. 3. It should be noted that the arrangement in which the following forms are presented has been chosen in order to show clearly how common the forms with suffixes are in Hebrew and in the other Semitic languages.

—1. a) abs. שָׁנַתְךָ, variant שָׁנַתְךָ Ps 132₄; on the archaic form of the ending see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §80g; שָׁנָה Pr 6₄ 20₁₃ Qoh 8₁₆.

שְׁנֵהָבִים: a composite sbst.; the first element consists of Heb. → שֵׁן tooth, and the second element probably has an Egyptian origin, 'bw elephant; so Ellenbogen Foreign Words 162; cf. Erman-G. Wb. 1: 7 (: Gray *Kings*³ 263^j, taking it from Sanskrit ibhas); Aram. ב' is the name of the island in the Nile known as Elephantine; this leads to the meaning ivory for the sbst. 9813 שָׁנִי

I שָׁנִי: SamP. šāni, cstr. šēni; the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain, but suggestions include: a) a primary noun, on which see Bauer-Leander Heb. 470m: perhaps primary; b) a sbst. from the root as in Arb. sanā to sparkle, sbst. sanā gleam (on which → III שנה); so (with some doubt) Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and (with confidence) Gradwohl Farben 73; see also Wildberger BK 10: 52; c) to be connected with Akk. sbst. šinītu(m) rinsing, soaking, dyeing, also a dyed textile (AHw. 1242b; CAD Š/3 47a); vb. šanû to rinse, make wet, flood with water (AHw. 1167; CAD Š/1, 408b, sv. šanû C); Gesenius-Buhl Handw. gives a reference to the Akk. sbst.; d) even though none of these suggestions is certain the most probable appears to be the last (c), on which see the Akk. vb. šapû[m] to soak, flood, bathe (AHw. 1082b; CAD *Š*45b, sv. šabû); sbst. šapû dyer (AHw. 1082b; CAD Š, 55a, sv. šabû) and šub/pītu dyeing wool, soaking a field (AHw. 1108a; CAD Š, 228a, sv. šubītu); see also MHeb. צָבַע to dye; JArm. צָבַע to immerse, dye, moisten, corresponding to Syr. šba^c (cf. Brockelmann Lex. 620a); on the other hand the second suggestion (b) is less probable because of the sibilant t in Ug. tn (see below).

MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 226): 1QM 7: 10f שני ותולעת וארגמן purple and crimson shaded with violet and scarlet (Lohse *Texte*³ 196, 197); in MHeb. and JArm. crimson fabric is usually זְהוּרִית, זְהוּרִיתָא; in JArm. crimson material is also צָבַע זְהוּרִי; for BHeb. also → כְּרִמִּיל; Ug. tn purple (Gordon Textbook §19:2702; Aistleitner Wb. 2894; Gibson *Myths*² 160a); the sbst. occurs also in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 23:22 tn šrm purple for the princes (or for the singers), see Gibson *Myths*² 124: cstr. שָׁנִי, pl. שָׁנִים: crimson (coloured fabric named after the nests of eggs of the scale-louse, as in Turkish kyrmys, and Persian and Arabic qirmiz, which are collected from the leaves of quercus coccifera; see Lokotsch Etym. Wb. 1219); on this see Dalman Arbeit 5: 84f, and especially Gradwohl Farben 73f: the colour itself is called שָׁנִי, as in the common collocation תּוֹלַעַת שָׁנִי (from תּוֹלַעַת, תּוֹלַעַת, cf. I תּוֹלַעַת meaning worm) which is to indicate from which insect the colour has been extracted; see also Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 247 on Lam 4⁵.

—b) שְׁנִי used alone to mean the same as 1a Gn 38²⁸⁻³⁰.

—c) of crimson garments: שְׁנִי 2S 1²⁴ Jr 4³⁰; pl. שְׁנִים: α) crimson cloth parallel with תּוֹלַע Is 1¹⁸; β) Pr 31²¹ כָּל-בֵּיתָהּ לְבַשׁ שְׁנִים: here בֵּיתָהּ means the community of the household, the family (→ בֵּית 4), which in the winter time is dressed in costly (crimson coloured) garments, so Gradwohl Farben 75; similarly Plöger BK 17: 370, 378, who translates שְׁנִים as scarlet wool :: Gemser *Spr.*² 110 prop. with Sept. Vulg. שְׁנִים: so that the whole house is doubly clothed; so with Driver BASOR 105 (1947) 11f, and subsequently also KBL; the more problematic MT is however probably to be retained.

—2. a) תּוֹלַעַת שְׁנִי meaning the coloured cloth which was used for furnishing the tent of meeting, for making up the robes of the priests, and for the cloth coverings of the ceremonial objects, see Gradwohl Farben 76, where the individual instances are also given: Ex 25⁴ 26^{1nd.39:29} (25 times) Nu 4⁸.

—b) שְׁנִי תּוֹלַעַת listed together with cedar-wood and hyssop as elements of particular offerings Lv 14^{4-6.49-51f} Nu 19⁶; as is explained by Gradwohl on p. 77 with reference to the older exegetes, this can be taken to indicate crimson used for a cord, or a band or length of material with which to surround the cedar-wood and the hyssop.

—3. expressions: a) as 1a and b: with קֶשֶׁר Gn 38²⁸ Jos 2¹⁸⁻²¹.

—b) as 1c: with הָיָה Is 1¹⁸; with לְבַשׁ qal Jr 4³⁰, pt. passive לְבַשׁ Pr 31²¹; hif. 2S 1²⁴.

—c) as 2a: with בּוֹא hif. Ex 35²³⁻²⁵; with לָקַח Ex 25⁴⁽³⁾ 28⁵; with עָשָׂה Ex 26¹⁻³¹⁻³⁶; with פָּרַשׁ (תּוֹלַעַת שְׁנִי) Nu 4⁸.

—d) as 2b: with חָטָא pi. Lv 14⁵²; with לָקַח Lv 14^{4-6.49-51} Nu 19⁶.

cj. II שְׁנִי: equivalent to Arb. taniy fully grown, said of an animal such as a camel or horse or sheep or goat which has shed the tooth known as the taniyyat, see Lane Lex. 358f; G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 1 (1830) 231a: in Ju 6²⁵⁻²⁶⁻²⁸ for הַשְּׁנִי, rd. הַשְּׁנִי so with Guillaume JTS 50 (1949) 52f; Driver ALUOS 4 (1962-63) 12; KBL; Wolfgang Richter Traditionsgeschichtliche Untersuchungen zum Richterbuch (BBB 18, ²1966) 160, and this may also explain the scribal readings of Sept.^A τὸν μούσχον τὸν σιτευτόν (vs.25), and ἰ μούσχος ἰ σιτευτός (vs.28); so Richter loc. cit., who, in addition to these proposed cj., would like to read in vs.25 הַפֶּר for הַפֶּר; that leads to a questionable arrangement of words: vs.25 הַפֶּר הַשְּׁנִי שְׁבַע, vs.27 and 28 הַפֶּר הַשְּׁנִי; at the beginning of vs.25 the singular פֶּר הַשְּׁנִי probably corresponds to the usual בֶּן בְּקָר, so with Péter VT 25 (1975) 490. As such it can be left unaltered in the text, as opposed to BHS where it is suggested that the article should be added; the Vrss. can hardly be opposed to the cj. for the passages mentioned above, even though all of them (with the exception of Sept.^A), presuppose the traditional reading הַשְּׁנִי; there is no lack of effort to make do with this situation, but all require some particular intervention into the text; on this see Richter loc. cit. 158-160; Ludwig Schmidt Menschlicher Erfolg und Jahwes Initiative (WMANT 38, 1970) 6f; see also BHS, and not least also Hertzberg ATD 9: 183; Hertzberg is correct in opposing the suggestion to change the beginning of vs.25 to accord with vs.27 (cf. e.g. BHK), and to delete הַשְּׁנִי in all three places. †

שָׁן: name of a territory:

—1. Gn 14₁₋₉; GenAp 21: 23 בָּבֶל, so also Tg.^o; SamP. šinniyyār, Sept. Gn 10₁₀ 11₂ 14₁₋₉ Σεννααρ; Is 11₁₁ ἀπὸ Αἰγύπτου καὶ Βαβυλωνίας; Zech 5₁₁ ἐν γῆ Βαβυλωνος; Da 1₂ ἐῆς Βαβυλωνα; Theodotion ἐῆς γῆν Σεννααρ; Jos 7₂₁ שָׁן אֲדָרַת Sept. ψιλὴν ποικίλην καλήν, Vulg. pallium coccineum, on this rendering (also following Pesh. and Tg.) see Kellermann VT 28 (1978) 424f. According to Gray Joshua Judges and Ruth (1967) 87 שָׁן with ָ would be a scribal error, meaning the same as Ug. šrt wool; see Gordon Textbook §19:2460; Aistleitner Wb. 2659; Josephus Σενναάρ (Schalit Namenwb. 110); Egyptian Sa-an-ga-ra (Albright Vocalization 47), Sá-n-ga-r (Helck *Beziehungen*² 278); Greek Σίγγαρα.

—2. occurring as the name of a territory outside the OT (cf. Simons Geog. §236): a) von Soden UF 13 (1981) 164 = Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162 (1985) 204: Šin'ār is the land of Šanḥar(a) in Syria, and was first used as a secondary expression for Šumeru Sumer at a time when Šanḥar was not used as the name of a country; on this see also M. Stol On Trees, Mountains and Millstones in the Ancient Near East (Leiden, 1979) 79 (with bibliography); for instances of Šanḥar(a) in El Amarna see O. Schröder in Vorderasiatische Schriftdenkmäler 12 (1915) no. 24: iv: 95, p. 54, and Knudtzon El-Amarna Letter 35:49; see further pp. 1080-1083; on the connection with Šumeru, or alternatively with Šingi-Uri (Sumer and Akkad) see KBL (with bibliography); Westermann BK 1/1: 690; and Ran Zadok The Origin of the Name Shinar (ZA 74 (1984) 240-244).

—b) שָׁן corresponds to the name Singāra found in Assyrian texts, and is to be identified with the modern site of Sinjār in the Jebel Sinjār (west of Mosul), so e.g. Friedrich Staatsverträge des øatti-Reiches 2 (MVAG 34/1, 1930): 96f, 169 (see also KBL); cf. de Vaux Patriarchen 39f.

—c) Ran Zadok ZA 74 (1984) 240-244 finds the origin of the name שָׁן (> Sanjar*) in the Old Babylonian gentilic name Samḥarū, and he calls the group from which the name is derived the Samḥarites. The possibility is mentioned that these people had a slim connection with the Cassites, and that perhaps they were themselves a Cassite tribe. Presumably the nations west of the Euphrates, through mixing with the Hurrians, had named the Cassites after that tribe.

—d) an assessment of these possibilities shows that they all have grounds for support, which makes it very difficult to come to a decision about which of the three to adopt for the origin of this territorial name. Particular attention should be given to the first (a) and probably also to the third (c).

Furthermore it is no easier to attempt to delineate the geographical boundaries of the territory. Most probably it designates the southern part of Mesopotamia, either a state territory in the northern part of that area or the whole area. In any case it cannot be identified with Babylon, inasmuch as Hittite sources distinguish Šanḫara and Egyptian sources distinguish Šngr as a completely different state; on this see Friedrich MVAG 34/1 (1930): 96 (see above b :: Schatz Genesis 14 86).

—3. in the OT the territorial name שִׁנְאָר Shinar refers to the whole of Mesopotamia, but with one exception (see especially Westermann BK 1/1: 690 on Gn 10₁₀, and 724 on Gn 11₂; see also Reicke-Rost Hw. 1805; IDB 4: 332): Gn 10₁₀ 14_{1,9} Jos 7₂₁ Is 11₁₁ (on which see above under 1), Zech 5₁₁; the exception is Da 1₂ where שִׁנְאָר means Babylonia. †

Aartun Die Partikeln des Ugaritischen (AOAT 21/2, 1978): 55 in the translation of the single instance in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 16:vi:47f: l tdy tšm l dl do not throw down those who make raids on the poor. According to Helck VT 15 (1965) 46 the Hebrew vb. has been borrowed from Egyptian šš to travel, which is developed further into the sbst. ššw bedouin (Erman-G. Wb. 412), and which really means those who travel, those who pull through. 9832 שָׁעַטָנִי

שָׁעַטָנִי: 1) an Egyptian loanword (Lambdin Loan Words 155); SamP. šātnəz, Sept. κίβδηλος adulterated; the word is missing from Vulg.; Pesh. has for Dt 22₁₁ petkā to designate a woven garment made from זָמֶר and פְּשָׁתִים (Brockelmann Lex. 617a); for Lv 19₁₉ it has the adj. associated with the sbst. p̄fīkā meaning different, of another type (marṭūtē dhelṭā daptī-kīn a mixture of existing garments which are of different types); Tg. is the same as Heb. שָׁעַטָנִי; Samaritan שָׁעַטָנִי.

The explanation of the Egyptian sbst. is not established, but of the relevant attempts the following should be noticed: a) Lambdin loc. cit.: a combined word šht-nd, comprising the elements šht to weave and nd thread (Erman-G. Wb. 4: 263, and 2: 376); š‘d-nd is a preliminary form of Heb. š‘d-nd (ša‘d-nud* > ša‘d-ned*, cf. Erman-G. loc. cit.).

—b) Helck VT 15 (1965) 46 traces the sbst. back to a collocation š‘d-nd to cut thread.

—c) Görg BN 12 (1980) 13-17 (with full bibliography): either from Egyptian šht to weave, and n‘d’ adulterated (with reference to Westendorf Kopt. Handw. 330), or from š‘d’ to falsify size or weight (or similar) (Erman-G. 4: 57,2) together with nd woven material: š‘d’-nd > š‘d-nd. In both cases it produces the translation false fabric.

—2. a) the derivation from Egyptian mentioned above clearly leads to the same result as a derivation from Arb., such as was proposed in KBL.

—b) Sept. with its κίβδηλος (see above 1) also comes very close to the sense of the Egyptian sbst. false fabric, while both the Pesh., and especially the connection between Lv 19₁₉ and Dt 22₁₁, support a rendering of mixed fabric for שָׁעַטָנִי. It probably has to do with a shift of meaning, on which see also Görg loc. cit. (see above). For the translation we follow Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: fabric that has been woven together using mixed materials or two-ply threads (according to Dt 22₁₁, from wool mixed with linen): Lv 19₁₉ Dt 22₁₁. †

According to the latter mšt'lt is a št feminine participle of 'ly; they say that mšt'lt would be literally the one who causes to rise to the same height, so that it may be used to describe an object which is found to be at the same height or in a similarly high position; and so mšt'lt could indicate something that causes to float, or a small bowl such as those that were so important in the performance of mantic rituals; → מִשְׁעוֹל: sf. שֶׁל, pl. שְׁעָלִים, cstr. שְׁעָלִי: the hollow of the hand, handful; שָׁפַק לְשְׁעָלִים it is sufficient to fill the hands 1K 20₁₀; מִים בְּשְׁעָלוֹ מִים with מִן Is 40₁₂, 1Q Is^a בשועלוֹ מִי ים with the hollow of his hand ... the water of the sea; cj.: for suggestions see Elliger BK 11/1: 40f: a) dual יָם בְּשְׁעָלִים; b) pl. יָם בְּשְׁעָלִים; c) בְּשְׁעָלוֹ יָמִים; of these the one to be preferred is perhaps that of Elliger (a); you have profaned me among my people for שְׁעָלִי שְׁעָרִים a few handfuls of barley (NRSV) Ezk 13₁₉, with I חלל pi. —1. Sept. Ju 1₃₅ Sept.^B Θλαβιν, in Sept.^A the place name is missing, and in its place is αἴ ἄρκου καὶ αἴ ἄλωπεκες; 1K 4₉ Sept.^{RA} Βηθαλαμιν, Sept.^L Θαλαμιν, Sept.^O σαλαβιμ.

—2. there is an etymological connection between the place name and Heb. I שְׁעָל, but it can also be derived from the form t'lb, which is found in the cognate languages together with t'l (→ I שְׁעָל); as such the name means “the place of the fox”, on which see Bauer ZAW 48 (1930) 78; Noth Jos. 151; Priebatsch UF 9 (1977) 249; Bauer loc. cit. 77 understands the termination of שְׁעָלָבִים as masc. pl., so that it would be more accurately translated “place of the foxes”, on this also → שְׁעָלִבָּנִי.

—3. as to location, it was a city in the early-settled hill-country west of the Judaeian mountains; so with Elliger Kl. Schr. 93; it was reckoned as part of Dan in the list of Jos 19₄₂; according to Abel Géog. 2: 438 to be identified with Selbit/Tell-Ša'al-wim, 4.5 km north-west of Ayyalōn (Simons Geog. §336: 4) but that is completely uncertain; see Noth Jos. 121; Elliger loc. cit. 93-96; Timm ZDPV 96 (1980) 28⁴⁵; for a cautious assessment see Noth Könige 68. †

But it is also possible to take *שַׁעֲלָבוֹן as revealing the actual form of the place name, which could have been shortened to שַׁעֲלָבוֹן. Der. II שַׁעַר.

II שַׁעַר*: a) according to Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL this vb. would be from the root underlying the sbst. I שַׁעַר, with reference to Syr. tra' to split (cf. פִּתַח from פָּתַח); Arb. tağara to break open, destroy, tuğra breach and Eth. sa'ara/si'ira to tear down, pull apart (Dillmann Lex. 390).

Labuschagne OTSt (Pretoria, 1971) 59 takes שַׁעַר to be a šafel formation from עָרָה pi.

—b) the derivation of the sbst. I שַׁעַר noted above is however very uncertain for the following reasons; the Arb. sbst. tağr (Lane Lex. 338c) from the Arb. vb. tağara means opening, split, cleft, but it does not mean door; for this Arb. (cf. also Akk.) uses bāb; in Arb. tur'at is an Arm. loanword., see Fraenkel Fremdw. 15; also in Ethiopic there is apparently no connection between the vb. and the appellative name. The associated sbst. šir'at (Dillmann Lex. 391) means destruction, while gate and door (see hōhet and 'anqad/'anqaš Dillmann Lex. 606 and 649) are expressed by words of a different origin and have no connection with the verb that has been mentioned in (a). Only in Syr. does there appear to be a close connection between the vb. and the sbst. (tra'/tarā), but that is probably too slender a connection to posit a general verbal base for this sbst.

—c) in accordance with the observations mentioned above (b) it is probably best to avoid tracing I שַׁעַר back to a vb; it should rather be taken as a primary noun; furthermore it is also categorised as such a “primary substantive” in Bauer-Leander Heb. 456k.

III שַׁעַר*: the etymological derivation of this root is uncertain but two possibilities have been suggested: a) from Arb. sa'ara, so König Wb. 520b; for the adj. → שַׁעֵר; for the vb. the meanings suggested include α) to light a fire; β) to do someone extensive evil, or mischief; γ) to be (become) mad, insane, demoniac (Lane Lex. 1363a); for the sbst. su'rat a colour inclining to blackness, su'ar the heat of a fire, evil, mischief (Lane Lex. 1363c). None of these meanings corresponds to what must be supposed was the original sense of שַׁעֵר (except perhaps for β and γ and the two associated meanings of the sbst.).

—b) alternatively it could be a šafel-formation from the Arb. root ğrr, as in the vb. ğarra to mislead, deceive, beguile, and the adj. ğarir deceived, misled, tempted, and the sbst. ğurūr deception, delusion, conceit (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 667a-b); for this proposal for the etymology see Rabin ErIsr. 9 = Albright Fschr. (1968-69) 152, but it is completely uncertain.

- o) הַמְּפָקֵד שׁ the muster gate (?) Neh 3₃₁ (→ מְפָקֵד 3).
- p) הַסּוּסִים שׁ the horse gate Jr 31₄₀ Neh 3₂₈ 2C 23₁₅, on which see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 119; cj. 2K 11₆ pr. סוּר בִּשׁ prop. סוּס בִּשׁ, so e.g. Würthwein ATD 11/2: 344⁵, cf. BHS.
- q) הַעֵיִן שׁ the fountain gate Neh 2₁₄ 3₁₅ 12₃₇, on which see Wenning-Zenger UF 14 (1982) 285. 288.
- r) הָעִיר שׁ the city gate 2K 23₈ 2C 32₆, on which see Rudolph Chr. 308.
- s) הַפְּנָה שׁ the corner gate 2K 14₁₃ Jr 31₃₈ 2C 26₉; cj. pr. הַפְּנֹה שׁ prop. הַפְּנָה שׁ 2C 25₂₃, = הַפְּנִים שׁ Zech 14₁₀ (→ פְּנָה 1c).
- t) הַצֹּאֵן שׁ the sheep gate Neh 3_{1.32} 12₃₉, on which see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 117.
- u) הַרְּאִשׁוֹן שׁ the former gate Zech 14₁₀, on which see Rudolph KAT 13/4: 237: this is most likely to be the same as the yešānāh-gate, the ancient gate, of Neh 3₆ 12₃₉, see above (k) הַיְשָׁנָה שׁ; cf. also רְאִשׁוֹן 2a.
- v) הַרְּצִיִּים שׁ the runners' gate 2K 11₁₉, cj. vs.₆ pr. אַחַר הַרְּצִיִּים בִּשׁ prop. אַחַר בִּשׁ and delete הַרְּצִיִּים, so e.g. Würthwein ATD 11/2: 344⁵; BHS; cf. Gray *Kings*³ 570^d; a gate leading to the palace.
- w) הַתְּוֶרֶד שׁ the middle gate Jr 39₃, on which see Rudolph *Jer.*³ 244.

—x) gates which are named after the tribes of Israel Ezk 48³¹⁻³⁴.

—B. gates which do not have specific names.

—a) שַׁעַר יְרוּשָׁלַיִם Jr 1¹⁵ 17¹⁹⁻²⁷ 22¹⁹ Lam 4¹²; שַׁעַר הָעִיר Jr 17²⁴; שַׁעַר Mi 2¹³; שַׁעֲרִים Ezk 21²⁷ Ps 24⁷⁻⁹; שַׁעֲרֵיךָ Ps 147¹³; בְּשַׁעֲרֵיךָ Ps 122².

—b) שַׁעַר צִיּוֹן Ps 87²; בַּת צִיּוֹן Ps 9¹⁵, שַׁעֲרֵיהָ Lam 1⁴.

—6. gates at the temple (on which see already above 2b); for bibliography see Zimmerli Ges. Aufs. 2: 154-162.

—a) occurrences: 2K 15³⁵ Jr 20² 26¹⁰ 36¹⁰ 37¹³ 38⁷ Ezk 8³⁻⁵⁻¹⁴ 9² 10¹⁹ 11¹ 40³⁻⁴⁸ (48 times), 43¹⁻⁴ 44³⁻¹⁷ (5 times), 45¹⁹ 46²⁻¹⁹ (9 times), 47²⁻² Zech 14¹⁰ 1C 9¹⁸ 26¹⁶ 2C 23²⁰ 24⁸ 27³.

—α) שַׁעַר הַמֶּלֶךְ 1C 9¹⁸, on which see Rudolph Chr. 87: the king's gate on the east was obviously the gate through which the king was obliged to approach the temple area (compare Ezk 46¹⁻³) and which maintained this name even after the period of the monarchy.

—β) שַׁעַר הָעֵלְיוֹן בַּת־יְהוּדָה שַׁעַר the upper gate of the temple 2K 15³⁵/2C 27³, on which see P. Welten Geschichte und Geschichtsdarstellung in den Chronikbüchern WMANT 42 (1973) 66f; for bibliography see 67²⁶².

—γ) שַׁעֲרֵי צְדָקָה the gates of righteousness (NRSV), the gates of victory (REB) Ps 118¹⁹ (→ צְדָקָה 4α).

—δ) שַׁעַר לַיהוָה the gate of Yahweh Ps 118²⁰.

—ε) שַׁעֲרֵי its gates (the gates of the temple) Ps 100⁴, cf. Kraus 15⁵: 856f.

—7. a) שַׁעַר הַמֶּלֶךְ in Susa:

—α) the palace Est 4²⁻⁶;

—β) areas in the immediate vicinity of the gate Est 2¹⁹⁻²¹ 3²⁻³ 5⁹⁻¹³ 6¹⁰; for the differences between α and β see Loretz WdO 4 (1967-68) 104-108, especially 107 :: Wehr Das "Tor des Königs" im Buch Esther und verwandte Ausdrücke Der Islam 39 (1964) 247-260, and in particular 258: the assembly of officials, servants and residents of the palace and precincts, also used as the seat of government (but excluding internal matters which were for the ruler to decide); cf. ἀἷ πύλαι ἀἷ τοῦ βασιλείου Xenophon Cyropaedia 7: 5,25); cf. the "Sublime Porte" in the Ottoman Empire.

—8. uncertain instances:

—a) Song 7⁵ MT בַּת־רַבִּים עַל־שַׁעַר, which is also followed by Sept. and Pesh. (Vulg. is different), is either an image meaning crowds of people, so e.g. Rudolph KAT 18/1-3: 167, 169 (with bibliography); Würthwein Die Fünf Megilloth HAT 18² (1969): 62; TOB; O. Keel Das Hohelied Zürcher Bibelkommentare (1986): 218; REB: beside the gate of the crowded city; or it is a place name (cf. NRSV Batrabbim, or alternatively Betrabbim, a place which is reached by following the path through this gateway (see Rudolph loc. cit. 169); so with Tg. e.g. Budde Die Fünf Megillot KHC 17 (1898): 38; ZüB; also Gerleman BK 18: 194, 198f. There is probably no need for any cj., such as that suggested in KBL: for בַּת rd. בֵּית.

—b) שַׁלְכַת II → 1C 26₁₆ שַׁלְכַת שַׁעַר.

—a) Ju 5₈ לַחֲמֵשׁ שַׁעֲרִים unexplained and still without any clear emendation; for suggested explanations see e.g. O. Grether Das Deboralied (1941) 33f, 60; Wolfgang Richter Traditionsgeschichtliche Untersuchungen zum Richterbuch BBB 18² (1966): 73f; Hertzberg ATD 9: 171; cf. TOB; see further BHS where, with reference to Dt 32₁₇, it is suggested to read מֵאֲזַל לֹא לָהֶם שַׁעֲרִים which were unknown to them from that time on (→ III שַׁעַר); NRSV: then war was in the gates; REB: they consorted with demons.

II שַׁעַר*: hapax legomenon Gn 26₁₂: I שַׁעַר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 458t; SamP. pl. šārēm Gn 26₁₂; Samaritan שַׁעֲרִים variant שִׁיא(א)נִים from the root שׂוּם to estimate; MHeb. שַׁעַר; JArm. שַׁעֲרָא; Arb. si'r (→ I שַׁעַר); Vrss.: Sept. ἑκατοστέουσας κριθῶν; Vulg. centuplum a hundredfold; Pesh. mā^ᶜ das'arē a hundred measures of barley; Tg. חֲדָר מֵאָה עַל כֹּדֶשׁ עֲרוּהִי a hundredfold more than they had calculated it; in contrast to Sept. and Pesh., Vulg. and Tg., in agreement with the MT, do not mention the substance that is weighed, which has to be understood by inference; on this see also Westermann BK 1/2: 513, 515: pl. שַׁעֲרִים: weight (of grain): שַׁעֲרִים מֵאָה a hundredfold. †

—a) for the translation rotten see especially König Wb. 520b. If the figs are so bad that they cannot be eaten any more this is not to be taken as the same as a rendering like unimpressive or burst open (which is given in KBL); cf. Vulg. quasi ficus malas equivalent to Pesh. 'a(y)k tē'nē bīšātā (in Sept. vs. 11-20 are missing); see also הַרְעוֹת as an adj. for הַתְּאֲנִים Jr 24₃.

—b) it is remarkable to find the masc. ending on the adj. הַשְּׁעָרִים with the fem. sbst. הַתְּאֲנִים, cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §132e, and Rudolph *Jer.*³ 186. It could be that it is linked with this ending because כְּתֵאֲנִים is con-ceived less as the image itself and more as the men it represents, cf. Brockelmann Heb. Syntax §59c: הַמְּמַלְכוֹת הַלְּחָצִים אֲתָכֶם 1S 10₁₈. † שְׁעָרִיָּה: n.m.; Heb. seal inscr. שְׁעָרִיָּהוּ (Semitica 26 (1976) 45); Sept. Σαραια, Σαρια: the meaning of the first element is unclear, so Noth Personennamen 259b; attempted explanations include: a) from שְׁעַר Yahweh has acknowledged, so König Wb. 520b; b) from Arb. ša'ara to know, be acquainted with: Yahweh knows (sc. the person who has this name), so Cazelles Fschr. 217 with reference to pre-Islamic personal names which contain this element (with examples from G.L. Harding An Index and Concordance of Pre-Islamic Arabian Names and Inscriptions (Toronto, 1971) 12, 49, 350f). Both suggestions are completely uncertain: a Benjaminite from the descendants of Saul 1C 8₃₈ 9₄₄. †

9851 שְׁעָרִיָּה

9854 שְׁעֵשְׂעִים

שְׁשׂוּעִי, שְׁשׂוּעִי (Is 57): desire, delight; really an object of play, of amusement, of delight; so Wildberger BK 10: 172.

—a) for most of the following instances it is this last sense that is the one to be accepted, and only in a few occurrences (see under b) is it somewhat weakened. Particularly significant is the expression יֶלֶד שְׁשׂוּעִים Jr 31₂₀ a son in whom the father takes pleasure, so Wildberger loc. cit. This is also the case in Pr 8₃₀ with reference to חֶכְמָה, which for יהוה is שְׁשׂוּעִי (proposed reading instead of שְׁשׂוּעִים) the object of his pleasure.

Furthermore it is also the case for שְׁשׂוּעִי when it refers to divine instructions: מִצְוֹתֶיךָ Ps 119₁₄₃; עֲרֹתֶיךָ 119₂₄ and תּוֹרֹתֶיךָ 119₇₇₋₉₂₋₁₇₄.

—b) נִטַּע שְׁשׂוּעִי Is 57 the planting of his desire, or the object of his desire; אֶת־בְּנֵי אָדָם וְשְׁשׂוּעִי and my desire (the desire of חֶכְמָה) is with (for) the children of man Pr 8₃₁; here the translation could probably be taken as the same as (a) only if II אֶת was missing from the sentence; then it would come to mean the children of men are the object of my desire. †

9861 שְׁפֹת

שְׁפֹת: hapax legomenon 2S 17₂₉; the derivation of this sbst. (construct state) is uncertain; according to Bauer-Leander Heb. 506t, and König Wb. 521, the underlying vb. is שָׁפַה, but that this should be identified with I שָׁפַה (so König loc. cit.) appears to be questionable: שְׁפֹת בְּקָר: in Pesh. שְׁפֹת is rendered as gubbnē, and in Tg. as gubnīn cheese (Heb. גִּבְיִנָה); for the other Vrss. see Dalman Arbeit 6: 312, and Zorell Lexicon 874a. All this means that it designates a foodstuff such as hard cheese or curd cheese made from cow's milk, cf. e.g. ZüB; Hertzberg ATD 10²: 291; KBL: curds; and Fritz Stolz Das Erste und das Zweite Buch Samuel (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, 1981) 263; NRSV: cheese from the herd; REB: fat cattle; for הַשְּׁפֹת Neh 3₁₃ → I שְׁעָר 5 I b. †

*שֹׁפַח: Arb. safaḥa to pour out, spill; cf. (?) OSArb. sbst. msfḥ (Conti Rossini Chrest. 199a) aqueduct, or a similar device which was used to distribute water over the fields; Punic sbst. שֹׁפַח clan, family (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 316; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1181).

? Der. שֹׁפַחָה, מִשְׁפַּחָה.

שֹׁפַחָה: SamP. ašfā; the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain, but possibilities include: a) a primary sbst. that in this connection is to be linked with עֲגֻלָּה and תְּשֻׁעָה (Bauer-Leander Heb. 459b); but דְּמֻעָה, which is also mentioned in Bauer-Leander Heb. loc. cit. is no longer to be associated in this way because of the Ug. vb. dm^c (Gordon Textbook §19:676; Aistleitner Wb. 760; Gibson *Myths*² 145a).

—b) according to Gesenius-Buhl Handw., König Wb. 521b, and KBL, the sbst. is to be derived from *שפח, Arb. safaha; the lowest rank of maidservant, who is required to pour water over the hands of her master (cf. KBL); but such a usage for this hypothetical meaning is no longer recognised. It is also questionable whether to make a connection with מְשַׁפְּחָה, which for its part is associated with Ug. šph and Punic שפח (→ מְשַׁפְּחָה); MHeb. שִׁפְחָה: cstr. שִׁפְחָת, sf. שִׁפְחָתִי/תְּכָתִי; pl. שִׁפְחָה(וֹ), sf. שִׁפְחָתֵי/תֵי, שִׁפְחָתֵיהֶם.

—1. slave-girl. a) for the bibliography see de Vaux Inst. 1: 134f = Lebensord. 1: 142f; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1814f; Jepsen VT 8 (1958) 293-297; THAT 2: 187f. According to Jepsen loc. cit., and subsequently THAT loc. cit., the synonymous substantives שִׁפְחָה and אִמָּה can be distinguished in the following way: שִׁפְחָה is a girl who is not free but is as yet untouched, whose duty was primarily to serve the woman of the house; on this see also Westermann BK 1/2, 283: אִמָּה is a woman who is not free, and who could be a man's secondary wife, as well as the wife of man who like her is bound in service. Jepsen loc. cit. 296 draws together the results of his investigation thus: both words designate two classes of people which can be very clearly differentiated from one another; but they would both be used together when women were being spoken of as servants. This is probably what has led to the words no longer always being used with their original distinctive meanings.

—a) in his lists Liedtke also mentions suggestions that have been made for understanding and for rendering the vb. שִׁפְטוּ. After referring to these lists we limit ourselves to the conclusion, which he writes in WMANT 39: 73 (cf. THAT 2: 1001), that שִׁפְטוּ signifies the action that restores שְׁלוֹם to a community after it has been disturbed. Because of this the meaning of שִׁפְטוּ is not to be restricted to the making of a judicial decision; so also דָּיָן in Zech 3₇ means to rule (cf. Arb. hakama). Where שִׁפְטוּ designates a prolonged action its meaning tends to be to rule, control. The restitution of שְׁלוֹם will not only be regarded from the point of view of the subject of שִׁפְטוּ, but also from that of the object; for the person who has been suffering under a disturbed situation receives שִׁפְטוּ as an announcement of salvation, of aid to obtain justice. For the one who is the cause of the disturbance the process of שִׁפְטוּ becomes a conclusive and final penalty; so also for דָּיָן in MHeb. and in Samaritan.

—b) on the pt. > sbst. שִׁפְטוּ see THAT 2: 1003f; see further especially Wolfgang Richter Zu den "Richtern Israels" ZAW 77 (1965) 40-72; also de Vaux Histoire 2: 66-86 (with bibliography); Herrmann Geschichte 148ff; Ringgren Israelitische Religion 73f; TOB in the introduction to the book of Judges.

—E. occurrences of שִׁפְטוּ with reference to various subjects.

—I i: human beings.

—1. שִׁפְטוּ בֵּין וּבֵין to decide between, settle a dispute Ex 18₁₆ (SamP. שִׁפְטוּ אֵת, with אֵת as a preposition; אֵת at as for example Ex 18₁₃, EgArm.; see LOT 5: p. 247 §7.3), Nu 35₂₄ Dt 1₁₆ Is 5₃.

—2. a) to pass judgement, administer justice Ex 18_{13.22a.26a} Dt 25₁, 2C 19₆ with לְ of the person; Ezk 44₂₄ with acc. of the person.

—b) בְּצִדְקָה Lv 19₁₅, מִשְׁפָּט צְדָקָה Dt 16₁₈, מִשְׁפָּט צְדָקָה reliable judgement, true judgements (NRSV), true justice (REB) Zech 7₉, מִשְׁפָּט שְׁלוֹם judgement that makes for peace, satisfactory justice Zech 8₁₆, בְּשִׁפְטוֹ to give judgement after accepting a bribe Mi 3₁₁.

—3. to decide Ex 18_{22b.26b}.

—4. to pass judgement. a) to administer justice Is 1_{17.23} see Wildberger BK 10: 48; THAT 2: 1002; Jr 5₂₈.

—b) שָׁפֵט שְׁפֹט to act like a judge Gn 19₉; for the following inf. abs. cf. Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §12g; also R. Meyer Gramm. §103: 3b.

—5. to make a judgement about, announce a verdict: a) subj. the prophet Ezk 20₄ (with acc. of the person and the thing), 22₂ (obj. הַדְּמוּיִם עֵיר).

—b) subj. אֲנָשִׁים צְדִיקִים righteous men 23₄₅, declaring the guilt of women who commit adultery and commit murder; 23₂₄ the nations shall judge Israel.

—6. to rule, be in authority: a) the clearest example of this sense of the word is in the sentence אֲשֶׁר שָׁפֵטוּנוּ שְׁפֵטֵינוּ Da 9₁₂, he spoke against our rulers who govern us (ZüB), cf. Plöger KAT 18: 131: he spoke concerning the responsible men among us, those who govern us; שָׁפֵט meaning to rule or to govern is found also in Ob 21 (obj. הָרָר עֵשׂוּ), on which see especially Wolff BK 14/3: 49; see also Rudolph KAT 13/2: 317 :: 314 to pass judgement.

—b) occurrences in which שָׁפֵט means to pass judgement as well as including (or at least suggesting) to rule, or alternatively to govern; on this see THAT 2: 1003:

—α) שָׁפֵט אֶת־יִשְׂרָאֵל Ju 3₁₀ 4₄ (3rd. sg. fem.), 10_{2,3} 12_{7-9,11} 13f 15₂₀ 16₃₁ 1S 4₁₈ 7_{6,15-17} 8₂ 2K 23₂₂; on 1S 7_{6,15-17} (the activities of Samuel as judge) see also Artur Weiser Samuel FRLANT 81 (1962) 11 :: Jörn Halbe *Das Privilegrecht Jahwes Ex 34*₁₀₋₂₆ FRLANT 114 (1975) 474f;

—β) הַשְּׁפֵטִים בֵּימֵי שָׁפֵט Ru 1₁ (on which cf. also cγ);

—γ) שְׁפֵטֵיהֶם Hos 7₇, literally their judges, meaning those who governed them; on this see Rudolph KAT 13/1: 149; also Wolff BK 14/1² 160: officials of special importance in the palace.

—c) שֹׁפֵט (וֹ)שֵׁפֵט, substantivised participle of the vb.: judge; a distinction should be made here between the narrower sense of the word as described above under 4 and 5, and the wider sense as described under 6.

—α) שָׁפֵט as someone concerned with the law, a judge in the narrower sense, cf. THAT 2: 1004: sg. Ex 2₁₄ Dt 17_{9,12} Is 3₂ Mi 7₃; pl. Nu 25₅ Dt 16₁₈ 19₁₇ 1S 8₁ Is 1₂₆ Zeph 3₃ Ps 109₃₁ (שְׁפֵטֵי נִפְשׁוֹ) the judges of his life), 141₆ 148₁₁ Jb 9₂₄ Pr 8₁₆ (שְׁפֵטֵי צְדִקָּה) righteous judges), Ezr 10₁₄ 2C 1₂ 19_{5f}.

—β) שָׁפֵט as a ruler, governor, sg.: in Moab Am 2₃; in Israel: שָׁפֵט יִשְׂרָאֵל Mi 4₁₄, so KBL; see further Lescow ZAW 84 (1972) 67⁸⁶; שֵׁ יִשְׂרָאֵל שָׁפֵט יִשְׂרָאֵל a royal title; similarly Wolff BK 14/4, 115: what is meant by the Judge of Israel could be connected with the function of the king (here further bibliography is given) :: Noth Ges. Stud. 2: 71-85: the one who held the office of judge associated with the amphictiony, which was distinguished from the so-called lesser judges; so also Noth Gesch. Isr. 98f. For a criticism of this view see e.g. Herrmann Geschichte 149ff (for bibliography see p. 151⁹); also Jörn Halbe *Das Privilegrecht Jahwes Ex 34*₁₀₋₂₆ FRLANT 114 (1975) 470ff; see especially also Richter ZAW 77 (1965) 71: the judges of Israel originate in a town or a tribe during the transition from a tribal to a civil constitution; they are the appointed representatives from the elders of the tribe for ordering the administration of justice and civil affairs concerning a town and the corresponding territory. Similar views following Richter are found in Klaus Baltzer Die Biographie der Propheten (1975) 61.

The שֹׁפֵט with this function can be compared with the šāpītum at Mari, who is described as the administrator of a district, or alternatively as the ruler of a province, so A. Marzal The Provincial Governor at Mari: His Title and Appointment JNES 30 (1971) 186-217; see also Noth Bibl. Land 2: 252f; Willem H. Ph. Römer Frauenbriefe über Religion, Politik und Privatleben in Mari AOAT 12 (1971) 93; for bibliography see note 8; Jean Bottéro ARMT 7 (1957) 241f; von Soden AHW. 1173a is content with the translation judge for šāpītu(m); so also Dossin-Finet in ARMT 10 text 160: 16, and p. 283; compare Punic suffetes (see above).

pl: שֹׁפֵטֵינוּ Da 9¹² (see already under 6a); see further שֹׁפֵט־אַרְצֵ/אַרְרֵץ Is 40²³ Ps 2¹⁰ the governor, the ruler of the earth.

—γ) הַשֹּׁפֵט Ju 2¹⁸⁻¹⁸⁻¹⁹, שֹׁפֵטִים Ju 2¹⁶⁻¹⁸ 2S 7¹¹, הַשֹּׁפֵטִים 2K 23²², שֹׁפֵטִיו Jos 23² 24¹, שֹׁפֵטֵיכֶם Dt 1¹⁰, שֹׁפֵטֵיהֶם Ju 2¹⁷ as the designation of an office holder in Israel in the period before the establishment of the state. It is uncertain whether שֹׁפֵט is here to be taken more in the sense of α above, or in the sense of.

—b. the same is true for the expression שֹׁפֵט בְּאַרְרֵץ 2S 15⁴ (cf. 2C 26²¹), which can mean the judge in the land, or the ruler in the land.

For שֹׁפֵטִים/שֹׁפֵט as the person(s) holding a particular office, or alternatively as the person(s) responsible for certain activities, see the bibliography cited above under D; see further THAT 1: 789c (under ישׁע hif.), especially concerning מוֹשִׁיעַ as the probably original distinguishing mark, which was superseded by שֹׁפֵט of the so-called major judges in their role of charismatic military heroes of liberation.

—3. to pass judgement with the inclusive sense of a just act, to rule, govern (= I i 6b) 1S 8⁵⁻⁶⁻²⁰ 1K 3⁹, on which see Noth Könige 51; cj. Hos 13¹⁰ pr. וְשֹׁפֵטֶיךָ prop. וְיִשְׁפֹּטְךָ (BHS) that they judge you, so G. Liedtke WMANT 39 (1971): 71; but perhaps also as 2, so Wolff BK 14/1²: 285; 2C 1^{10f}.

—II. with God (אֱלֹהֵינוּ/יְהוָה) as sbj.

—1. a) שֹׁפֵט בֵּין וּבֵין Gn 16⁵ Ju 11²⁷ 1S 24¹³⁻¹⁶, שֹׁפֵט בֵּין לְ Ezk 34¹⁷⁻²² (= I i 1).

—b) שֹׁפֵט בֵּין to be the judge between Gn 31⁵³ Is 24/Mi 4³ (parallel with הוֹכִיחַ).

—2. to pass judgement, meaning to obtain judgement for (with acc. of the person) 1K 8³²/2C 6²³, שֹׁפֵטֵנִי Ps 7⁹ 26¹ 35²⁴ 43¹; מוֹשִׁיעַ שֹׁפֵטֵי מוֹשִׁיעַ obtain justice for me, or alternatively help me to get my rights (ZüB) Lam 3⁵⁹; obj. יְתוּם וְרָךְ Ps 10¹⁸ (= I i 4; I ii 2); cf. שֹׁפֵט מִיָּד to obtain judgement for someone against someone else, meaning to save, deliver; may the Lord vindicate me against you (NRSV) 1S 24¹⁶; he has delivered him from the power of his enemies (NRSV) 2S 18¹⁹; he has vindicated you this day delivering you from the power of of all who rose up against you (NRSV) 2S 18³¹.

—3. to pass judgement, with acc. of the person.

—α) רָמִים Jb 21²², רָשָׁע צָדִיק Qoh 3¹⁷;

—β) abs. Ps 75³ (with מִיִּשְׂרָיִם), Jb 22¹³; cf. בְּשִׁפְטֶךָ Ps 51⁶; —δ) with בָּ (of the person) to exercise judgement about 2C 20¹², abs. Ps 82¹.

—b) to pass judgement, meaning to make a judgement against, punish (with acc. of the person) 1S 3¹³ (with בָּ against), Ezk 7^{3.8} etc. (with בָּ concerning) 7²⁷ 11^{10f} 16³⁸ 18³⁰ 20⁴ 21³⁵ 23³⁶ 24¹⁴ (textual emendation), 35¹¹ 36¹⁹; the examples mentioned here do not correspond precisely with those in I i nor do they with those in I ii, but they may be compared with I i 5.

—c) to pass judgement, meaning to judge in the narrower sense, and in the wider sense of to rule, so that the vb. can encompass and combine both meanings; on this cf. I i 6 a-c, and I ii 3:

—α) obj. הָאָרֶץ Ps 82⁸ 96¹³ 98⁹ 1C 16³³, cf. הָאָרֶץ (כָּל-) שֹׁפֵט Gn 18²⁵ Ps 94²; —δ) וְזָרְעֵי עַמִּים יִשְׁפֹּטוּ Is 51⁵ and my arm will judge the people (which could belong to α, b or c); perhaps this is a gloss, so Koehler Dtj. 44; also Westermann Jes. 188.

—e) שֹׁפֵט ruler Is 33²² (שֹׁפֵטנוּ), on which see Wildberger BK 10: 1309, 1311.

—III. with gods (אֱלֹהִים/אֱלֹהִים) as sbj.: Ps 82^{2.3} cj. Ps 58².

—a. remarks on the subject of the verb: Ps 58² pr. אֱלֹהִים rd. אֱלֹהִים, on which see especially Seybold VT 30 (1980) 53², where the Vrss. are also taken into consideration; Seybold counts this אֱלֹהִים together with vs.2-3.5.8-10.12 as a so-called primary text, as distinct from the so-called editorial stages in vs.4.6.7.11 (see p. 57); as an element of the primary text אֱלֹהִים in vs.2, as also אֱלֹהִים in vs.12, means gods and not God; for vs.2 that is particularly likely, and it can also be accepted with equal probability for vs.12 (together with Ps 82^{1b}), even though the Vrss. and more recent interpretations translate with a word for God.

—b. the content of the expressions: the way in which the gods pass judgement (שֹׁפֵט) is the same as was found before under I, and particularly under II: Ps 58² with מִיִּשְׂרָיִם decreeing what is right (NRSV); vs.12 simply שֹׁפֵט without an object, → II 3aβ; Ps 82^{2.3} → I i 4a, I ii 2 and II 2.

As a warning of אלהים against unfair judgements and partiality, as in Ps 82, compare Lv 19¹⁵⁻³⁵; in these verses there is the expression עוֹל בַּמִּשְׁפָּט, but it is remarkable that the sbst. עוֹל is not found elsewhere with the vb. שפט.

9868 שַׁפְּטִיָּהוּ

שַׁפְּטִיָּהוּ: n.m.; Sept. Σαφαττα(ς); Heb. seal inscr. שַׁפְּטִיָּהוּ (from Lachish, of the ninth or eighth century) see Moscati Epigrafia 57 no. 16 = Keel Visionen 103f, figure 85; cf. Vattioni Sigilli 109; Bordreuil-Lemaire Semita 26 (1976) 50; the personal name has the same meaning as שַׁפְּטִיָּהוּ, and for the sense of the vb. in these names → שָׁפַט.

—1. one of David's helpers from Benjamin 1C 12₆.

—2. a leader (נְגִיד) of the Simeonites under David 1C 27₁₆.

9869 שַׁפְּטָן

שָׁפִי: I שָׁפִי, Bauer-Leander Heb. 457p; the root is apparently found in Ug. in two different substantives: 1) probably as a pl. bmdbr špm in the desert (steppe) of the bare hills, so Gray *Legacy*² 94; similarly Cutler Macdonald UF 14 (1982) 37f; cf. Fisher Parallels 2: p. 332 no. 104; 2) it occurs also, probably sg., in the phrase Inḥnpt mšpy (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 16:iv:14), where the meaning is uncertain, probably a part of a building, or an expression to signify a wall. Particularly close to Heb. שָׁפִי is Gray *Krt*² 26, 73: to the top (the height) of the bare roof; for a different translation see e.g. Gibson *Myths*² 99: to the parapet of the tower; cf. Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 563: on the ridge of the terrace (?); other suggestions are also given here; most improbable is that of de Moor-Spronk UF 14 (1982) 188; pausal form שָׁפִי; pl. שָׁפִים, שָׁפִים. The Vrss. differ, on which see especially Elliger ZAW 83 (1971) 318-321; William McKane in Cazelles Fschr. 330.

—1. the meaning of the sbst. is not quite certain, but suggestions include: a) שָׁפִי is a bare plain, that is one that is certainly without trees, and probably generally with no other vegetation; it could be a plain on a higher level of land, whether it be a slope, a hill, or a general area of land lying above the valley itself, more clearly subdivided and of wider extent; so Elliger ZAW 81 (1971) 317-329, especially 326; on this see also Elliger BK 11/1: 163-165; similarly McKane in Cazelles Fschr. 319-335, who prefers not to think of an elevated situation for Jr 4₁₁ 12₁₂ but rather the wide-openness of a desert plain; however for the idea of an elevated place see especially Is 41₁₈ Jr 14₆; for an overall view cf. also earlier Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 522a.

—b) a mountain track (the denuded path-ways that build up because of the regular passage of caravans), so Jöüon Journal Asiatique, series 10, vol. 7 (1906), 137-142, and subsequently KBL; see further Holladay VT 26 (1976) 35 on Jr 4₁₁.

—c) sand-dunes, so M. Gaster Fschr. 78-80; also Althann VT 28 (1978) 385-391 on Jr 4_{11.12}; Gelston VT 21 (1971) 518-521 hesitates between the last two suggestions above (b and c), but finally comes to favour c.

—d) for a discussion of these three suggestions (a-c) reference can be made to Elliger ZAW 83: 317ff, and BK 11/1: 163-165; his fundamental research has made the first (a) extremely probable.

—α) sg. שָׁפִי Nu 23₃, acc. of place, with וַיֵּלֶךְ שָׁפִי הַרְלֵךְ and he (Balaam) went off to a bare mountain; so with Noth Nu. (ATD 7) 147 (cf. Ibn Janāḥ Kitāb al-ʿuṣūl p. 738; Neofiti שָׁפִי בָלָב quiet, peaceful; Samaritan Tg. Nu 23₃ variant שָׁפִי; JArm. שָׁפִיא quiet; Samaritan Gn 32₂₁ vb. to pacify) :: TOB: he went away on the track; ZüB with others accepts the more extensive alterations to the MT suggested by Sept. (see BHS), but that is to be avoided.

—β) pl. Is 41₁₈ 49₉ Jr 3_{2.21}, צַח שָׁפִיִּים רִיחַ a burning wind from the bare heights Jr 4₁₁ (on which see Rudolph *Jer.*³ 34) 7₂₉ 12₁₂ 14₆.

שְׁפִיפֹן: hapax legomenon Gn 49₁₇ (SamP. šāfāfon), cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 500q: a descriptive word in -án (> אָן), probably onomatopoeic, really the hisser, on which see Keel Orte 1: 164; in Akk. šibbu is used to designate a mythological serpent (Landsberger Fauna 58f; AHW. 1226b; CAD Š/2, 375a: šibbu A); according to Landsberger loc. cit. šibbu is a loan translation from Sumerian mir girdle; on this basis he looks for etymological support for Heb. שְׁפִיפֹן by making a connection with the frequently supposed Arb. words (as in e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL) saff, siff, suff, a particularly dangerous type of snake with distinguishing white markings and black spots (Lane Lex. 1368b; G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 320b): horned viper, Vipera cerastes (Aharoni Animals 474); in Keel Orte 1: 163 it is given the Latin name Cerastes cerastes: Gn 49₁₇ (עֲלֵי דֶרֶךְ נְחָשׁ parallel with עֲלֵי אֶרֶץ), with I נְשָׂף. †

9873 שְׁפִיר

שָׁפַךְ: cf. Labuschagne OTSt (Pretoria, 1971) 59: ša-causative from שָׁפַךְ; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 228); JArm. שָׁפַךְ to pour out, spill; Ug. špk to spill (Gordon Textbook §19:2464; Aistleitner Wb. 2665; Gibson *Myths*² 159a); Akk. šapāku(m) 1) to heap up, store; 2) to pour, serve lavishly (AHw. 1168f; CAD Š/1 412; used of solids as well as liquids); Syr. špak pe. to pour out, pour over; etpa. passive; see Payne Smith Thes. 4263a; the phonetically cognate vb. is not frequent, and what is used instead is ʿēšad; Samaritan, JArm. שָׁפַךְ; CPArm. špk* to pour out; itpe. reflexive and passive (Schulthess Lex. 212f); Mnd. ŠPK to pour, administer a liquid in drips (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 472a); Eth. sabaka to melt down (Dillmann Lex. 361); Tigr. tisabbaka to be poured out, of molten metal (Littmann-H. Wb. 184b); Arb. safaka to shed, especially blood; also to cast metal (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 413b); sabaka to found, cast, smelt (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 396a).

General remarks: a) for bibliography see Hieronymus Christ Blutvergiessen im Alten Testament. Der Gewaltsame Tod des Menschen untersucht am hebräischen Wort d@m (Diss. theol. Basel, 1977) 12ff.

—b) for the special sense of the vb. שָׁפַךְ, see Koch ZAW 86 (1974) 518: it does not mean a gradual pouring as required, but rather a sudden, massive spillage; for the most part it is linked with דָּם blood as the object; a more restricted use with this definition can be seen clearly in אֶת־רוּחִי אֶשְׁפַּכְתִּי אֶת־רוּחִי Ezk 39₂₉, אֶת־רוּחִי אֶשְׁפַּךְ JI 3₁₋₂ and ... וְשָׁפַכְתִּי רוּחַ חַן Zech 12₁₀.

—1. to pour, shed blood: a) blood: α) the blood of animals Lv 17₄₋₁₃ Dt 12₁₆₋₂₄ 15₂₃, especially of animals for sacrifice Ex 29₁₂ Lv 4₇₋₁₈₋₂₅₋₃₀₋₃₄ (see also 2); β) when used of people דָּם שָׁפַךְ (pl. דְּמַיִם 1C 22₈ 28₃) is not a neutral word for to kill but it implies a considered judgement about the action; it is a deliberate act of killing and (with the exception of acceptable acts of vengeance, as Gn 9₆) is a criminal act; so Hieronymus Christ loc. cit. 18; on this see further pp. 12ff, 21ff and 30; cf. Gn 9₆ 37₂₂ Nu 35₃₃ (דָּם שָׁפַכְוּ), Dt 21₇ 1S 25₃₁ etc.; דָּם נָקַי 2K 21₁₆ Is 59₇ etc., דָּם הִנָּקַי 2K 24₄.

Der. appellative and n.f. שֹׁפַרְהָ, place name שֹׁפַיר;

—? I *שָׁפָר.

I *שָׁפָר: hapax legomenon Gn 49₂₁: שָׁפָר; SamP. variant Gn 49₂₁ שׁוֹפָר šūfār, the meaning of the sbst. is disputed.

A. Suggested possibilities for the derivation include.

—1. from שָׁפָר (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 458s), on which see a) MHeb. שָׁפָר loved one, darling (Dalman Wörterbuch 433a); b) the Vrss.: in Sept. instead of אֲמָרִי words, what is loosely proposed is אֲמָרִי branches, see BHS; see also BDB 57a, sv. אֲמָר and אֲמָר; ἐπιδιδούς ἐν τῷ γενήματι κάλλος one who produces (presents) beauty in his fruit (yield); Vulg. Nephtalim cervus emis-sus et dans eloquia pulchritudinis; Pesh. nptly izgaddā qallilā yāheb mēmrāšappirā Naphtali is a fast messenger who gives marvellous news (who utters wonderful words); Tg. differently.

—2. other attempts to derive the sbst. differently include: a) antler: שָׁפָר אֲמָרִי the branches of an antler, meaning a branched antler; so Rüthy Pflanze 76, with bibliography; KBL; → II *אֲמָר; b) שָׁפָר coming from Akk. šipru(m) commission, message, consignment (AHw. 1245f; CAD Š/3, 73a); so Hans-Jürgen Zobel Stammesspruch und Geschichte (BZAW 95; 1965) 20f; the sbst. in Akk. comes to have the special meaning of a message of victory.

B. Of the suggestions in A only those under 1 can really be taken into consideration; in particular it should be remembered that they are supported by the Vrss. and MHeb., and many parallels are offered by the lexical opposition שָׁפָר :: שָׁפָרָה; on this see Michel Grundlegung 1: 66-68; the wording of the MT, “Naphtali

—the hunted hind! The one who makes a fine speech!”, is probably to be left as a special expression; on this see Seebass ZAW 96 (1984) 342 :: Westermann BK 1/3: 247, 249: שָׁפָר אֲמָרִי “darling lambs” sounds pretty, but is not linguistically possible, for lamb would normally be expressed by טֹלָה. †

II שָׁפָר: the name of a mountain; SamP. ašfār; Sept. Σαφάρ: a mountain that is mentioned in a list of stopping places in the Arabian desert in Nu 33_{23f}, and which it is no longer possible to identify with certainty (so Noth Bibl. Land. 1: 70); probably situated on the eastern side of the Gulf of Aqaba, on which see Noth loc. cit. 55-74, especially 67ff. †

9898 שָׁפָרָה

I שָׁפָרָה: שָׁפָר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 459y; → I שָׁפָר: beauty Jb 26₁₃: בְּרוּחוֹ שָׁפָרָה שָׁמַיִם the heavens became bare with his wind, so Fohrer KAT 16: 382; as such the sbst. would be used instead of an adj. or a vb., see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §141:2a; cf. especially the use of עֵץ in Ezk 41₂₂; for ideas similar to Fohrer see e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon 877b; König Wb. 523f; the cj. referred to under → שפר is not necessary. †

II שפּרָה: n.f. = I שפּרָה; SamP. šifra; Sept. Σεπρωρα; Vulg. Sephra: beauty, so Noth Personennamen 10; KBL; and especially Stamm Frauennamen 323 = Stamm Fschr. 119; cf. also the bibliography mentioned under שפר on Amorite personal names which are composed with this root: a Hebrew midwife in Egypt Ex 1₁₅. †

—a) sceptre, from Akk. šibirru/šipirru sceptre, an emblem of the rulership of the gods (a Sumerian loanword, see AHw. 1227; CAD Š/2, 377a), so Barth Nominalbildung §144β (p. 215¹); Zimmern Fremdw. 8.

—b) the carpet of the throne, so Friedrich Delitzsch Prolegomena eines neuen hebräisch-aramäischen Wörterbuches zum Alten Testament (1886) 126.

—c) sumptuous tent, or alternatively state tent, so KBL and Rudolph *Jer.*³ 258 (with bibliography); the vb. נטה gives support to b as well as c. †

שפת: MHeb. to place on the hearth, cook; Ug. tpd to set, place (Gordon Textbook §19:2724; Aistleitner Wb. 2918; Gibson *Myths*² 160b); cf. Gray *Legacy*² 70⁶ to place on, place over; see also especially de Moor UF 13 (1981) 304: to put something into another place (the same as Arb. ṭfd, see below) :: Ahlström VT 28 (1978) 100f: to stamp; similarly Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 204^g; OSArb. šft (Conti Rossini Chrest. 251b) to give, so also Ullendorff VT 6 (1956) 197 :: Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 316: denominative vb. from the sbst. šft = שפּת to swear with the lips, give orders, assure (see previously → שפּת); on this see also Beeston VT 8 (1958) 216: šft is probably denominative from the sbst. šft, and the extent of its meaning embraces not only the completed action of the utterance but also the offer, the promise; ? JArm. and Syr. תפא (Brockelmann Lex. 830); Arb. ṭfd to put on, set above, so Gray *Legacy*² 70⁶; but see also Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 204^g: ṭfd II to provide a garment with a lining, cf. G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 1 (1830): 220a.

—1. שפּת הַסִּיר to put a cooking pot on the fire 2K 4₃₈ Ezk 24₃.

—2. special usages: a) Is 26₁₂ שפּת שְׁלוֹם to offer peace, or alternatively to accomplish deliverance, sbj. יהוה, so with Sept., Vulg. and Tg.; Pesh. by contrast is more free: you will (should) assure us of peace :: cj. Beeston VT 8 (1958) 216: pr. תשפת, prop. תשפּת, because what should correspond to OSArb. šft would be Heb. שפּת; you should arrange (decide) peace for us; on this see Wildberger BK 10: 982, 984, who would nevertheless maintain the traditional translation “to give”, with the Vrss.

—b) Ps 22₁₆ וְלַעֲפָר מוֹת תִּשְׁפָּתֵנִי and you put me down (laid me down) in the dust of death; on the rendering of the impf. as a past tense see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §7h; R. Meyer Gramm. §100: 3a, and especially Diethelm Michel Tempora und Satzstellung in den Psalmen (Abhandlungen zur evang. Theologie, Vol. 1; 1960) 132ff; cf. also Sept., Vulg., Pesh., where a perfect tense is used. However a translation of תִּשְׁפָּתֵנִי as a present tense, you lay me down, can still not be excluded (so e.g. ZüB; Kraus BK 15⁵ 322; TOB). †

—1) Ezk 40₄₃ הַשְּׁפָתִים (pr. MT prop. in BHS הַשְּׁפָתִים). Among the Vrss. it is understood as lips, edges by Sept., Vulg. and Pesh., but by contrast Tg. has עוֹנֵקָלִין pegs in the wall. As for modern translations in part they follow the Sept., Vulg. and Pesh., and in part they incline towards Tg., while at the same time they have in mind the use of the word in Ps 68₁₄ (see below 2).

—a) those following Sept., Vulg. and Pesh. include: α) edges, so ZüB and similarly Zorell Lexicon 877b; TOB; β) places where to set things down (KBL), resting places, so Galling Hezekiel (HAT 13¹; 1936) 140; also Zimmerli Ez. 1027, who however adds that by stipulating its size with טַפַּח “the breadth of one’s hand” rather makes one think of a rail running along a wall.

—b) those following Tg. include: α) ridge shaped pegs, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. (following Gesenius Thesaurus 1470) and Bauer-Leander Heb. 516s; a row of pegs, like hurdles on a table; so König Wb. 524a; β) ridge shaped hooks; so Galling HAT 13² (1955) 227; NRSV: pegs one handbreath long; REB: rims; NEB: ledges.

—2) Ps 68₁₄ שְׁפָתִים with בֵּין שְׁכָב: probably a gloss following Ju 5₁₆, so e.g. Gunkel Ps. 289; Kraus BK 15⁵ 625 and Mowinckel Der achtundsechzigste Psalm (Oslo, 1953) 35 :: Albright HUCA 23/1 (1950-51) 22, 37; see also Dahood Psalms 2: 131, 141; שְׁפָתִים probably the same as → מִשְׁפָּתִים; there the cj. מִשְׁפָּתִים pr. שְׁפָתִים is also mentioned: בֵּין שְׁפָתִים between the sheepfolds; so without cj. Albright loc. cit. and Dahood loc. cit.; so also NRSV, REB, NEB: sheepfolds). † *שִׁצַּף, by-form of שִׁטַּף: (perhaps this root occurs in the Punic sbst. šsp (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 317; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1185; Donner-Röllig Inschriften 69:11; Tomback Lexicon 330); see Donner-Röllig Inschriften 2: p. 86: an unexplained feature of sacrificial procedure, a certain type of sacrifice; it should probably be associated also with the Punic n.m. šsp, see Benz Names 185; for further personal names which preserve this sbst. see p. 425.

—According to Brockelmann Lex. 798b this goes back to a šafel from קל/ל, so also Labuschagne OTSt (Pretoria, 1971) 57, which is possible though uncertain; MHeb. (Dalman Wörterbuch 434a), also DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 228), where this meaning suffices for all instances (CD 8:19; 19:25; 1QS 9:14) so that the rendering to excite (CD 8:13; 19:25, so Kuhn Konkordanz loc. cit.) can be dispensed with; Samaritan תקל; JArm. תקל; → BArm. also for instances from the other Arm. dialects; Ug. ṭql, the root is probably preserved only in the sbst. ṭql equivalent to → שָׁקַל; it appears to have been preserved in the form šql in the expression nissāti mišqūlāfi meaning complaints that are weighed out (Ugaritica 5, p. 297, text 165:7), on which see von Soden UF 1 (1969) 194f; also Degen WdO 6 (1970/1971) 60; Akk. šaqaḷu(m) to suspend, weigh out, balance, pay (AHw. 1178f; CAD Š/2, 1a); ARMT 10, 92:8 dimātiya šu-uq-qī-il is probably not to be translated as weigh my tears (AHw. 1178b), but wipe away my tears, so AHw. 1590b with Deller-Watanabe ZA 70 (1980) 198-226; vb. šukkulu(m), šakkulu to wipe off, wipe out (for other instances see CAD Š/3, 219a-b); Punic šql qal active pt., the one who weighs (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 318; cf. Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1187, *šql*₁: šql mḥtt is of uncertain interpretation; Tomback Lexicon 330), ? impf. yšql to test (Tomback Lexicon 331); Neo-Punic pt. yifil myšql honouring (Friedrich *Gramm.*² §146, 147) Donner-Röllig Inschriften 121:1; 126:5; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 318; cf. Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1187: myšql rš the one who adorns his country, as Latin ornator patriae; Eth. saqala to suspend (Dillmann Lex. 350f), the same as Tigr. saqla (Littmann-H. Wb. 181a); Arb. taqula to be expensive.

B. the homonymous root in the meaning to take, remove: JArm. שָׁקַל to take, bring (Dalman Wörterbuch 434a); EmpArm. šql: GenAp. 21:9 šqwl ynyk raise your eyes (Fitzmyer *Gen. Ap.*² 68, 69 and 147); Ug. šql Gt-theme (Gordon Textbook §19:2472; Aistleitner Wb. 2678; Gibson *Myths*² 159a) to break out, move; in Akk. (Standard Babylonian) to take away, with wife or son as the obj. (AHw. 1178b paragraph 5, probably belonging to saqālu I (AHw. 1027b; CAD S, 168); Syr. šqal to lift, drag, take, move, break out; etpe. to get up, be removed; af. to move, break out; Mnd. ŠQL to take away, remove (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 473).

The differences between the two meanings (A and B) should be carefully noted, see Greenfield UF 11 (1979) 325-327; cf. also Tomback Lexicon 330, 331: ŠQL I and ŠQL III.

—1. a weight which is further specified by a) the nature of the substance weighed; or b) a prevailing standard of measurement.

—a) see זָהָב Ex 38₂₄ 1C 21₂₅ 2C 3₉, כֶּסֶף Gn 23_{15f} Lv 27₃, נְחֹשֶׁת Ex 38₂₉ 1S 17₅, בְּרִזְלֵי 1S 17₇, מֵאֶכְלֵי Ezk 4₁₀.

—2. שְׁקָלִים/שְׁקָל most often used as a method of payment, cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.

—a) בְּשֶׁקֶל 2K 7₁₋₁₆₋₁₈; Am 8₅ with גָּדֵל hif: לְהַגְדִּיל שְׁקָל to make the stone weight too heavy.

—b) fifty שְׁקָלֵי הַהַגְדִּיל of silver, which individual residents were obliged to forfeit in the reign of King Menahem to pay off the king of Assyria 2K 15₂₀; seventeen שְׁשָׁנִים of silver, which Jeremiah had to pay for the purchase of the field in עֲנַתוֹת Jr 32₉; fifty שְׁעֵנַתוֹת of silver, with which David acquired the threshing floor and the oxen of אֲרוֹנָה 2S 24₂₄; two hundred שְׁאֲרוֹנָה silver and לְשׁוֹן זָהָב a tongue of gold (a bar of gold) weighing fifty זָהָב שְׁלִשׁוֹן, which עָכָן took for himself as plunder Jos 7₂₁.

—c) שְׁקָלִים/שְׁקָל used together with various other numbers: שְׁלֹשָׁת/הַמִּשָּׁה שְׁ כֶּסֶף Lv 27₆; שְׁ מֵאוֹת וּשְׁלֹשִׁים שְׁקָל Lv 27₇; חֲמִשָּׁה עָשָׂר שְׁקָל Lv 27₅; עֶשְׂרִים שְׁעֵשְׂרֵת שְׁ עֵשְׂרֵת שְׁשָׁלֹשָׁת/הַמִּשָּׁה מֵאוֹת וּשְׁלֹשִׁים שְׁקָל Ex 38₂₄; נְחֹשֶׁת 1S 17₅.

—d) now and then the sbst. שְׁקָל is omitted as self-evident, cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 861a, e.g. עֲשָׂרָה זָהָב Gn 24₂₂, אֶלֶף כֶּסֶף Gn 20₁₆, 37₂₈.

—3. another unit of weight defined in terms of the שְׁקָל (see especially Reicke-Rost Hw. 1166f); one שְׁקָל = twenty גֵּרָה (→ II גֵּרָה; see also BRL² 93b): Ex 30₁₃ Lv 27₂₅ Nu 3₄₇ Ezk 45₁₂; fifty שְׁקָל = one מִנְהָה Ezk 45₁₂ (textual emendation pr. וַחֲמִשָּׁה read with Sept. וַחֲמִשִּׁים, BHS), on which see also BRL² 93b, and S. 9914 שְׁקָמָה

*שְׁקָמָה: probably a primary noun, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 459b; (→ :: תִּיאָנָה); MHeb. שְׁקָמָה, pl. שְׁקָמִים; JArm. שְׁקָמָה, pl. det. שְׁקָמִיָּא; Syr. šeqmā; CPArm. (Schulthess Lex. 214) šwqm > σακάμινος (Boisacq Dict. étym. 924): pl. שְׁקָמִים, sf. שְׁקָמוֹתָם Ps 78₄₇: for masc. pl. with fem. sg. see Michel Grundlegung 1: 36 and 40: a group plural; but the fem. pl. with a suffix is a conspicuous contrast; it indicates individual examples of the species; the singular is a unitary noun. If the individual trees are envisaged in this way with שְׁקָמוֹתָם it is meant as an intensification of the disease which attacked them: sycamore-fig tree, Ficus sycomorus, see Löw Flora 1: 274ff; L. Koehler Amos (1917) 36f; Dalman Arbeit 1/1: 61f and 7: 34; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1176, 1177; Keel Orte 1: 82; for illustrations see Dalman Arbeit 1/2, supplementary plate number 6; also Keel Orte 1: 83. The *שִׁקְמָה flourishes only in the more low-lying areas of the country, and in the OT the main such area is the → שִׁפְלָה, 1K 10₂₇ 2C 1₁₅ 9₂₇; in the royal estates situated there there were found זִיתִים and שִׁקְמִים 1C 27₂₈; and furthermore sycamore-fig trees were found not only in the שִׁפְלָה but also in the region of Lower Galilee and in the Jordan Valley (Luke 19₄); on this see Dalman Arbeit 7: 34; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1177; also Keel Orte 1: 82. The tree could also be found in Egypt, as is presupposed by Ps 78₄₇, on which cf. Hermann Kees Ägyptens 49 with note 6 (Kulturgeschichte des Alten Orients, first section, Munich, 1933); also Walther Wolff Kulturgeschichte des Alten Aegypten (1962) 17, 20, 89 (see especially 17). For the occupation of the person described as בּוֹלֵס שִׁקְמִים בּוֹלֵס Am 7₁₄ → בּוֹלֵס; the normal timber used for building came from the sycamore-fig trees that grew in such quantities (cf. לָרֵב 1K 10₂₇ 2C 9₂₇) in the שִׁפְלָה, in contrast to the more expensive cedar-wood; see especially Is 9₉ and cf. Dalman Arbeit 7: 32f. †

—a) Kramer JNES 25 (1966) 125-127: the sbst. is to be derived from the Arb. vb. išqa'arra to be rough, be dry, be shrivelled because of drought (the earth, vegetation); on this see also Lane Lex. 2526 a and b: said of the skin when it is dried up because of mange or scab; the earth became a colour inclining to that of dust or ashes, and became contracted by reason of drought. The Heb. sbst. would then mean flaking patches, or simply patches, cf. Pesh.

—b) Görg BN 14 (1981) 20-25: the Heb. sbst. is derived from the Egyptian expression sqr r r rwty, meaning an exceptionally noticeable wound which exudes from within; as such שְׁקַעְרֵרֹת would then be a loanword from Egyptian and has been erroneously taken as a real plural; Görg suggests “rash” as a translation. † שִׁקָּה: see Labuschagne OTSt (Pretoria, 1971) 54: šafel from the root שִׁקָּה, which is preserved in תִּקְוֶפָה; Samaritan as in Heb., apparently a loanword (LOT 3/2 p. 354, 362); MHeb. nif. to look out; hif. to look at, examine; to climb up, bend, see Dalman Wörterbuch 434b, 605a. It should be noted that for BHeb. only this root is accepted by KBL, Zorell Lex. and König Wb. 526b, as opposed to Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; but OSArb. sqf to provide with a roof (Conti Rossini Chrest. 199b), is taken as the same as Arb. sqf II, but is to be taken differently from KBL since the vb. is denominative from the sbst. sqf = saqf roof (see Conti Rossini loc. cit.; Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 127); with regard to the derived words (see below) Noth Könige 98 suspects that the basic meaning of the Heb. vb. is to show one's face, appear in the window; see Pritchard Pictures 131; Reicke-Rost Hw. 470; Keel Bildsymb. plate 319).

שִׁקָּה: שִׁקָּה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 456f or 458s; hapax legomenon 1K 7₅ שִׁקָּה; the meaning of the sbst. is not quite clear, but possibilities include: a) both שִׁקָּה door-jamb, door support (Hebrew Synagogue inscription from Kefr Bir'im (identified with Kefar Bar'am), see Lidzbarski Handbuch 485f no. 5; see also Noth Könige 97f) and also the sbst. מִשְׁקָף are close to the translation of upper beam, door-jamb (as in Gray *Kings*³ 179).

—b) a space in a wall for a door or for a window, on which see especially Noth Könige 97f, and Würthwein ATD 11/1: 70 (: Görg BN 11 (1980) 12f, who gives an Egyptian etymology).

—c) the context of 1K 7₅ supports b, where the sbst. refers to הַפְּתָחִים, which is described as רְבָעִים squared; שְׁקָרָה squared with regard to the opening, so Noth Könige 130, or alternatively a square or rectangular opening, so Würthwein loc. cit. †

9919 שְׁקָפִים

שְׁקָפִים: 1K 6₄ 7₄: qal. pt. passive from the vb שָׁקַף. The expression has probably not been constructed directly from the vb. but is to be linked with it through the sbst. שְׁקָרָה sv. b; so it must mean with an opening; but the word associated with it is omitted; if one likes a word can be supplied, as is done by Gray *Kings*³ 178; on this see below. What should be considered is the proposal of Noth Könige 97 that originally שְׁקָפִים was taken to mean the same as שְׁקָפִים, the pl. of שְׁקָרָה; the meaning would then be openings, or more precisely window openings, so 1K 7₄, and especially clearly in 1K 6₄: חַלּוֹנֵי אֲטָמִים/שְׁקָפִים a barred window, a window with a grille; on this see especially Noth Könige 97f, who also refers to Akk. askuppu(m), askuppātu stone slab, stone threshold (AHw. 74; CAD A/2, 334a and 333b), suggesting that perhaps therefore שְׁקָפִים means a frame of stone blocks, such as would be used for a window in a stone wall; a translation like this is found also in Würthwein ATD 11/1: 60; see further Gallig ZDPV 83 (1967) 123; also BRL² 179f; Rupprecht ZDPV 88 (1972) 40f, especially 40²¹; Reicke-Rost Hw. 470; as already mentioned previously Gray *Kings*³ 178 manages with the traditional שְׁקָפִים and translates as grilled or recessed window. †

שָׁקַר: שָׁקַר (Bauer-Leander Heb. 458s, but see also 457q, originally a qitl-formation); for the cognate languages see THAT 2: 1012; also Wagner in Baumgartner Fschr. 364f: SamP. ašqâr, MHeb. שָׁקַר lie, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 228), see THAT 2: 1017f; JArm. שִׁקְרָה; Akk. tašq/gertu(m) slander, trickery (AHw. 1339b); it is completely uncertain and most unlikely that ši-ka-ri (ARMT 2: text 124:6) means lie and corresponds to Heb. שָׁקַר (so Charles-F. Jean ARMT 2: p. 239; see also Noth Bibl. Land. 2: 272; cf. also Klopfenstein Lüge 175f), for there is no obvious reason for the substitution of k for q in Akk. (see Edzard ZA 56 (1964) 148); Syr. šūqrā lie, wrong; Mnd. šiqrā (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 463a) lie, falsehood; ? Nab. n.m. שִׁקְרוּ (Cantineau Nab. 2: 153b) but the meaning of the name is completely uncertain. Arb. s/šūqar lie, is a loanword from Arm., see Wagner loc. cit.: שִׁקְרָה, pl. שִׁקְרִים, sf. שִׁקְרִיהֶם (119 times: Jr 37 times, Ps 24 times, Pr 20 times, Is 9 times, Lv 4 times, Zech 4 times, Ex 3 times; Dt, 1S, 1K, Mi, Jb, 2C all twice; Gn, 2S, 2K, Ezk, Hos, Hab, Mal all once). For bibliography. → שִׁקְרָה: breach of faith, lie.

It should be noted in general that Klopfenstein Lüge 17 emphasises that there is no clearer place where the sbst. can be identified in a context for a postulated meaning breach of contract than Gn 21₂₃; elsewhere the somewhat broader meaning of infringement of the law lies at the base of the word, where the text and the context exhibit some legal aspect, and this applies in the majority of cases.

In what follows we adhere to the areas of usage for שָׁקַר distinguished by Klopfenstein (see also THAT 2: 1010-1019); with him also :: KBL we make no difference between lying with words and lying with actions.

—1. שָׁקַר with a legal or judicial connotation (Klopfenstein Lüge 18ff): a) עֵד שֶׁשָׁקַר false witness lying testimony Ex 20₁₆ Dt 19₁₈ (SamP. šaqqâr [‘āna] = [עוֹדָה] שָׁקַר nomen actionis; variant in Samaritan Tg. Dt 19₁₈, see LOT 5: 197, §25), Pr 25₁₈ (with I עֵדָה); Dt 19₁₈ (with II עוֹד hif.); see further Pr 6₁₉ 14₅ 25₁₈; שִׁקְרִים Pr 12₁₇ 19₅₋₉ (עֵד שֶׁשָׁקַר); Pr 14₂₅ (עֵד שֶׁשָׁקַר); Ps 27₁₂, with קוֹם.

—b) לְשׁוֹן שֶׁשָׁקַר Ps 109₂ Pr 6₁₇ 12₁₉; שִׁפְתֵי־שֶׁשָׁקַר Ps 120₂ Pr 17₇; שִׁפְתֵי־שֶׁשָׁקַר Pr 12₂₂ on which see Klopfenstein Lüge 25 (see further also 4bβ).

—c) דְּבַר־שֶׁשָׁקַר deceitful word, deceitful action Ex 23₇, with שֶׁשָׁקַר; Mi 6₁₂ (see below 4a).

—2. a lie when making an oath falsely (Klopfenstein Lüge 32ff): with שבע nif: לִשְׁשַׁבַּע by a breach of faith Lv 5²⁴ Jr 7⁹ Mal 3⁵; לִשְׁשַׁבַּע לְשִׁמְיָאֵלֶּיךָ Lv 19¹² Zech 5⁴; עַל־שִׁשְׁבַּע לְשִׁמְיָאֵלֶּיךָ because of a breach of faith Lv 5²²; שְׁשַׁבַּע שְׁשַׁבַּע false oath Zech 8¹⁷, with אָהַב; אָהַב שְׁשַׁבַּע יְמִין a lying right hand, a false right hand (NRSV) Ps 144^{8,11} on which see Klopfenstein Lüge 38f.

—3. שָׁקַר with reference to the cult: a) in the Psalms (Klopfenstein Lüge 41ff): α) עֵדֵי שְׁשַׁקֵּר Ps 27¹² (see above 1a); דֹּבַר שְׁשַׁקֵּרִים the one who utters lies Ps 101⁷; דוֹבְרֵי־שָׁקֶר liars Ps 63¹²; דוֹבְרֵי־שָׁקֶר Is 59³; דְּבַר־שִׁשְׁבַּע דְּבַר־שִׁשְׁבַּע Is 59¹³; שִׁפְתָי שִׁשְׁבַּע lips which break the law, or lips which accuse falsely Ps 31¹⁹, see Klopfenstein Lüge 49; טָפַל שִׁשְׁבַּע על they smear me with lies Ps 119⁶⁹; cf. טָפַל שִׁשְׁבַּע שְׁשַׁקֵּר bungling physicians, REB: smearing the truth with your falsehoods, one and all stitching a patchwork of lies Jb 13⁴; יָלַד שְׁשַׁקֵּרִים Ps 7¹⁵.

—γ) שָׁקַר breaking the law, or alternatively a breach of faith Ps 119¹¹⁸ (parallel with תִּרְמִית), see Klopfenstein Lüge 62f.

—δ) שָׁקַר as adverbial acc. (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §118: 5, p. 374f; R. Meyer Gramm. §106: 2f) a lie, a trick, deceitfully, see Klopfenstein Lüge 63ff; with עוֹת pi. 2 to oppress; with רָרַף to subvert someone with lies (NRSV) Ps 119⁷⁸, Ps 119⁸⁶; אֹיְבֵי שְׁשַׁקֵּר those who oppose me with lies Ps 35¹⁹ 69⁵, cf. שְׁשַׁקֵּר שְׁשַׁקֵּר Ps 38²⁰; הַסּוֹס שְׁשַׁקֵּר the steed is treacherous, unreliable; NRSV: the war horse is a vain hope Ps 33¹⁷.

—b) שָׁקַר breach of trust, trick, to indicate the worshipping of idols and the practising of magic.

—α) שְׁשַׁקֵּר שְׁשַׁקֵּר the offspring of deceit Is 57⁴; בָּטַח בְּשִׁשְׁבַּע שִׁשְׁבַּע to trust in trickery Jr 13²⁵; לִשְׁשַׁבַּע בָּטַח becoming an illusion, as an illusion Jr 3²³.

—β) שָׁקַר trick, illusion, as the designation of idols Jr 10^{14/51} 16¹⁹; הֲלֹא שְׁשַׁקֵּר בְּיַמִּינִי is not this thing in my right hand an illusion? Is 44²⁰, cf. also ZüB: is it not a trick how I hold on?

—γ) שְׁשַׁקֵּר שְׁשַׁקֵּר מוֹרָה שְׁשַׁקֵּר מוֹרָה lying oracle Hab 2¹⁸; חָזַה שְׁשַׁקֵּר מוֹרָה to look at an illusion Zech 10²; on both occasions שְׁשַׁקֵּר does not relate to the idols themselves but to the meaning of the false oracle connected with them (so Klopfenstein Lüge 91). On the sbst. מוֹרָה, which does not designate a person but a thing, cf. חָזַה destiny, obligation Is 28¹⁵, and II רָאָה face, sight Is 28⁷; on this see Ernst Kutsch Verheissung und Gesetz (BZAW 131; 1972/73) 34ff, especially 35⁴⁴.

—δ) הַשְּׁרָאָה דְּבַרֵי שְׁשַׁקֵּר deceitful words Jr 7^{4,8}, with בָּטַח, words with which a false but credible confidence in the temple was aroused.

—c) שָׁקַר with reference to the so-called false prophets (Klopfenstein Lüge 95ff).

—α) חֲלֹמוֹת שֶׁשֶׁקֶר delusive dreams Jr 23₃₂; חֲזוֹן שֶׁחֲלֹמוֹת שֶׁ deceptive vision Jr 14₁₄; with נבא hitp., נְבִיא מוֹרָה שֶׁנִּבְא the prophet who teaches lies Is 9₁₄, on which see Wildberger BK 10: 203, 205f :: e.g. Klopfenstein Lüge 111f, reading שֶׁנִּבְא מוֹרָה שֶׁ the prophet and the one who teaches lies; שֶׁ רוּחַ וְשֶׁנִּבְא וּמוֹרָה stuff and nonsense Mi 2₁₁.

—β) הַבְּטִיחַ עַל־שֶׁרוּחַ וְשֶׁ to make someone trust in a lie, an empty falsehood (NRSV) Jr 28₁₅ 29₃₁.

—γ) with נבא nif.: שֶׁשֶׁקֶר to prophesy lies Jr 14₁₄; בִּשְׁשֶׁקֶר Jr 5₃₁ 20₆; בִּשְׁבֹבֶשׁ Jr 29₃ because of lies, with deceit, so Klopfenstein Lüge 122, on which see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL; לִשְׁבֹבֶשׁ to behave as a prophet deceitfully, unfairly Jr 27₁₅; הֵלֵךְ בִּשְׁלֹשׁ to walk in lies Jr 23₁₄; עָשָׂה שֶׁהֵלֵךְ בִּשְׁבֹבֶשׁ to practise deceit Jr 6_{13/8}₁₀.

—d) further uses of שֶׁשֶׁקֶר in religious and moral contexts; פָּעַל שֶׁשֶׁשֶׁקֶר to deal falsely, not to keep faith Hos 7₁; נִסְתָּר בִּשְׁפֹעֵל שֶׁ to shelter under a lie, NRSV: we have made lies our refuge; REB: we have taken refuge in lies Is 28₁₅; עֵט שֶׁ a lying stylus Jr 8₈; with לִשְׁשֶׁ, עָשָׂה לִשְׁשֶׁ, see Klopfenstein Lüge 132ff; דְּבַרֵי שֶׁעָשָׂה לִשְׁשֶׁ לִשְׁשֶׁ (Ex 5₉; לֹא שֶׁשֶׁקֶר מִלִּי לֹא my words are no lie Jb 36₄; שֶׁשֶׁקֶר (Jr 9₂, with גָּבַר; לֹא (Jr 9₄; שֶׁשֶׁקֶר in hypocrisy Jr 3₁₀, see Klopfenstein Lüge 152f.

cj. Jr 6_{6b} pr. הָעִיר הָעִיר הַפָּקַד הִיא הָעִיר הַשֶּׁקֶר (BHS) הוֹי עִיר הַשֶּׁקֶר הוֹי עִיר הַשֶּׁקֶר (BHS) woe to the city that breaks faith, see Klopfenstein Lüge 153f.

—4. שֶׁשֶׁקֶר as a designation for lying and deception in everyday trading and bargaining deals (Klopfenstein Lüge 154ff).

—a) דְּבַרֵי שֶׁשֶׁקֶר וְלִשׁוֹנָם רְמִיָּה בְּפִיהֶם they utter lies and their tongue is a deception in their mouth Mi 6₁₂.

—b) שֶׁשֶׁקֶר as a judgement on one's whole conduct: α) עָשָׂה שֶׁשֶׁקֶר בִּי to behave falsely in 2S 18₁₃ = בִּי שֶׁשֶׁקֶר Lv 19₁₁ (→ שֶׁשֶׁקֶר pi. bβ).

—β) אִמְרֵי שֶׁשֶׁשֶׁקֶר false words Is 32₇; דְּבַר שֶׁאִמְרֵי שֶׁ deceitful statement Pr 13₅ 29₁₂ :: שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־צֶדֶק Pr 16₁₃; לְשׁוֹן שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־צֶדֶק Pr 6₁₇ 12₁₉ 21₆ 26₂₈; שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־לְשׁוֹן Pr 17₇; שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־שֶׁ Pr 10₁₈ (Klopfenstein Lüge 165), 12₂₂ (see above 1b).

—γ) לֶחֶם שֶׁשֶׁפְּתֵי־שֶׁ bread obtained by trickery Pr 20₁₇, with עָרַב.

—5. שֶׁשֶׁקֶר as an interjection in direct speech (Klopfenstein Lüge 167ff): וַיֹּאמְרוּ שֶׁשֶׁשֶׁקֶר they say, “Wrong!” 2K 9₁₂; וַיֹּאמֶר יִרְמְיָהוּ שֶׁוַיֹּאמְרוּ שֶׁ and Jeremiah said, “Wrong!” Jr 37₁₄; שֶׁ אַתָּה דֹבֵר שֶׁ what you say is wrong! Jr 40₁₆.

—6. cj. Pr 17₄ pr. שֶׁשֶׁקֶר prop. → שֶׁשֶׁקֶר liar, slanderer, so KBL; also BHS where שֶׁשֶׁקֶר or מוֹשֵׁקֶר is proposed; see Driver ZAW 50 (1932) 144; this cj. of Driver and KBL is also in Klopfenstein Lüge 411⁷²², which is supported among the Vrss. by Vulg. fallax (Sept. and Pesh. are different) :: MT: falseness, so ZüB; Plöger BK 17: 198, 201; so also Gemser *Spr.*² 72, 73: falseness, meaning someone who is false, an example of abstractum pro concreto, which is suggested also by Klopfenstein loc. cit. Perhaps the rendering of TOB, “the liar”, should be understood in the same way; similarly NRSV: a liar gives heed to a mischievous tongue; REB and NEB: a liar listens to slander.

*שֵׁר: (Samaritan Tg. Gn 24₂₂ pl. [ש]ע[ירין]): probably a primary noun, → Akk. (? Bauer-Leander Heb. 451p); MHeb. שֵׁר; JArm. שֵׁר; Syr. šērā (Brockelmann Lex. 749); Mnd. šairia, pl. (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 441b); Arb. si/uwār from Akk. šawi/arum etc. bracelet, anklet, manacles, also ring, part of an implement (AHw. 1205f; CAD S, 219a: semeru, see also sv. 4, pp. 224b-225a); cf. Zimmern Fremdw. 38, and Salonen Türen 61: pl. שֵׁירוֹת: arm clasp, bangle Is 3₁₉; see BRL² 285a; for illustrations see p. 284. †

II שֵׁר: sf. שֵׁר Pr 3₈, rd. שֵׁר, → שֵׁר.

*שֵׁר: probably a primary noun, see Bauer-Leander Heb. 455f; JArm. שֵׁר; Ug. šr (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 114:30: šrh), on which see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin UF 7 (1975) p. 110, lines 29-30: 'rk lb w riš pqq w šrh prepare a heart and a head, a throat and a navel cord; for šr navel cord as equivalent to Heb. šr see p. 113; cf. Aartun WdO 4 (1967-68) 290/291, who finds this sbst. also in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 10:iii:25, but that is uncertain; see Caquot Textes Ougaritiques p. 288^a; Syr. šerrā (Brockelmann Lex. 802a); Mnd. šura (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 456b) navel; Arb. surr navel cord: שֵׁר Pr 3₈, שֵׁר Ezk 16₄, שֵׁר Song 7₃; on the daghesh in ר see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §22s; Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §28a; R. Meyer Gramm. §8: 13; cf. also §51: 2c.

—a) navel cord Ezk 16₄, with כרת pu.

—b) navel Pr 3₈ Song 7₃; note that in Pr 3₈ pr. לְשֶׁרֶךְ prop. (with Sept. τῶ σῶματί σου and Pesh. Ibesrāk) לְשֶׁרֶךְ or לְבִשְׂרֶךְ, see BHS; KBL: for your body, so also e.g. ZüB; Ringgren ATD 16/1³ (1980) 20; also TOB, but no easing of the proposed cj. is necessary here; on this see R. Meyer Gramm. §51: 2c; Plöger BK 17: 32; and especially Vulg. with its umbilico tuo.

It is also very questionable whether the meaning strength, health can be accepted for שֶׁרֶךְ Pr 3₈, even with the etymological support of Syr. and Arb. (see Driver *Aramaic Documents*² (1957) 44², and Biblica 32 (1951) 175; therefore it is translated by Gemser *Spr.*² 26 as bodily strength. †

*שֶׁרַב: MHeb. hitp. to be burned; JArm. שֶׁרַב to burn; Syr. šreb to be parched, be arid.

Der. שֶׁרַב, ? n.m. שֶׁרַבְיָה.

שֶׁרַב: *שֶׁרַב, Bauer-Leander Heb. 462s; MHeb. glow of the sun, heat, as also in JArm. שֶׁרַבָּא and שֶׁרַבָּא; Samaritan שֶׁרַב Tg. Gn 8₂₂ as the translation of שֶׁרַבָּה (LOT 2: 581 as the translation of שֶׁרַבָּי); CPArm. šwr̄b heat, glow (Schulthess Lex. 215b); Mnd. širba desiccating heat, aridness (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 463a); cf. Akk. šarrabu a demon (AHw. 1187b; CAD Š/2, 67a); Arb. sarāb fata morgana, mirage (Gesenius-Buhl Handw., Wehr-Cowan Dict. 406a): שֶׁרַב: a) heat of the sun; b) dryness, aridness, for both meanings (a and b) see Dalman Arbeit 1/2: 328f, 480, 521; Noth Welt 29f; Keel Orte 1: 48f: a) Is 49₁₀ meaning “heat” שֶׁרַבָּי; b) Is 35₇ meaning “dryness”, cf. Vrss., Sept. -|14| ἄνυδροσ (sc. γῆ), see Liddell-Scott Lex. 167b; Vulg. et quae erat arida; Pesh. b'arā ḥarrūbā in desert land; Tg. šarbā; the Vrss. that have been mentioned, especially Pesh., lead one to think of an arid land, on which see Wildberger BK 10: 1354; cf. שֶׁרַב (שֶׁרַב) the surface of the earth scorched by the sun Sir 43₂₂, so R. Smend Die Weisheit des Jesus Sirach; Text und Übersetzung (1906) 81. †

9933 שֶׁרַבְיָה

שֶׁרַבְיָה: n.m.: *שֶׁרַב; Sept. Neh 8₇ 9₄ 10₁₃ 12_{8,24} Σαραβία :: Ezr 8₂₄ (Sept.^{RA}) Σαραβία, and Ezr 8₁₈ in place of the personal name there are the words καὶ ἀρχὴν -|14| λθουσιν, on which see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 81; Babylonian yīšrib-yaw (iš-ri-bi-ya-a-ma), see Coogan Personal Names 28, 85f; cf. (?) Punic šrby (Benz Names 185, 426). The personal name was obviously given in two different forms, as a pf. שֶׁרַבְיָה, and as an impf. yīšrib-yaw, but nevertheless the meaning remains unclear; see Noth Personennamen 248 (no. 276), 259b; attempted explanations include.

—a) Yahweh has given new offspring (cf. Syr. šarbtā), so König Wb. 527a.

—b) Yahweh understands, so Kornfeld in Cazelles Fschr. 217, with reference to Arb. šaraba to understand, have insight (Lane Lex. 1526b; see also G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 407a).

—c) a so-called background name, Yahweh has made it get hot, i.e. during the time when the one who was given this name was being born (שֶׁרַב pi. causative of *שֶׁרַב); for this type of personal name cf. Stamm Namengebung 79f, and perhaps also the Sumerian personal names in Sauren ZA 59 (1969) 29, with note 10.

None of these suggestions is convincing, but of them all we are inclined to favour the last (c): a Levite, or alternatively an ancestor of a family of Levites Ezr 8₁₈₋₂₄ Neh 8₇ 9_{4f} 10₁₃ 12₈₋₂₄. †

שְׂרִיט: Aramaism, see Wagner Aram. 317, corresponding to Heb. שִׁיט; Samaritan שרִיט Tg. Lv 27₃₂, metaphorically scourge, plague (Ben Hayyim Samaritan Midrashim 93a); MHeb., JArm. שְׂרִיטָא < Akk. šabbītu staff, sceptre (AHw. 1119b; CAD Š/1, 10a: šabbītu A); as also in Coptic š(e)bōt, šērōb (Crum Copt. Dict. 554).

The introduction of ר in this Arm./Heb. sbst. achieves the same effect as the doubling of the middle radical, on which see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §20b; also Wagner loc. cit.

A primary noun (Bauer-Leander Heb. 484e; R. Meyer Gramm. §39: 4a) :: Sasson VT 22 (1972) 111, and Dahood Biblica 54 (1973) 364, who each look for a verbal derivation: staff, sceptre Est 4₁₁ 5₂ 8₄, all with שׂוּט hif.; cf. Sir 37₁₇ שְׂבִיטִינִי/שְׂרִיטִינִי shoots, branches. †

I שְׂרָה: MHeb. שָׂרָה I to resolve, permit; שָׂרָה II to encamp, reside; Samaritan, JArm. שָׂרָה I to loosen, release, permit, forgive; שָׂרָה II to encamp, reside; on the suspected connection between meanings I and II (MHeb. and JArm.) see Delcor VT 25 (1975) 315f; → BArm., also for instances on the other Arm. dialects.

Ug. šrh (root šry (?)).

—1) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 4:v:9, for which suggested translations include a) to let loose, hurl (referring to casting lightning down to the earth), so Aistleitner Wb. 2685; Gibson *Myths*² 159a; Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 208^v; b) to cause to flare up, cause to flash Fisher Parallels 1: p. 24 no. 18, cf. Gray *Legacy*² 50³.

—2) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:iii:6; iv:50; both text and translation are uncertain, but suggestions include: a) to encamp, so Gibson *Myths*² p. 85 line 110 (or alternatively to destroy, see p. 85 note 3); p. 61 line 71 (see also p. 159a); b) to move forward against, so de Moor-Spronk UF 14 (1982) 166 (making a connection with the vb. in the previously quoted passage, see 1); c) to reconnoitre (šafel from a root which is cognate with Syr. mā to look at, consider), so Gray *Kri*² 46, where even more suggestions are mentioned.

—3) Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:i:13: to drive away: I ... yšrh he has not driven away, so Dietrich-Loretz in Elliger Fschr. 32, 34 :: Gordon Textbook §19:1163; Aistleitner Wb. 1252; Gibson *Myths*² 148b: sbst. rightness, legality, an opinion that without doubt is to be preferred.

Akk. šerû to redeem (?), cf. AHw. 1220a, where one example of the vb. is mentioned; see also CAD Š/2, 330b: šerû C, where an additional example is given from Ras Shamra; the meaning is said to be uncertain but in the Neo-Babylonian passage quoted it is translated as to redeem one's share of the produce, and it is suggested that this may be a loan from Arm. šrā; for šurrû to begin, inaugurate, originate (AHw. 1285f; CAD Š/3, 358b: šurrû A) see BArm. שְׂרָה.

Eth. saraya to forgive sins (Dillmann Lex. 346); Arb. sarā(w) to throw away, discard clothing, see Lane Lex. 1353b, to remove, see G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 2 (1833) 312a.

According to Aistleitner Wb. 2945 the Ug. adj. trr*, fem. trrt abundantly watered, and trry wet through, damp, is to be linked with this root; so also Driver *Myths*¹ 151b, and Gibson *Myths*² 160b; but certain passages suggest something different, such as when trrt is placed in contrast to rbt large, as at Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 14:iii:4f udm rbt ... trrt, on which see de Moor-Spronk UF 14 (1982) 166 (loc. cit. 188, also for the fem. adj. trry); and Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 100:63, 64 tk aršh rbt w aršh trrt in the middle of Great Aršh and of Little Aršh, so Dietrich-Loretz UF 12 (1980) 157, cf. p. 162; see previously Gordon Textbook §19:2754: trr small; the root trr is probably cognate with Akk. šerru(m) baby, infant, young child (AHw. 1217b; CAD Š/2, 317a).

Der. מִשְׂרָה, שָׂרוּן, ?

9939 שָׂרוֹחַן

שָׂרוֹחַן: place name, missing from Sept.; Vulg. Saroen; Egyptian Š²-ra-ḥu-na (Albright Vocalization 53), on which cf. also Keel Orte 2: 97: the Egyptians wrote the name as šrh(n) and appear to have pronounced it as Šuraḥuna (with reference to Albright loc. cit.).

—a) the place is not to be identified with Tell el-Fār'a, on which see Noth *Jos.*² 93, and Abel Géog. Pal. 2: 451 (both with bibliography), but with Tell el-Ajūl, which is 7 km away from Gaza and 2 km inland; so Nadav Na'aman ZDPV 96 (1980) 148, and Keel Orte 2: 97.

—b) the place name appears in the OT in three different forms: 1) שְׂלָחִים Jos 15₃₂ (for the phonetic variation between r and l see Brockelmann Grundriss 1: 137 §48c); 2) שָׂרוֹחַן Jos 19₆; and 3) שֵׁעָרִים 1C 4₃₁; while the last form (3) can probably be removed as a textual corruption (for which see earlier under שְׂלָחִים), as yet there has been no certain explanation of the relationship between the other two (1 and 2); attempted explanations and suggestions include: α) the Egyptian form of the name allows an emendation for either of the forms, so Noth *Jos.*² 88: pr. שְׂלָחִים rd. שָׂרוֹחַן or שְׂרָחַן, and read this latter form instead of שָׂרוֹחַן; according to Noth *Jos.² 151 שְׂרָחַן means open pasture land; β) from the Egyptian the form can also be reconstructed as Šir/lhōn, and so the original form can be assumed to have been שְׂלָחִים, and the older expression exists in a corrupted form as שָׂרוֹחַן and שֵׁעָרִים; so Na'aman ZDPV 96 (1980) 148; γ) the original form of the place name was preserved in שָׂרוֹחַן, and the Egyptian šrh(n) and the Heb. שְׂלָחִים can be taken as degenerated forms; so Keel Orte 2: 97; Humbert Syria 17 (1936) 313-315 sees in שְׂלָחִין a variant of שָׂרוֹחַן, and he connects this latter form with the Ugaritic place name tlhn (tlhny)*, on which see Fisher Parallels 2: p. 337 no. 112a, cf. also Šulḥanu p. 365 no. 190; δ) it is difficult to make a decision between these three possibilities and so the verdict must remain open. †

—1. Sept. Jos 12₁₈ βασιλέα Αφεκ τῆς Σαρων; Is 33₉ ἰ Σαρων; Is 35₂ missing from Sept.; Vulg. Saron; Is 65₁₀ differently (καὶ -]182σονται ἐν τῷ δρυμῷ ἐπαύλεις ποιμνίων); Song 2₁ ἄνθος τοῦ πεδίου; 1C 27₂₉ Sept.^{RA} ἐν τῷ Ασιδων, Sept.^B ας(ε)ιδων, Sept.^L ἄσαρων, σαρων; Ph. שָׂרוֹן שָׂרוֹן בְּשָׂר שָׂרוֹן in the meadow of Sharon (Donner-Röllig Inschriften 14:19); cf. Harris Gr. 149; Egyptian Sa-ru-na (Albright Vocalization 50); it is completely uncertain whether to take the El Amarna place name Šaruna (Knudtzon El Amarna Letter 241:4) as belonging here, see p. 1305; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; see further Görg BZ 19 (1975) 98f.

The meaning of this topographic name שָׂרֹן is questionable; it may be taken either a) from יֶשֶׁר flat land (Simons Geog. §231; KBL); or b) from II *שָׂרָה wet land (KBL Supplement p. 191b; cf. Wildberger BK 10: 1300).

The Heb. personal name is a short form with the ending -ai, which is perhaps constructed on the pattern qattay, so Noth Personennamen 260a; but proposals for the corresponding full form are uncertain; suggestions include.

—a) שָׂרָבִיָה, as mentioned by Noth Personennamen loc. cit.

—b) Babylonian-Hebrew Šara-El, so Wallis Persica 9 (1980) 152, where references to the relevant Babylonian documents are given; Wallis takes šara- as the pf. of a vb. (see pp. 173 and 174), but he does not explain its meaning; it could be that a connection should be made with the Arm vb. שָׂרָה to loose, which could also lie behind the personal names from Elephantine and Hatra mentioned above; it would then be comparable in meaning with יְגַאֵל and פְּדִיָה(וּ).

—c) Arm. שריה Yahweh is king, so Kornfeld Onomastica 76, but there is no obvious connection with Heb. שָׂרִי.

—d) no certain decision can be made between these three suggestions, but the second (b) remains the most likely: a Judaeen married to a foreign wife: שָׂרִי Ezzr 10₄₀. †

—2. of aquatic wild life: a) Gn 1_{20.21}, vs.20 with שָׂרַץ, which here has the inclusive idea of all the living creatures in the water, so Steck loc. cit. 67; with נֶפֶשׁ חַיָּה Ezk 47₉.

—1. to whistle, hiss: a) occurrences: α) with עַל of the thing, together with שָׂמַם Jr 19₈ 49₁₇ 50₁₃; β) with עַל of the person (a city), together with יָדוּ הַנִּיעַ Zeph 2₁₅ (→ נוע hif. 3b); together with רָאשׁ הַנִּיעַ Lam 2₁₅ (→ נוע hif. 3a); together with עָלְיוּ כַפַּיִם שָׂפַק Jb 27₂₃ (textual emendation, see BHS, → I ספֿק 1); γ) with עַל of the person (Tyre) Ezk 27₃₆, on which see Zimmerli Ez. 27₃₆; δ) abs., together with שָׂן Lam 2₁₆; together with שָׂמַם with a following אָמַר 1K 9₈.

—b) for understanding the significance of the action indicated by שָׂרַק it is probably important to consider the repeated effect of שָׂמַם (1aα) and the connection with the gestures described in 1aβ; both lead to the assumption that שָׂרַק was an apotropaic procedure, to which is ascribed the power of averting demonic influence; on this see Noth Könige 199, as well as the bibliography mentioned above. In Lam 2₁₆ (see above 1aδ) it is accompanied by the gnashing of the teeth, and whistling is probably an expression of mockery and malicious delight by those who were besieging over those who were being besieged; moreover this meaning is not excluded for Ezk 27₃₆ and Lam 2₁₅; Jb 27₂₃ may also be included here, since whistling is associated with scorn for the helpless state of the evil-doers, with a meaning like to cat-call, cf. ŠRR to be firm, be strong, cf. causative; also adj. šarir(a) strong, mighty, firm; also sbst. šrara truth, faithfulness, steadfastness, good health (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 476; 446a; 475a).

Ug. šrr (Gordon Textbook §19:2491; Aistleitner Wb. 2691) to believe; the sbst. mšrrm is a participle of this vb.; further examples of the root can be found in: a) yšrn Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 2, 46:14; the reading is uncertain, cf. Dijkstra-de Moor UF 7 (1975) 207, who read yšrr and translate as to stow away in a ship; b) šrr Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 19:ii:36; the meaning is uncertain; according to Margalit UF 15 (1983) 113 it is from the Arm.-Syr. root šr(r) in the sense of truly, indeed :: Dijkstra-de Moor loc. cit., who derive it from Arb. šarra to be evil, wicked, so that the Ug. word šrr means the wicked one; c) sbst. mšrrm Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 24:36; the meaning is disputed, and for the different suggestions see Wolfram Herrmann Yarih und Nikkal und der Preis der Kutarāt-Göttinnen (BZAW 106; 1968) 20; according to the etymology (see especially Syr. šarrar) and the context it is interpreted by Dijkstra-de Moor UF 7 (1975) 207 as stabilisers, small weights which bring the pans of the balance into exact alignment.

Akk. šarrumma certainly, šurumma in truth, for sure (AHw. 1190a; 1286a; CAD Š/3, 361b); for this particle see Hans-Peter Adler Das Akkadische des Königs Tu-ratta von Mitanni (AOAT 201; 1976) 327), who takes it together with Heb. שָׁרְרוּת, Arm. šrrt, and Ug. mšrrm, and translates it as established, found to be in order; the root then is šrr; it is taken differently by von Soden in AHw. 1285b, who hesitantly suggests translating šurrû(m) beginning, start; again differently, but not convincingly, it is suggested by Salonen AfO 19 (1959/60) 159 that it is from šarrum king; Nab. שָׁרְרָא our steadfastness, faithfulness (IEJ 29 (1979) 112 line 2); Palmyrene šrr af. to decide, conclude, establish; passive af. to be approved, be countersigned (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 320-321; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1194-1195: šrr); Eth. šārara to found; adj. šurūr, less frequently širūr founded, made secure, firm (Dillmann Lex. 238).

שָׁרָר: 2S 23₃₃, n.m.; ? I שָׁרָר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 462q; the personal name has been transmitted in different ways (see BHS); in 1C 11₃₅ it appears as שָׁרָר, → II שָׁרָר, which is preferred by Noth Personennamen 260a; if, despite the uncertainty, the form in the MT is maintained it is most obviously explained as an adj. like JArm. שָׁרָרָא, and especially Syr. šarīr firm, undamaged, healthy. On the meaning of such a personal name, see Noth Personennamen 224, 225, who gives a few instances of names with related significance. There are names in Akk. with a comparable meaning expressing praise for physical qualities (Stamm Namengebung 248f); and there are Egyptian names like he will be healthy, and she will be healthy, and he (she) is healthy in my hand (Herman Ranke Die ägyptischen Personennamen 1 (1935): 14/22; 15/12; also 313/21, 20). If the same person really did have both names, שָׁרָר and שָׁרָרָא, there remains the unanswered question of how they are related to one another; neither of them can be treated as an honorific title which was given subsequently to the one who was known by that name (on this see Noth Personennamen 224), and they are clearly not to be taken as so-called substitute names (on which see Widmer in Marti Fschr. 297-304); perhaps it is simply a question of variation in the transmission of the name which does not apply equally to both names: the father of one of the thirty heroes under David 2S 23₃₃. †

Gr.* 2: §20b (p. 108): it is meant as a qal pt., but at the same time could refer to a poʿal, corresponding to Arb. qātala; c) R. Meyer Gramm. §72: 1b, who explains it as a by-form of the intensive qātala > קָוַטַל, and as such translates שָׂרַשׁ as he did take root; d) of these three possibilities probably the last (c) is to be preferred. †

*שָׂרֵשׁ: n.m. 1C 7₁₆; Sept. Σορος (with variation); Ug. šrš place name; the name of a town in the kingdom of Ugarit, on which see Fisher Parallels 2: p. 334 no. 106; cf. Šurašu (Šu-ra-šu, with variation), p. 366 no. 191; according to p. 334 no. 106 the place name means ba-sis, foundation, with reference to Akk. šuršu (cf. CAD Š/3, 363a) and to שָׂרֵשׁ; the sense of the Heb. personal name is not certain, but possibilities include:

—1. שָׂרֵשׁ is the same as שָׂרֵשׁ, so KBL; similarly probably König Wb. 528b with a rendering like offshoot.

—2. שָׂרֵשׁ shrewd, clever, from Arb. saris, which can at the same time also mean weak, impotent, so Noth Personennamen 228.

—3. in assessing these two suggestions it seems preferable to accept the first rather than the more remote meaning of the second; but that leads to the thought that שָׂרֵשׁ is not attested as a personal name where it has to mean the basis, or the foundation of a family; the Akk. sentence name Šuruškīn the root (foundation) of the family is secure (AHw. 1286b; cf. Stamm Namengebung 295³) appears to have the same significance, but the isolated form šuršu(m) is not attested; however *שָׂרֵשׁ could be a shortened form of a sentence name corresponding to Akk. Šuruš-kīn. Furthermore there are the Ug. personal names šršm and šršn (on which → שָׂרֵשׁ), and they make it appear possible that there was in Heb. a descriptive name שָׂרֵשׁ, the meaning of which can be taken as identical to the hypothetical form שָׂרֵשׁ. The basic form of *שָׂרֵשׁ should have been širšu, cf. JArm. שָׂרֵשׁ, together with שָׂרֵשׁ. †

III שֵׁשׁ: loanword from Egyptian šš (with the clothing-determinative, Erman-G. Wb. 4: 539), see Ellenbogen Foreign Words 164; EgArm. šš linen (Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 321; cf. Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1196, šš, from Samal); MHeb. linen fabric, with many threads (Dalman Wörterbuch 436); SamP. šeš; Arb. šāš muslin (Lokotsch Etym. Wb. 1465; for Arb. šāšīa turban, see Lokotsch Etym. Wb. 544): linen (Egyptian).

—A. General remarks: 1) the sbst. is homonymous with II שׁוֹשׁ, on which see Koehler ZAW 55 (1937) 167: (!) in any case limestone alabaster and pure linen share the same property in that they are both dazzling white; they have been taken together and given the same name because of their high value and also this property of whiteness; the word probably also means brilliant white.

—2) the sbst. שׁוֹשׁ occurs with and has the same meaning as → בּוּיָן, but the occurrences show that the word שׁוֹשׁ existed already in the older stages of the language, while בּוּיָן belongs to a rather later period; on this see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. under בּוּיָן, and Hönig Bekleidung 44f; this probably also corresponds with the fact that Sept. renders שׁוֹשׁ as βύσσοϛ (see Hönig loc. cit.) and Tg.^o בּוּיָן (see Dalman Arbeit 5: 167).

שׁשׁבִּצַר, n.m., Ezr 1₈₋₁₁ 5₁₄₋₁₆; variant שׁשׁ.

A. Sept. Σασαβασαρ with many variants, including Sept.^B for *Ezr 1*⁸ Σαβανασαρ, which can probably be taken as an incorrect writing of Σαναβασαρ (so Kittel Gesch. 3/2: 346²); on the Vrss. see the list in E. Meyer Die Entstehung des Judentums 76; also Torrey Ezra (1910; 1970) 136ff; cf. further Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 4; BHS; Josephus Σαναβαα(ς)αρος (Schalit Namenwb. 106); the personal name is Babylonian with a theophoric element, and an object, and a verbal form; the verbal form corresponds, as do the underlying forms especially in Sept., to the form uṣur (Stamm Namengebung 358a) as the impv. of našāru to keep, protect (AHw. 755f; CAD N/2, 33) which commonly occurs in Akk. personal names; see also the Arm. transcription בלאבצר of the Assyrian or Neo-Babylonian personal name Bēl-ab-uṣur (Babylonian Expedition of the University of Pennsylvania 10: 42), cited from Tallqvist Names 54a.

As for the theophoric element both 'sup'dSiÆn (so e.g. KBL) and 'sup'dSđamasû are to be taken into consideration. But because of differences in the sibilants 'sup'dSiÆn comes less into the question, even though there is in EgArm. the Assyrian-Neo Babylonian personal name Šn'b'sr, equivalent to Sin-aba-uṣur (Kornfeld Onomastica 75); the same name was already mentioned in Lidzbarski Eph. 3: 128, and subsequently in KBL, in the form שׁנאבאצַר. Nevertheless 'sup'dSđamasû must be regarded as more probable, and especially in its less common form Šaš(šu); on this see especially Berger ZA 64 (1975) 225⁶⁴; also Kraeling Arm. Pap. 175 (see below 2b). On שׁשׁ as equivalent to Šamaš see Tell Fekherye, where the Assyrian name 'sup'dsûamasûnuṣur (p. 15, line 9) corresponds to the Arm. ssnwry (see p. 23, line 7); on this see further Dion ZAW 95 (1983) 111f; see also שׁשׁ.

As for the object of the verb there are three that have to be considered: a) aplu heir, as in 'sup'dSđamasû-apla-usur; b) abu father, as in 'sup'dSđamasû-aba-usur; c) bēlu master, as in 'sup'dSđamasû-beṣla-usur. For heir see e.g. Noth *Gesch. Isr.*⁶ 279; also Herrmann Geschichte 342; cf. also already Gesenius-Buhl Handw. For father see especially Berger loc. cit.; also Kraeling Arm. Pap. 175, who accepts that the original form of the personal name was שׁ(ו)שׁ(א)בצר. For master see e.g. Rudolph Esr.-Neh 4; also Gunneweg KAT 19/1: 47; both maintain that heir is also a possibility. Deciding between these three possibilities is not easy; for the third (master) in particular it should be said that in later periods (Neo-Assyrian and Neo-Babylonian) it was a preferred personal name; see Tallqvist Names 209f; but against both aplu and bēlu is the fact that an l is never attested among the consonants in the Hebrew form of the name. This means to say that probably abu father is the most likely solution; but the question remains of whether the Arm. n.m. שׁנאבאצַר, which according to Lidzbarski is equivalent to Sin-ab-ušur, should be cited, as it was in KBL from Lidzbarski Eph. 3: 128, as being connected with the name.

B. 1) the origin of שִׁשְׁבַצָר remains uncertain, for the name of his father is not mentioned either in Ezr 1₈ or in 5₁₄₋₁₆. It would be different if he could be identified with שִׁנְאָצָר, one of the sons of Jehoiachim (Jechoniah) in 1C 3₁₈, which has often been taken to be the case, following E. Meyer Die Entstehung des Judentums 75ff; and it could be regarded, even if with a little hesitancy, as a substitute (so Gunneweg KAT 19/1: 49²); however that idea has no secure basis (see Noth *Gesch. Isr.*⁶ 280) and there are linguistic arguments against it, on which see Berger ZAW 83 (1971) 98-100; also → שִׁנְאָצָר.

—2. according to Ezr 1₈ שִׁשְׁבַצָר was לְיְהוֹדָה הַנָּשִׂיא the prince of Judah (NRSV), or ruler of Judah (REB); and according to 5₁₆ he was appointed by Cyrus as פְּחָה governor (NRSV and REB); the precise official meaning of these two designations cannot be described with certainty, on which see Noth *Gesch. Isr.*⁶ 279, but in any case he had the responsibility as the representative of the king of supervising the return of the precious vessels of the temple; so Antonius H.J. Gunneweg Geschichte Israels bis Bar Kochba (1972) 126; see also Gunneweg in KAT 19/1: 48-50; cf. Alt Kl. Schr. 2: 333f; see further Reicke-Rost Hw. 1778. †

II שׂת: n.m. (SamP. šât); 1) Gn 4₂₅: from the vb. שׂת, but it is probably a secondary etymological meaning; it can also be considered a primary noun with no wider derivation, cf. ? Bauer-Leander Heb. 454b. Furthermore a connection with → III שׂת is not to be excluded; Sept. Σηθ, so also Sir 49₁₆; Josephus Σῆθος (Schalit Namenwb. 111).

—2. Noth Personennamen 260a does not mention the personal name, which may be connected with him not seeing the name as an original n.m., but rather as a personified form of the name of a people (→ III שׂת). According to KBL the n.m. means substitution; similarly Zorell Lexicon 884a, who gives the rendering restitutus, replacement. Within the context of the passage the name has this meaning, but it is uncertain whether this corresponds to its original meaning, which can probably not now be clarified; see Westermann BK 1/1: 459; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1778; Gn 4_{25f} 5_{3.4.6.7.8} 1C 1₁. † III שׂת: Nu 24₁₇: ? n.m. > name of a people noun; Sept. Σηθ (accusative πάντας υἱοὺς Σηθ); 1) in the execration texts from the Egyptian Middle Kingdom šntw (see Helck *Beziehungen*² 46): šû-t-u; see also Görg BN 21 (1983) 28f for the geographical location of swtw^o, meaning the great land of the Sutaean; Šwtw corresponds to Babylonian Sutû, a semi-nomadic group of the population in the region of the Syrian-Arabian desert; on this see already Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; see further e.g. Albright JBL 63 (1944) 220⁸⁹, 225; Görg BN 11 (1980) 18-20; Dieter Vetter Seherspruch und Segensschilderung (Calwer Theol. Monographien, series A, vol. 4; Stuttgart, 1974) 47, 49; Margalit UF 8 (1976) 183f (with a full bibliography).

—2. שׂת Nu 24₁₇ in the collocation כָּל-בְּנֵי שׂת קָרְקַד (with textual emendation) parallel with פְּאִתֵי מוֹאָב (→ פְּאִה 1bβ). שׂת here is clearly the name of a people and it is to be connected with the Egyptian and Babylonian names mentioned above (see under 1, also for bibliography). It is not impossible that a group of שׂת had settled in the area around Moab, on which see Noth Nu. (ATD 7) 168; according to Noth loc. cit. a connection with II שׂת is not improbable, but cannot be really explained. †

תִּאֵי: Dt 14⁵, estr. תוֹא Is 51²⁰; probably a primary noun (: König Wb. 531); SamP. תִּאֵי tā'i: an animal which is allowed to be consumed as food.

—a) Vrss.: α) for Dt 14₅ Sept. ὄρυξ (acc. ὄρυγα); Vulg. oryx a type of antelope; Pesh. daysā a type of wild goat, ibex (Brockelmann Lex. 146a); Tg.^o תִּירְבֵּלֶא wild ox (Dalman Wörterbuch 440b); Arb. taital (Ibn Janāh; cf. also Wehr-Cowan Dict. 109b: a variety of wild goat; D. Talshir The Nomenclature of the Fauna in the Samaritan Targum (in Hebrew; PhD. Dissertation: Jerusalem, 1981) 252; β) for Is 51₂₀, MT כְּתוֹא מִכְמָר, the Vrss. differ and have not understood the text any more clearly: Sept. ὡς σευτλίον -]14]μίεφθον like a half-cooked (small) turnip; Vulg. sicut bestia inlaqueata like an animal which has not been caught; Tg.^j מִצְרָן מְזוֹרְקִי כְּמִזְרָקִי כְּמִזְרָקִי such as are thrown into nets; Pesh. has something different again.

—b) the type of animal and the corresponding translation: α) in the Rabbinic tradition būbālus means 1) the African gazelle; 2) the buffalo; on this see Zorell Lexicon 885b (with bibliography); cf. also Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 868a; β) in more recent versions the idea of the buffalo is excluded because of Is 51₂₀, which leaves the gazelle (alternatively a particular type of gazelle), or possibly the antelope, (alternatively a particular type of antelope); since gazelle is already represented by II צִבְיִי, the antelope is the preferred translation: antelope, or alternatively a particular type of antelope, so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 531b; König Das Deuteronomium (Leipzig, 1917) 126; so also Koehler Dij. 47 on Is 51₂₀: like an antelope in a net; also Westermann Jes. (ATD 19) 193; cf. Dalman Arbeit 6: 335. —d) of the possibilities mentioned here the last (c) is to be preferred for the reasons already given in KBL: α) the cypress is to be found in Lebanon Is 30₁₃ cj. Ezk 31₃; β) cj. Ezk 27₆ mentions it as a timber used for ships; γ) there is no other word for cypress known in Hebrew; תא'תא meaning cypress is found also in Elliger BK 11/1: 167; Zorell Lexicon 886b; König Wb. 532b; Reicke-Rost Hw. 2254-2256; Keel Orte 1: 89f; probably also Löw Flora 3: 28.

תִּבְיָה: A. preliminary remarks.

—1) while Gesenius-Buhl Handw., Zorell Lex., and König Wb. recognise only one sbst. תִּבְיָה, KBL differs in distinguishing between I תִּבְיָה chest, and II תִּבְיָה palace, ark. This is probably dependent on the use of ekallu meaning palace in the Epic of Gilgamesh ix: line 95, which has been wrongly identified with the ark of Utnapištim. In fact what is meant by ekallu is rather the palace of Gilgamesh, which he hands over to the ferryman (see A. Schott and W. von Soden *Das Gilgameš-Epos*² (Reclam, 1977) 89); the translation in Pritchard Texts 94a, I handed over the structure together with its contents, is non-committal. The attempt to distinguish two different words תִּבְיָה can therefore be abandoned; on this see also W.H. Schmidt BK 2: 68f.

—2) The sbst. is a loanword from Egyptian and may be derived either a) from dbʿt shrine, sarcophagus; or b) from tbt chest (see Erman-G. Wb. 5: 561; 261); Salonen Wasser. 48² opts for the former (a), but the latter (b) is chosen by Westermann BK 1/1: 564; Schmidt loc. cit. 69 leaves the decision open. In KBL both are mentioned under I תִּבְיָה.

—3) In ancient near-eastern traditional literature the vessel used by the hero of the deluge was either a huge ship, or simply a ship; for huge ship the equivalent in Sumerian is má-gur gur, see N.S. Kramer Sumerian Mythology (1944; 1961²) 98, and Pritchard Texts 44; this corresponds to Akk. eleppam rabītam (in the accusative), see Lambert-Millard Atra-Ḥašīs, The Babylonian Story of the Flood (1968) 126, line 6; cf. line 8 supʿgišmaququrrum; for ship see AHW. 199b, sv. eleppu; see also Epic of Gilgamesh tablet 11: 24, 29f, 76, 84, 88, 94 (lines 24 and 28 correspond to Atra Ḥašīs tablet 3: i: lines 22 and 25; see Lambert-Millard loc. cit. 88).

B: תִּבְיָה:

—1) It is uncertain whether the sbst. occurs as early as Ebla; according to Dahood (CBQ 44 (1982) 21f) it does occur and can be traced in the place names ti-ba-ùʿsupʿKI/tibaḡ-huḡ, he is the ark, and ià-tà-baʿsupʿKI Ya is the ark.

—2) on the origin of the sbst. see above A 2.

—3) MHeb. תִּבְיָה chest, cupboard, ark, (!) word (Dalman Wörterbuch 441b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230): Dam. v:1 הַתִּבְיָה the ark; see also GenAp. x:12, see below under 4; SamP. tiba, cstr. tibāt; JArm. תִּיבְיָה (Samaritan: abs. תִּיבְיָה; det. תִּיבְיָה) > Arb. tābūt; Armenian tʿaput; Greek, according to Zimmern Fremdw. 45 θίβη, θήβη, θίβωτος, but on this cf. Liddell-Scott Lex. 801b, who reject θίβη as a false form.

—4) תִּבְיָה in the OT: a) chest; b) casket.

—a) it is the ark in the story of Noah's voyage; Sept. κιβωτός; Vulg. arca chest, box, cupboard; the word ark comes from this Latin word: Gn 6_{14nd.9:18} (26 times); [תִּבְיָה] Fitzmyer GenApoc. x:12, cf. p. 99; on its form, especially in connection with the story of the voyage of Utnapištim (Epic of Gilgamesh tablet 11), see Westermann BK 1/1: 564-566, which includes the statement that in Gilgamesh 11 it is to be noted that a gigantic cubic chest is understood to be a ship, while in Gn 6 the ark, which had already been likened to a ship, is described as a box; this shows that the descriptions and the designations each have their own history. On the form of the ark, see e.g. von Rad ATD 2-4 (1972) 95.

—b) the little casket made from papyrus that sheltered Moses in the reeds beside the Nile Ex 2_{3.5}; Sept. accusative θίβλυ (see Liddell-Scott Lex. 801b; θίβλυς or θίβυς a small basket made out of strips of papyrus);

Vulg. for תְּבִיאַת גְּמֵא vs.³ accusative fiscellam scirpeam a little basket made out of rushes; הַתְּבִיָּה vs.⁵ accusative fiscellam.

תְּבִיאָה: בִּיאָה; what comes in, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; cf. Akk. erbu(m), irbu income, gifts (AHw. 233; CAD I, 173); šūrubtu(m) bringing in: 1) bringing in the harvest; 2) delivering produce to be stored (AHw. 1287b; CAD Š/3, 370b); it is derived from the vb. erēbu(m) (AHw. 234ff.; CAD E, 259 a); with Gesenius-Buhl Handw. cf. also Syr. ʿlaltā fruit, yield (Brockelmann Lex. 524b), from the vb. ʿal (ʿIl) to go in; also Arb. ǧallat crops, proceeds, yield, from the vb. ǧalla to insert, enter (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 679a, b); see also Brockelmann Grundriss 1: 359 (no. 143d), and 383 (a3); MHeb. תְּבִיאָה grain (Dalman Wörterbuch 437b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230): harvest (?), yield; SamP. tēbuwwā; ? Ug. tbut (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 15:v:11); the reading of this broken text is restored thus by de Moor-Spronk UF 14 (1982) 179, and the word is translated yield, harvest: cstr. תְּבִיאָת, sf. תְּבִיאָתִי, תְּבִיאָתְךָ/תְּבִיאָתְךָ, תְּבִיאָתוֹ, תְּבִיאָתָהּ (K תְּבִיאָתָהּ Jr 2₃ Ezk 48₁₈), תְּבִיאָתֵנוּ, תְּבִיאָתְךָ, pl. תְּבִיאָוֹת, sf. תְּבִיאָתֵיכֶם.

*תְּבוּסָה: בוּס, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; hapax legomenon 2C 22₇: downfall; cstr. תְּבוּסָת, with אֲחֻזְיָהוּ; MHeb. דַּם תְּבוּסָה blood that has been compounded with other substances (Levy Wb. 4: 623f; cf. Dalman Wörterbuch 437b); 2C 22₇: textual uncertainty.

—a) the Vrss. differ: Sept. καταστροφή; Vulg. voluntatis quippe fuit Dei adversum Ochoziam; Pesh. hpīktā (Gn 19₂₉ = הַפְּכָה destruction, ruin); Tg. תּוֹסְקַפַּת אֲחֻזְיָהוּ a chance accident for Ahaziah.

—b) the clause וּמֵאֱלֹהִים הָיְתָה תְּבוּסָת אֲחֻזְיָהוּ corresponds to כִּי הָיְתָה סָבָה מֵעַם יְהוָה in 1K 12₁₅ and to כִּי הָיְתָה נְסֻבָּה מֵעַם הָאֱלֹהִים in 2C 10₁₅.

—c) it is then reasonable to suppose that 2C 22₇ can be understood in a similar way to Tg., and instead of תְּבוּסָה to suggest as cj. either α) סָבָה, or β) נְסֻבָּה; for α see Joüon Biblica 13 (1931) 87, with a sequence of words which has been changed from MT הָיְתָה וּמֵאֱלֹהִים אֲחֻזְיָהוּ לְבוֹא סָבָה; so also KBL; for β see Rudolph Chr. 268: אֲחֻזְיָהוּ לְבוֹא וּמֵאֱלֹהִים הָיְתָה נְסֻבָּת but it was a god-given chance that Ahaziah went :: Gesenius-Buhl Handw., following MT: the occurrence of his downfall, his ruin; similarly Zorell Lexicon 887; König Wb. 533b; also TOB; NRSV: it was ordained by God that the downfall of Ahaziah should come about; REB (and NEB): it was God’s will that the visit of Ahaziah to Jehoram should be the occasion of his downfall.

—d) the clauses mentioned above (under b) support the suggestions for cj. (in c), but they do have a strong influence on the meaning of the text; so perhaps it has to be born in mind, particularly with regard to תְּבוּסָה, that the meaning “chance” is not derived directly from the root; Sept. and Pesh. are not so far away. †

—1. the name of a mountain.

—a) the etymology is uncertain, and for the different suggestions see Schwarzenbach Die geographische Terminologie 205; also Winton Thomas VT 1 (1951) 230: from the root nbr, cf. Arb. nabara to raise something, lift something up (Lane Lex. 2757c; also G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 4 (1837) 231a); from this תְּבוֹר could mean an elevated landscape, height, hill.

—b) Sept. Θαβωρ (Jos 19₂₂ Sept. ^BΓαιθβωρ, Sept. ^AΘαβωθ) only Jr 46₁₈ Hos 5₁ τὸ Ἰταβύριον, on which see Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 2: 30ff; Josephus Ἰταβύριον ὄρος Schalit Namenwb. 65); this designation identifies the cult originating at Tabor with the cult of Zeus Atabyrios (or Itabyrios), on which see Eissfeldt loc. cit., and Reicke-Rost Hw. 1963.

—c) so far as location and form is concerned תְּבוֹר is an isolated peak in the north-east corner of the plain of Jezreel, 588 metres above sea level; to be identified with modern Jebel-et-tōr. Tabor is situated on the border of the tribal territories Zebulun, Issachar and Naphtali (Jos 19₁₂. 22a.34a), on which see Noth *Jos.*² 115, and Reicke-Rost Hw. 1962; also → תְּבוֹר תְּבוֹר vs.³⁴ and תְּבוֹר תְּבוֹר vs.¹².

—d) apart from the instances of תְּבוֹר in the OT already mentioned (see c) there is also Ju 4_{6.12.14} 8₁₈ Jr 46₁₈ Hos 5₁ Ps 89₁₃; also to be included is Dt 33_{18f}, where what is meant by the mountain (הַר) can only be Tabor; here it is the site of the celebration of a sacrifice to which Zebulun and Issachar were invited, a festival worthy of Yahweh which was established at a site which had been sacred to a Canaanite deity (perhaps תְּבוֹר בְּעַל). It is Dt 33_{18f} against which Hos 5₁ stands in contrast, and which gives rise to the religious and cultic significance that was attributed to this sacred place in the older period; with this must also be linked the political and military associations which can be seen in Ju 4_{6.12.14}.

—e) bibliography: as well as Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 2: 29-54, and Reicke-Rost Hw. 1962f, see further Noth Gesch. Isr. 65 etc.; Hans-Jürgen Zobel Stammespruch und Geschichte (BZAW 95; 1965) 82ff.

—2. תְּבוֹר place name, Sept. ^BΘαχχια, Sept. ^AΘαβωρ: one of the cities of the Levites in Zebulun 1C 6₆₂ = נְהֻלָּל Jos 21₃₅, see Noth *Jos.*² 126: the original can no longer be determined; see also Noth loc. cit. 129, and Rudolph Chr. 63. On תְּבוֹר 1C 6₆₂ cf. Abel Géog. Pal. 2: 474; the name is preserved in Khirbet Dabūra, north-east of Dabūriya.

—3. תְּבוֹר אֵלֹן topographic name; Sept. genitive τῆς ὀρυθὸς Θαβωρ the oak of Tabor 1S 10₃; on the site see Stoebe KAT 8/1: 198, who refers to Dalman JBL 48 (1929) 357; he identifies it with תְּבוֹר בְּעַל, which refers to the area of Gibeah; on תְּבוֹר בְּעַל תְּבוֹר בְּעַל see also HAL 138b; HALOT 144b, under I בְּעַל C12; also Rösel ZDPV 92 (1976) 43f: the exact location of this place, of which this is the only occurrence in the Old Testament, can no longer be made with certainty.

Any amplification of the instances noted here of תְּבוֹר as a place name with תְּבוֹרָה (because of Gn 35₈ Ju 4₅, as suggested by, e.g. Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 59¹⁰) is not to be commended. †

—1. a) fem., and always without the article, on which see R. Meyer Gramm. §96: 2a: a currently well-defined generic concept which has developed into a proper name.

—b) MHeb. תִּבְל world (Dalman Wörterbuch 438a), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230), with the same meaning as in the OT; see below under d, and especially 2.

—c) the derivation of the sbst. is not altogether certain; for the various suggestions, see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; the most probable is the connection with the root 'bl, see especially Akk. abālu(m) to dry up, dry out (AHw. 3a; cf. CAD A/1 29b, abālu B); sbst. tābalu dry land, as in Knudtzon El Amarna Letter 10:33 (AHw. 1298a) umāmu lū ša tábali lū ša nāri let there be creatures of the land and also of the river; cf. AHw. 1412.

In a similar way in Hebrew the vb. II אָבַל to dry out (HAL 7a; HALOT 7a) may be the base of the sbst. תִּבְל, producing a meaning for that word of solid dry land. But while the connection between the verb and its sbst. is clear in Akkadian, in Hebrew that is not the case; that is to say there are certain details of the way in which the verb leads on to the sbst. which can no longer be traced; so it is as well to consider an inner Hebrew development, such as: te'bilu* > tēbilu* (on the elision of the א, see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §15a, b) > (?) תִּבְל.

Apart from the uncertainty of this possibility there is also the question of phonological differences in the two languages, and this diminishes the likelihood of תִּבְל being a loanword from Akkadian, Zimmern Fremdw. 46 was hesitant; subsequently also Wildberger BK 10: 518.

—d) on etymological grounds the most correct form for the translation of the sbst. would be the firm (dry) land, so Wildberger loc. cit.; or simply with KBL mainland, continent. It is often linked in parallelism with אֶרֶץ, but it is not synonymous with that word; see Luis I.J. Stadelmann The Hebrew Conception of the World (AnBibl. 39; 1970) 129f; rather unfortunately the translation given here is world.

—2. on the basis of translating as mainland the instances can be arranged with Gesenius-Buhl Handw. in the following way.

—b) especially the inhabited and cultivated areas of the mainland (but differentiating this from (a) above is not always completely certain): α): Is 14₁₇₋₂₁ 27₆ 34₁ Nah 1₅ Ps 24₁ 93₁ 96₁₃ 98₇₋₉ Jb 18₁₈ (Sir 10₄ 37₃); β) יִשְׁבֵי תִבְל Is 18₃ 26₉₋₁₈ Ps 33₈ Lam 4₁₂; without יִשְׁבֵי Is 13₁₁ Ps 9₉; יִשְׁבֵי בָהּ Ps 24₁ 98₇.

—3. particular expressions: a) תִּבְל in collocation with אֶרֶץ, so Ps 90₂ אֶרֶץ וְתִבְל and Pr 8₃₁ אֶרֶץ אֶרְצוֹ; also cj. Jb 37₁₂ אֶרְצָה תִבְל pr. אֶרְצָה prop. אֶרְצָה = אֶרְצוֹ the mainland on his earth; אֶרֶץ is therefore the whole area encompassing and including תִּבְל (see especially 2b).

As אֶרֶץ is placed in antithesis to יָם (Gn 1₁₀₋₂₈) perhaps תִּבְל is similarly the antithesis of מְדִבְרָה (cf. Is 14₁₇). There are some neat renderings of תִּבְל אֶרְצוֹ which are often found, like his earthly globe, the circle of his earth; cf. on Jb 37₁₂ e.g. Hölscher *Hiob*² 86, and ZüB; on Pr 8₃₁ see e.g. Gemser *Spr.*² 46; Plöger BK 17: 86; also ZüB. From a linguistic point of view this is not strictly correct; for circle see חוּג.

—b) עֲפָרוֹת תִּבְל clods of earth Pr 8₂₆ (→ עֲפָרָה 2b); for the whole expression עֲפָרוֹת תִּבְל רֵאשׁ the mass of the clods of the soil; → רֵאשׁ 7b, where other suggested translations are given.

תבל: בלל, Bauer-Leander Heb. 497z; MHeb. תבלול confusion (Dalman Wörterbuch 438a); JArm. תבלא disgracefulness: תבל confusion, disgracefulness.

—a) a female incestuous relationship with an animal Lv 18₂₃.

—b) incest with a daughter-in-law Lv 20₁₂.

On the first meaning see especially Elliger Lev. 241, where תבל is translated as offensiveness, as distinct from תועבה meaning atrocity; on the second meaning see Elliger Lev. 275; on both meanings see Reicke-Rost Hw. 2059; see further H.A. Hoffner Jr. Incest, Sodomy and Bestiality in the Ancient East (AOAT 22; 1973) 81-90; for what is prohibited in the OT see 81f; for the Hittite laws see 82-90. †

תבל, תבל: name of a territory.

—1. Sept. Θοβελ, with the exception of Ezk 27₁₃: καὶ -]14' σύμπασα καὶ τὰ παρατείνονται, on which see Zimmerli Ez. 629; Vulg. Thubal, but also with an exception, Is 66₁₉ יון תבל, which is rendered as in Italiam et Graeciam; Josephus Θεόβηλοι, Θεόβηλος (Schalit Namenwb. 54); for Assyrian Tabāl see Parpola Neo-Assyrian Toponyms (AOAT 6; 1970) 341-343; also M. Wäfler Zu Status und Lage von Tab@l (Orientalia 52 (1983) 181-193): it designates an area of territory (and also a state which for a time had its territory under the control of Asshur) in eastern Asia Minor in the neighbourhood of Cilicia (on which see Westermann BK 1/1: 675 on Gn 10₂; also Zimmerli Ez. 652f on Ezk 27₁₃); or perhaps it was in Cappadocia (see IDB 4:717; cf. also Weippert ZDPV 89 (1973) 48f).

In the OT תבל is most often linked with → II מושך (see also below, 4), so also in Herodotus 3: 94 Μόσχοισι δὲ καὶ Τιβαρηνοῖσι (dative); also 7: 58 Μόσχος together with Τιβαρηνοί.

Tabal occurs again in the inscriptions of Sargon II, where it is included in the record of the countries brought under the political control of Asshur, adjacent to Muski with its king Mitâ (Midas); see Luckenbill Ancient Records of Assyria and Babylonia II (1927) no. 25, 55, 80, 92, 99, and especially 137, where Tabal and Muski are listed next to one another as territories which have been plundered; see also A.G. Lie The Inscriptions of Sargon II, Part 1 (1929) 4, line 9; p. 32 line 199f; also Simons Geog. §162.

—2. According to Ezk 27₁₃ נחשת כלי תבל and מושך were used as items of trade with יון; that can be confirmed from Assyrian royal inscriptions for Tabāl and Musku, on which see Zimmerli Ez. 653; conclusive evidence is provided by Wäfler loc. cit. 193: in the region of Tabāl there are rich deposits of iron, copper and silver; cf. also KBL, where the Tibarenians are described as the owners of the coppermines.

—3. In Ezk 27₁₃ it occurs in the sequence תְּבַל וְנִשְׁפָּךְ which is the reverse of the sequence in Ezk 32₂₆ 38_{2f} 39₁ and Is 66₁₉ (textual emendation, see BHS). Ps 120₅ constitutes an exception inasmuch as there נִשְׁפָּךְ occurs in parallelism with קָרָר.

—4. name of a territory > personal name; תְּבַל is included together with נִשְׁפָּךְ among the sons of יִפְתָּ Gn 10₂ 1C 1₅, on which see Westermann BK 1/1: 675; also Zimmerli Ez. 652.

—5. The common rendering of תְּבַל/בָּל as Tibarenians goes back to the Greek Τιβάρηνοί, where the old name of the region or country is expressed by the name of the inhabitants. For bibliography, as well as the works mentioned under 1, 2 and 4, see also Brown VT 21 (1971) 15f; and see further Reicke-Rost Hw. 1196f. †

10040 תְּבַלִּית

*תְּבַלִּית: בלה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496q; hapax legomenon Is 10₂₅ (a few mss. תְּכַלִּיתם).

—a) according to the etymology, on which see Zorell Lexicon 888a, תְּבַלִּית would mean exhaustion, consumption (Latin consumptio); this is not satisfactory within the context of MT for Is 10₂₅, where the sbst. must have the sense of destruction (e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; König Wb. 534a), and this suggests reading the word as תְּכַלִּית.

—bα) MT עַל-תְּבַלִּיתָם וְאָפִי זַעַם וְכָלָה זַעַם (pr. זַעַם prop. זַעַמִּי, see BHS) meaning the wrath (or my wrath) is used up and my anger about their destruction is over; so Kaiser ATD 17⁵ (1981) 231; similarly e.g. ZüB and TOB; NRSV: my indignation will come to an end, and my anger will be directed to their destruction. β) the versions differ: עַל-תְּבַלִּיתָם: Sept. ἐπὶ τὴν βουλήν αὐτῶν; Vulg. super scelus eorum; Pesh. ‘al h’sup’ebaulhoum about their ruin; Tg. has a more free rendering, in which the end of the curse for the house of Jacob is announced, but for the nations wrath is coming.

—c) cj. pr. MT עַל-תְּבַלִּיתָם וְאָפִי prop. עַל-תְּכַלִּיתָם וְאָפִי; so Driver JTS (first series) 38 (1937) 39: תְּכַלִּית is a sbst. from the verb כָּלָה which is not in common use; then subsequently Kaiser Jes. 1-12 (ATD 17³; 1970) 118; Wildberger BK 10: 417; also BHS; cf. NEB: my anger will come to an end, and my wrath will all be spent; similarly REB: my wrath will be over, and my anger will be finally spent.

—d) in assessing the options Wildberger loc. cit. asserts his preference for the last mentioned (c), showing that תְּבַלִּיתָם their destruction (bα) stands in contrast to זַעַם/זַעַמִּי the/my wrath has been used up. That would be the case if זַעַם/זַעַמִּי and תְּבַלִּיתָם are connected in the same way with צִיּוֹן יִשָּׁב עָמִי (vs.₂₄); but that is not certain since the weakening of anger is naturally directed at the inhabitants of Zion, while the (threatened or imminent) destruction can have אֲשׁוּר (vs.₂₄) as its object, cf. Tg.; see above 2bβ; (for the plural suffix of תְּבַלִּיתָם see e.g. Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §50e). So what is to be preferred is something like the cj. of c, as well as the interpretation mentioned under bα; see Kaiser Jes. 1-12 (ATD 17⁵) 231. †

תִּבְלָל: hapax legomenon Lv 21²⁰; SamP. tibbállál. First of all it should be noted that the word clearly denotes an abnormality in or around the eyes, but no more specific meaning can be adduced from the derivation of the word or from its phonetic pattern; possibilities which have been or may be suggested include:

—a) from the root בלל, which would mean that תִּבְלָל is either to be taken as a sbst. or as an adj.; the sbst. is found in Vulg. albuginem habens in oculo; also in Pesh., and later commentators like Ed. König Gramm. vol. 2/1: 153; and subsequently Bruno Baentsch Exodus-Leviticus-Numeri (GHK 1/2; 1905) 408: תִּבְלָל is really a mingling, or occluding, and then by metonymy the one afflicted with this condition; similarly König Wb. 534a: sbst. with an abstract for the concrete: mingling together, specifically someone who is afflicted with a spot in his eye; see also Zorell Lexicon 888a; also cf. the adj. תָּתָּ meaning spotted, as Bauer-Leander Heb. 497z; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; or having a spot on his eyeball, as Noth Lev. (ATD 6) 132; also similarly Elliger Lev. 291: someone who has a white spot on his eyeball; but see also below, b. Tg.^o had already interpreted similarly with the adj. תָּתָּ, non-determined תָּתָּ with a disease of the eyes (with callous patches of skin spreading right into the pupil); so Dalman Wörterbuch 148b, where Lv 21²⁰ is cited as an example. The adj. תָּתָּ in Tg.^o is also in Dillmann *Exodus und Leviticus*³ (1897) 623; A. Sperber gives a reading of the Targum which is different from this.

—b) תִּבְלָל corresponds to πύλος in Sept., with eyes inflamed around the edges, “which appears to go back to the root בלל to flow”; so Elliger Lev. 299 (cf. II *יבל), who finds this same root also in the sbst. יִבְלָת Lv 22²²; but this should not be taken (as is often done) as meaning warts, but much more likely as meaning an inflammation which is perpetually suppurating; and this would also be appropriate for תִּיִבְלָת. Therefore the sbst. תָּתָּ is identical in meaning with יִבְלָת, as was accepted by Elliger Lev. 300, and earlier by Ibn Ezra.

—c) all the information mentioned above (b) relating to Sept. and Ibn Ezra should not be ignored when arriving at a decision, but nevertheless it appears to be difficult to take the two substantives as meaning the same when they are both so different from one another; that is why the first solution (a) is probably to be preferred, and because of the form probably אב should be chosen. In that case תִּבְלָל can be given the meaning with a (white) spot in the eye. †

10043 תְּבַנִּי

תְּבַנִּי: n.m., Sept. Θαμνι, Josephus Θαμνανῆος (Schalit Namenwb. 53).

—1. The personal name includes the sbst. תְּבַן lengthened with the hypocoristic ending ī, and can be translated as man of straw, so Noth Personennamen 232; Noth links to this the Phoenician personal name tbnt (Benz Names 186); the t (*-at) with which this is lengthened may also be a hypocoristic ending; this is suggested in Donner-Röllig Inschriften 2: p. 17 text 13, with the proposal that the old name tbnt has been preserved in the modern place name Kefr Tibnit, south-east of Sidon; even if this should be correct it is still very questionable whether the n.m. tbnt should be separated from תְּבַן and derived from → תְּבַנִּית, as is suggested by Albright Yahweh 37⁸⁶; on this cf. also Benz Names 428.

—2. The translation straw-man (literally one who is of straw) leaves the meaning of the personal name only very imprecisely defined, and it is not at all clear what connection this would have with the person with that name; suggestions and other possibilities include:

—a) it is a name given to a small child, which could have meant that the child was frail or on the weak side; on this see above תְּבַן 1c.

—b) the name could have been given to the person later in life, and so it could have been regarded as a nickname, which is proposed by Gray *Kings*³ 365; for more distant Akkadian parallels see Stamm Namengebung 268.

—c) it could be regarded as the remainder (an element) of a fuller form of the name which is no longer preserved. In any case the Akkadian personal name Tab-ni-e-a, which is mentioned by Gray loc. cit., does not come into consideration, on which see Stamm loc. cit. 114.

—d) of the three possibilities the last (c) is the most uncertain, but the meaning of the other two also remains questionable.

—3. an opponent of Omri in the struggle for royal power in Israel 1K 16^{21f}, on which see Noth Könige 350; Würthwein ATD 11/1: 197f; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1972. †

10044 תְּבַנִּית

תְּבַנִּית: בְּנָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 469q; SamP. tibnæt; MHeb. תְּבַנִּית shape, model (Dalman Wörterbuch 438a), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230): 1 QM 10:14 אִדָּם תְּבַנִּית: a) an image of a person, so Maier Texte 1: 136; b) the construction of a person, so Lohse *Texte*³ 204; for instances of this meaning see below sub 2; cf. Akk. tabnītu(m) I beautiful shape (AHw. 1299a), sbst. from the vb. banû(m) II to be (become) good, beautiful; D: causative (AHw. 102f; cf. CAD B 90b, banû B, to grow, be pleasant; D-theme: to beautify, treat kindly); also tabnītu II creation (AHw. 1299a), sbst. from the vb. banû(m) IV to create, build (AHw. 103; cf. CAD B 83b, banû A). It should be noted that this gives rise to a problem, in that the meaning of תְּבַנִּית accords much more with tabnītu(m) I than with tabnītu(m) II, but the corresponding Akkadian verb banû(m) II is not attested in BHeb.; in MHeb. pi. and pu. (especially the participle) occurs meaning well built, beautifully built (Levy Wb. 1: 242): sf. תְּבִנִיתוֹ/תָּם: construction, shape; on the meaning of the sbst. cf. James Barr The Image of God in the Book of Genesis: a Study of Terminology (BJRL 51; 1968-1969) 11-26, especially 16f; S. Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 336f.

On the question of the locality of the place see Volkmar Fritz Israel in der Wüste (Marburger Theol. meaning remains a matter of dispute; cf. ? Akk. tagrītum legal process (?), or takrītum shortening (AHw. 1300b): cstr. תַּגְרִית יָדְךָ תַּגְרִית Ps 39¹¹ textual uncertainty; suggestions include.

—a) MT: α) תַּגְרִית יָדְךָ with Tg.^o the blow from your hand; β) תַּגְרִית יָד comes from an unattested verb in the qal and has a similar meaning to שָׁלַח יָד (→ שָׁלַח qal 1c) and is to be translated while your hand moves against me, so Kopf VT 9 (1959) 252; also (with some references) Wagner loc. cit. p. 117; so probably also TOB: I succumb to the attack of your hand; NRSV: I am worn down by the blows of your hand; NEB: I am exhausted by thy blows :: REB: I am exhausted by your hostility.

—b) cj. pr. תַּגְרִית prop. with Sept. and Pesh. מִגְבוֹרַת יָדְךָ: מְגִבּוֹרַת under the might (force) of your hand I go under, so e.g. ZüB; Gunkel Ps. 163, 167; Kraus BK 15⁵ 451, 452.

—c) deciding which solution to adopt is difficult; even though the second (b) is easier it is better to choose one of the first alternatives (αα or αβ). †

However all these identifications are uncertain and so it is preferable to give a more general designation, such as an unknown species of tree from the Lebanon (KBL), or a conifer (Elliger loc. cit.; cf. NEB, REB: pine, fir and box); cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: the name of a tree growing in the Lebanon, most likely elm Is 41¹⁹ 60¹³. †

תדעל: n.m.; Sept.^{RA} Θαργαλ, Josephus Θάδαλος (Schalit Namenwb. 53); Ras Shamra Akk. tu-ud/ut-ḫa-li-ia (Gröndahl Personennamen 358b); Ug. tdǵl/tǵl (Gröndahl Personennamen 296, 419), corresponding to the name of the Hittite king Tudḫalia IV: the king of גויים Gn 14₁; it was Böhl ZAW 36 (1916) 68f who first identified it with the name of the Hittite king Tudḫalia, but it is uncertain which of the five who bore that name is the more appropriate identification; see not only Gröndahl Personennamen 419 (see above), but also Schatz Gen. 14 88f; de Vaux Histoire 1: 208-12, especially 210; de Vaux Patriarchen. 33-44, especially 40f; Westermann BK 1/2: 228. Not so much is gained by the identification תדעל with Tudḫalia as long as it remains open (or at least uncertain) just what area of territory or what group of people is meant by גויים, over which he was the king; on this see the bibliographical references given above, especially Schatz Gen. 14 89. †

MHeb. תהו numbness, wasteland (Dalman Wörterbuch 439b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230): nothingness, nothing, wasteland.

Ug. thw wasteland, wilderness (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:i:14f): a) npš lbim thw the hunger of the lion (lions) in the wilderness, so Gibson *Myths*² 68; Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 241, and see also note m, where yet more suggestions are mentioned; Del Olmo Lete UF 14 (1982) 60; b) thw (Ugaritica 5: p. 559 text 4, line 4 = Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 133:4) is an error for thwt greed, desire, equivalent to I תאווה, and therefore it is probably to be separated from a; on this see Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin UF 7 (1975) 536f; the reading thwt is also in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 133; c) on thw see further: α) Gordon Textbook §19:2536, where no translation is given; β) Aistleitner Wb. 820, where thw is treated as a verbal form meaning to desire, from Arb. hawiya to desire passionately; γ) in a monolingual vocabulary perhaps there is the lexeme tu-a-bi [-u(?)] overturning, revolution (Ugaritica 5: p. 243 line 23), corresponding to Heb. תהו וברהו.

Among the cognate languages probably also relevant is Arb. tih wilderness, cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw., KBL and Schwarzenbach Geog. 107.

The rendering of the Heb. sbst. is not easy, for it vacillates in meaning and the meanings are not able clearly to be segregated from one another.

—1. a) wilderness, wasteland, emptiness Dt 32₁₀ (parallel with מְדִבְרָה), Is 45₁₈ (לֹא), Ps 107₄₀ Jb 6₁₈ 12₂₄ 26₇.

—b) קְרִית תְּהוֹי the deserted city, the empty city Is 24₁₀; קוֹ-תְּהוֹי the measuring line of desolation Is 34₁₁.

—c) תְּהוֹי וְבָהוּ Gn 1₂, an example of hendiadys (Speiser Gen. 5); it signifies the terrible, eerie, deserted wilderness, and this is a primary idea that functions in creation, so Westermann BK 1/1: 143; cf. also Otto Kaiser Die mytische Bedeutung des Meeres in Aegypten, Ugarit und Israel (BZAW 78; 1959) 114f; Werner H. Schmidt Die Schöpfungsgeschichte der Priesterschrift (WMANT 17²; 1967) 78ff; also Odil Hannes Steck Der Schöpfungsbericht der Priesterschrift (FRLANT 115; 1975) 232⁹⁵⁴; see further Schwarzenbach Geog. 105-107; on the Vrss. see Westermann loc. cit. 144; תְּהוֹי וְבָהוּ Jr 4₂₃: the state of the earth in the coming dispensation.

—2. desert, emptiness, nothing: a) 1S 12_{21a} הַתְּהוֹי, vs. b תְּהוֹי (see also c), Is 40₁₇ (parallel with אֲפֹס), 40₂₃ (בַּתְּהוֹי) 49₄ (parallel with הַבֵּל), 59₄.

—b) רִיחַ וְתְּהוֹי wind and emptiness Is 41₂₉ (sbj. נִסְכֵּיָהֶם); Is 44₉ יִצְרֵי פֶסֶל כְּלָם תְּהוֹי all who make idols are nothing (NRSV); אֵל תְּהוֹי מִתְּהוֹי from nothing to nothing Sir 41₁₀.

—c) triviality 1S 12₂₁ (see above 2a); useless, futile Is 45₁₉.

—3. cj. Is 29₁₃ pr. וְתְּהוֹי prop. with Sept. (also Mark 7₇ and parallels μάτην δέ) וְתְּהוֹי, so e.g. Kaiser ATD 18, 217; cf. BHS :: Wildberger BK 10: 1118; ZüB; TOB follows MT, which in fact is preferable, on which see especially Wildberger loc. cit.

—4. expressions: a) as 1a: with בְּרָא Is 45₁₈; with מִצָּא Dt 32₁₀; with נָטָה Jb 26₇ (obj. צָפוֹן); with עָלָה (בַּתְּהוֹי) Jb 6₁₈; with תַּעֲהָה hif. Ps 107₄₀, Jb 12₂₄ (לֹא יִרְדְּ). (בַּתְּהוֹי).

—e) as 2c: with בִּקֵּשׁ pi. 45₁₉ תְּהוֹי בִּקְשׁוֹנֵי seek me in vain. † תְּהוֹי: Bauer-Leander Heb. 473e, not to be derived from a vb., probably a primary noun, perhaps going back to general Semitic tihām(at)* sea; so as such it is not a loanword from Akkadian!; see THAT 2: 1026f (with bibliography); in BHeb. the sbst. is both masc. and fem. (for instances see THAT 2: 1027), on which see also Michel Grundlegung 1: 77; with the exception of Is 63₁₃ and Ps 106₉ it never occurs with the article; cf. R. Meyer Gramm. §96, 2a; MHeb. תְּהוֹם abyss, the deep (Dalman Wörterbuch 439a); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230), cf. THAT 2: 1031; SamP. tūm; JArm., Samaritan תְּהוֹמָה, EmpArm. תְּהוֹם abyss, see A. (as a geographical designation) tihāmā modern Tihama the coastal plain along the south-western and southern shores of the Arabian Peninsula (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 98b).

It should be remembered that JArm. and Syr. thōmā must be loanwords from Hebrew; the word is found in Ugaritic in the same way that it is found in Hebrew, with thm(t) together with ym (i.e. yammu* ocean), and also in Ph.; for Arm. → BArm., also for instances from the other Arm. dialects, where the former word does not occur but ym is the most common sbst.; see also Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 107; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 458, ym<?LLS nbr?>1<?LLS /nbr?>; in Arb. the usual word is baḥr ocean, sea, large river (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 42b); OSArb. bḥr (Conti Rossini Chrest. 112a); Eth. bāḥir (Dillmann Lex. 494); Tigr. baḥar (Litmann-H. Wb. 274a): pl. תְּהוֹמוֹת, תְּהוֹמוֹת, תְּהוֹמוֹת.

I תְּהִלָּה: II הִלָּל, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 230), תְּהִלָּה praise, song of praise; pl. masc. תְּהִלִּים as a designation for the Book of Psalms (Dalman Wörterbuch 439a; Levy Wb. 4: 629); so also in the title of the Psalter, which groups all the Psalms together, see Michel Grundlegung 1: 42; cf. also Kraus BK 15⁵, p. 1; תְּהִלִּים < תְּהִלִּים the Book of Psalms (Dalman Wörterbuch 443a; Levy Wb. 4: 639f, (תְּהִלִּים); SamP. tēllā: cstr. תְּהִלָּת; sf. תְּהִלָּתִי, תְּהִלָּתְךָ, תְּהִלָּתְךָ Ps 35₂₈, Secunda θελαθαχ (Brönno Morph. 181), תְּהִלָּתוֹ, pl. תְּהִלָּתוֹ(וֹ); on תְּהִלָּתֶיךָ Ps 9₁₅ see Gunkel Ps. 36: this writing probably means תְּהִלָּתֶיךָ pl., as is supposed by the Versions; in contrast MT takes it as sg. תְּהִלָּתְךָ; the context probably gives preference to the pl.

For bibliography see Frank Crüsemann Studien zur Formgeschichte von Hymnus und Danklied in Israel (WMANT 32, 1969), which at the beginning (pp. 1-11) includes a comprehensive report of relevant research.

—1. glory, praise: a) תְּהִלָּת מוֹאָב Jr 48₂, יִשְׂרָאֵל Dt 10₂₁ (יְהוָה תְּהִלָּתְךָ), Dt 26₁₉ (לְתְּהִלָּה); כָּל-הָאָרֶץ תְּהִלָּת Jr 51₄₁ (subj. שִׁשְׁרָי meaning בְּבָל); תְּהִלָּת Is 62₇, תְּהִלָּתוֹ לְכָל-חַסִּידָיו תְּהִלָּתוֹ praise for all his faithful (NRSV) Ps 148₁₄.

—b) תְּהִלָּה עִיר the city of praise Jr 49₂₅, referring to הַמִּשְׁקָה (see v.23); the Q reading is תְּהִלָּת, which is perhaps to be taken as תְּהִלָּתִי, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 292).

—c) שִׁים לְתְּהִלָּתִי Zeph 3₁₉ and נָתַן לְתְּשִׁים לְתְּהִלָּתִי 3₂₀ to instigate praise.

—2. it is not always easy to distinguish with certainty this meaning from 3 below; praise, song of praise for God or Yahweh: a) תְּהִלָּה Jr 13₁₁, Ps 40₄ (parallel with שִׁיר חֲדָשׁ), 62₂.

—b) תְּהִלָּת יְהוָה Ps 145₂₁.

—cα) תְּהִלָּתִי Is 42₈₋₁₀ 43₂₁ 48₉; β) תְּהִלָּתְךָ/תְּהִלָּתְךָ Ps 9₁₅ (see above under the forms), 35₂₈ 48₁₁ 51₁₇ 71₈₋₁₄ 79₁₃ 106_{47/1C} 16₃₅; γ) תְּהִלָּתוֹ Is 42₁₂, Hab 3₃ (or as II תְּהִלָּתוֹ), Ps 34₂ 66₂₋₈ 102₂₂ 106₂₋₁₂ 111₁₀; Is 42₁₀ Ps 149₁ (parallel with שִׁיר חֲדָשׁ).

—d) the name of the gates of the New Jerusalem תְּהִלָּה parallel with יְשׁוּעָה as the name of its walls Is 60₁₈; תְּהִלָּה :: רִיחַ בְּהָה :: Is 61₃.

—3. song of praise, which is struck up by a person: a) תְּהִלָּה Is 61₁₁ Jr 33₉ Ps 33₁ 100₄ 119₁₇₁ 147₁ Neh 9₅ (parallel with בְּרָכָה), 2C 20₂₂ (parallel with רְנָה).

—bα) תְּהִלָּתִי Jr 17₁₄ Ps 22₂₆ 71₆ 109₁; β) תְּהִלָּתְךָ Dt 10₂₁.

—4. a technical musical term (used also to designate a type of song) cf. Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4: 7; also Mowinckel Israel's Worship 2: 209f; Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 59; Kraus BK 15⁵ 20f: תְּהִלָּה Ps 145₁, תְּהִלָּה שִׁיר song of praise Neh 12₄₆, תְּהִלָּה שִׁיר הַתְּשִׁירָה (textual emendation) the leader of the songs of praise Neh 11₇.

—5. pl.: a) songs of praise תְּהִלֹּת יִשְׂרָאֵל Ps 22₄, on this cf. Kraus BK 15⁵ 321, 326; also Hartmut Gese Vom Sinai zum Zion (Alttestamentliche Beiträge zur evang. Theologie 64; 1974) 186; the cj. תוֹהֲלֹת (so e.g. KBL) is not necessary.

—bα) praiseworthy actions: תְּהִלֹּת יְהוָה Is 60₆ 63₇ Ps 78₄; נֹרָא תְּהִלֹּת Ex 15₁₁; β) תְּהִלֹּתֶיךָ = ? תְּהִלֹּתֶיךָ Ps 9₁₅ see above under the forms.

? II תְּהִלֹּה Hab 3₃; I הִלֵּל hif: gleam, radiance, so Rudolph KAT 13/3, 231, 234: the parallelism with הוֹד makes it probable that תְּהִלֹּה does not mean praise, but rather radiance (like the meaning of the hif. of I הִלֵּל); but the parallelism with הוֹד is not a sufficient basis for this idea, and the Vrss. take it as I תְּהִלֹּה (Sept. αἰνεσις; Vulg. laus; Pesh. and Tg. tešbōhtā/tušbahtā) → I תְּהִלֹּה 2cγ); so also e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Humbert Hab. 209f; TOB. †

In the light of v.₃₈ there is support for the cj. וְהָאֲחַת הִלֵּכֹת, on which see especially Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 196; ZüB; KBL; BHS; TOB; REB (and NEB): one went in procession; NRSV: two great companies that gave thanks and went in procession. †

תו: Bauer-Leander Heb. 449f (on p. 450); the last letter of the Old Canaanite alphabet was written in the shape of a St. Andrew's Cross; this amounted to a simple mark, which was actually the mark of a herdsman; an etymological connection can be made with Arb. taww individual, separate item, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. loc. cit.

In the world of Ancient Israel it was used as a mark of possession or affiliation, particularly in the circles of religious cults, but also in secular contexts; on this see O. Keel in Dominique Barthélemy Mélanges (OBO 38; 1981) 195-212, with many examples; MHeb. תו, תאו; JArm. תו sign, occasion. In the OT תו, sf. תוי sign is found in the context of a) the religious cult, and also b) in secular contexts: a) Ezk 9₄₋₆; vs.₄ תו with תודה hif., vs.₆ תו (cf. the quotation from DSS: Dam. 19:12 להתות לתו they make sign): the sign is a protective symbol that was conferred as a result of a profession of faith in Yahweh, so Fohrer Ez. 54; cf. also Zimmerli Ez. 226f; also Keel loc. cit. 208; b) Jb 31₃₅: תוֹתִי here is my sign!; this is the signature consisting of a hand-written sign corresponding to the finger-nail impressions on clay tablets from Babylonia, so Fohrer KAT 16: 443; on this see AHW. 1113a sub supru(m); CAD Š, 250b, supru A, nail-impression on a clay tablet.

In contrast to this elegant suggestion of Fohrer, making the word mean finger-nail impression, there is the opposing view of Koehler Mensche 155 together with note 15: תו meaning house sign; cf. also Hans-Jochen Boecker Redeformen des Rechtslebens im Alten Testament (WMANT 14; 1964) 13; for Jb 31₃₅ Driver *Semitic Writing*² 209 has the idea of a sbst. *תו, *תודה desire, which would correspond with desiderium meum of the Vulgate, and suggest Heb. תוֹתִי; but neither the new sbst. nor the obviously clearer cj. should be accepted. †

Bauer-Leander Heb. loc. cit.) two (? three) forms: 1) *תואם, pl. תואמם Gn 38₂₇ > תואם 25₂₄, cstr. תואמי Song 4₅; 2) *תואם, pl. תואמם Ex 36₂₉, cstr. תואמי Song 7₄; 3) (?) תואם Ex 26₂₄, which could be a by-form of 1, or alternatively of 2, or it could be a textual error; תַּנְיִים is considered to be a by-form by A. Dillmann *Die Bücher Exodus und Leviticus*³ (1897) 323, which is also supported by the Versions, especially by SamP. תַּנְיִים; see also BHS: twins.

—b) animals Song 4₅ 7₄.

—c) panels of a wall (perhaps corner panels) of the מִשְׁכָּן Ex 26₂₄ 36₂₉, but here the sense of the term “twins” is not clear; on this see Galling in Beer Exod. 135f; also Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 172.

קִין See below under תּוֹבֵל קִין (#10068).

קִין תּוֹבֵל: n.m.; SamP. tūbālqen; Sept. Θοβελ, Josephus Ἰουβήλος (Schalit Namenwb. 160); all the explanations of this n.m. are uncertain, but they include: a) treating both elements of the name separately from one another; b) accepting that originally the elements belonged together, or alternatively that the name as first given was simply תּוֹבֵל and only later was קִין added supplementarily; these alternative explanations are discussed by Westermann BK 1/1: 449, 551f (with a full bibliography);

—as for a: α) according to Westermann loc. cit. 449 תּוֹבֵל belongs together with יָבֵל at Gn 4₂₀, which comes from the vb. → יָבַל hif. to bring, and is associated with the sbst. → יְבוּל tribute; β) according to others תּוֹבֵל signifies the name of a territory → תְּבֵל, תְּבֵל, Assyrian Tabāl; קִין probably is to be identified with II קִין, which corresponds in meaning with Arb. smith, but it can be explained differently (→ HAL 1025b; HALOT 1097a-b); —as for b: α) the (original) association of the two elements as a unity in the sense of a double name is suggested by Gunkel Gen. (⁵1922) 50; also Westermann loc. cit. 451; β) that both elements may originally have been separate is supported by Sept. Θοβελ, and accepted by, e.g. Otto Procksch Gen. (KAT 1^{2,3}, 1924) 55; also Miller in ZAW 86 (1974) 168f, who takes תּוֹבֵל as being the name of a territory תְּבֵל which is to be identified with Akk. Tabāl (see above β). קִין becomes associated with it through the tribe of the Kenites, smiths who felt they were to be grouped with the Israelites (→ קִינִי > II קִין).

—c) it is rather difficult to decide which of the possible explanations that have been mentioned is to be accepted, and this is probably connected with the remote antiquity of the n.m.

10071 תּוֹגְרָמָה

תּוֹרָה: II יָדָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495o; MHeb. תּוֹרָה thanksgiving, sacrifice of thanksgiving (Levy Wb. 4: 630a); JArm. תּוֹרָתָא sacrifice of thanksgiving (Levy loc. cit.; Dalman Wörterbuch 439b); Syr. tauditā praise, thanksgiving, profession of faith (Brockelmann Lex. 296a): cstr. תּוֹרָת, pl. תּוֹרָת(וֹ).

A. it should be generally noted that as well as signifying a sacrifice of thanksgiving or a sacrifice of praise תּוֹרָה also signifies the associated songs, on which see Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 265f; see further Claus Westermann *Das Loben Gottes in den Psalmen*² (1961; 1968⁴) 16ff.

The instances of the word are to be arranged according to the designations, or rather to the functions, sacrifice or song, which have just been mentioned; on this see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; and especially Hans-Jürgen Hermisson Sprache und Ritus im alttestamentlichen Kult (WMANT 19; 1965) 31ff.

For the bibliography see further e.g. Beyerlin Die tōdā der Heilsvergegenwärtigung in den Klageliedern des Einzelnen (ZAW 79 (1967) 208-224); Horst Die Doxologien im Amosbuch (ZAW 47 (1929) 45-54, especially 50ff = Recht 155-166, especially 162ff); G. von Rad Gerichtsdoxologie in "Schalom" (Studien zu Glaube und Geschichte Israels) in Alfred Jepsen Fschr. (Stuttgart, 1971) 28-37; Kraus BK 15/3: 171f; D. Bach Rite et parole dans l'Ancien Testament, Nouveaux éléments apportés par l'étude de Tōdāh (VT 28 (1978) 10-19); Frank Crüsemann Studien zur Formgeschichte von Hymnus und Danklied in Israel (WMANT 32; 1969) 266ff.

B. cstr. תּוֹרָת; pl. תּוֹרָת(וֹ).

—1. תּוֹרָה as sacrifice, and particularly as a community sacrifice (זִבְחָה), on which see especially Hartmut Gese Vom Sinai zum Zion (Alttestamentliche Beiträge zur evang. Theologie, 1974) 190 (on Ps 22_{23f}).

—a) it occurs with the following verbs: with בּוֹא hif. Jr 17₂₆ 33₁₁, pl. זָבְחִים וְתוֹדוֹת 2C 29₃₁₋₃₁ or as 2b; sg. with זָבַח 2C 33₁₆; with I קָטַר pi. Am 4₅; with קָרַב hif. (עַל-תּוֹרָה) Lv 7₁₂, on which see Hermisson loc. cit. 32f; pl. תּוֹרָת with שָׁלַם pi. Ps 56₁₃.

—b) it is linked with the following substantives: זָבַח (הַ)תּוֹדָה sacrificial meal of thanksgiving Lv 7₁₂ 22₂₉; זָבַח תּוֹרַת שְׁלֵמוֹ sacrificial meal of thanksgiving for his salvation Lv 7₁₃₋₁₅.

—c) a תּוֹדָה לְמִזְמוֹר Ps 100₁: a title which can mean either: α) a Psalm for a sacrifice of thanksgiving; or β) a Psalm for the offering of thanks. It is not possible to decide for certain, but it is because of תּוֹדָה in v.4, where the sbst. means song of thanksgiving, that β is probably to be preferred; so Kraus BK 15⁵ 856.

—2. song of thanksgiving or song of praise: a) sg. Is 51₃ with נִצַּח nif.; Jr 30₁₉ with יִצַּח; Jon 2₁₀ with זָבַח (בְּקוֹל תּוֹדָה); Ps 42₅ with עָבַר (וְתוֹדָה); 69₃₁ with גִּדַּל pi.; 95₂ with קָרַם pi.; 100₄ with בּוֹא (בְּתוֹדָה); 147₇ with I עָנָה.

—b) pl. Neh 12₂₇ with עָשָׂה חֲנֻכָּה: לַעֲשׂוֹת לְבִתּוֹרוֹת (וְ)וְשִׁמְחָה; with בּוֹא hif. 2C 29₃₁₋₃₁ (וְזָבַחִים וְתוֹרוֹת).

—3. a choir (choirs) of the Levites: a) sg. Neh 12_{31b} cj. pr. → תְּהַלְלֵכֶת prop. הַלְלֵכֶת וְהִיא־חַת, vs.38 pr. הַהוֹלְכֵת rd. הוֹלְכֵת (BHS).

—b) pl. Neh 12₄₀, with עָמַד qal, vs.31a hif.

—4. a doxology in court, on which see the bibliography mentioned under A; see in particular, in view of the usage in Ps 26₇, Hermisson loc. cit. 42, who offers by way of definition the opinion that the accused gives praise to Yahweh in recognition that in his acts and in his judgement he is just.

—a) with an inf. תּוֹדָה בְּקוֹל (לְהִשְׁמֹעַ =) Ps 26₇.

—b) with an impv. תְּנִי תוֹדָה לַיהוָה, Jos 7₁₉, תְּנִי תוֹדָה לַיהוָה, Ezr 10₁₁.

—5. instances in which it is uncertain whether תּוֹדָה (a) still has the concrete meaning of sacrifice of thanksgiving, or whether (b) it has passed from the idea of song of thanksgiving straight to the idea of thanksgiving, despite the fact that the associated verb is always זָבַח.

Because of the general context of Ps 50₁₄₋₂₃ the second opinion (b) appears to be most likely; and this is also true for Ps 116₁₇, where זָבַח תּוֹדָה is parallel with יְהוָה קָרָא בְּשֵׁם (→ I קָרָא qal A 9d). On the contrary for תּוֹדָה זָבַח Ps 107₂₂ the first opinion (a) is preferable, although (b) is probably not to be excluded completely; on this see Walter Beyerlin Werden und Wesen des 107. Psalms (BZAW 153; 1978) 89. †

Although the etymology is different the more common תִּקְוָה and the rarer תּוֹחֶלֶת are synonymous, and the most prominent idea of both is the aspect of waiting and expectation, so Zimmerli Der Mensch und seine Hoffnung im Alten Testament (1968) 15: expectation, hope.

10080 תּוֹכַחַת

תּוֹכַחַת, תּוֹכַחָה, תּוֹכַחָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 231): 1) punishment 1Qp Hab v:4f; 1QH vii:29; 2) reprimand 1Qp Hab v:10; 1QS vi:1; ix:9, 24, 33; xii:21, 31: sf. תּוֹכַחָתִי/תּוֹ, pl. תּוֹכַחוֹת, cstr. תּוֹכַחוֹת. It should firstly be noted that Horst Recht 289 and BK 16/1: 85f takes the basic meaning of the sbst. derived from the vb. as setting to right; this basic meaning can be subdivided into a number of specific meanings, most of which exhibit an aspect of punishment or judgement. Humbert Hab. 144 dispenses with any subdivision, such as is found in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL, which arises from the different ideas of blame, censure and reproach, reproof, remonstrance.

—1. a) reprimand (with a threat) Ezk 5₁₅ 25₁₇ (or as d).

—b) reproof (תּוֹכַחָתִי), so with KBL; similarly Jörg Jeremias Kultprophetie und Gerichtsverkündigung in der späten Königszeit (WMANT 35; 1970) 95: reproachful complaint, cf. also Rudolph KAT 13/3: 211 on Hab 2₁: objection.

—c) contradiction, retort, on which see Klaus Seybold Das Gebet des Kranken im Alten Testament (BWANT 99; 1973) 100¹⁶ (with bibliography): Ps 38₁₅ Jb 13₆ 23₄.

—2. reproach, blame (during instruction, upbringing): a) Pr 1₂₃₋₂₅₋₃₀ 3₁₁ 5₁₂ 6₂₃ 10₁₇ 12₁ 13₁₈ 15₅₋₁₀ 31_f 27₅ 29₁₋₁₅.

—b) special and particular meanings: α) Ps 73₁₄ because of נְגִיעַ in vs._a there is the suggestion of וְהוֹכַחְתִּי as a cj. in vs._b for וְתוֹכַחְתִּי, see BHS and Kraus BK 15⁵ 663, 664, but it is probably not necessary; β) Pr 6₂₃ pr. תּוֹכַחַת וּמוֹסֵר תּוֹכַחוֹת מוֹסֵר prop. with Sept., Pesh., Tg. תּוֹכַחַת וּמוֹסֵר תּוֹכַחוֹת מוֹסֵר reproof and discipline (ZüB), see BHK :: MT: the reproof of discipline (cf. NRSV), of reprimand, so Gemser *Spr.*² 38; or alternatively reproving discipline, so Plöger BK 17: 67; cf. also ms. and Vulg. inrepatio disciplinae; the MT is to be followed and the cj. to be abandoned; γ) אִישׁ תּוֹכַחוֹת Pr 29₁ a reproved man, so Gemser *Spr.*² 100; or alternatively someone who has experienced reproof, so Plöger BK 17: 340; similarly TOB :: Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: a man of contradiction, that is a stubborn person who allows himself to say nothing, cf. ZüB; NRSV: one who is often reproved yet remains stubborn.

תּוֹלָדַת: place name; Sept. Θουλαδ: a locality in the territory of Simeon 1C 4₂₉; the attempt to explain the name as the place where children could be obtained (as cited in KBL) is completely uncertain. תּוֹלָדַת is the same as אֶלְתוֹלָדַת Jos 15₃₀ 19₄ (for bibliography see HAL 58 (HALOT 60a); with a similar though somewhat different explanation of the place name); according to Noth Jos 110 the name was transmitted in the form תּוֹלָדַת in error. †

10082 תּוֹלְדוֹת

*תּוֹלְדוֹת: יֹלֵד, from the hif. form of this vb. הוֹלִיד (Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; cf. J. Barth Nominalbildung §189d); MHeb. תּוֹלְדָה product (Dalman Wörterbuch 439b), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 231) תּוֹלְדוֹת: 1QS iii:13, 19 (twice); iv:15; 1QM iii:14; v:1; x:14; Dam. iv:5; for the meaning of the sbst. see Scharbert in Eichrodt Fschr. (ATANT 59, 1970) 51¹⁸: in Dam. and 1QM the word means the successive generations within the tribes of Israel and within the natural human bonds of affinity; but on the other hand in 1 QS it means rather origins; SamP. pl. cstr. tūldāt, with sf. tūldūtīmma (on the pl. ending -āt cf. LOT 5: p. 60-62); late Samaritan תּוֹלִידָה tūlida chronicle; JArm. תּוֹלְדָתָא origin, lineage; cf. Akk. (Standard Babylonian) tālittu(m) the offspring of animals (AHw. 1310b); Syr. tauledtā descendants, relations; tauldātā equivalent to תּוֹלְדוֹת Gn 2₄; CPArm. twld*?, fem. emph. twlwdt and tlwdt?, on which see Schulthess Gramm. §37c; §38: 2d; §115; also Lex. 83b twldt fathering, begetting; OSArb. tld-m birth (Beeston Sabaic Dictionary 147); Eth. tiwliḍ and tūliḍ (Dillmann Lex. 888f) descendants, lineage, clan; generation, ancestors; Tigr. tiwliḍ (tūliḍ) (Littmann-H. Wb. 431b) generation; on the sbst. in Syr. and Eth. see also J. Barth Nominalbildung §189d, with the translation successive generations: cstr. תּוֹלְדוֹת (וֹ)לְדוֹת, sf. תּוֹלְדוֹתָיו, from the basic sense of the sbst. it really means begetting, fathering, from which there has been a linguistic development to mean people who are related.

—1. descendants, successors: a) Nu 1₂₀₋₄₂ (12 times).

—b) לְתוֹלְדוֹתָם (וֹ)לְדוֹתָם according to their descendants, successors Gn 10₃₂ 25₁₃ Ex 6₁₆₋₁₉ 1C 1₂₉ 5₇ 7₂₋₄₋₉ 8₂₈ 9₉₋₃₄ 26₃₁; Scharbert loc. cit. 50 proposes a rendering for both sets of passages (a and b) as paternal links, succession of generations.

—c) כְּתוֹלְדוֹתָם Ex 28₁₀ corresponding to their genealogy, so Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 178; but on this see also Scharbert loc. cit. 50.

—2. the sbst. in the so-called tōldōt-formula תּוֹלְדוֹתָם (וֹ)לְדוֹתָם, on which see Eissfeldt Kl. Schr. 3: 458-470 (with bibliography); Scharbert loc. cit. 45-56; P. Weimar Die Toledot-Formel in der priesterschriftlichen Geschichtsdarstellung (BZ 18; 1974) 65-93.

—a) Gn 6₉ 10₁ 11₁₀₋₂₇ 25₁₂₋₁₉ 36₁₋₉ 37₂ Nu 3₁ Ru 4₁₈; the rendering of this fixed expression suggests different possible interpretations, though not all are exclusive to one another, on which see e.g. Eissfeldt loc. cit. 460: α) successive generations in the general history of a family (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); similarly von Rad ATD 2-4: a succession of generations; β) in Gn 6₉ תּוֹלְדוֹת corresponds to family history, and this can also be linked to Gn 37₂, and perhaps to Ru 4₁₈.

—b) סֵפֶר תּוֹלְדוֹת אָדָם Gn 5₁ the book of the descendants of Adam, so von Rad loc. cit. 45; on which see also Eissfeldt loc. cit. 460f; a list of the toledot (meaning family history) of Adam, so Scharbert loc. cit. 46, 52; a summary of the family tree of Adam, so Westermann BK 1/1: 468.

—c) אֵלֶּה תּוֹלְדוֹת הַשָּׁמַיִם וְהָאָרֶץ בְּהִבְרָאָם Gn 24: the usual rendering is this is the history of the origin of heaven and earth when they were created, so e.g. Eissfeldt loc. cit. 461; KBL; and especially O.H. Steck Der Schöpfungsbericht der Priesterschrift (FRLANT 115 (1975) 241f, 242⁹⁸⁹, with reference to Weimar loc. cit. 72ff); cf. also Speiser Gen. 8, who then makes use of the idea of story in the sense of history, narrative :: Gunkel Gen. 101: this is the family tree of the heaven and the earth as they were created. Scharbert loc. cit. 53 understands the sbst. תּוֹלְדוֹת in a similar way, but for בְּהִבְרָאָם he follows a different course and he translates through their creation, inasmuch as they were created. But that seems to be artificial and there is more to be said for the usual translation of the inf. nif. The same is probably true for his translation of the sbst., for the particular context in which it is used justifies a preference for the usual interpretation rather than the one given by Gunkel and Scharbert. †

*תּוֹלֵל: hapax legomenon Ps 137₃ (cf. ? Bauer-Leander Heb. 475p): pl. sf. תּוֹלֵלִינוּ.

—a) no verbal derivation for the sbst., or rather for the adj., is certain; the Vrss. differ, and there is a corresponding difference in modern renderings; see the list by Kellermann ZAW 980 (1978) 45; these either develop a meaning from MT or make some suggestion for cj. One rendering that prefers MT and should be considered is our mockers, or rather, those that make a mockery of us; this would derive from the vb. III הָלַל po. to make a mockery of (HAL 239a; HALOT 249a); so Dahood Psalms 3: 268, 270; cf. Freedman in Albright Fschr. (1971) 192; also Auffret ZAW 92 (1980) 346, 352.

—b) conjectures include: α) with Sept. οἱ ἀπαγαγόντες -]14]μᾶς; Vulg. iuxta Sept. qui captivos duxerunt nos; Pesh. dābōrayn those who take us away prop. מוֹלִיכֵינוּ; β) with Tg. bāzōzanā our plunderers prop. שׁוֹלֵלֵינוּ; γ) that suggestion is taken up by Guillaume JBL 75 (1956) 143f, who makes the proposal to translate תּוֹלֵלֵינוּ those who lead us into slavery, pt. from *תָּלַל, equivalent to Arb. talla (atalla) to bind, or to carry off by force slaves that have been bound up; cf. talla to lead along an animal, IV to bind and take away (an animal).

—c) whether the MT is followed, or a cj. accepted, there is still the remark of Kellermann loc. cit. 45, that no certain solution is to be found in view of the guesses made already by the (older) translations.

I תּוֹלַע:

—1. The derivation of the sbst. is uncertain, on this cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 495j; possibilities include: a) from the root tl', see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. תָּלַע, KBL I *תָּלַע with reference to the sbst. → מִתְּלַעוֹת; the meaning of the root would be to dare, on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 880a (with bibliography), which is perhaps satisfactory for מִתְּלַעוֹת and Ug. tl' (see under 3a and b), but does not come into consideration for the Heb. sbst.

—b) a quadriradical primary noun, on which see Degen Gramm. §29: 3, cf. Nöldeke Syr. Gramm. §127.

—2. תולע occurs infrequently as an appellative name, but in much more common use as such is תולעה and תולעת, so that the two words can be considered as an opposing pair; this is included in the indispensable list of Michel Grundlegung 1: 66-68; but the nature of the connection between the two forms is not clear. The fem. could perhaps be considered as a development from the masc. as an original unitary noun. In the cognate languages what happens is that the fem. form is dominant and the juxtaposition of masc. and fem. with one another appears only rather rarely. It is attested in Syriac as well as Hebrew.

—3. for the cognate languages, see JArm. adj. תולענא, תולנא crimson material (cf. Lokotsch Etym. Wb. 1219; also Littmann Morgenländische Wörter 84), purple.

Ug. tl' (Gordon Textbook §19:2560) with an instance of tl'm in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 2:iv:4; but the sense of the word, or rather its form, is disputed; suggestions include:

a) equivalent to Heb. תולע worm, maggot, with sg. as collective, so Fisher Parallels 1: p. 340 no. 521, with reference to J.C. de Moor The Seasonal Pattern in the Ugaritic Myth of Ba'lu (AOAT 16; 1971) 126, 133; cf. Hoftijzer UF 4 (1972) 156: sbst. tl' with adverbial -m (Gordon Textbook §11.5, p. 103), meaning by a maggot.

b) tl' rodent, gnawing creature (because of the context it is not worm), so Gibson *Myths*² 43 with note 2' and p. 159b, from the root tl' (see above 1a).

c) tl'm part. passive of the vb. tl' to gnaw, with the meaning rusty, probably rather corroded, eaten away, so Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 135 with note g, where other suggestions are also given.

Syr. taul'a worm (Nöldeke Syr. Gramm. §84 p. 56).

Amharic til (Leslau Contributions 55), and the older form til' (see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 880a sub תלע, with reference to Franz Praetorius Die amharische Sprache 36).

—I תולע really in the sense of a worm, in particular the “crimson-worm”, from which the dye for crimson is extracted; on this see Gradwohl Farben 73f; also BRL² 72b with crimson coloured material Is 1₁₈, with אדם hif.; Lam 4₅ those who are dressed in crimson (האמנים עלי תולע); → II, תולעת, תולעה. †

II תולע: n.m.; Sept. Θωλα; Josephus Θούλας (Schalit Namenwb. 55); the meaning of the personal name is the same as I תולע, see Noth Personennamen 230; cf. Nöldeke Beitr. 90, who mentions as parallel the Arb. personal name duwayd little worm, and remarks that perhaps the name arises from the idea that the little worm lives for a long time.

—1. the oldest son of Issachar, probably the ancestor of the tribe with this name Gn 46₁₃ Nu 26₂₃ 1C 7_{1f}.

—2. a שפט from Issachar, who resided in שמיר Ju 10₁₁, → IV שמיר 2. † תולעת, תולע, תולעה: on the question of the etymology of the sbst., and of the alternation of the form as a masc. and also as a fem., see I תולע, under 1 and 2; for the corresponding forms in the cognate languages see under 3: a) this fem. form appears also in the cognate languages: MHeb. תולעת, as also JArm. תולעתא maggot, worm, worm damage; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 231) תולעה/תולעת שני 1 QM vii:11; מתים תולעת 1 QH vi:34; xi:12, לתולעת DJD 1: p. 146 no. 53 line 1; OArm. twl'h, st. abs. sg. —1. worm (: רמזה maggot): α) in a castor-oil plant (קיקיון) Jon 4₇, with מנה pi. (sbj. האלהים); β) in a vineyard Dt 28₃₉, with אכל, as in KBL: what is meant by התולעת is the so-called fruit-grub (cochylis ambiguella Hüb.), which attacks the grape (Löw Flora 1: 101f); γ) pl. and obj. מן with I רמם, worm-infested mannah Ex 16₂₀, see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §121d³; δ) in the grave (ומכסוך תולעה) Is 14₁₁ (parallel רמזה); תולעתם Is 66₂₄, with מות (לא).

—b) metaphorically תולעת יעקב Is 41₁₄, with ירא (אל); תולעת לא-איש Ps 22₇; ובנ-אדם תולעה Jb 25₆ (parallel with רמזה).

—2. a) תולעת שני literally glow-worm, used to designate crimson red material; for associated instances see I שני 1a.

—b) תולעת שני crimson colour, for associated instances see I שני 2b.

תועבה and תעבה (Jr 44₄): 116 times, for which see the list in KBL, and especially Humbert ZAW 72 (1960) 219.

I. The derivation of the sbst. is not completely certain, but it is most likely that it comes from the vb. *יעב, as a by-form of Arb. ‘āba, adj. ‘aybān to be faulty, be corrupted, be polluted so especially Rudolph Fschr. 157-160; but see also previously J. Barth Nominalbildung p. 305¹; see further Kopf VT 8 (1958) 188f; Gesenius-Buhl

—3. a) תועבת in the sense of foreign deities Dt 32₁₆, sg. Is 44₁₉; this is probably also meant in Is 41₂₄ בְּכֶם תועבת יבחר an abomination has been chosen by some of you, so Westermann Jes. (ATD 19) 69; similarly Humbert ZAW 72: 231; and also Elliger BK 11: 171, who translates as an abomination has been chosen for you; but he also suggests the very questionable cj. תהו ורוח עציבכם your pictures are emptiness and wind (loc. cit., also p. 173); but see also later p. 187f where תועבה is applied to a foreign deity 2K 23₁₃ בני-עמון מלכם תועבת.

—b) תועבות to designate the hurt from one's colleagues that must be avoided Ps 88₉ (pl. of intensity, see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124e; Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §19b).

—c) תועב(ו)ת: α) abominable actions which are considered to transgress the basic commandments Jr 7₁₀, on which see Helga Weippert Die Prosreden des Jeremiabuches (BZAW 132; 1973) 42f; β) abhorrent customs of foreign peoples: 1K 14₂₄ (textual uncertainty, pr. התועבת prop. deleting the article to read תועבת; see BHS :: Noth BK 9/1: 324: the sbst. is a gloss and should therefore be deleted; so also Würthwein ATD 11/1: 181²; 2K 21₂; child-sacrifice 2K 16₃/2C 28₃; עמי התועבות האלה these abhorrent peoples Ezr 9₁₄.

—d) with עשה: obj. תועבה to have abominable practices, act abominably Jr 6₁₅/8₁₂; obj. התועב(ו)ת the abominations of heathen nations Lv 18₂₇₋₂₉ Jr 44₂₂; with passive נעשתה, sbj. תועבה (ה) Dt 13₁₅ 17₄ the worship of foreign gods; Mal 2₁₁ in connection with mixed marriages; see Rudolph KAT 13/4: 272; Humbert ZAW 72: 231.

—4. in Ezekiel the sbst. is mostly found in the pl. (with the article and often with a personal pronominal suffix, see Humbert ZAW 72: 228; also KBL). In the form תועבה the sbst. occurs only four times (16₅₀ 18₁₂ 22₁₁ 33₂₆). The preferred predicate is the vb. עשה. According to Zimmerli Ez. 154, תועבה is a collective term for all sins which have a polluting effect in the cult. Clearly to be counted with such sins are adultery (22₁₁) as well as the less precisely defined תועבה of 33₂₆; on this last instance see Zimmerli Ez. 820. Humbert ZAW 72, 229 takes 22₁₁ and 33₂₆ on their own, because by תועבה is meant (or can be meant) a transgression of moral importance, while elsewhere it means a contravention of the cultic and ritual codes of conduct; on this see e.g. צלמי תועבתם their shameful pictures 7₂₀ and גלולי תועבותיך your shameful idols 16₃₆; תועבותם their abomination (with reference to the temple) 43₈.

—5. a) in Proverbs the dominant expression is תועבת יהוה 3₂₂ 11₁₋₂₀ 12₂₂ 15₈₋₉₋₂₆ 16₅ 17₁₅ 20₁₀₋₂₃; there also occurs תועבות נפשו (K), or alternatively תועבת נפשו (Q, Sept.) 6₁₆ and as a word of חכמה wisdom, תועבת שפתי רשע wickedness is an abomination to my lips (NRSV) 8₇. Among the תועבת שפתי יהוה are included e.g. נלוז the corrupt 3₃₂ (→ לוז nif.); מואזני מרמה false weights 11₁; עקשילב those with a false heart 11₂₀; שפתי שקר lying lips 12₂₂; זבח רשעים 15₈. Within the expression נפשו תועבות/ת 6₁₆ are included human vices, which are set out in detail in vs. 17-19; see also the word of wisdom that had been mentioned earlier 8₇.

—b) תועבה in terms of social relationships: α) מלכים תו' 16₁₂ (עשות רשע); β) as applied to particular types of people תו' כסילים 13₁₉; תו' צדיקים :: תו' רשע :: 29₂₇; if someone closes his ear to words of instruction תו' תופלתו תו' תו' then his prayer is also an abomination 28₉; תועבת לאדם לץ the scoffer is an abomination for humanity 24₉ :: KBL: offensiveness, an abominable thing.

—c) the meaning of the general expression תועבה רשעים זבח 21₂₇ has a position between the two mentioned previously (a and b), but because of 15₈ it is probably to be taken with the first of them (a) rather than with the second (b).

תועה: תעה; substantivised participle, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 475q; the fem. probably indicates a unitary noun, one single example of erring, meaning a mistake; for this usage in Akkadian see von Soden Gramm. §60a; for Heb. cf. Michel Grundlegung 1: 64ff; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232) תועה error, mistake: 1QH i:22 רוח התועה a spirit of error; Dam. xx:11 דברו תועה they have made wrong statements; cf. דבר סרה Je 29₃₂; תועה and סרה pt. > sbst.

—1. mistake, error Is 32₆, with אל יהוה דבר to utter error concerning the Lord (NRSV)

—2. confusion Neh 4₂, with עשה (with לו but prop. לי or לנו); to cause confusion in it (NRSV). †

10093 תועפות

תועפות: tantum pl. (Bauer-Leander Heb. 495m: on the pattern taqtal); cstr. תועפ(ו)ת. It should be noted that rather than following the usual arrangement here (as in Gesenius-Buhl Handw.) the instances in the Vrss. will be presented first (A), and after that the etymology and meaning of the sbst. will be explained (B).

A. 1) תועפות הררים Ps 95₄, Sept. τὰ ὑψη τῶν ὀρέων, so also Pesh. wraumē dtūrē; Vulg. iuxta Sept. et altitudines montium, Vulg. iuxta Hebr. et excelsa montium.

—2. כתועפת ראם, Samaritan kātuwwēfot Nu 23₂₂ 24₈, Sept. ὡς δόξα μονοκέρωτος αὐτῶ (Liddell-Scott Lex. 1144b: μονοκέρωτος wild ox); Vulg. cuius fortitudo similis est rinocerotis whose bravery can be compared to that of the rhinoceros; Pesh. b'ušnēh wabraumēh in its cunning and its size, equivalent to Tg. tuqnā wrūmō dīlēh; in Pesh. and Tg. the comparison with the animal is missing, and the statement has a direct reference to Yahweh.

—3. וכסף תועפות לך Jb 22₂₅, Sept. ἀργύριον πεπυρωμένον like refined silver; Vulg. et argentum tibi coacervabitur and silver will be heaped up for you; Pesh. waksep hušbānin nehwē' lāk and there will be silver for you (you shall have silver) in (vast ?) quantities.

—4. ויאזרהו בתועפות תואר Sir 45₇ and he encircled him with magnificent splendour (Smend Die Weisheit des Jesus Sirach, Hebräisch und Deutsch (1906) 49; also Commentary 429; Sept. καὶ περιέζωσεν αὐτὸν περιστολήν δόξης; but the remark of Smend loc. cit. 49 should be noted, that while the text has ראם the marginal reading is the sbst. תואר, on which see B2d.

B. 1. a) etymologically the sbst. תועפות is probably to be linked with the Arabic vb. yafā'a to tower above > to stand above; for the Arabic vb. see G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 4 (1837) 521a; there is also the sbst. yafā' hill; see also A. Dillmann Das Buch Hiob (1869; 1891⁴) 220; the Arb. root yf' by metathesis > יעף, → II פעע; so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lexicon 892f :: KBL 1022b: ifwah the hair on the top of the head; but that is a remote possibility and is not convincing; the connection with the root $yf > *יעף$ leads to a basic meaning for תועפות of something that towers high, from which the more exact meaning of the sbst. will have to be understood; on this see Dillmann loc. cit.; also Dhorme Job 308; see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and Zorell Lex.

—b) F. Rundgren ActOr. 21 (1953) 316ff: it comes from the Arabic root $d'p$ ($da'afa$) II and IV to double (Lane Lex. 1791a; Wehr-Cowan Dict. 542a: $d'fB :: d'fA$ to be weak); sbst. $da'af$ a garment, or a part of a garment, which has been doubled; Syr. $'e'ap$ (pe. and pa.) to double (Brockelmann Lex. 38b). תועפות: by dissimilation אעף $> *ta'āfōt > *tāfōt$, or alternatively $*ta'afōt > *taw'āfōt > *tō'āfōt$.

—2) the meanings in the different passages.

—a. Ps 95₄ the heights, the peaks of the mountains, so also Rundgren loc. cit. 323.

—b. Nu 23₂₂ 24₈ what towers high, meaning the horns of the wild-ox :: Rundgren: from Arb. $'atafa$ to bend, fold; adj. fem. $'atfā'u$ a twisted horn (Lane Lex. 2080a): תועפות the curves of the horns.

—c. Jb 22₂₅: possible explanations include either α) silver in massive heaps, or ingots of silver which would not have been used as money but as whole ingots, so Dillmann loc. cit., with reference to the rendering of Vulg. (see above A3); or β): under the assumption that תועפות can also mean brightness, gleam, like קרן Hab 3₄, it can be translated silver with brightness, meaning gleaming silver, so Norbert Peters Das Buch Job (1928) 246; γ) from the etymological suggestion mentioned above (see B 1b) Rundgren loc. cit. 320 renders the sbst. as doubling, and more precisely the expression תועפות כסף loc. cit. 322 as abundant supplies, really doubled amounts, of silver, or money.

—d) Sir 45₇: here Rundgren loc. cit. 325 prefers the interpretation of the Sept. with the variant $\sigma\tau\omicron\lambda\eta\nu$ for $\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\tau\omicron\lambda\eta\nu$; he also mentions the Syriac adj. $'ayyifā$ folded, crumpled, which would be from the vb. $'e'ap$, and comparable with Arabic $da'fa$; on this see above B 1b. But following this interpretation it is probably better to remember that the text has ראם, while the reading תואר is marginal, and it is better to maintain the text. The תועפות ראם ram's horns would be used here figuratively for the very tall head-dress of the high-priest; so Peters loc. cit. 248.

C. It is as well to be careful before making a final decision about the word because, despite the very careful suggestions of Rundgren, the questions about the etymology have not yet been answered for certain, and perhaps they cannot be answered. It can be seen now (cf. B2 above) that there is widespread agreement for the meaning of heights for Ps 95₄, and for horns for Nu 23₂₂ 24₈ (cf. KBL); whether תועפות indicates specifically the curves of the horns must obviously be left as an open question; the (exact) interpretations of Jb 22₂₅ and Sir 45₇ are as uncertain now as they always were. †

Der. I תפף.

תּוֹצְאוֹת: יֵצֵא, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495m; MHeb. ways out; figuratively outlying areas, types (Levy Wb. 4: 633; cf. Dalman Wörterbuch 440a: subspecies); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232): DJD 1: text 27, col. i:12 (p. 103, 105): within the context the sbst. does not probably have the same sense as in the OT, but rather means expenses; the same in EgArm. npqh (נַפְקָה) Cowley Arm. Pap. 300a; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 182; the same meaning, expenses, is probably also found in Neo-Punic tsʿt (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 118:3; 122:2; 129:3; 173:1); so Friedrich *Phön. Gr.*² §203; Tomback Lexicon 344; also (hesitantly) Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 333; but see now Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1226 :: Donner-Röllig Inschriften, which for the above references translates as outer parts: cstr. תּוֹצְאוֹתָם, תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ, sf. תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ, תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ.

—1. a) תּוֹצְאוֹת הָעִיר the exits from the city (NRSV) Ezk 48₃₀; the ways out from, outlying areas, limits (KBL; NRSV) of the pastureland (בְּגֵרָשִׁים) 1C 5₁₆.

—b) outermost areas, limit of the borderline (גְּבוּל); on this sbst., which means the lines of a border as well as a territory, see HAL 164b (HALOT 171b) under גְּבוּל 2 and 4; cf. Bächli ZDPV 89 (1973) 2¹⁰; and on the link with תּוֹצְאוֹת see Bächli loc. cit. 5f; the stereotyped predicate is תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ α) Nu 34₈ Jos 15₄₋₁₁, גְּבוּלָם β) 19₂₂; β) a suffix is also added to this sbst. in תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ (SamP. variant תּוֹצְאוֹתָיִךְ tūšāʿītu Nu 34₄ etc. where it is treated as a singular, as an infinitive) Nu 34₄₋₅₋₉₋₁₂ Jos 15₇ 16₃₋₈ 17₉ 18₁₂₋₁₄₋₁₉ (delete גְּבוּל, see Noth Jos. 108), 19₁₄₋₂₉₋₃₃.

—c) תּוֹצְאוֹתָיו its outlying areas, with reference to יַעַר, meaning the wooded parts of the mountains of Ephraim Jos 17₁₈; so ZüB; similarly Götz Schmitt Du sollst keinen Frieden schliessen mit den Bewohnern des Landes (BWANT 91; 1970) 93 :: Noth Jos. 102: that which results from it, territory which has been gained through clearing the forest; he is followed by KBL and Hertzberg ATD 9: 100: that which comes out of it; but against this see Schmitt loc. cit.

—2. particular expressions: a) point of departure, origin of life Pr 4₂₃.

—b) Ps 68₂₁ תּוֹצְאוֹת לְמַוֹת ways of escape from death, so KBL, and similarly Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lex.; also Dahood Psalms 2: 131, 144; this rendering is supported by the Versions, and especially by understanding Ug. l as from (= ל 5, HAL 483; HALOT 508b); on this see Dahood Psalms 3: 398; also Gordon Textbook §10.11; see also §19.1337; Aistleitner Wb. 1422: 4a; for further references to Ug. l see Albright HUCA 23/1 (1950-51) 14, 26, 38; also Mowinkel Der Achtundsechzigste Psalm (Oslo, 1953) 45; and Gray JSS 22 (1977) 24; this means that the cj. proposed by Gunkel Ps. 291 pr. לְמַוֹת prop. מִמְוֹת is not necessary, and the translation of Kraus BK 15⁵ 626, the ways to death, is to be rejected. †

10096 תּוֹקְהַת

תּוֹקְהַת (Q תּוֹקְחַת, K תּוֹקְהַת): n.m.; Sept.^{RA} Θακουαθ, Sept.^L Θεκωε corresponding to Pesh. tw 2C 34₂₂, which is represented in 2K 22₁₄ as תּוֹקְהַת; but in Ezr 10₁₅ this word is taken as a personal name, and so it is questionable whether it should be introduced as the original reading for 2C 34₂₂ as is done in KBL; what is meant by תּוֹקְהַת in 2K 22₁₄ is much more likely to be an explanation of the non-Semitic name תּוֹקְהַת/תּוֹקְחַת as preserved in 2C 34₂₂, so Noth Personennamen 260b, and subsequently Rudolph Chr. 324; no explanation of the personal name is possible: the father of שִׁלְמִי, the husband of the prophetess חִלְקִיָּה 2C 34₂₂. †

תִּקְעִים: תִּקַּע Pr 11₁₅; the Vrss. differ; the general sense of the sbst. is clear, in that it indicates the usual handshake for undertak-ing a pledge, on which see Horst Recht 86; but what is in dispute is the exact grammatical explanation of the word; possibilities include:

—a) to take תִּקְעִים as a pt. of תִּקַּע, which would then mean the one who strikes, or more precisely the one who strikes the hand; the idiom has to be supplemented by the obj. כַּף; cf. תִּקְעֵי-כַף Pr 22₂₆ when he (as guarantor) strikes the hand of the creditor and withdraws it from him as a debtor, so Horst loc. cit.; furthermore cf. תִּקַּע כַּף Ps 6₁ 17₁₈.

—b) to take תִּקְעִים as a real sbst. explaining it either as an abstract pl. (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124d), or a pl. which is the summing up of the several parts of an action (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124f); an appropriate translation would then be either simply “a shake of the hands”, cf. KBL, and Gemser *Spr.*² 54; or more precisely “a confirmatory handshake”, so Plöger BK 17: 132; it is also possible to adopt the rendering “the guarantees” as preferred by Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and ZüB.

—c) an assessment of these two alternatives perhaps leads to a preference for the first (a), for the form of the word (as a pt.) supports it, and it can be made into a pl. without further ado; admittedly the pl. form could be taken to support the second alternative (b), but glancing again through the examples in Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124d, where the patterns qtûlim and qittûlim are emphasised, leads us to expect a form *תִּקְעִים (or in the light of §124f, perhaps תִּקְעִים). But the position here may be that the form תִּקְעִים behaves similarly to a corresponding form חֲבָלִים Zech 11_{7,14}, for which an original form חֲבָלִים has been postulated; on this see Rudolph KAT 13/4, 202. †

תֹּר: MHeb. to peep through (Dalman Wörterbuch 440a), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232): 1QH iv:15 to keep a look out; Dam. ii:16 to pursue thoughts; iii:11 to strive after; Samaritan to see > to understand; on the development of the meaning cf. LOT 3/2, p. 154; cf. CPArm. tr (see Schulthess Gramm. 217), and BibHeb. בִּין.

? Ug.: a) ytr (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 6:vi:54 = Gibson *Myths*² p. 81 line 52); b) tr (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 10:ii:11 = Gibson *Myths*² p. 132); according to Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 270^o and 283^m both (a and b) correspond to Heb. תֹּר; but that is completely uncertain for on both occasions other suggestions are mentioned by Caquot; for both a and b the root *נתר (→ II נתר) comes into question; for a see Aistleitner Wb. 1873; and for b see Dijkstra-de Moor UF 7 (1975) 191, with other examples of the same word.

Akk. târu(m) to turn around, turn back, do again (AHw. 1332ff); cf. the other verbs of motion of the same phonetic class (mediae wāw) with the same meaning: Heb. שׁוּב; Arb. āda; OSArb. wd corresponding to Eth. ōda; ? OSArb. sbst. twrt protective forces Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 316.

Perhaps another root comparable with תֹּר is tr*, for instances in the corresponding languages see I תֹּר; for Eth. cf. Leslau Contributions 55; Arb. I tāra to go around something, IV to repeat, see G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 1 (1833) 204a; see still further Gray *Kings*³ 265 to go in and out, with the meaning to act as mediator.

—d) cj.: α) Jb 39₈ pr. יִתּוֹר prop. with Theodotion, Tg., Vulg. יִתּוֹר (BHK): it (the wild ass) glimpses the mountains, its pastureland; on this cf. Fohrer KAT 16: 489, 493; ZüB; TOB; also Pope Job 307, who maintains however that יִתּוֹר is an Aramaising form :: Gerleman in M.A. Beek Fschr. 74, who takes יִתּוֹר as a subst., and translates: its pastureland is the prominent slopes of the mountains, i.e. the ledges on the cliffs; but the interpretation of the subst. is questionable, since in Tg. Job וַיִּבְחַר corresponds to יִתּוֹר, see Jongeling-Labuschagne-van der Woude Aramaic Texts from Qumran (Semitic Study Series 4, vol. 1 (1976) 62; Beyer Arm. 296, 529; β) 1C 17_{17b} pr. —2. תָּרוּם 1K 10₁₅ = 2C 9₁₄: a) pt. pl. from the sg. תָּרָם. Within the context (linked with רִכְלִים) the subst. means merchants, traders, but this may not be derived from the vb. תוֹר with certainty, on which see Noth Könige 204, 229; Gray *Kings*³ 265, and also *Legacy*² 215; Würthwein ATD 11/1: 122. Gray *Kings*³ 265 has suggested that perhaps it comes from Arb. tāra IV to go out (on which see above), and if so it would appear possible to link תוֹר and תָּרָם with one another, taking the basic meaning of the vb. as to travel about; on this see KBL Supplement 224a; also Wolfram Hermann ZAW 91 (1979) 334²⁶.

—b) cj.: α) pr. מֵאֲנָשֵׁי הַתָּרוּם from the traders (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.) prop. with Sept. מֵעֲנָשֵׁי הַתָּרוּם apart from the taxes imposed by the merchants (traders); β) pr. הַתָּרוּם prop. הַתָּרוּם, see MHeb. תָּנַר merchant (Dalman Wörterbuch 438b), so BHS on 2C 9₁₄, and Rudolph Chr. 222; γ) pr. מֵאֲנָשֵׁי הַתָּרוּם prop. מֵאֲנָשֵׁי תְּרָשִׁישׁ; so (following Expository Times 42: 439) KBL on 1K 10₁₅ and 2C 9₁₄; BHS on 1K 10₁₅; 2C 9₁₄ is taken differently; δ) of these cj. the first (α) has probably most to support it, but the second (β) should not be rejected altogether; the third (γ) is far removed from both of them. †

תּוֹרָה: A. on the form of the sbst. see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §95p; Bauer-Leander Heb. 495m: root ירה, but there is uncertainty about whether the sbst. is to be derived from I ירה or III ירה; this then gives rise to the possibility of taking תּוֹרָה as a loanword from Akk. têrtu(m) directive, instruction (AHw. 1350f), for which and for further proposals see Gunnar :stborn Tōrā in the Old Testament (1945) 4-22; also THAT 2: 1032. What is probably most likely is a connection with III ירה in the sense of stretching out the finger, or the hand, to point out a route (Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 318a), cf. מוֹרָה בְּאַצְבָּעֵתָיו Pr 6₁₃, so especially :stborn loc. cit. 4ff, 33, 169; König Wb. 161b; see also KBL :: Koehler *Theol.*⁴ 195: I ירה; THAT 2: 1032 mentions the proposals but without expressing any preference: the question (of the etymology) can not be taken any further forward unless new material is available.

B. the word occurs in the cognate languages: MHeb. תּוֹרָה law, scroll of the law, holy scripture (Dalman Wörterbuch 440b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232); for the bibliography see THAT 2: 1042; SamP. tūra; JArm. on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 318a, sv. III ירה: from Heb. תּוֹרָה arises Arm. אֹרְרֵתָא (Dalman Wörterbuch 11a), and Eth. ōrīt (Dillmann Lex. 742); Arb. loanword taurāt Torah, Pentateuch, Old Testament (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 99a).

C. the forms of the word: cstr. תּוֹרַת, sf. תּוֹרָתִי, תּוֹרָתוֹ (וּ)תָּךְ; pl. תּוֹרָתְכֶם/תָּךְ; pl. תּוֹרָתֵינוּ, תּוֹרָתֵי/תָּי, sf. תּוֹרָתֵינוּ.

E. the meaning of the sbst. and its usage.

—1. direction, instruction (later law, see Sept. νόμος and MHeb. (see above B)).

—I. Outside specifically theological con-texts, on which see KBL; Liedke loc. cit. 195f; THAT 2: 1035; and also Zorell Lexicon 893f; König Wb. 539: תּוֹרָה as instruction or teaching by the wise (חֲכָם) Pr 13₁₄ and probably also 3₁ 6₂₃ 7₂; the voice of my teachers מוֹרָי קוֹל Pr 5₁₃; instruction from the father of a family Pr 4_{1f}, cf. 4₄₋₁₁; from the mother Pr 1₈ 6₂₀; from the woman of the house 31₂₆; in Pr 28₉ the originator of the teaching is not identified in particular, and teaching from an instructor is not excluded, see Plöger BK 17: 334; but NRSV: when one will not listen to the law; REB: if anyone turns a deaf ear to God's law.

תושב, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496u; MHeb.: 1) settled (Levy Wb. 4: 634b); 2) גֵר תושב a citizen who does not have full civic rights, a resident alien, a non-Israelite who is living in Israelite territory, so Dalman Wörterbuch 440b; Levy Wb. 1: 353b (under גֵר): גֵר צדק a full, true proselyte, as opposed to גֵר תושב someone who simply renounces idolatry and accepts only the seven commandments of Noah for the sake of acquiring limited citizenship (cf. Pap.* 216; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 325; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1207); Syr. tautābā, fem. tautābtā; CPArm. twtb, pl. twtbyn (Schulthess Lex. 89a); Mnd. tutba 2 (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 484b) immigrant, settler: cstr. תּוֹשְבֵי, sf. תּוֹשְבֵיךָ; pl. תּוֹשְבֵימֶיךָ, cstr. תּוֹשְבֵי 1K 17₁ see under 2.

—1. resident alien, sojourner, someone who comes from the original Canaanite population of the territory occupied by Israel, or alternatively who has become resident in such a locality, on which see Alt Kl. Schr. 1: 148 with note 2; see further Gesenius-Buhl Handw. with bibliography; and especially de Vaux Inst. 1: 118 = Lebensord. 1: 127.

Before this תּוֹשְבֵי was translated as sojourner by Max Weber Gesammelte Aufsätze zur Religionssoziologie (1920/21) vol. 3: p. 32f, note 1; see also Pedersen Isr. 1-2: 505 (on p. 44): תּוֹתְבָא was originally a slave who had been granted freedom.

—a) תּוֹתְבָא together with שְׂכִיר Ex 12₄₅ Lv 25₄₀, Lv 22₁₀ כֹהֵן תּוֹתְבָא the resident alien belonging to a priest.

—bα) תּוֹשְבֵי parallel with גֵר Ps 39₁₃, on which see Kraus BK 15⁵ 455; β) גֵר ותושב Gn 23₄ Lv 25₃₅₋₄₇, תּוֹשְבֵי גֵרִים Lv 25₂₃ 1C 29₁₅.

—c) as a word within a listed sequence: עֶבֶד, אָמָה, שְׂכִיר, תּוֹשְבֵי Lv 25₆; גֵר, תּוֹשְבֵי, בְנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל, גֵר Nu 35₁₅.

—d) מְבִנֵי הַתּוֹשְבֵימֶיךָ הַגֵרִים sojourners who are protected citizens Lv 25₄₅, so KBL (clients); or alternatively resident aliens עִמָּכֶם who stay on with you (Elliger Lev. 337).

—e) supplementary remarks: it appears from what has been stated above (especially under b) that the words גֵר and תּוֹשְבֵי have meanings which are close to one another; the tōšāb is a gēr, whose roots are in foreign (but Israelite) territory, and is a protégé of the tribe which is now resident there; or more exactly one who has found a lasting acceptance as an individual occupant (so Bruno Baentsch Exodus-Leviticus-Numeri (GHK 1/2; 1903) 107; cf. also Elliger Lev. 293f; THAT 1: 410; his position is different from that of the גֵר, who was able to partake in the festival of Passover provided he was circumcised (Ex 12₄₈); but that was not permitted for the תּוֹשְבֵי, or for the שְׂכִיר Ex 12₄₅, cf. Lv 22₁₀, who appear to have been less fully integrated into the social and religious communities (so de Vaux Inst. 1: 118 = Lebensord. 1: 127).

—2. 1K 17₁ MT: גֵרֵי מִתְשָׁבִי גֵרֵי מִתְשָׁבִי, which becomes in Sept., on which see Täubler Richter 248²: Sept.^{Luc} ἰ Θεοσίτης ἰ ἐκ Θεοβων τῆς Γαλααδ; in Sept.^A Θεοσίτης is supplemented by προφήτης; in Sept.^B both are combined, see Sept.^{RA} ἰ προφήτης ἰ Θεοσίτης ἐκ Θεοβων τῆς Γαλααδ (Josephus Antiquities viii: 319: Θεοσεβωνης); the other Vrss. repeat MT מִתְשָׁבִי: Vulg. de habitatoribus; Pesh. men tawtābē; Tg.^J mittōtabē; nevertheless the cj., pr. מִתְשָׁבִי read with Sept. מִתְשָׁבִי, has been widely accepted, as e.g. by Georg Henschel

Die Elija-Erzählungen (1977) 122³⁶⁵: there is an occurrence of defective writing in תִּשְׁבִּי for a word which is almost always written plene תִּשְׁבָּ, and this supports Sept. With some restraint, and without excluding the possibility of the cj., Gray *Kings*³ 377 together with note a, retains the MT: Elijah, the Tishbite, from the settlers (vocalising תִּשְׁבִּי instead of תִּשְׁבָּ); also Täubler Richter 248-251 defends the traditional תִּשְׁבִּי quite decisively; but against this see Noth ZDPV 75 (1959) 46⁷⁵.

Tishbe, which was situated in Gilead, has not yet been identified; the same is true for Thisbe in the territory of Naphtali, which is stated to be the home of Tobit, Tob 1₂; on this see Reicke-Rost Hw. 1973f. †

I. A. the origin of the sbst. is uncertain, so Bauer-Leander Heb. 496p with note 1; there was an early attempt to derive it from a vb. יִשָּׁה to be, so J. Barth *Nominalbildung*⁵ p. 307³ (cf. also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); in the twelfth/thirteenth centuries it had already been mentioned by David Qimḥi in his Book of Roots sv. יִשָּׁה (edition of R. Biesenthal and F. Lebrecht, p. 152); it was taken up again by Bauer ZAW 48 (1930) 77: the root יִשָּׁה < יִשָּׁה* which implies that the basic meaning of the sbst. is what is available, what exists, which then comes to mean strength, ability; while that seems possible it is completely uncertain; see further Wildberger BK 10: 1085.

B. The word in the cognate languages: MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232) תִּשְׁבִּי 1QS x:24; xi:6; תִּשְׁבִּייה Dam. ii:3: insight; on 1QS x:24 cf. Nötscher Term. 61; Ug. tšyt (Gordon Textbook §19:812, 2614; Gibson *Myths*² 159b) victory, triumph, success: Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 3:ii:25, 27 yml'u lbh bšmḥt kbd 'nt tšyt her heart is full of joy, Anat's liver full of triumph, so with Gibson *Myths*² 48; cf. Dahood Ug. Heb. Phil. 74; Gray UF 11 (1979) 319 :: Gray *Legacy*² 43; Caquot Textes Ougaritiques 160 has the same translation for tšyt though a different arrangement of the text is given.

C. In Sept. תִּשְׁבִּי(וֹ) is rendered thus: a) Jb 30₂₂ Pr 2₇ σωτηρία; Jb 6₁₃ βοήθεια; Pr 8₁₄ ἀσφάλεια; 3₂₁ -]182ννοια; Jb 26₃ δύναμις; Jb 11₆ (acc.) δύναμιν σοφίας; 12₁₆ ἡσχύς; 5₁₂ ἀληθές; Pr 18₁ καιρός (ἐν παντὶ δὲ καιρῷ ἐπονείδιστος -]182σται) see also under 3αα; b) Is 28₂₉ βουλεύσασθε, ὑψώσατε ματαίαν παράκλησιν; Mi 6₉ καὶ σώσει φοβουμένους τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ; Sir 38₈ καὶ ἐήρηνη παρ' αὐτοῦ ἐστιν ἐπὶ προσώπου τῆς γῆς.

D. the various suggestions surveyed above have been presented to show how difficult it is to give an adequate translation of the Hebrew sbst., for it has no real equivalent in modern languages. It appears as one of the favourite ideas of wisdom literature, where it takes on many shades of meaning; the general sense has been rather accurately defined by Gemser *Spr.*² 24: תִּשְׁבִּי really means the promotion of being, encouraging something to exist, allowing the successful outcome of an enquiry; as such it means help as much as cleverness, or skill; he refers to G. Kuhn Beiträge zur Erklärung des Salomonischen Spruchbuches BWANT 57 (1931) 3f, and especially to Pedersen Isr. 1-2: 517f: תִּשְׁבִּי like בְּרָכָה indicates the productive skill in an action, as well as at the same time the action itself; on this see also Gerhard Wehmeier Der Segen im Alten Testament (Basel, 1970) 225; as stated in KBL, with the sbst. תִּשְׁבִּי(וֹ) it is necessary to associate the double meaning of result and prudence; see further G. von Rad Weisheit in Israel (1970) 109⁸.

—1. success, good result Jb 5₁₂ 6₁₃ (parallel with עֲזָרָה), 26₃ Pr 2₇ 8₁₄ (parallel with עֲזָרָה).

—2. sound wisdom, prudence (the division between 1 and 2 can not always be drawn with certainty) Is 28₂₉ (parallel with עֲצָה), Jb 11₆ (parallel with חֲכֻמָּה), 12₁₆ (parallel with עַז), Pr 3₂₁ (parallel with מְזֻמָּה), 8₁₄ (parallel with עֲצָה).

—3. a) particular expressions: α) יתגלע בכל-תושייה Pr 18₁; Sept. ἐν παντὶ δὲ καιρῷ ἐπονεῖδιστος -]18₂σταί at every opportunity he will be covered in disgrace; for תושייה Plöger BK 17: 208, 209 stays with the sense suggested by the rendering of Sept., while he translates as at every opportunity he will start up a quarrel (see HALOT 194b, גלע); but this takes us a little too far from the usual sense of תושייה; and Gemser *Spr.*² 74 stays closer to it with his “so that he can break out with all power”; this can be compared with TOB: he will be broken off from any advice; and ZüB: he breaks out against everything that makes for happiness; similarly English versions, while disagreeing about the exact translation of גלע, generally agree on תושייה; NRSV: showing contempt for all who have sound judgement; REB: he quarrels with every sound policy; NEB: to bare his teeth in scorn at competent people.

β) ותושייה ממנו על פני ארצו Sir 38₈, Sept. (see above under Cb): καὶ ἐπήρητη παρ’ αὐτοῦ ἐστὶν ἐπὶ προσώπου τῆς γῆς; Smend Die Weisheit des Jesus Sirach (1906) 35: (textual emendation) ותושייה ממנו על פני ארצו and salvation brought about by him (by God) shall be on his earth; ZüB: and help arises from his earthly domain; TOB: and health comes from him over the surface of the earth.

—b) Mi 6₉, textual uncertainty, MT יראה שמך ותושייה literally then your name will see success, so Tournay RB 71 (1964) 514ff, but that remains unsatisfactory; Sept. (see Cb): καὶ σώσει φοβουμένους τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ; for MT, Sept. and the other Vrss. see Rudolph KAT 13/3: 114; cf. also R. Vuilleumier CAT 11b: 75 with note 2; cj. Jb 30₂₂ MT תשייה = Q תשייה, K תשייה = → תשייה, cf. Fohrer KAT 16: 414.

II. expressions (as B 1 and 2): with גדל hif. Is 28₂₉; with ידע hif. Jb 26₃; with נרח nif. Jb 6₁₃; with נצר Pr 3₂₁; with עשה Jb 5₁₂ (sbj. ידיהם); with צפן Pr 2₇. † תותח: hapax legomenon Jb 41₂₁: a) there is no sure explanation of the sbst., but a connection with the Arb. vb. wataḥa to strike with a club or a cudgel is most likely; so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lexicon 894a; König Wb. 539b; in Bauer-Leander Heb. the sbst. is not defined with certainty, cf. ? 475p, 484y.

—b) the Vrss. also suggest that תותח indicates an instrument used for beating, on which see Dhorme Job 585: vs._{21a} is missing in Sept., but in Theodotion σφυρά; Vulg. malleus; vs._{21a} is missing with other parts from Pesh.; in Tg. נרגיא club, which is followed in the translation by Dhorme.

—c) it appears from all this that the render-ing of the sbst. which enjoys most support is club (so also BRL² 185, and TOB), or alternatively cudgel (so KBL :: Fohrer KAT 16: 526, 527: curved sword, scimitar, with reference to Driver EphTheoLov. 26 (1950) 339f); but the details previously noted (see above a and b) probably argue against this specific meaning. In contrast to Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and Dhorme, KBL makes no reference to a supposed word tartaḥu in Akkadian, from which the Hebrew sbst. would have been borrowed; on this see already König Wb. 539b; instead of tartaḥu it is much better to read šiltāḥu(m) arrow (AHw. 1236f; CAD Š/2: 448b). †

תזז: probably a western variant for MHeb., JArm. נתז with the basic meaning of jump off, from which the hif./af. comes to mean to cause to jump off, hurl away, cf. K. Marti Das Buch Jesaja (1900) 150; Dalman Wörterbuch 280a.

hif: pf. התז (pausal form for *התז, see Marti loc. cit., cf. Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §27k): to tear way young shoots Is 18₅, see Dalman Arbeit 4: 331. †

*תזנות: זנה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 505o; cf. Gulkowitsch Bildung 123: in BHeb. the sbst. occurs only in Ezekiel, and it has no parallel in the cognate languages; it is different from the approximate synonym, → זנות, which is also found in MHeb. and JArm., and it has more distant equivalents in the other Aramaic dialects: Syr. zānītā, zānyūtā, CPArm. znw, emph. znwt?, Mnd. zaniuta (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 160): sf. sg. תזנית, תזנותם, תזנותי, pl. תזנותיך, תזנותיך, תזנותיך, תזנותיך, so also Q Ezk 23₄₃ pr. תזנותיך. On the pl. suffix on a sbst. with the ending ות (ūt-) see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §91 1; Bauer-Leander Heb. 253b; also Zimmerli Ez. 336 on Ezk 16₁₅.

—1. a) obscene practice, metaphorically for the worship of idols Ezk 16_{15-20-22-25f-29-33f-36-23}_{7f-11-14-17-19-29-35}.

—b) Ezk 23₄₃ textual uncertainty for נאופים עת יזנה תזנותה והיא לבלה which would mean: who is worn-out but carries on with adultery, and now they pay for her whoring, and she ... (destroyed); this literal rendering follows Fohrer Ezekiel 137, who also mentions the cj. following Sept. and Pesh. זנה תעשינה הלא כאלה נאפו וזעשי have they not in this way committed adultery and followed the practices of a whore?; on this see e.g. also BHS.

—2. expressions: with בוא (אל) (בתזנותיך) Ezk 16₃₃; with גלה pi. Ezk 23₁₈ (→ גלה pi. 1), nif. Ezk 23₂₉ (sbj. תזנותיך), see Zimmerli Ez. 533; with היה (בתזנותיך) Ezk 16₃₄; with זנה Ezk 23₄₃ (textual corruption); with יסף hif. (אל-תזנו יסף) Ezk 23₁₄; with נתן (obj. תזנו נתן) Ezk 23₇; with עזב (+ לא) Ezk 23₈; with רבה hif. (obj. תזנו רבה) Ezk 16_{25-26-29-23₁₉; with שחת hif. (obj. תזנו שחת) Ezk 23₁₁; with שפך (obj. תזנו שפך) Ezk 16_{15-23₈. †}} תחבלות: A. First of all it should be noted that the derivation of the sbst. is not completely certain, cf. Zimmerli ZAW 51 (1933) 183; and for the different suggestions see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 210a under חבל; it is probable that there is a connection with this vb. which would then give two possibilities: a) the sbst. can be traced back directly to the vb., so König Wb. 540a, and also (?) Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; or b) rather the connection is made only indirectly through the sbst. (which is a participle) חבל sailor, making the verb for its part a denominative from חבל ship's rope; so G. Wildeboer Die Sprüche (KHC 15; 1897) 2.

Perhaps Sept. with its rendering κυβέρνησις gives support to the second suggestion (b), Pr 1₅ 11₁₄ 24₆, κυβερνάω (κυβερνώσις) but it is missing from 12₅; 20₁₈. So probably the skill of the helmsman, the art of steering a boat should be taken as the original meaning of the sbst., which in a few instances can be traced back, so e.g. Gemser *Spr.*² 18; Plöger BK 17: 10; cf. Hartmut Gese Lehre und Wirklichkeit in der alten Weisheit. Studien zu den Sprüchen Salomos und zu dem Buche Hiob (Tübingen, 1958) 46³.

MHeb. תַּחְבּוּלוֹת has a number of different meanings: a) nonsensical jest in a mock contest, so Dalman Wörterbuch 440b; and similarly Levy Wb. 4: 636a; b) company, group, band (> חֶבֶל, see I חֶבֶל HAL 274b, HALOT 286a), so Jastrow Dict. 2: 1660a; also 1: 4019 referring to חבל (III חבל HAL 274b, HALOT 286b). This comes close to the interpretation in the Talmud, as suggested by Levy loc. cit. on Ps 1₁: לֹא לְצִיִּים לֹא יֵשֵׁב וּבְמוֹשֵׁב = שְׂלֵא יֵשֵׁב בְּתַחְבּוּלוֹת which means, he does not stay with a gang which takes up fights in jest.

B. The forms of the word: Jb 37₁₂ בְּתַחְבּוּלוֹתָו = Q בְּתַחְבּוּלוֹתָיו, K בְּתַחְבּוּלוֹתוֹ. K is probably to be preferred. Except for Jb 37₁₂ the sbst. occurs only in the pl., which is most likely to be the so-called abstract pl., in which the various single acts of an action are composed; see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124d; cf. Michel Grundlegung 1: 88; also Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §19b.

C. occurrences: direction, steering:

—1. the guidance of God (אֱלֹהִים) through which the clouds turn round and round to accomplish all that he commands them (NRSV) Jb 37₁₂.

—2. guidance given by people: a) the art of leadership Pr 1₅ (of the נְבוֹן with קִנְיָה 2); in a battle (מִלְחָמָה) Pr 20₁₈ 24₆; יִפְּלוּ-עַם בְּאֵין תַּחְבּוּלוֹת where there is no guidance a nation falls (NRSV) Pr 11₁₄.

—b) consideration, deliberation, thoughts Pr 12₅; Sir 37₁₇ תַּחְבּוּלוֹת לִבְבִּי עֵקֶרֶת the heart is the root of deliberation; REB: the roots of choice are in the heart; NRSV: the mind is the root of all conduct. †

10111 תַּחְכְּמוֹנִי

[תַּחְכְּמוֹנִי: 2S 23₈; Josephus Ἐμμων (Schalit Namenwb. 10): textual error, rd. הַחְכְּמוֹנִי → חַחְכְּמוֹנִי.]

10112 תַּחְלָאִים

תַּחְלָאִים: חלה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 497x:

—1. the sbst. may written in different ways; according KBL the ח in front of the pl. ending comes from the root *חלא as a by-form of the vb. חלה, but that is questionable; it is rather to be explained as a dissimilation from yā to ḥ; for corresponding examples see Bauer-Leander Heb. 215g, h; also Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 1: §170;

this is supported by the way the sbst. is written in DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232) תחלויים in 1QH, fragment 3:16; see E.L. Sukenik The Dead Sea Scrolls of the Hebrew University (1955) plate 54. In Dalman Wörterbuch 441a the form of the sbst. given for MHeb. תחלואים sickness corresponds to that of BHeb.

—2. the forms of the word: st. abs. see above; cstr. תחלואיכי, sf. תחלואי (Bauer-Leander Heb. 535 and especially Wagner Aram. p. 130 §15:2 (with bibliography), תחלואיה, tantum pl. see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124d; cf. Michel Grundlegung 1: 88; also Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §19b.

—3. sickness (:: חלי), probably more precisely being in some condition of illness, on which see K. Seybold Das Gebet des Kranken im Alten Testament (BWANT 99; 1973) 22f.

—a) some condition of sickness which Yahweh has inflicted on the land Dt 29²¹, with I חלה pi.; רעב pains of hunger, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 100 (parallel with חרבי חרבי Jr 14¹⁸, ממותי תחלואים an excruciating manner of death Jr 16⁴, with מות; רעים תחלואים seriously ill 2C 21¹⁹, with מות).

—b) the same sense (as a) can also be accepted for Ps 103³ לְכֹל-תַחֲלֹאֵיכִי הֶרְפָּא, even though this sbst. and not חלי (or rather חלי(י)ם) has been used. †

תחלה: I חלל, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; MHeb. Levy Wb. 4: 636 (Dalman Wörterbuch 441a); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232): 1Qp Hab 8:9 עומרו בתחלת at the beginning of his duty, meaning when he took up his duty: cstr. תחלת.

—1. a) beginning Pr 9¹⁰ Qoh 10¹³; בתחלה at the start 2S 17⁹; first Ju 1¹ 20¹⁸; as it was before Gn 41²¹ Is 1²⁶, cf. Wildberger BK 10: 55; at the beginning, the previous occasion Gn 13³ 43¹⁸⁻²⁰ Da 8¹ 9²¹.

—b) בתחלת with a following genitive: α) 2S 21⁹ 2K 17²⁵ Am 7¹ Ru 1²² Da 9²³ Ezr 4⁶; מותחלת 2S 21¹⁰; β) תחלת as temporal accusative (Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §100b): תחלת קציר שערים at the beginning of the barley harvest 2S 21⁹; בהושע תחלת דבר יהוה Hos 1² “at the beginning of the talking of Yahweh with (through) Hosea”, or alternatively translating more freely, “as Yahweh began to speak with (through) Hosea”, on which see Wolff BK 14/1² 6, 12f. :: Rudolph KAT 13/1: 37 (bibliography), who takes these words as a heading: the beginning of the speech of Yahweh to (through) Hosea.

—2. cj. Neh 11¹⁷ pr. ראש התחלה rd. with Sept.^L, Vulg. ראש התהלה, → I תהלה 4.

—3. expressions (selected): with דבר (תחלת) Hos 1² on which see above 1bβ; with היתה (בתהיתה) Gn 13³, cf. 2K 17²⁵; with ירד (בתירד) Gn 43²⁰; with נפל (בתנפל) 2S 17⁹; with עלה (בתעלה) Ju 1¹ 20¹⁸, cf. Am 7¹; with ראה (בתראה) Da 9²¹. †

10115 תָּחֹמֹס

תָּחֹמֹס: probably a primary noun (: KBL where it is hesitantly taken from the vb. I חָמַס); SamP. tâmos an unclean bird, but the species can not be precisely identified; for suggestions see A. Dillmann *Die Bücher Exodus und Leviticus*³ (1897) 536; and especially also Zorell Lexicon 895a; for the Vrss. see Sept. γλαύξ (γλαῦξ); Vulg. noctua, from which it is most likely a kind of owl, so Aharoni Animals 469, 471 (which is cited in KBL); also Zorell Lex.; Gesenius-Buhl Handw. mentions the various possibilities but does not express a preference; while König Wb. 540b offers cuckoo as a translation, on the grounds of the very questionable derivation of the sbst. from the vb. I חָמַס: Lv 11₁₆ Dt 14₁₅. †

תַּחַן: n.m. > name of a tribe; Sept.: 1) Nu 26₃₅ ταναχ, SamP. תַּחַן tâm; 2) 1C 7₂₅ Sept.^{RA} Θαεν, variant (Sept.^A) Θααν, Josephus Θαηνός (Schalit Namenwb. 53) referring to 1 or 2 or to both. The personal name is not explained by Noth Personennamen 260a, and the meaning of it remains obscure; the corresponding possibilities are altogether questionable: a) KBL: from root תַּחַן (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 495k), which means that the more likely root to be considered is I חָנַן, but perhaps the root II חָנַן should not be completely excluded for it could be a name used abusively or mockingly; cf. the usage in Akkadian; see Stamm Namengebung 268 no. 3; b) it could come from root חָנָה store, so König Wb. 540b, but that is most unlikely.

—1. the son of אֲפַרְיִם, or rather the ancestor of a clan of this tribe Nu 26₃₅; there has been some uncertainty in the transmission of the personal name, for in 1C 7₂₀ instead of the form תַּחַן as above there occurs תַּחַת, on which see Rudolph Chr. 72; also Zorell Lexicon 895a.

—2. a descendant of אֲפַרְיִם, or rather the ancestor of a clan of this tribe 1C 7₂₅. †

Der. gentilic תַּחְנִי.

I תַּחֲנֶה: I חָנַן qal and hitp. (Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n); MHeb. —1. mercy, pardon, compassion (vb. I חָנַן qal) Jos 11₂₀ Ezr 9₈.

—2. pleading, pleading for compassionate attention (Ina Willi-Plein VT 23 (1973) 97), sbst. from I חָנַן hitp. see Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n (often parallel with תַּפְּלִיָּה) 1K 8_{28·30·38·45·49·52·54} 9₃ Jr 36₇ 37₂₀ 38₂₆ 42_{2·9} Ps 6₁₀ 55₂ 119₁₇₀ Da 9₂₀ 2C 6_{19·29·35} 33₁₃, pl. 2C 6₃₉; on this pl. see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124f: an aggregation of the elements of an action :: mss. and 1K 8₄₉ sg. תַּחֲנֶתְךָ, but this slight alteration is not necessary.

—3. cj. Ps 102_{18b} pr. תַּפְּלִיָּה prop. תַּחֲנֶתְךָ (cf. e.g. BHS), which arises because of the earlier occurrence of the sbst. תַּפְּלִיָּה in vs._a. The cj. can be supported from Sept., which has the variation προσευχή

Ἐγρηδέησις; and also from Vulg. iuxta Sept. oratio

—prex; against this is the rendering of the sbst. in Vulg. iuxta Hebr. oratio

—oratio; and in Pesh. slōtā

—slōtā. So it appears that the cj. is possible but not cogent, for what may lie behind the Sept. and Vulg. iuxta Sept. may be an attempt to smoothe over the wording of the text; cf. also Kraus BK 15⁵ 864.

10118 תְּחַנְּתָה

II תְּחַנְּתָה: n.m. > name of a tribe, Sept.^{RA} Θανα, Sept.^B Θαυμαν; the name has not been explained by Noth Personennamen 260a, but KBL is clearly correct in identifying it with I תְּחַנְּתָה; a similar explanation is in König Wb. 540b, who translates a gift of compassion, but that is advisory rather than compulsory, for the simpler rendering as pleading is sufficient. By this the word means a request for children which has been fulfilled through the one who bears the name: a descendant of Judah, or more precisely a member of a subgroup of this tribe, rather than being taken as its ancestor, 1C 4₁₂. †

10119 תְּחַנְּנוּ

*תְּחַנְּנוּ: I חָנַן hitp. (Bauer-Leander Heb. 497x); tantum pl.; JArm. תְּחַנְּנוּ pleading; CPArm. thnwnyn, emph. thnwny 'mildness, compassion' (Schulthess Lex. 67a): tantum pl. תְּחַנְּנוּ and once תְּחַנְּנוּ (Ps 68₆); on both forms of the pl. see Michel Grundlegung 1: 88; cstr. תְּחַנְּנוּ, sf. תְּחַנְּנוּ, תְּחַנְּנוּ, תְּחַנְּנוּ.

—1. pleading (the sbst. means essentially the same as → I תְּחַנְּתָה); cf. further Rex A. Mason ZAW 88 (1976) 231f: תְּחַנְּנוּ is in essence a plea for חָן. It can be distinguished from the more regularly prepared תְּפִלָּה in that תְּחַנְּנוּ are the expressions of a mind beset with terror which do not have established formulations; he refers to D. Ap-Thomas Some Aspects of the Root HNN in the Old Testament (JSS 2; 1957) 128-148, especially 137; Jr 3₂₁ Zech 12₁₀ Ps 28₂₋₆ 31₂₃ 86₆ 116₁ (rd. קוֹל), 130₂ 140₇ 143₁ Jb 40₂₇ Pr 18₂₃ Da 9_{3-17f.} 2C 6₂₁ Sir 51₁₁.

תַּחֲפְנָחַס: place name, so Jr 2₁₆, (תַּחֲפְנָחַס), Ezk 30₁₈; Sept. Ταφνας; it may be taken from an as yet unattested expression in Egyptian, t'-h(t)-(n)p'-nh̄sy meaning the house of the Negro (the Nubian); but according to Reicke-Rost Hw. 1963 this meaning is not to be preferred with any degree of certainty against the alternative interpretation suggested by Bertholet Fschr. 13: fortress of Penah̄se, on which see especially Zimmerli Ez. 738 on Ezk 30₁₈. The place can best be identified with the Greek place name Δάφνας/Δάφνη (Herodotus ii: 30) :: Alt ZDPV 66 (1943) 64-68, who identifies it with Tell Defnē/Tell Defennē south-west of Pelusium on the eastern edge of the Nile Delta, cf. also Simons Geog. §1319: Jr 2₁₆ 43₇₋₈₋₉ 44₁ 46₁₄ Ezk 30₁₈. †

10123 תַּחֲפְנִיס

תַּחֲפְנִיס: 1K 11_{19f}; Sept.^{RA} Θεκεμιννας (cf. Görg BN 36 (1987) 22 who states that the reading of the Sept. is Θεκαγγεινα and similar); Josephus Θαφίνη (Schalit Namenwb. 54).

—a) it is not a n.f., as MT, but an appellative name, used to designate an official position; in Egyptian the appellative appears as t' hmt nyswt the consort of the king, on which see B.H. Stricker ActOr. 15 (1937) 11f; see further Weippert Edom 301f, 632-35; Gray *Kings*³ 285; Noth Könige 253; Görg loc. cit.

—b) with הַגְּבִירָה following תַּחֲפְנִיס the position of the royal consort is correctly described by a Jewish title, so Würthwein ATD 11/1: 137; and subsequently Görg loc. cit. 23; → גְּבִירָה 3. †

תְּחָרָה: Ex 28₃₂ 39₂₃, only in phrase expressing comparison כַּפִּי תְּחָרָה, to describe the opening for the head in the ceremonial garment of the High Priest; the exact sense of the sbst. and also its origin are uncertain; SamP. version תְּחָרָה tērra.

—a) the Vrss. vary: α) Sept. καὶ -]182̄σται τὸ περιστόμιον ἐξ αὐτοῦ μέσον, ὥαν -]182̄χον κύκλ τοῦ περιστομίου, -]182̄ργον ὑφάντου, τὴν συμβολὴν συνυφασμένην ἐξ αὐτοῦ, ἵνα μὴ ῥαγῆ and the opening in it (in the garment of the High Priest that reached down to his feet) is in the middle, with a seam all around the opening; it (the seam) is woven, and from it (you shall make) a woven binding, so that it (the seam or the binding) shall not be torn away; β) Vulg. agrees completely with Sept., and it describes the opening in the middle of the garment (the tunica of the High Priest) as being surrounded by a seam of woven material (ora ... textilis); but the words referring to the binding in Sept. are supplemented by the clause sicut fieri solet in extremis vestium partibus. It is noteworthy that neither in Sept. nor in Vulg. is there an expression for the comparison כַּפִּי תְּחָרָה which is found in the MT; similarly REB (and NEB) omit any statement of comparison; but that is not the case in Pesh. or Tg.^o; γ) Pesh.: ^o(y)k pūm sīras (pl. of sīrā, Brockelmann Lex. 472b) like the opening of threads (or the warp). δ) Tg.^o כַּפּוּם שְׂרִיץ like the opening in armour, or rather in a suit of armour. It is from these renderings that the Rabbinic tradition is taken, on which see Cohen VT 24 (1974) 361-66; and in fact this has most to support it, so e.g. ZüB; TOB; Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 178; Childs Exodus 527; also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; NRSV: like the opening in a coat of mail :: KBL: leather (see b).

—b) In Gesenius-Buhl Handw. the word is taken as a loan from Egyptian dhr leather (so also W. Max Müller Asien und Europa nach altägyptischen Denkmälern (1893) 104). This is followed without hesitation by KBL which gives the translation of the Egyptian sbst. as sole, shield, thong etc. of leather; תְּחָרָה is then taken to mean leather, leather cuirass. The derivation of the word from Egyptian is found also in Görg ZAW 89 (1977) 116¹² with reference to J. Friedrich Ephod und Choschen im Lichte des Alten Orients (1968) 47. According to Lambdin Loan Words 155 it is doubtful if it can be taken as a loan from Egyptian dhr, on which see also Cohen VT 24 (1974) 361⁵.

—c) with regard to the composition of the תְּחָרָה see further BRL² 248a: it is doubtful whether Heb. tahrā (Ex 28₃₂) means an ordinary leather apron rather than scale armour.

—d) reviewing the evidence suggests that a derivation of the BHeb. sbst. from Egyptian is possible but uncertain, and in translation it is recommended to use armour, following Tg.^o (see above aδ), or alternatively suit of armour (as ZüB). †

10126 תְּחָרַע

10127 תְּחָשׁ

I תְּחָשׁ: 1) the origin of the sbst. is uncertain, but it occurs in SamP. as tāš.

—a) there may be an etymological connection to be made with Arb. d/tuḥas porpoise, a species of dolphin.

—b) besides this a connection may also be made with the Egyptian vb. ṯḥś to stretch a skin, stretch leather (Erman-G. Wb. 5: 396).

—c) because of the connection with Arabic (see above a) תַּחַשׁ is most often taken to mean dolphin, so e.g. KBL; also Childs Exodus 523, where other proposals are mentioned as well; on this see also Zorell Lexicon 895f, and König Wb. 541a; also especially Y. Aharoni Animals 462f: narwhal, sea-unicorn.

—d) see especially BRL² 203: Heb. taḥaš (Ez 16₁₀), or alternatively in the phrase ‘ōr taḥaš (as for example in Ex 25₅) can hardly mean the tanned skin of a type of dolphin, but perhaps a type of fine leather imported from Egypt (cf. 1b).

—2. a) the forms of the word: תַּחַשׁ, pl. תַּחַשִּׁים (SamP. tāššəm, < basic form תַּחַשִּׁים).

—b) because the meaning of תַּחַשׁ is difficult to define properly the question arises of how best to translate the word; it is sometimes felt best to keep the Heb. word untranslated, so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL: tachash.

—3. the occurrences of the word: a) it is linked with עוֹר the skin of the taḥaš: α) sg. Nu 4_{6.8.10-12.14}, β) pl. תַּחַשִּׁים (ה) עֲרֹת Ex 26₁₄ 35_{7.23} 36₁₉ 39₃₄, γ) עוֹר הַתַּחַשׁ > הַתַּחַשׁ Nu 4₂₅.

—b) תַּחַשׁ a material that is used for sandals Ezk 16₁₀ (→ נעל qal 2).

—4. where the word is linked with עוֹר, as mentioned in 3a, to mean a type of leather, the purpose of using the material is to put a protective cover on the sacred tabernacle and its sacred equipment when it is being transported, cf. Zimmerli Ez. 352; see also the common linking with the sbst. → מִכְסֵה, cstr. מִכְסֵה Ex 26₁₄ 36₁₉ 39₃₄; Nu 4_{10-12.25}; or alternatively כַּסִּי (SamP. kassuwwi) Nu 4_{6.14}; the associated verbs are בּוֹא hif. Ex 39₃₄; כָּסָה pi. (ב) Nu 4_{11.12}; נָשָׂא Nu 4₂₅; נָתַן Nu 4₆, (אֶל) Nu 4₁₀; עָשָׂה Ex 26₁₄ 36₁₉; פָּרַשׁ Nu 4₁₄. †

II תַּחַשׁ Gn 22₂₄: n.m.; ? < place name or name of a territory.

—1) Sept. Τοχος, Josephus Τααδος (Schalit Namenwb. 118); the meaning of the word is uncertain, but possibilities and attempted solutions include.

—a) II תַּחַשׁ = I תַּחַשׁ', so KBL; it would then be an appellative name meaning a type of fish (perhaps a dolphin) which had become a proper name; for this compare the personal name נִנְיָ, נִיָּ (Noth Personennamen 230) with the corresponding word in Akk. nūnu(m) where it is used in theophoric personal names to mean a river deity (AHw. 803f, sv. nūnu(m) 6; but see now see also CAD N, 336b-341a, especially 340b sv. nūnu 2 and 3 for the constellation Piscis Austrinus and other stars, and the last main sentence of the entry, which says that the element nūnu in personal names is probably a foreign word).

In BHeb. נִנְיָ/נִיָּ occurs as a personal name rather infrequently, and → נִיָּ is not used anywhere at all.

—c) with vb.: יָשַׁב תַּחֲתָיו he stayed in his place Ex 16²⁹, meaning the same as with עָמַד Lv 13²³, בּוֹא Pr 11⁸, שָׁכַן 2S 7¹⁰, הִנִּיחַ Is 46⁷, מָן קוֹם Ex 10²³.

—2. the south wind Ps 78₂₆ Jb 39₂₆ (לְתִימָן for the south wind), Song 4₁₆ Sir 43₁₆.

—3. for סַעֲרוֹת תִּימָן a storm in the lands of the south, meaning a southern storm Zech 9₁₄, a connection can be made with either territory in the south (see above 1) or with the south wind (see 2); cf. Rudolph KAT 13/4: 184; NRSV: the whirlwinds of the south. †

10141 תִּימָן

II תִּימָן: name of a territory > n.m.; SamP. n.m. tīmān; Sept. Θαυμαν, Josephus Θημανός (Schalit Namenwb. 55): Teman.

—1. name of a territory:

—a. perhaps originally it was an area of land in the south in Edom, and lying in the south because of the etymological connection with I תִּימָן; on this see de Vaux RB 76 (1969) 379-85; on Ob 9 also cf. Wolff BK 14/3: 34; perhaps Teman indicates the southern region of the mountainous territory of the Edomites on the east of the Arabah while Bozra indicates the northern region; see also Rudolph KAT 13/2: 134f on Am 1₁₂, who sees in תִּימָן the original name of a region, but one which can no longer be identified (see further under b).

—b. occurrences of the word: Jr 49_{7,20} Ezk 25₁₃ Am 1₁₂ Ob 9 Hab 3₃; for the most part תִּימָן is used to indicate the whole of the land of Edom, on which see Weippert Edom 422; Rudolph loc. cit. 134f; also Knauf ZAW 97 (1985) 249; but the possibility is raised in Am 1₁₂ (תִּימָן parallel with בְּצִרָה) of תִּימָן being used in an older sense for the name of a region.

—c. according to Nelson Glueck AASOR 15 (1934/35) 82f, and also in Glueck Jordan 24-26, תִּימָן would be a place in Northern Arabia situated quite near Petra, and to be identified with tāwīlān; but that is completely uncertain; it is mentioned as another possibility (as well as those under a and b above) by Wolff BK 14/2: 195 (but not in BK 14/3: 34), and also by Zimmerli Ez. 597; cf. also Reicke-Rost Hw. 1967; against this see especially de Vaux RB 76 (1969) 379-385. On all three proposals (a, b and c) see also Simons Geog. §253; also Abel Géogr. Pal. 2: 479f.

—2. name of a tribe > n.m., the eponymous hero of one of the בְּנֵי עִשָׂו Gn 36₁₁.15 42 1C 1₃₆₋₅₃, see IDB 4: 533f. †

10142 תִּימָנִי

—1. gentilic from II תִּימָן Gn 36₃₄ 1C 1₄₅.

—2. gentilic from תִּימָא Jb 2₁₁ 4₁ 15₁ 22₁ 42₇₋₉; so with KBL and especially R. Meyer Nab. 99². †

10143 תִּימָנִי

תִּימָנִי: 1C 4₆; place name, name of a tribe > n.m. (on the ending, cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 501x); Sept. Θαμμαν. The explanation of the n.m. is obscure, cf. Rudolph Chr. 33: skills fail with names like Temeni (6) and Hazzobeba (8); according to Gesenius-Buhl Handw. it is a patronymic from an unidentified place; according to KBL it is a gentilic from the root ימָן. The form in Sept. gives rise to the question of whether תִּימָנִי may be a later or dialect form developed from תִּימָנִי (י)מָנִי. The name of the land or of the region could have become a personal name; parallels which come to mind are בּוֹזִי, בּוֹזִי (ת), יהוּדִי (ת) and כּוֹשִׁי, see Noth Personennamen 232 and subsequently Stamm Fschr. 118 = Frauennamen 322: one of the descendants of Judah, or alternatively a leader or representative of a Judaeo-Calebite clan. †

10144 תִּימָרָה

*תִּימָרָה, *תִּמְרָה: a primary noun, from which the MHeb. vb. תִּמַּר pi. to rise up like a palm-tree is derived; see Levy Wb. 4: 653a; perhaps the sbst. (? cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 473h, 476w) is linked with I תִּמְרָה as a diminutive; cf. also → תִּמְרָה and the expression of the above mentioned תִּימָרָה in the Oriental tradition as תִּימְרָה; see Kahle Mas. 76, and subsequently Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; the instances of the word in MHeb. vary.

—a) תִּמְרָה a column of steam rising like a palm-tree, so Levy Wb. 4: 653.

—b) תִּמְרָה (תִּמְרָה) a column of smoke, so Dalman Wörterbuch 445a: BHeb. pl. cstr. תִּימְרוֹת: column JI 3₃ HI 3₆, in both instances there is the collocation תִּימְרוֹת עֶשֶׂן columns of smoke, and this is synonymous with עֶשֶׂן עֵמוֹד Ju 20₄₀. There are various possibilities for explaining עֶשֶׂן: i) it may designate the smoke from a volcano of the well-known Pinien-type, so Th.H. Robinson Die Zwölf Kleinen Propheten (HAT 14² (1954) 66 on JI 3₃; and subsequently Wolff BK 14/2: 66; ii) the smoke is stirred up by the burning fireworks, so Gerleman BK 18: 138 on Song 3₆.

—c) in the same way for Song 3₆ O. Keel Das Hohe Lied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 18; 1986) 119: the word for column that is used here is perhaps to be connected with tamar palm, and timora palm-shaped ornament (1K 6_{29,32,35}); and then it means the top of a stylised palm-shaped coronet with representations of columns and arrows typical of the monarchic period in Israel.

—d) we prefer not to risk making a decision about the various possibilities mentioned in a-c. †

10145 תִּימָנִי

תִּימָנִי: a form with the ending -ī serving as a mark of affiliation, on which see below; Sept.^{BS} Iεαζ(ε)ι, Sept.^A Θωσσαει, Vulg. Thosaites. תִּימָנִי 1C 11₄₅, someone originating from an unidentified tribe or place, which must have been pronounced as *תִּימָנִי or *תִּימָנִי. †

10146 תִּירוֹשׁ

תִּירוֹשׁ, תִּירֹשׁ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 475t, on p. 476: the basic form is uncertain.

A. The etymology of the word is unknown, but for possibilities or alternatively suggestions see especially H.H. Schmid THAT 780f.

—1. deriving it from a Semitic root: a) from the vb. יִרֹשׁ to tread down, press wine, so P. Haupt AJSL 26 (1909/10) 215, 223 on Mi 6₁₅; and subsequently Koehler ZAW 46 (1928) 218-220; also KBL cj. pr. תִּירוֹשׁ rd. תִּירֹשׁ; so also Rudolph KAT 13/3: 117; see also HAL 421b, HALOT 442a: II יִרֹשׁ; however a verb like this should not be taken to exist in Jb 20₁₅, on which see Loretz UF 9 (1977) 354, as opposed to, e.g. Tur Sinai The Book of Job (1917) 314; b) there is only one verb y-r-š (I יִרֹשׁ) which has the meaning to take into one's possession by force, to drive out > to press out, so Görg BN 8 (1979) 7-10; c) there lies behind the sbst. another root which is different from the one mentioned above (a), see H.H. Schmid loc. cit.; d) the first two proposals (see above a and b) are not convincing while the third (c) must remain an open possibility. As far as the first is concerned it can no longer be supported by an Ug. yrt* to press out, which Dietrich-Loretz UF 10 (1978) 426 wished to find as the base for Ug. trt in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 2, 34: 32 and 1, 22:i:18, 20 as a synonym of the sbst. mr̄t; the derivation of this latter word is very uncertain, on which see earlier Aistleitner Wb. 1684 (from which it is taken as a vb.); see further Gordon Textbook §19:1558; Fisher Parallels 1: p. 427 no. 79; Caquot Textes 476^h; and especially Aartun UF 16 (1984) 50f; see also Schmid loc. cit.

—2. there is no Semitic etymology for תִּירֹ(וֹ)שׁ but it has been introduced into Hebrew as a cultural word from the mediterranean area, so Rabin Orientalia 32 (1963) 137f: a loanword from hieroglyphic Hittite tuwarsa wine, occurring in Greek as Θύσσοϛ; cf. also Gordon Textbook §19:2613, and Brown VT 19 (1969) 168 :: Aartun UF 16 (1984) 35: the Hittite sbst. is a loanword from Semitic.

Looking again at all the evidence it does not appear possible simply to prefer the second solution (2) instead of the first (1) for questions remain open on both sides.

B. The word in the cognate languages: MHeb. תִּירוֹשׁ unfermented wine, must (Dalman Wörterbuch 442a; and especially Levy Wb. 4: 641a); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 233), Temple Scroll, see Johann Maier Die Tempelrolle vom Toten Meer (Uni-Taschenbücher 829; 1978) col. 19: 14 (p. 32); col. 22: 7,10 (p. 34). Maier translates the sbst. as new wine, and on p. 86 he suggests rendering תִּירוֹשׁ as fresh wine, but not unfermented grape juice; SamP. tīrāš; Ug. tr̄t new wine, must (Gordon Textbook §19:2613; Gibson *Myths*² 159b; Fisher Parallels 1: p. 210 no. 250; p. 345 no. 530; p. 450 no. 121; Aartun UF 16 (1984) 35): a) as an appellative noun Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 17:vi:7, 8; 1, 114:3f, 16 (on both occasions parallel with yn); the text is uncertain at Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:iv:20; b) divine name Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 39: 16; 1, 102:9, which may perhaps correspond to Akk. Siriš (Meissner Bab. Ass. 1: 239, and 2: 10f); see further Herdner Ugaritica 7: p. 4; Ph., Punic trš Karatepe 3: 7, 9 :: šb^c wtrš (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 26): together with the sbst. šb^c satisfaction trš can be rendered either as wine (so Donner-Röllig Inschriften 2: p. 38; Tomback Lexicon 345) or as must, drink (so Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 335; compare Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1234: must, new wine); cf. Alt WdO 4 (1949) 283: it is clear that here תִּירוֹשׁ does not only mean must, but wine; so that when it is used together with שָׁבַע it means satisfaction with food and drink; on Punic see Tomback Lexicon 345.

C. The sbst. in Heb.:

—1. a) sf. תִּירוּשָׁם, תִּירוּשָׁה, תִּירוּשֵׁי.

Smend); next to חֲנוּר Sir 34₂₂; it also has the meaning (α) the juice that is in the grape Ju 9₁₃ Is 65₈ (בְּאֶשְׁכּוֹל); β) fresh must in the hollow of the winepress Hos 9₂ Mi 6₁₅ Jl 2₂₄ Pr 3₁₀; γ) wine, vine Is 24₇, see Wildberger BK 10: 912, 925.

—2. תִּירוּשָׁם תִּירוּשָׁה בְּאֶשְׁכּוֹל occurs in the following listed sequences (Koehler ZAW 46: 218f; KBL): a) תִּירוּשָׁם וְיִצְהָר Dt 7₁₃ 11₁₄ 12₁₇ 14₂₃ 18₄ 28₅₁ Jr 31₁₂ Hos 2₁₀₋₂₄ Jl 1₁₀ 2₁₉ Hg 1₁₁ Neh 5₁₁ 10₄₀ 13₅₋₁₂ 2C 31₅ 32₂₈; b) תִּירוּשָׁם וְיִצְהָר Nu 18₁₂; c) תִּירוּשָׁם וְיִצְהָר וְדָגָן וְדָגָן וְיִצְהָר וְדָגָן Jl 2₂₄; d) תִּירוּשָׁם וְיִצְהָר וְדָגָן וְדָגָן Gn 27₂₈₋₃₇ Dt 33₂₈ 2K 18₃₂ Is 36₁₇ 62₈ Hos 2₁₁ 7₁₄ 9₂ Zech 9₁₇ Ps 4₈; e) תִּירוּשָׁם וְיִצְהָר Neh 10₃₈. †

תִּירָס: name of a people > n.m.; Sept. Θιρας, Josephus Θείρης (Schalit Namenwb. 54); Egyptian Ty-w-u-š', Tw-ry-š' (KBL): traditionally Tursha, a part of the sea-peoples who came into conflict with Ramesses III (1198-1166), see Simons Geog. §256. Turscha probably corresponds to Greek Τυρσηνός/Τυρσηνοί (Herodotus i: 57, 94), on which see Eberhard Otto Ägypten. Der Weg des Pharaonenreiches (Urban Bücherei, 1953) 179; see further David Neiman in Gordon Fschr. 121: Tyrsenia/Tyrrhenia; see also Pauly-Wissowa Kleine Real-Enz. 5: 1029; Τυρσηνός corresponds in Italy (in Latin) on the one hand to Turscus and Tursanus, and on the other hand to Etruscus and Etruria (from Etrusia), which arose by metathesis; see Meyer Geschichte 2/1² (1928): 556² (on p. 557); see further pp. 555-565, 578-579, 585-593; Pauly-Wissowa Kleine Real-Enz. 2: 382ff; even now cf. e.g. A. Dillmann *Die Genesis*⁶ (1892) 175; see further Westermann BK 1/1: 675, who also mentions the identification of תִּירָס with the people of Thrace, with a reference to Josephus; so also Hölscher Erdk. 56, who does not accept any identification with a people from Italy; furthermore n תִּירוּשָׁם תִּירוּשָׁם see Zorell Lexicon 898a; also IDB 4: 652; Gn 10₂ 1C 1₅. †

—BibHeb.: תִּישׁ, pl. תִּישִׁים (SamP. tīšəm < basic form *תִּישִׁים).

—1. billy goat (fem. עֵז), Gn 30³⁵ 32¹⁵ Pr 30³¹ 2C 17¹¹.

—2. expressions: with בוא hif. 2C 17¹¹; with לָקַח (בְּיָדוֹ) Gn 32^{14f}; with סור hif. Gn 30³⁵; with קום (cj. BHS) Pr 30³¹. † תָּךְ: תוֹךְ, תָּךְ *תכך (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 455h); Arm. Wagner Aram. 322 (but with ?, because the root is attested already in Phoenician. The uncertainty (or rather the improbability) of the Aramaic connection is now strengthened by the associated Akk. vb. (see below): JArm. תכך together with תוֹךְ (Jastrow Dict. 2: 1652, quoted from Wagner loc. cit.; on תוֹךְ also cf. Dalman Wörterbuch 439b); Syr. tak (tkk), corresponding to Akk. takāku press, oppress (AHw. 1304a; see also von Soden UF 13 (1981) 164 = Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162; 1985) 204); Ph. tkk (Harris Gramm. 155); on tk (Karatepe 2: 5), see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 327 and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1212f, with the proposals mentioned there (in Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 26 read tkl); Arb. takka to trample down, tread underfoot, crush (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 95); the sbst. is missing in MHeb.; JArm. תוכא (= tukkā) damage, injury (only in Proverbs; Levy Wb. 4: 631b; Dalman Wörterbuch 439b); Syr. tukkā restraint, damage; Mnd. pl. tukia reproaches, threats, restraints etc. (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 483a); Akk. tukku oppression, act of oppression (AHw. 1367b, Canaanite loanword ?); Ug. tk (?). Wagner Aram. §16:4e (p. 135): BHeb. pl. תִּכְכִּים, which could be from the root תכך, cf. תִּכְכִּי, sf. תִּכְכִּי is perhaps constructed under Aramaic influence, but this remains extremely questionable; cf. also Bauer-Leander Heb. 570t.

—1) oppression, violence: בְּמִרְמָה תוֹךְ בְּתוֹךְ מִרְמָה Jr 9⁵ (textual emendation, see BHS) oppression upon oppression, deception upon deception; מִרְמֹת וְתָךְ Ps 10⁷ (מִלֵּא פִיהוּ); מִרְמָה וְתָךְ Ps 55¹²; with II מִשִׁ/בִּישׁ, Sept. τόκος καὶ δόλος, Vulg. iuxta Sept. usura et dolus; מִתוֹךְ וּמִחֶמְסַם Ps 72¹⁴; with גֵּאֲלִי, Sept. ἐκ τόκου καὶ ἐξ ἀδικίας, Vulg. iuxta Sept. ex usuris et iniquitate, Vulg. iuxta Hebr. ab usura et iniquitate, תִּכְכִּים אִישׁ tormentor, petty tyrant Pr 29¹³, so KBL; Saadia translates almutawassīṭ as a mediocre person who is neither rich nor poor; the context of MT is רָשׁ וְאִישׁ תִּכְכִּים נִפְנְשׁוּ, which becomes in Sept. δανιστοῦ καὶ χρεοφειλέτου ἀλλήλοις συνελθόντων if creditor and debtor come together, Vulg. pauper et creditor obviam fuerunt; here the idea in the Hebrew is rendered as though it were a legal matter concerning trading or debt; this corresponds to ת(ו) Jr 9⁵ Ps 10⁷ 55¹² occurring together with מִרְמֹת/מִרְמָה. Besides this for ת(ו) Sept. Ps 55¹² 72¹⁴ makes use of the sbst. τόκος interest, and Vulg. uses usura/usurae with the same meaning; so this opens the question about whether ת(ו) could have the overall meaning which is supported by the cognate languages of oppression, or the more special sense of misconduct in business affairs, trading, so Schwantes Das Recht der Armen (BET 4: 1977) 188².

—2. Ps 90^{11b}, textual uncertainty וְכִירְאֲתָךְ עֵבְרִיתָךְ, cj. following Sept. καὶ ἀπὸ τοῦ φόβου σου corresponding to וְמִיִּרְאֲתָךְ, which can be differently divided into the words מִי רֵאָה תָךְ עֵבְרִיתָךְ who perceives the heart of your fury?, or מִי יִרָא עֵמִי רֵאָה תָךְ עֵבְרִיתָךְ who is afraid of ...?; on this see especially Gunkel Ps. 397, 401; similarly Kraus BK 15⁵ 795, 796; see further ZüB; KBL; BHK; BHS; cf. also TOB :: MT, which is followed by e.g. Fr. Baethgen Die Psalmen (GHK 2/2; 1892) 286: who recognises the strength of your anger and also the fear of your rage?; so probably especially with Vulg. iuxta Hebr. et secundum timorem tuum indignationem tuam. Even though this does not seem impossible and the wording of Sept. is close to that of Vulg. iuxta Sept. and Pesh., the cj. is probably nevertheless preferable. †

תכה (?) hapax legomenon Dt 33₃: pu. pf. תָּכּוּ; SamP. tāku (from either the root תוּךְ or תכה to be subject to, cf. LOT 3/1, p. 162: תָּכּוּ וְהֵם לְרִגְלֶיךָ; the meaning of the vb. is not exactly clear and does not have any exact correspondence in the cognate languages (on which see b).

—a) the Vrss. differ, on which see Zorell Lexicon 898a; also especially Nötscher Fschr. 265-270, who examines the rendering of Vulg. et qui adpropinquant pedibus suis and those who come close to your feet, which is similar to Pesh. wkennōn madrān lreḡlāk and they follow your foot; according to Nötscher both these renderings can be traced back to the Rabbinic tradition, and this recurs in e.g. ZüB: but they follow your foot; NRSV: they marched at your heels; but it is uncertain whether this corresponds to the original sense of the the vb.

—b) etymological investigations: α) König Wb. 543a: Arb. taka'a, ittaka'a to lie down, which would suggest for תכה to settle down; cf. REB following NEB: they sit at his feet; β) Komlós VT 6 (1956) 435f: תכה as a cognate root or western variant of Arm. תָּכַךְ and תוּךְ (for which → תָּךְ); but this vb. does not mean only to wound, harm, inflict damage, put pressure on, but also to knot, tie together; it is the base for the JArm. sbst. תִּכְּא, תִּכְּא, תִּכְּא interlinked chain, twisted rope (Levy Wb. 4: 641b) and for other associated substantives, which Komlós adduces from Syriac and Mandaic. From this follows a translation for תָּכּוּ לְרִגְלֶיךָ to be tied to your feet.

—c) all things considered β is to be preferred to βα, even though some uncertainty remains.

—d) moreover the difficult wording prompts conjectures, a few of which are mentioned by Komlós loc. cit., besides which see BHK^{1,2}, BHK³, and also BHS; but none of them is convincing; הִמְתָּכּוּ from the root מִכָּךְ, and which probably means they cower, is graphically very close but unclear as to its grammatical form.

—e) in spite of all this it is understandable why some prefer to leave this difficult word untranslated, as e.g. Steuernagel Das Deuteronomium (GHK 1 3/1² (1923): 174; also von Rad ATD 8: 144; KBL: unexplained. †

10152 תְּכוּנָה

תְּכוּנָה: כוּן, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; EgArm. sbst. abs. tkwnh (Cowley Arm. Papyri 156; Kraeling Arm. Papyri 7:5), st. emph. tk(w)nt' (7:15), sf. (3rd. sg. fem.) tkwnth (7:22, 27) property, fortune, possessions; on this see Kraeling Arm. Pap. p. 209; it also means dowry: ksp tkwnh (Cowley Arm. Pap. 15:6), on which see Albright Fschr. (1971) 143 :: Cowley p. 46: the cost of furniture; on the whole question see further Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 328 and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1214; the probable meaning is what one possesses in actual money as opposed to possession of clothing etc.: sf. תְּכוּנָתוֹ.

—1. fixed place, permanent home (cf. מוֹשֵׁב הַכֵּין to take up one's seat Jb 29₇), as the dwelling place of God Jb 23₃, with בוא (עַד).

—2. a) arrangement (so NRSV), lay-out, REB: the fittings, of the temple Ezk 43₁₁.

—b) for the meaning of תְּכוּנָה Nah 2₁₀ the whole verse must be referred to for the context of the sbst.: קִצָּה תְּלִתְכוּנָה בַּזֶּהב וְאֵין כֶּסֶף בַּזֶּהב וְאֵין לְתִכּוּנָה בַּזֶּהב וְאֵין כֶּסֶף בַּזֶּהב וְאֵין קִצָּה; it can then be seen that תְּלִתְכוּנָה בַּזֶּהב וְאֵין קִצָּה does not have the same sense as in Ezk 43₁₁ (see above a). In Nah 2₁₀<grc rend=sub>a there is the preceding sbst.

כֶּסֶף and זָהָב which allow for תְּזָהָב to be seen as meaning the store or the resources of silver and gold which were to found at Nineveh; so with Kraeling Arm. Pap. p. 209, who translates as ready cash. Furthermore that corresponds with the Vrss., which ren-der vs.<grc rend=sub>b as follows: Sept. καὶ οὐκ -]143ν πέρασ τοῦ κόσμου αὐτῆς; Vulg. et non finis est divitiarum; Pesh. wlait sākā lšabtāh and there is no end of (to) their ornaments; Tg.^J lē(y)t sōp l'ōšrayyā' no end of treasure; subsequently ZüB: as for the treasure there is no end; and similarly Keller CAT 11b: 123; cf. TOB: it is an inexhaustible treasure-trove. The rendering by Elliger ATD 26⁶ (1967) 11 also seems possible; but that of Rudolph KAT 13/3: 166, and unending household goods, is probably too narrow.

—3. cj. Ezk 43₁₀ pr. תְּכַנִּית prop. (cf. Vulg., Tg.) תְּכַנְנָתוֹ its lay-out, referring to the temple; see Zimmerli Ez. 1070, 1072; BHS. † תְּכַיִּים, תְּכַיִּים: sg. *תְּכַיִּי: 1K 10₂₂ 2C 9₂₁, on both occasions together with פִּי(וֹ)ק: a loanword of foreign origin, but the meaning is uncertain; suggestions or alternatively possibilities include: a) peacock, as most of the Vrss., see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; also Rudolph Chr. 224. In Sept. in 1K 10₂₂ (there is no rendering of the sbst. in 2C 9₂₁) for תְּכַיִּים there is ναῦς followed in the genitive by λίθων τορευτῶν καὶ πελεκητῶν a ship with engraved and hewn stones; on this see Gray *Kings*³ 263ⁱ; by contrast Sept.^o offers ... καὶ πιθήκων καὶ ταῶνων; cf. also Noth Könige 205; Sept.^{Ax} has ταῶς peacock.

On the origin and the meaning of the Heb. sbst. see previously Gesenius Thesaurus 1502, and Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 878a: a Malabar loanword, from tōgai or tōghai; similarly Ellenbogen Foreign Words 165: from Tamil malayam tō kai the bird with the flashing train, the peacock; the Rabbinic tradition agrees with the Vrss.; also Zorell Lexicon 898a; Köhler Wb. 543a; see TOB; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1436; Dalman Arbeit 7: 552; IDB 3: 707 (but on this see also below c).

—b) a loanword from Egyptian kyw ape (Erman-G. 5: 110; the initial t could perhaps be the article, fem. sing.); the specific kind of ape denoted by *תְּ(וֹ)ק may be pavian; so Albright Rel. 237¹⁸; Noth Könige 205; Gray *Kings*³ 263ⁱ; Würthwein ATD 11/1: 125, 126²: a species of ape; peacock on the contrary seems less likely since in the time of Solomon the peacock was not known in the Near East.

—c) poultry, so Bruno Maisler in Badè ZAW 51 (1933) 153; KBL; this is also mentioned as a possibility in Dalman Arbeit 7: 252, but there the peacock is preferred as a rarer type of animal.

—d) it is difficult to decide between the three possibilities, but probably the first two (a and b) are to be given more consideration, and the third (c) less; but :: Sept.^o, see above. †

תְּכָכִים 10155

תְּכֹלֶה: I כלה, hapax legomenon Ps 119₉₆.

—a) Vrss.: Sept. συντέλεια, Vulg. iuxta Sept. and Vulg. iuxta Hebr. consummatio; Pesh. saupā end, limit; Tg. (paraphrastically): for everything that makes itself attainable and understandable I saw a limit; so Alfons Deissler Psalm 119 (118) und seine Theologie (1955) 196.

—b) for the sbst. within its context the wording is לְכֹל תְּכֹלֶה רְאִיתִי קִץ; the idea of קִץ which is found here leads to recovering the literal meaning of תְּכֹלֶה completeness; thus THAT 1: 831 but the sense must be more precisely defined, for which there are two possibilities: 1) the completeness of knowledge, so Deissler loc. cit., which probably mainly goes back to the rendering of the Tg.; 2) completeness meaning perfection, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lexicon 898b; König Wb. 543b; ZüB; similarly Kraus BK 15⁵ 991: what is perfect.

—c) as for the best translation, in brief the second (2) is to be preferred to the first (1): completeness, perfection. †

10158 תְּכִלְתָּ

תְּכִלְתָּ: I כלה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 469q; MHeb. end, end-point; Ph., Punic tklt, Neo-Punic tkl't; the translation is not certain and the sense of the sbst. can probably not be limited to one idea; for Ph. see Friedrich *Phön. Gr.*² §203 who offers fulfilment, really completeness, but it could also be expense Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3: p. 26a; see also Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 328; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1214f; Tomback Lexicon 339; for Neo-Punic see Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 173:1 (2: p. 157) btš't wtkl't meaning in the outermost and furthest parts, i.e. completely :: Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary extremities (but cf. p. 1215, line 9ff: at the outlay and expense): BHeb. completeness, outermost part, end.

—a) תְּכִלְתָּ שִׁנְאָה completeness of hatred, extreme form of hatred Ps 139₂₂, with שִׁנְאָה; NRSV: perfect hatred; REB: undying hatred.

—bα) עַד-תְּכִלְתָּ אור עם חֹשֶׁךְ as far as the extremities of light and darkness, meaning to the boundary of light and darkness (as NRSV and REB) Jb 26₁₀, → עם 3 meaning at the same time as, which approximates ׀; β) וְלִכְלֵל-תְּכִלְתָּ הוּא חֶקֶר one can search in the remotest (the deepest) earth Jb 28₃; the third person singular is used to designate an undefined subj., see Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §36d; NRSV: they search out the farthest bound; REB (more freely): to the farthest recesses they seek; γ) Jb 11₇, with מִצָּא to attain שְׂרֵי תְּכִלְתָּ the extremities, the ultimate of the Almighty; NRSV: the limit (REB: limits) of the Almighty.

—c) Neh 3₂₁, with חֹזֵק hif. to make repairs from the door of a house to the end of the house. †

—1. a) The sbst. probably originates as a loanword from Phoenician, for the coloured material which is denoted by this word was produced in the region where Phoenician was spoken, and the word could have spread into the other areas of the Near East together with the product; on this see Gradwohl Farben 67f. According to Bauer-Leander Heb. 234p the sbst. would have come into Hebrew from Aramaic, which is accepted by Wagner Aram. (see p. 323) with some cross references. Gradwohl loc. cit. notes that until now the sbst. has not been attested in Phoenician documents, but there it could have had a similar pronunciation to that in Hebrew, Aramaic and Akkadian.

—b) in the cognate languages it appears thus: MHeb. תְּכֵלֶת; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 233) 1QM 7:10f for the sash of the priest's garments וְאַרְגָּמָן וְתַכְלֵת; SamP. takkēlāt; Samaritan תכלה (abs); JArm. תְּכֵלֶת, תְּכֵלֶתָא (so with Gradwohl Farben 66; Levy Wb. 4: 642b vocalised תְּכֵלֶתָא); Syr. teklā; CPArm. tkl, emph. tklt; Akk. takiltu blueish-purple wool (AHw. 1306); see further Dietrich-Loretz WdO 3 (1966) 227ff; also H.P. Adler Das Akkadische des Königs Tu-ratta von Mitanni AOAT 201 (1976) 332.

—c) for bibliography, as well as the works mentioned above (b), see especially Gradwohl Farben 66-71; see further Dalman Arbeit 5: 78-84; BRL² 72-74; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1532f.

—2. BibHeb. תְּכֵלֶת: a blueish (or violet coloured) purple wool: a) Sept. ὑάκινθος, adj. ὑακίνθινος; Vulg. hyacinthus, adj. hyacinthinus, on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; also Gradwohl Farben 66, who goes on to give information of the production of the dyed material, including the reddish (אַרְגָּמָן) as well as the blueish purples: both purple dyes are produced from molluscs; they are produced from the secretions of the glands of the true purple snail, purpura lapillus, which lives in the Atlantic Ocean, and of a few types of murex snail, particularly the murex brandaris, which is known as the fiery-horned snail or the Turk's blood snail, and the murex trunculus (see p. 67); on this see also KBL, and the bibliography mentioned in 1c.

—b) the dye is used for material, carpets, cloths, garments, threads etc.; for the details see Gradwohl Farben 70f: α) in מוֹעֵד אֶהְיֶה אִתְּכֶם Ex 25⁴ 26¹⁻⁴⁻³¹⁻³⁶ 27¹⁶ 28⁵⁻⁶⁻⁸⁻¹⁵⁻²⁸⁻³¹⁻³³⁻³⁷ 35⁶⁻²³⁻²⁵⁻³⁵ 36⁸⁻¹¹⁻³⁵⁻³⁷ 38¹⁸⁻²³ 39¹⁻²⁻³⁻⁵⁻⁸⁻²¹ 22.24.29.31 Nu 4⁶⁻⁷⁻⁹⁻¹¹⁻¹²; cf. תכן 10160 תכן (western variant of → תקן): MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 233): 1QS 1:12 לתכן וכוחם in order to involve their strength", so Lohse *Texte*³ 5; similarly Maier Texte 1: 22; 1QH 1:15 תכננתה לרצונכה decide what you want, so Lohse *Texte*³ 113, cf. Maier Texte 1: 72 you have made arrangements according to your will; it is probably best to consider that the pi. participle is being used in the question וּמִי מֵתָכֵן and who is arranging (deciding)?; in 1QH fragment 16: 4, 5, see E.L. Sukenik The Dead Sea Scrolls of the Hebrew University (1955) plate 57; JArm. pa. af. to prepare; for the cognate languages → תקן.

The basic meaning of the root תכן is to allocate, determine according to size or weight, so THAT 2: 1043; also Kilpp in ZAW 97 (1985) 213¹⁷; but see also the cautious assessment of the relationship of the meaning of the vb. by Jenni Pi'el 214; see also Elliger BK 11/1: 48¹; and THAT 2: 1043-1045.

qal: pt. תִּכַּן: to examine, check: a) sbj. יהוה Pr 16₂ obj. רוּחוֹת 16₂, NRSV: the Lord weighs the spirit; 21₂ obj. לְבוֹת 21₂ NRSV: the Lord weighs the heart; b) Pr 24₁₂ תִּכַּן לְבוֹת he who examines the heart; NRSV: who weighs the heart; REB: who fixes a standard for the heart; and independent expression which shows the nature of יהוה, or alternatively of אֱלֹהִים. † nif: pf. נִתְּכַנּוּ; impf. יִתְּכַנּוּ, יִתְּכַנּוּ, יִתְּכַנּוּ.

—1. to measure up, be in order, be correct, referring to the ways (way) of God as opposed to those of men Ezk 18₂₅₋₂₉ 33₁₇₋₂₀ (תִּכַּן is a by-form of כּוֹן, so Barth Wurzel. 52; similarly Driver VT 1 (1951) 243: תִּכַּן an expanded form of כּוֹן nif.).

—2. special instances: 1S 2₃ MT וְלֹא עֲלִילוֹת וְלֹא נִתְּכַנּוּ. The exact rendering is uncertain as is shown by the Vrss.: Sept. καὶ θεὸς ἐτοιμάζων ἐπιτηδεύματα αὐτοῦ; Vulg. et ipsi praeparantur cogitationes; Pesh. wlā teqnān šen'atā qdāmaw and cunning tricks (underhanded actions) have no place before him; Tg. differently.

There are several possibilities for translation, on which see especially Stoebe KAT 8/1: 101 with bibliography, and they include the following: a) נִתְּכַנּוּ is a passive of the qal and pr. וְלֹא read with Q and Vulg. וְלֹא and actions will be tested by him, so also e.g. THAT 2: 1044; b) in accordance with the meaning of תִּכַּן nif. under 1: his actions (the actions of God) are in order (reading וְלֹא); β) the meaning of תִּכַּן nif. given under 1 is to be interpreted in the sense of to have a place (cf. Pesh.), in which case the reading לֹא (K) is maintained, and עֲלִילוֹת does not have a neutral significance but takes on a pejorative meaning (on which see עֲלִילָה 1c): and disgraceful actions have no place, so Stoebe loc. cit. 100; similarly Zimmerli Fschr. 53; c) it is difficult to decide between the two possibilities mentioned (a and b) and probably both of them deserve to be considered. † pi: pf. תִּכַּן, תִּכַּנְתִּי (Jenni Pi'el 214).

—1. to make correct, meaning to keep steady the pillars of the earth (NRSV) Ps 75₄; cj. Ps 93₁ 96₁₀ 1C 16₃₀ pr. תִּכַּן prop. תִּכַּן (KBL, → כּוֹן nif. 6c).

—2. a) to measure up, assess, calculate the size: Is 40₁₂ (שְׁמִיָּם), Jb 28₂₅ (בְּמִדָּה), Sir 42₂₁ חֲכִמָּה תוֹרָה he has measured up the marvellousness of his wisdom (Smend); ZüB differently: he gave permanent existence to what his wisdom created; cf. also G. Sauer Jesus Sirach (Jüd. Schriften aus hellenist.-röm. Zeit 3/5; 1981) 611.

—b) special instances: Is 40₁₃, obj. יהוה רִוַּח: possible translations include: α) to mete out, assess (as 2a; KBL); β) to determine, so Elliger BK 11/1: 40; γ) to set out in readiness, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and Zimmerli Ez. 672; δ) to guide, direct, so Zorell.

—c) for all these instances of the pi'el (see above 2a and b) Driver VT 1 (1951) 243 abandons the idea of to measure, and rather accepts to bring into order, arrange; see also Elliger BK 11/1: 48¹, who as well as mentioning to measure out, also mentions to determine as a meaning of the pi'el. †

Der. I תִּכְּן, תִּכְּנִין ? , מִתְּכַנֵּת, תִּכְּנִין ?

I תִּכְּן: תִּכְּן, Bauer-Leander Heb. 460i:

—1. fixed measure, quantity Ex 5₁₈ (תִּכְּן לְבַיִּים) with נִתַּן).

—2. measurement, assessment Ezk 45_{11a}, in vs._b instead of this מִתְּכַנֵּתוֹ, → מִתְּכַנֵּת. †

10162 תִּכְּן

II תִּכְּן: place name 1C 4₃₂, which is rendered in Sept. as Sept. Θοκκαυ; cf. Ug. tkn, a town the site of which has not been identified (see Fisher Parallels 2: p. 334 no. 107); תִּכְּן, as well as עֵתָר in Jos 15₄₂ 19₇, has been taken as a scribal error for → עֵתָר, so Noth Jos. 110 (on Jos 19₇); see subsequently Rudolph Chr. 40; also Stoebe KAT 8/1: 509 (on 1S 30₃₀) prefers עֵתָר as opposed to עֵתָר :: Fritz ZDPV 91 (1975) 35: עֵתָר an erroneous writing for עֵתָר; in the light of the Ug. place name tkn, perhaps also תִּכְּן must be recognised as an original form of a place name, but its relationship with עֵתָר remains unclear: תִּכְּן is an unidentified place name in נֶגֶב which belonged to Simeon. †

תִּכְּנִית: the derivation of this sbst. is not certain, but possibilities include:

—a) from the vb. תִּכְּן (Bauer-Leander Heb. 504m, on p. 505; so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; König Wb. 544a; Zorell Lexicon 899a); associated substantives from the cognate root tqn (→ תִּכְּן) are Akk. tiqnu(m) tidy arrangement, decoration (AHw. 1360f); Arb. taqāna firmness, solidity, completion, perfection; tiqn adj. skilful, adroit (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 95b).

—b) from the vb. כָּנָה (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 504m, on p. 505: Akk. kanû(m) to care for; also Sept. to prepare oneself, get ready; D to treat someone kindly, treat something carefully, honour a deity (AHw. 440b; see also p. 1566a; cf. CAD K, 540b); sbst. te/tiknītu(m), taknītu loving treatment of an object, adoring respect for a goddess; compare also teknûm, taknû fond care (AHw. 1344b). for both substantives Driver Biblica 35 (1943) 158f proposes the translation careful preparation, completion; on this see Zimmerli Ez. 672 (on Ezk 28₁₂).

—c) The analysis of the Heb. sbst. is not clear; its essential meaning is supported by the first etymology (a), but formally it rather corresponds to (b), as has been proposed by Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; and Zorell Lex.

—2. תִּכְּנִית Ezk 28₁₂ 43₁₀: suggested translations include:

—a) giving the same meaning for both instances: α) size (Bauer-Leander Heb. 504m, on p. 505); β) example, paragon (KBL); γ) pattern with indications of size (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); also pattern, model in Fohrer Ezechiel p. 161 on 28₁₂, and p. 237 (from Galling) on 43₁₀ with cj., see 2bα iii.

—b) treating the two instances differently: α) Ezk 28₁₂:

—i. example, perfection Zimmerli Ez. 671, 672: textual emendation חֹתֶם תְּכַנִּית a completed seal; other proposed translations are given on p. 672, and also references to the Vrss.;

—ii. MT חֹתֶם תְּכַנִּית חֹתֶם תְּכַנִּית a maker of seals, who in himself exemplifies an ideal image (imaginem idealem), so Zorell Lexicon 899a;

—iii. ideal, normality, so König Wb. 544a; β) Ezk 43₁₀:

—i. a quality of the temple which has been correctly constructed (conformata est) in all its detailed measurements, which is close to meaning a beautiful and exemplary appearance, or alternatively a beautiful and exemplary type (species) of temple; so Zorell Lexicon 899a;

—ii. as abstract for concrete, pattern, model, so König Wb. 544a;

—iii. cj. pr. תְּכַנִּית prop. תְּבַנִּיתוּ, see Galling in Fohrer Ezechiel 237 (→ תְּבַנִּית 7), or תְּכַנִּיתוּ, see Zimmerli Ez. 1072 (→ תְּכַנִּית 3). † תֵּל: primary noun, Bauer-Leander Heb. 454b; MHeb. תֵּל heap, pile of stones, = JArm. תֵּלָא; Arm. tl: 1) OArm., in Sefire, see Donner-Röllig Inschriften 222 A: 32; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 328; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1215: heap of ruins; Degen Gramm. §27:1 (p. 45).

—2. EmpArm. Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 328; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1215: perhaps tumulus; Ug. tl, dual tlm hill, height (Aistleitner Wb. 2760; Gibson *Myths*² 66 (col. 8, line 4); see also p. 159b; Caquot Textes 219), Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 4:viii:4: tlm both the hills :: S.E. Loewenstamm Comparative Studies in Biblical and Ancient Oriental Literatures (AOAT 204; 1980) 527⁷: tlm from Hurrian talm(i) large; Akk. tīlu(m), tillu rubbish mound (AHw. 1359b); OSArb. vb. tl to be dilapidated Müller ZAW 75 (1963) 316; Eth. height (Leslau Contributions. 55); Arb. tall ruin, heap of ruins, hillock; Syr. tellā small mountain, hill (Brockelmann Lex. 824a); CPArm. tl/tlʿ; Mnd. talilia, variant tallia pl. small hill (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 479a); BibHeb. sf. תֵּלָה, תֵּלָם Jos 11₁₃ (pr. תֵּלָן sf. masc. for fem., on which see Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §124b).

—1. (symmetrically sloping) rubbish heap Dt 13₁₇ Jos 8₂₈ 11₁₃ Jr 30₁₈ 49₂.

—2. expressions: a) with verbs: with בָּנָה nif. Jr 30₁₈ (עַל-תֵּלָהּ); with הָיָה Dt 13₁₇ Jr 49₂; with עָמַד Jos 11₁₃ (עַל-תֵּלָם); with שָׂם Jos 8₂₈; b) connected with other substantives: תֵּל עוֹלָם a rubbish heap for evermore Dt 13₁₇ Jos 8₂₈; תֵּל שְׂמָמָה mound of rubble Jr 49₂.

II. in place names:

—1. תֵּל אָבִיב < Akk. til abūbi(m) the mound from the primaeval flood (AHw. 8a, sub abūbu(m) 1c); but in Heb. probably to be interpreted as the mound with the ears of corn: a place in which the exiles from Judah were settled, beside the River Khabur in the region of Nippur Ezk 3₁₅, see Zimmerli Ez. 83; for Sept. and Vulg. see p. 13.

—2. תֵּל חֲרָשָׁא: Sept. Ezr 2₅₉, Θελαρησα; Neh 7₆₁ Sept.^A Θελαρησα, Sept.^{BS} also Sept.^{RA} Αρησα; on חֲרָשָׁא see KBL: חֲרָשָׁא = a) חֲרֵשׁ an area in the forest, or b) חֲרָשׁ magic; of these two possibilities probably the first (a) is to be preferred, for there is in JArm. as well as חֲרָשָׁא forest also the by-form חֲרָשָׁא, see Dalman Wörterbuch 162a; but admittedly mound of magic does not seem to be impossible: Ezr 2₅₉ Neh 7₆₁.

—3. תֵּל מְלַח: Sept. Θελλμελεθ Ezr 2₅₉ Neh 7₆₁; according to Albright JBL 51 (1932) 100f: Babylonian, meaning the hill of the sailor, see AHw. 592 malāḥu(m) boatman; in Heb. it is probably better to treat it as hill of salt.

The last two mentioned places (2 and 3) are like the first settlement sites for the exiles in Babylonia, but the exact location of them is unknown; cf. Simons Geog. §1409; so also Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 16; → תֵּלֵיִל † qal: pf. sf. 2S 21₁₂ תֵּלְאִים (Q), תֵּלְוִים (K); pt. pl. passive תֵּלְוִיִּם, תֵּלְאִיִּם.

—1. to hang up, hang out your life לְךָ מִיָּדְךָ is suspended before you Dt 28₆₆, with acc. of the thing 2S 21₁₂ the bones of Saul and Jonathan suspended in public.

—2. Hos 11₇ textual uncertainty: a) MT לְמִשׁוֹבְתֵי תֵּלְאִים לְעַמִּי but my people are fixed on abandoning me, so Wolff BK 14/1² 246, 248; on the passive participle in the sense of an active participle see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §50f; on the same usage in BArm. see BLA 297e, and especially for Syr. see Nöldeke Syr. Gramm. §280; Jacob CAT 11a: 79 is similar to Wolff, but pr. לְמִשׁוֹבְתֵי he reads -תו- my people are attached to backsliding; cf. TOB my people cling on to their backsliding:: NRSV: bent on turning away from me; REB and NEB: bent on rebellion.

—b) Vrss. Sept. καὶ ἰ λαὸς αὐτοῦ ἐπικρεμάμενος ἐκ τῆς μετοικίας αὐτοῦ (probably equivalent to מוֹשְׁבֵי); Vulg. et populus meus pendebit ad reditum meum; Pesh. wʿamy tālā(y)n lantāb lwāty and my people hanker after turning back to me; Tg.^{Jonathan} wʿammā plīgīn limtāb lʾōrāyī and my people are in two minds (so Dalman Wörterbuch 334a, literally to be split) about turning back to me; among the Vrss. it is supported by Sept., while the others, despite their great differences, understand מִשׁוֹבְתֵי in a correct way but contradict the other usage of the sbst. (→ מִשׁוֹבְתֵי).

—c) cj., on which see e.g.: α) Nyberg Hos. 88f: תֵּלְאִי a denominative vb. from תֵּלְאָה moved by תֵּלְאָה, i.e. someone who can or will understand how to do something which they do not find easy: my people will not understand how to bring themselves back to me; β) Rudolph KAT 13/1: 208, 211: the vb. is not תֵּלְאִי but תֵּלְאָה, reading the hitp. participle מִתְּלַאֲמִים to struggle, make an effort: so my people will make an effort to turn back to me.

—d) what specially goes against α and β is the otherwise unattested significance of מִשׁוֹבָה; so it is probably best to stay with MT and to understand it in the way proposed by Wolff (see under a). †

10167 תְּלַאֲבוֹת

תְּלַאֲבוֹת: hapax legomenon Hos 13₅, Bauer-Leander Heb. 497y: לֵאב. 1) The derivation of this vb. is not absolutely certain, but suggestions include: a) from a root which is cognate with. לֵהב, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and HAL 487; HALOT 512b; similarly König Wb. 544a; b) Akk. la'ābu(m), also le'ēbu something like to take a lot out of, put a strain on (AHw. 521; compare cf. CAD L, 6a: la'ābu Sept. and D, to infect); on this see previously F. Delitzsch Assyr. Handwörterbuch (1896) 361b. Because of the form le'ēbu a connection may be made (and is made in AHw) with the Arabic root lgb, laḡaba and laḡiba to be tired, exhausted; IV causative: to exhaust (Lane Lex. 2663b, c); see also G.W. Freytag Lexicon Arabico-Latinum 4 (1837) 112a: to be very tired; II and IV causative; The vb. is not given in Wehr-Cowan Dict. 870a, but there is instead the adj. lāḡīb languid, fatigued, weary, and the sbst. luḡūb, laḡūb exhaustion, lassitude, great pain :: Yehuda Ibn Quraiš (ninth-tenth centuries) in his Risala (edited and translated into Hebrew by D. Becker (Tel-Aviv, 1984) p. 257) translates תְּלַאֲבוֹת as Arb. tl'ḇ from the root lwb to be dry, arid. There are also sbst. derived from the Akk. vb.; cf. la'bu(m) an infectious fever (AHw. 526b: linked with la'ibu; CAD L, 34b: skin disease; see also CAD L, 45a: la'ibu affected by li'bu, but occurring only in personal names); li'bu(m) (and li'ēbu(m)) a serious disease of the skin (AHw. 551f; CAD L, 181a; see also 182a: the only clues to the precise nature of the illness are that it is associated with disease of the skin and also with fever).

—c) the second proposal (b) is probably to be considered preferable to the first (a) and for Heb. תְּלַאֲבוֹת the substantives mentioned under b are probably to be given particular attention.

—2. Vrss.: a) Sept. $\epsilon\nu\ \eta\eta\ \acute{\alpha}\omicron\iota\kappa\acute{\iota}\tau$; Vulg. in terra solitudinis; Pesh. b'ar'ā ḥarbtā dlā yātbē; Tg. b'ar'ā dahwē(y)tōn šřīkīn bāh lkōl middā'am in the land in which they have all that is necessary; b) these are paraphrases in which the original sense of the Hebrew sbst. has no longer been preserved.

—3. תְּלַאֲבוֹת: tantum pl., probably a plural of intensity (Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124e; Michel Grundlegung 1: 88f; cf. Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §19b) in the collocation תְּלַאֲבוֹת בְּאֶרֶץ Hos 13₅ parallel with בְּמִדְבָּר. For תְּלַאֲבוֹת בְּמִדְבָּר the suggested translation with KBL of the land of shuddering fever can be said to come from Akk., rather with some regard to the sbst. la'bu(m), and less to the vb. insofar as it is translated in AHw., see above 1b); similarly Jacob CAT 11a: 91 a land of flames; TOB a land of fever. The context goes against this, especially vs.₆ where it is indirectly suggested that it is a place of hunger and not a place of disease (so Wolff BK 14/1²: 287, and subsequently Rudolph KAT 13/1: 238). It is therefore recommended to take תְּלַאֲבוֹת in the meaning dryness, aridness, parched land, so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 544a; Wolff loc. cit. 285; Rudolph loc. cit. 235; cf. also von Soden ZAH 2 (1989) 83. †

תְּלַאֲהָ: לֵאָה; Bauer-Leander Heb. 497z: תְּלַאֲהָ for תְּלַאֲהָ, cf. Barth Nominalbildung §179: 2, note 2 (p. 276): the sbst. comes from תֵּלַא to be troubled, a secondarily derived stem of לֵאָה to be tired: tribulation, hardship.

—α) in Israel Dt 21₂₂₋₂₃ Jos 8₂₉ 10₂₆: here it is not a means of capital punishment but a way of shaming someone who has already been killed; β) to hang up part of the body (an arm or a hand) of someone who has been killed 2S 4₁₂; on α (and probably also β) see de Vaux Inst. 1: 245 = Lebensord. 1: 256.

—b) practised by the Persians Est 5₁₄ 6₄ 7₉₋₁₀ 8₇ 9_{13f-25}; here it is clearly a shaming action, or alternatively a way of displaying those who have been killed, but the practise may also have been used on rare occasions in order to put someone to death; and this then brings up the question of impalement used as a means of punishment, so Bardtke KAT 17/4-5: 313 on Est 2₂₃ (nif.) with reference to Herodotus 3: 159; 4: 43: ἀνασκολοπίζω (vb. from σκόλοψ stake); cf. also BArm. זָקַן pt. passive זָקִיךָ impaled Est 6₁₁; but this vb. does not appear in Sept. for those occurrences; instead it has κρεμανύναι (ἐπὶ τῷ ξύλῳ) Est 6₄ 9_{13f}; 8₇ (ἐπὶ ξύλου), κρεμασθῆναι ἐπὶ τοῦ ξύλου 5₁₄ 7₁₀, abs. 9₂₅; σταυρωθῆνοι ἐπ' ὄψοῦ ξύλου 7₉ to be hung on the gallows; so TWNT 7: 581; cf. also Sept. 10185 תִּלְפִּיּוֹת

תִּלְפִּיּוֹת: לַפָּא; Arb. lafa'a to arrange in order, so Honeyman JTS 50 (1949) 51f; cf. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare AT 18; 1986: 138): the expression built up in courses refers to the individual well arranged rows of rectangular ashlar blocks with which the tower is constructed and which underline its unshakeable security; similarly Gerleman BK 18: 148; on the לְ in front of the sbst. → לְ 20; also Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §107ia. †

תְּלַתְּלִים 10187

תְּלַתְּלִים: pl. from a sg. *תְּלַתְּלָה, hapax legomenon Song 5₁₁ (Bauer-Leander Heb. 481d, on p. 482). The sbst. has still not been explained with regard to its etymology or derivation, or with regard to its meaning.

—1. derivation: a) it appears to be possible to take the sbst. from Arb. taltala to shake; so Gesenius-Buhl Handw. (with bibliography); KBL; or it may come from תְּלָהָה; so König Wb. 545b; also Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 158, where even more suggestions are mentioned; on this see also Gerleman BK 18: 174, who quite happily dispenses with the idea of tracing the sbst. back to a verbal root.

—b) a connection has been suggested with Akk. taltallû pollen, stamen of the date-palm, a Sumerian loanword (AHw. 1312a). But there is still some uncertainty; according to Zimmern Fremdw. 54 the Hebrew sbst. has been taken over from Akk.; von Soden AHw. l.c. is clearly reticent about this suggestion, while B. Landsberger The Date Palm and its Byproducts according to the Cuneiform Sources (AfO, Supplement 17; 1967) 19⁵⁹ because of the differences in meaning rejects any comparison between the sbst. in Akk. on the one hand, and on the other hand in Heb. (on which see below 2).

—c) Görg BN 21 (1983) 27 takes תְּלַתְּלִים from Demotic tltl.t drop; Coptic taltel, so that the locks (*קְנֻצוֹת), when referred to in Song 5₂ as קְנֻצוֹת לַיְלָה drops of the night, would be likened to the drops glistening in the hair.

—d) this last suggestion (c) is naturally to be preferred to the previous one (b), though the image of black locks with drops glistening in the hair is somewhat forced; furthermore reference to the hair in Song 5₂ is not without wider comparisons.

—2. possibilities and suggestions for the meaning of the sbst.: a) Sept. ἐλάται; Vulg. elatae palmarum shoots of the palm tree, cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and König Wb. 545b, meaning panicle of the date-palm, date-panicle; so Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 158, with reference to Georg Jacob Das Hohelied auf arabische und andere Parallelen untersucht (1902) 40. The translation of תְּלַתְּלִים as date panicle has been widely accepted, see e.g. Löw Flora 2: 336f; 4: 30, 50; KBL; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; Würthwein HAT 18² (1969) 57; ZüB; Gerleman BK 18: 171; O. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare AT 18 (1986) 184); also Dalman Arbeit 5: 268; see also note 1: but probably the sansinnīm of Song 7₉ are more certainly to be understood as date-panicles; see HALOT 761a.

—b) the spathe of the date-palm. On the basis of Greek sources from the first and seventh centuries A.D. Gerleman loc. cit. 174 in particular has mentioned this interpretation (as well as the earlier one above, see a) and subsequently it is mentioned by Keel loc. cit. 187; for Greek ἐλάτη in this meaning see also Liddell-Scott Lex. 528f.

—c) swaying palm-branches; so König Wb. 545b; Zorell Lexicon 900a; similarly Landsberger loc. cit. (see above 1b): the intertwined branches, or the leaves on the branches, of the date-palm.

—3. which of the three possibilities mentioned above to accept must probably remain an open decision. †

It should be noted in general that in accordance with the meaning of the root תָּמִי to be complete, perfect, the general sense of the adj. is also complete, perfect, a sense which develops in different ways with different usages: a) physical perfection as applied to the body; b) socially perfect; c) correct in law; d) ethnically and morally correct.

—1. a) healthy Ps 73₄ see 3d.

—b) well-behaved, civilised Gn 25₂₇, Jacob was אִישׁ תָּמִי יֹשֵׁב אֶהְלִים (NRSV and REB: lived quietly) as opposed to Esau who was אִישׁ שְׂדֵה יָדַע צִיד אִישׁ שְׂדֵה (אִישׁ שְׂדֵה) a man of the open country; so with Westermann BK 1/2: 502; NRSV: a man of the field; REB: an outdoor man).

—c) guiltless, without sin Ps 64₅ Jb 8₂₀ 9₂₀₋₂₂, vs. 22 תָּמִי :: רָשָׁע; d) upright, honest: תָּמִי Jb 1₁ Pr 29₁₀, וַיִּשָּׁר תָּמִי Jb 1₈ 2₃; תָּמִי הִרְרָךְ Ps 50₂₃ see 3c.

—2. special instances: a) n.m. יוֹתָם, on which see Noth Personennamen 189; also HAL 386b; HALOT 404: either Yahweh is perfect, or alternatively Yahweh is correct (probably particularly in connection with his helpful or justifying actions), or Yahweh has shown himself honest, upright.

—b) יוֹנָתִי תָּמִיתִי, literally my dove, my perfect one (my complete one) Song 5₂ 6₉, so Sept. περιστέρα μου τελεία μου, similarly Vulg. for 5₂ columba mea immaculata mea; and for 6₈ columba mea, perfecta mea; cf. Pesh. yaun(y) taammiumta my perfect dove. A literal rendering of the adj. does too little justice to the poetic skill of the text; among the renderings attempted for the expression is the special treatment in KBL my all, which is followed also by O. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 18; 1986) 173, 177; König Wb. 545b was the first to suggest my ideal.

—3. cj.: a) Ex 26₂₄ 36₂₉ pr. תָּמִיִּם prop. תָּאֲמִיִּם (BHS; SamP. version תָּאֲמִיִּם tiyyāmēm Ex 28₂₄ 36₂₉).

—d) Ps 73₄ pr. לְמוֹתָם prop. לְמוֹ תָם, which means that לְמוֹ belongs to the first half-verse, and תָם belongs to the second; so e.g. Kraus BK 15⁵: 664 (BHS); sbj. אֵילָם their body is sound (→ *אֵיל).

—e) Pr 1₁₁ pr. לְדָרָם prop. לְתָם, so e.g. Züb; Gemser *Spr.*² 20; KBL; cf. BHS :: MT, so TOB and especially Plöger BK 17: 11, 12.

There are a number of looser renderings of the expression which should be noted: α) accidental (ZüB); unsuspecting (KBL); without taking special aim (Rudolph Chr. 254 on 2C 18₃₃); β) innocently, guilelessly, unexpectedly (ZüB, KBL); without consciously planning something (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.).

—d) כְּתַמָּם Is 47₉; α) literally in their entirety, completely, so e.g. Fohrer Fschr. 86. 94; in full measure (Gesenius-Buhl Handw., NRSV, REB), entirely (Zorell Lexicon 900b); β) a more free rendering is in superabundance, see Westermann Jes. (ATD 19) 151; TOB; γ) there is no need for cj., but suggested cj. are mentioned in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL.

—3. expressions (so far as they have not been given already in 2bβ: as 1: with מוֹת Jb 21₂₃; as 2a) with הִלְךְ 1K 9₄, hitp. Ps 101₂; with עָשָׂה Gn 20_{5f}; with רָעָה Ps 78₇₂; as 2bα: with הִלְךְ Ps 26_{1.11} Pr 19₁; with חָסָה Pr 14₃₂ (see 4c); with שָׁמַר Ps 37₃₇; with שָׁפַט Ps 7₉; with תָּמַךְ (כֹּף) Ps 41₁₃, sbj. יְהוּדָה; as 2bγ: with נָצַר Pr 13₆, sbj. צָדִיקָה; as 2c: with הִלְךְ 2S 15₁₁; with מָשַׁךְ (בְּקִשְׁת) 1K 22₃₄/2C 18₃₃; as 2d: with בּוֹא Is 47₉.

10191 תַּמָּה

תַּמָּה: MHeb. תַּמָּה to be amazed, astounded, hi. to arouse astonishment (in Palestinian JArm. and Samaritan af., it also means to ask, LOT 3/2, p. 218); as also in JArm. תַּמָּה; → BArm. sbst. תַּמָּה, also for the associated vb. in the Arm. dialects.

qal: pf. תַּמָּהוּ; impf. תַּתְּמָהוּ, יַתְּמָהוּ, יִתְּמָהוּ (1); impv. תַּמָּהוּ.

—1. a) to be astonished, be amazed, with עַל about Qoh 5₇ Sir 11₁₃; b) to look astounded: אִישׁ אֶל-רֵעֵהוּ Gn 43₃₃.

—2. a) to freeze with fear, be horrified; or alternatively with Gesenius-Buhl Handw. to become speechless in the face of terror; on this see also C.A. Keller CAT 11b 148 with note 3 (on Hab 1₅); the vb. used absolutely Is 29₉ Jr 4₉ Hab 1₅ Ps 48₆ Jb 26₁₁ (sbj. שָׁמַיִם עֲמוּדֵי); b) to stare at Is 13₈ אִישׁ אֶל-רֵעֵהוּ the one stares at the other; the vb. is perhaps to be read as hitp. (יִתְּמָהוּ), so Wildberger BK 10: 502. † hitp: impv. יִתְּמָהוּ Hab 1₅, so also Is 29₉ for יִתְּמָהוּ, so e.g. Wildberger BK 10: 1112 and especially Hans W. Hoffmann Die Intention der Verkündigung Jesajas (BZAW 136 (1974) 51f; also BHK and BHS: to be horrified Is 29, Hab 1₅; so with Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and Wildberger loc. cit. 1114 :: KBL: to look in astonishment at each other, so also Hoffmann loc. cit. 51. †

*תַּמְהָה: תַּמְהָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 455h; ? Punic tummā, on which see under תַּמְהָה; also for the reference to Syr. tammīmūtā: a) cstr. תַּמְהָה, sf. תַּמְהָה, תַּמְהָה, תַּמְהָה; fem. together with masc. תַּמְהָה, on which cf. Michel Grundlegung 1: 67; but for this sbst. the special meaning of the fem. as distinct from the masc. is not precisely detailed; on the bibliography see THAT 2: 1047f; b) coming from the root תַּמְהָה the sbst. means entirety, completeness, so Horst BK 16/1: 23 on Jb 2₃: completeness with regard to one's relationship with God; equivalent to piety, devotion, so Horst loc. cit. 21; NRSV and REB: integrity for Jb 2_{3,9}.

It shows a completeness which manifests itself in concrete actions, so that the definition of the sbst. by Koch in THAT 2: loc. cit. is to be noted: it must express the resulting behaviour of a person who consistently follows a course of תַּמְהָה/תַּמְהָה; from this there are different possible renderings; as well as completeness, which is preferred by Koch, it is also possible to adopt purity, innocence (on which → תַּמְהָה 2b) and respectability, spotless character: Jb 2_{3,9} 27₅ 31₆ Pr 11₃; c) expressions: with חֲזַק (בְּ) hif. Jb 2_{3,9}; with יִרְעַע Jb 31₆ (sbj. אֶלְלוּהָ); with I נַחַה hif. Pr 11₃ (sbj. יִשְׁרִים תַּמְהָה); with סוּר hif. (together with לֹא) Jb 27₅. †

תַּמְהוֹן: תַּמְהוֹה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 498c; MHeb. תַּמְהוֹן, DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 233): 4Qp Hos^b וּבַתַּמְהוֹן וּבַעֲרוֹן; there are various different translations of this sbst.: Dalman Wörterbuch 444a has astonishment; Levy Wb. 4: 650b amazement, horror; SamP. tammiyyon: cstr. תַּמְהוֹן: confusion, bewilderment.

—1. a) Dt 28₂₈, with לִבְבִי confusion of mind, so NRSV; ZüB; TOB; von Rad ATD 8: 122; REB: stupefaction; b) panic (among horses) Zech 12₄, with נַחַה hif., parallel with שָׁנְעוּן (of their riders). The special meaning of the sbst. has developed from the link with סוּס, and it can be derived from the principal meaning of confusion; this would also be possible for Zech 12₄, so e.g. TOB; also André Lecoque CAT 11c 187.

—2. The meanings of the sbst. can be taken from those of the vb. תַּמְהָה (see especially 2a) to freeze with fear, be horrified; and so it is possible to give a rendering for תַּמְהוֹן (as above under 1a, and also under 1b) as horror; for 1a see König Wb. 546b; and for 1b see e.g. Elliger ATD 25⁶ (1967): 166. †

תַּמְהוֹז: 1) divine name, from Sumerian Dumu-zi legal son; Babyonian Du-ūzu, Dūzu; in the OT it occurs only in Ezk 8₁₄, Sept. (acc.) τὸν Θαμμουζ; Vulg. Adonidem; the lamentation over תַּמְהוֹז which is mentioned there refers to a god who has assumed the characteristics of a vegetation deity (a dying and rising god), and as such symbolises the end of the summer growth of plants; the name of the god was then given to the fourth Babylonian month (part of June and July); see Du-ūzu AHW. 179b (especially paragraph 2).

תַּמּוּז is related in character to the Phoenician god Adonis, and is thus identified in Vulg; the practice of a lamentation for Adonis similar to that for תַּמּוּז was probably already known earlier in Israel and Judah; such a lamentation for him is referred to in Jr 22₁₈ cf. Sept. 3K 12_{24m} on 1K 14₁₃.

—2. The common form of the name of the deity as Tamm,z goes back to Hebrew, and also Arm. תַּמּוּז; in both languages the name was borrowed from Babylonian as the name of the fourth month; for Hebrew see de Vaux Inst. 1: 278-283 = Lebensord. 1: 294-299; BRL² 167a; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1232-35; R. Meyer Gramm. §61:1; for Aramaic see Beyer Arm. 725; also for Nab. תַּמּוּז see Cantineau Nab. 2: 156b.

—3. for older bibliography on the divine name Tammūz see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; see further WbMy. 1: 51-53 (the article Dumuzi); RGG³ 6: 609; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1930; IDB 4: 516b; also especially Zimmerli Ez. 219 (both with further bibliography). †

תַּמּוּל, תַּמּוּלִי: JArm. תַּמּוּלִי; Akk. timāli/u; El-Amarna tumāl (AHw. 1359b with reference to A.F. Rainey El Amarna Tablet 362: 14, 16 (see AOAT 8 (1970) 84; Kn 1532); Eth. timālim (Dillmann Lex. 555a); → אַתַּמּוּל.

—1. a) yesterday (as distinct from today): תַּמּוּל וְהַיּוֹם yesterday ... today 2S 15₂₀, גַּם תַּמּוּל גַּם הַיּוֹם not only yesterday but also today Ex 5₁₄ 1S 20₂₇; b) תַּמּוּל אֲנַחְנוּ we are a yesterday Jb 8₉, so with Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §25ca, and subsequently Fohrer KAT 16: 183, 184, who translates rather freely as for we are but of yesterday (cf. e.g. Horst BK 16/1: 125; Züb; so also NRSV and REB).

—2. other instances are always linked with → שְׁלֹשׁ(וֹ)ם, so such instances will be simply listed here without translation: a) תַּמּוּל שְׁלֹשׁ(וֹ)ם Ex 5₈ Ru 2₁₁; b) לְשָׁלֹשׁ(וֹ)ם לְכַתְּמוֹ(וֹ)ם Gn 31₂₋₅ Ex 5₇₋₁₄ Jos 4₁₈ 1S 21₆ 2K 13₅; c) לְשָׁלֹשׁ(וֹ)ם מִתְּמוֹ(וֹ)ם Ex 21₂₉₋₃₆ Dt 4₄₂ 19₄₋₆ Jos 3₄ 20₅; d) גַּם תַּמּוּל גַּם שְׁלֹשׁם 2S 3₁₇ 1C 11₂; e) in negative sentence: I have never been eloquent גַּם מִתְּמוֹל גַּם מִשְׁלֹשָׁם neither in the past nor even now (NRSV) Ex 4₁₀. † תַּמּוּנָה: probably from the same root as → מִיָּן* (HAL 547a; HALOT 577b), where Arabic verbs are mentioned which could represent the base of both substantives; on תַּמּוּנָה also cf. König Wb. 547b; Zorell Lexicon 901a; Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r. The only counterpart in the cognate languages for תַּמּוּנָה is Ug. tmn, which means form; so with Gordon Textbook §19:2565; Fisher Parallels 1: p. 315 no. 466; Gibson *Myths*² 159b; Dietrich-Loretz UF 10 (1978) 432; cf. also Dahood Psalms 1: 100 :: a) Aistleitner Wb. 2773 from Akk. te/immēnu(m) or similar (cf. AHw. 1346); b) J. Gray *Legacy*² 27⁶ takes the word as cognate with ymn (יַמֵּן) right hand, which comes to mean skill, dexterity. However neither of these suggestions is convincing; it is more preferable to make a connection between תַּמּוּנָה and Ug. tmn: cstr. תַּמּוּנָת, תַּמּוּנָת, sf. תַּמּוּנָתָךְ: form, manifestation.

10196 תַּמּוּנָה

—1) it should be remembered that any rendering of the Heb. sbst. has to be made rather precise, such as is done by Fohrer KAT 16: 143 (on Jb 4₁₆): תַּמּוּנָה does not indicate a particular shape but refers to the form as an appearance without thereby suggesting a defined outline. According to Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74 (1987) 335f) the basic meaning of the sbst. is appearance, external shape, and this is not quite the same as the renderings in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL, which have on the one hand form, and on the other representation (artistic form).

—2. in any case there are two types or methods of usage for the sbst. which have to be distinguished: α) figure, manifestation of Yahweh Nu 12₈ Ps 17₁₅; in both instances the MT is to be preserved without alteration; Albright *Yahweh 37*⁸⁶ takes Nu 12₈ differently; as for Ps 17₁₅ see Kraus BK 15⁵ 279; TOB; ZüB; also (because of the context) see Dt 4₁₂₋₁₅; β) a mysterious shape which stands before Job in an incident during the night: עֵינֵי תְמוּנָה לְנֹגֵד Jb 4₁₆; the origin and the nature of this form remain mysterious, but it can hardly be identified with God (so Fohrer KAT 16: 143); b) a form, or alternatively an appearance, external shape (on this see above under 1) of a different kind, which is suggestive of a divine or cultic image because of its collocation with → פָּסָל, Ex 20₄ Dt 4₁₆₋₂₃₋₂₅ 5₈ (Ex 20₄ וְכָל-תְּמוּנָה :: Dt 5₈ כָּל-תְּמוּנָה, for the difference between the two formulations see Zimmerli Ges. Aufs. 1: 253³; see further C. Dohmen Das Bilderverbot. Seine Entstehung und seine Entwicklung im Alten Testament (BBB 62 (1985) 216-223.

3) expressions: a) as 2α: with נִבַּט hif. Nu 12₈; with רָאָה Dt 4₁₂₋₁₅; with שָׁבַע Ps 17₁₅; b) as 2αβ: with עָמַד Jb 4₁₆; c) as 2b: with עָשָׂה Ex 20₄ Dt 4₁₆₋₂₃₋₂₅ 5₈. †

תְּמוּרָה: I מוֹר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb. תְּמוּרָה exchange (Dalman Wörterbuch 444a); also substitute; SamP. variant Lv 27₁₀₋₃₀ ותמירתו wtēmīrātu, like the base-form תְּמִירָה tēmīra; cf. תְּמוֹר Sir 3₁₄ 4₁₀. The exact meaning is uncertain; it occurs a) as a prepositional expression, see Sept. ἀντί, Syr. חֲלִף, cf. Smend Die Weisheit des Jesus Sirach erklärt (1906) 26; and b) as a sbst. meaning substitute, deputy, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; c) cj. pr. תְּמוֹר prop. תְּמוּרָת, on which see Smend loc. cit.: sf. תְּמוּרָתָהּ, תְּמוּרָתוֹ: exchange.

—1. הַתְּמוּרָה what is exchanged, exchanging (KBL) Ru 4₇, in connection with הִגְאוּלָּה :: Brichto HUCA 44 (1973) 1-56, especially 18: הַתְּמוּרָה handing over, וְהִתְּמוּרָה הַגָּ' the handing over of the right of ransoming; but that is less convincing.

—2. The sbst. is linked with what is exchanged by a suffix referring to it, and therefore there are several variations in meaning: a) the impossibility of exchanging wisdom for כְּלֵי-פָז objects of pure gold Jb 28₁₇; b) the exchange value of שְׂוֵא vanity or nothingness Jb 15₃₁, with הִיָּה (→ שְׂוֵא 4 b); c) תְּמוּרָתוֹ profit from exchanging goods Jb 20₁₈, textual emendation pr. כְּחִיל rd. בְּחִיל, with עֵלָם; d) a substituted item, of an animal selected for sacrifice Lv 27₁₀₋₃₃. †

תְּמוּתָה: מוֹת, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb. as adj. *תְּמוּתָה, pl. תְּמוּתוֹת a dying animal, see Levy Wb. 4: 650f, and Dalman Wörterbuch 444a: death, decease; BHeb. in the collocation בְּנֵי תְּמוּתָה, literally sons of death, meaning those who are going to die.

—1. Ps 79₁₁, with הוֹתֵר (impv. hif. of I יָתַר) leave aside, preserve!, cf. Sept. περιποίησαι; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. relique (filios interitus); similarly e.g. Kraus BK 15⁵ 713, 714; TOB; NRSV: preserve those doomed to die; REB: save those under the sentence of death :: cj. following Pesh., Tg. הִתֵּר (hif. of III נָתַר) let loose, free; thus many more recent commentators, e.g. Gunkel Ps. 348, 350; ZüB; KBL; this interpretation is probably to be preferred.

—2. Ps 102₂₁, with I פתח pi; 3) cj. Ps 34₂₂ pr. MT רָעָה רָשָׁע תְּמוּתָהּ evil brings death to the wicked (NRSV; REB: misfortune) Sept. has θάνατος ἀμαρτωλῶν ποιηρός the death of the sinner is evil (corresponding to Heb. תְּמוּתָהּ רָשָׁעִים); so also the other Vrss. with the exception of Psalmi iuxta Hebr. (Jerome): interficiet impium malitia; this corresponds to the MT, and is to be preserved (for the Vrss. cf. TOB). † תְּמִיד: (103 times); SamP. tāmād; but Ex 28₂₃₋₃₀ SamP. variant תְּמִירָה tāmīda; the etymology of the adjective (adverb) is not quite certain; possibilities include: a) from the root מוּר, מִיר, cognate with Arb. madda to extend, expand, dilate, elongate (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 896b), so Barth Nominalbildung §190c; similarly Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; b) on Arb. māda (myd) to increase, grow (see Lane Lex. 2745c; but see also 2746a, eight lines from the bottom); so also Driver ZAW 52 (1934) 55, and subsequently KBL with reference to MHeb. תְּמִירָה lasting, enduring, for דוּר; c) it must probably remain open which derivation (a or b) is to be preferred. MHeb.: 1) the daily offering in the temple (Dalman Wörterbuch 444b); 2) DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 234) adverb, lasting, unceasingly.

10199 תְּמוּחָה

*תְּמוּחָה, תְּמוּחָה: n.m., Sept. Ezr 2₅₃ Θεμῶ, Neh 7₅₅ Θημῶ; the personal name has not been explained, see Noth Personennamen 260b and Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 12 :: König Wb. 547b: as I מוּחָהּ you must destroy!, which needs no refutation: the head, or alternatively the member of a family of temple slaves (נְתִינִים) Ezr 2₅₃ Neh 7₅₅. †

—1. adverb, lasting, continually: a) Ex 25₃₀ Lv 24₃ Dt 11₁₂ 1K 10₈.

—b) Lv 6₆ תְּמִיד תִּקְדַּח אֵשׁ תְּמִיד תִּקְדַּח אֵשׁ fire must be kept blazing continually on the altar; so with Elliger Lev. 79, 95 :: KBL: תְּמִיד תִּקְדַּח אֵשׁ תְּמִיד תִּקְדַּח אֵשׁ fire continually burning.

—c) cj. α) Lv 6₁₃ pr. תְּמִיד מְנַחֵה prop. with SamP. and Sept. (εἷς θυσίαν διὰ παντός) תְּמִיד מְנַחֵה, see BHS; so also Elliger Lev. 80; β) Ob 16 pr. MT תְּמִיד rd. with many mss. סָבִיב; but תְּמִיד is to be maintained, so e.g. Rudolph KAT 13/2: 311; also Wolff BK 14/3: 40, 41; Sept. has οἶνον which presupposes either a Heb. תְּמִיד or תְּמִיד (or even תְּמִיד); on the form cf. Ben-Hayyim Henoch Yalon Jubilee Volume (Jerusalem, 1963) p. 154; from Latin temetum; wine made from hops, on which see Rudolph loc. cit.; alternatively it may be a damaged form of תִּירוּשׁ, so Wolff loc. cit.

—2. substantivised adj. in cstr. expressions as nomen rectum, cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §128w: a) תְּמִיד אֲנָשִׁי men continually employed Ezk 39₁₄, תְּמִיד אֲרָחַת תְּמִיד אֲרָחַת permanent sustenance 2K 25₃₀ Jr 52₃₄.

—b) תְּמִיד נֵר תְּמִיד אֲרָחַת נֵר continually burning light Ex 27₂₀ Lv 24₂.

—c) תְּמִיד with a preceding word for an offering, comes to mean regularity, regularly occurring; with עוֹלֹת Ex 29₄₂ Nu 28₆ Ezk 46₁₅ Ezr 3₅; with קְטֹרֶת Ex 30₈; with מְנַחֵה Nu 4₁₆ Neh 10₃₄.

—d) especially עֹלֹת הַתָּמִיד the daily burnt offering that was presented every evening and every morning in the post-exilic temple; on this see Eichrodt Theol. 1⁵: 92; de Vaux Sacrifices 35f; Inst. 2: 364f = Lebensord. 2: 323; Rolf Rendtorff Studien zur Geschichte des Opfers im Alten Israel (WMANT 24 (1967) 74-76); Reicke-Rost Hw. 1345: Nu 28_{10nd.29:38} (15 times), Neh 10₃₄.

—e) הַתָּמִיד the regular offering Da 8_{11.13} 11₃₁ 12₁₁.

—f) לֶחֶם הַתָּהָר הַתָּמִיד literally the bread that was displayed continuously, the same as לֶחֶם (ה) פְּנִים Ex 25₃₀, cf. Lv 24_{5f} showbread; מִזְבֵּחַ תָּמִיד the daily arrangement of the showbread 2C 2₃ (→ מִזְבֵּחַ תָּמִיד).

—g) cj.: α) Nu 28₃ pr. עֹלֹת תְּמִיד rd. עֹלֹת תְּעֹלָה, see BHS; β) Ezk 46₁₄ pr. תְּעֹלָת prop. עֹלֹת תְּעֹלָת (BHS), but on this see Zimmerli Ez. 1168. 1174f.

It should be noted that in accordance with the meaning of the root tm תָּמִים has the sense of entire, unscathed, a sense which develops into a number of specialised meanings, not all of which can be clearly separated; there must originally have been a cultic idea behind תָּמִים; so Eichrodt Theol. 2/3: 274 and Westermann BK 1/1: 557 (on Gn 6₉).

A. adj.

—1. complete, unscathed, intact: a) of a particular part of a sheep that had to be brought for sacrifice: תְּמִימָה הַאֲלִיָּה the complete fatty tail Lv 3₉; תְּמִימֵי Pr 1₁₂ (see also 4bα).

—b) undamaged; עֵץ a whole piece of wood Ezk 15₅.

—c) entire, in expressions of time: כִּיּוֹם תָּמִים almost an entire day Jos 10₁₃; שָׁנָה תְּמִימָה Lv 25₃₀.

—d) complete, blameless, of people: α) an individual person: נָח Gn 6₉ (parallel with צַדִּיק), cf. Westermann BK 1/1: 557; אֲבָרָם Gn 17₁: תְּמִים יְהוָה be blameless!, so Westermann BK 1/2: 312 (with bibliography); β) the people: עִם יְהוָה תְּמִים תְּהִיָּה you should be blameless with Yahweh Dt 18₁₃, so Werner H. Schmidt Das erste Gebot (Theol. Existenz heute, no. 165 (1969) 21f; cf. sbst. בְּתָמִים וּבְאַמֶּת Jos 24₁₄ Ju 9_{16.19} (see below B1); so probably also לו תָּמִים 2S 22₂₄ parallel with עָמוּ תָּ עִמּוֹ Ps 18₂₄ complete (undivided) for him (sc. יהוה), or alternatively before him; on this see also Tropper UF 19 (1987) 295-300: תָּמִים עִם הָיָה to stand complete before someone; others translate תָּמִים עִם הָיָה here as impeccable, blameless, not guilty (see 4aβ); γ) of the human heart: יְהִי לִבִּי תָּמִים בְּחֻקֶּיךָ let my heart be complete (undivided) in your commandments Ps 119₈₀.

—2. without fault, free of blemish: of animals for sacrifice Ex 12₅ 29₁ Lv 1₃₋₁₀ 3₁₋₆ 4₃₋₂₃₋₂₈₋₃₂ 5₁₅₋₁₈₋₂₅ 9₂₋₃ 14₁₀ 22₁₉₋₂₁ 23₁₂₋₁₈ Nu 6₁₄ 19₂ 28₃₋₉₋₁₁₋₁₉₋₃₁ 29₂₋₈₋₁₃₋₁₇ 20₂₃₋₂₆₋₂₉₋₃₂₋₃₆ Ezk 43₂₂₋₂₃₋₂₅ 45₁₈₋₂₃ 46₄₋₆₋₁₃.

—3. perfect: a) of God: הַצּוֹר תָּמִים פָּעֵלוֹ the Rock (Sept. ἰ θεός) whose activity is perfect Dt 32₄ (→ פָּעֵל 2b); הָאֵל תָּמִים דָּרְכוֹ the god whose way (leadership) is perfect 2S 22₃₁/Ps 18₃₁; תּוֹרַת יְהוָה תָּמִימָה Ps 19₈; הָעִים מִפְּלֹאוֹת תָּמִים the wondrous works of the one whose knowledge is perfect (NRSV); wonderful work of his consummate skill (REB) Jb 37₁₆ (→ *דַּעַ).
—b) of a person (אֱלִיהוּ) תָּמִים הָעוֹת complete in knowledge, meaning knowing everything Jb 36₄ (→ דַּעַ); cf. Dahood Biblica 53 (1972) 326f.

—4. impeccable: αα) תָּמִימִים Pr 2₂₁ (parallel with יִשְׁרָיִם), Pr 28₁₀; יָמִי תָּמִימִים Ps 37₁₈; β) so following a broader treatment also תָּמִים 2S 22₂₄ parallel with עָמוּ תָּמִים Ps לוֹ 18₂₄ impeccable for (before) him (sc. יהוה), but see also above 1d.

—b) linked with הָרַךְ: α) תָּמִים הָרַכִּי 2S 22₃₃ (Q) with נָתַר hif. (וַיִּתֵּר) to open up a way: he opened up my way without reproach, see Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 321; for a somewhat different interpretation see F. Stolz Das erste und zweite Buch Samuel (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 9; 1981) 286: he has opened up my way completely; Ps 18₃₃ with נָתַן: וַיִּתֵּן he made my way ... (probably lectio facilior); it is to be noted that Klaus Koch Um das Prinzip der Vergeltung in Religion und Recht des Alten Testaments (Wege der Forschung, Vol. 125; 1972) 163 translates the word in Ps 18₃₃ (with reference to Pedersen Isr. 1/2: 359) as absolutely secure; so also in Pr 1₁₂ בּוֹר פְּיוֹרְדֵי וַתָּמִימִים פְּיוֹרְדֵי בּוֹר, which comes close to the safe and sound of Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; but it remains difficult; β) הָרַךְ תָּמִימִי Ps 119₁ Pr 11₂₀; cf. Ps 37₁₈ following Sept. תָּמִימִי הָרַךְ תְּדַרְכֶּךָ pr. MT יָמִי תְּדַרְכֶּךָ (see above under a), but this is to be preserved; אֲתָהּ בְּדַרְכֶּיךָ תָּמִים אֲתָהּ Ezk 28₁₅.

—5. honest, devout (linked with the adj. צַדִּיק, or alternatively with the sbst. צַדִּיקָה).

—a) צַדִּיק תָּמִים the devout, upright Jb 12₄, so e.g. ZüB and Fohrer KAT 16: 237; somewhat differently Horst BK 16/1: 176 the one who is righteous and devout; on the asyndetic linking of adj. see Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §128.

—b) the uprightness of the honest (תָּמִים צַדִּיקָה) makes his pathway smooth Pr 11₅.

—6. תָּמִים linked with the verbs דָּבַר and הִלָּךְ: a) דָּבַר תָּמִים Am 5₁₀: the exact sense is not quite certain, for it can be taken in a general (see α-β) or in a specialised (see γ) way. α) the one who speaks sincerely, so ZüB; Maag Wortschatz 103; Rudolph KAT 13/2: 194; Amsler CAT 11a: 208; cf. TOB: the one who utters his words in honesty; β) an advocate for the innocent, so e.g. Marti Das Dodekapropheton (KHC 13: 1904) 192; also Maag Wortschatz 30; but against this see Rudolph KAT 13/2: 195; γ) the translation of Wolff BK 14/2: 268, the one who speaks out completely, seems particularly correct for תָּמִים; this last suggestion (γ) as well as the first (α) deserves particular attention.

—b) הוֹלֵךְ תָּמִים the one who travels honestly, as an honest man Ps 15₂ Pr 28₁₈; for the same meaning see הֹלְכִים בְּתָמִים Ps 84₁₂ (see under B2).

B. sbst.

—1. בְּתָמִים וּבְאֵמֶת Jos 24₁₄, with עֵבֶר; Ju 9₁₆₋₁₉; with עֲשֵׂה in integrity, exclusively and honestly; cf. Werner H. Schmidt Das erste Gebot (Theol. Existenz heute no. 165: 1969); THAT 2: 1048; somewhat differently e.g. Nielsen Shechem 101: in sincerity and steadfastness (or truth); cf. NRSV: good faith and honour.

—2. תְּהִלָּתֵם בְּתָמִים הֹלְכִים בְּתָמִים those who walk in honesty and sincerity Ps 84₁₂ equivalent to sing. תְּהִלָּתֵם בְּתָמִים הוֹלֵךְ (see A6b); cf. Sir 7₆ תְּמִימָךְ your honesty.

C. instances which may belong either to A or B:

—1. גִּבּוֹר תָּמִים Ps 18₂₆/תְּגִבֹּר תָּמִים 2S 22₂₆ the blameless (honest) man, or the man of blamelessness (honesty), with תָּמִים hitp.

—2. a) דְּרֹךְ תָּמִים an honest way, or a way of honesty Ps 101₂, with I שָׁכַל hif. (בְּ).

—b) הוֹלֵךְ בְּדֶרֶךְ תָּמִים the one who walks in the way as an honest man, or the one who walks in the way of honesty Ps 101₆; the Massoretic vocalisation with its בְּדֶרֶךְ (and not בְּדֶרֶךְ) rather supports the second possibility.

D. a particular instance: 1S 14₄₁: the MT הִבָּחָה תָּמִים can be accepted as it is without change and may then be translated in the following way: a) make a correct decision!, so Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 87; similarly Lindblom VT 12 (1962) 173.

—b) give a complete answer!, so TOB.

—c) make it completely clear!, so Stoebe KAT 8/1: 266, 269f (with bibliography).

—d) do make the truth known!, so F. Stolz Das erste und das zweite Buch Samuel (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 9; 1981) 89; cf. Press ZAW 51 (1933) 228f: give a trustworthy decision!

—2) Sept. δὸς δὴ ἰσιότητα and Vulg. da sanctitatem are different from the MT and give support to the very widely accepted cj. תָּמִים (pr. תָּמִים); on this see (with the extra words of Sept. also accepted) e.g. Karl Budde Die Bücher Samuel (KHC 8 (1902): 102; H.H. Rowley The Faith of Israel (1956) 28f; de Vaux Inst. 2: 204 = Lebensord. 2: 185; also ZüB; see further Toeg VT 19 (1969) 493-498; E. Noort VT 21 (1971) 112-116; also E. Noort Untersuchungen zum Gottesbescheid in Mari (AOAT 202; 1977) 97; this cj. is accepted also in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL.

—3. we are not able to reach a decision about which of the solutions proposed in 1 and 2 above to accept. †

—4. particular instances: a) with acc. of place: שָׂאוֹל Pr 5⁵, sbj. צְעָדֶיךָ: her steps (the steps of the feet) proceed towards the underworld (towards Sheol); b) Ps 16⁵ cj. pr. תָּמַיךְ rd. with many mss. and Vrss., especially Vulg. iuxta Hebr. tu possessor sortis meae תָּמַיךְ גֹּרְלִי: תָּמַיךְ you hold my lot, meaning you have it in your hand; see Gunkel Ps. 53; there is no need for cj., but such some suggestions are made in Fr. Baethgen Die Psalmen (GHK 2/2; 1892) 43f, and also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; c) Pr 28¹⁷ אֶל־יִתְמֹכּוּ־בוֹ, of the one who is burdened with the guilt of murder and is fleeing to the underworld (עַד־בוֹר); here there are two possibilities for translating the vb. תִּמְךָ that has been preserved in this context: α) noone should give him any help! (ZüB); or alternatively no-one should support him! (Gemser *Spr.*² 98); NRSV: let no-one offer assistance; alternatively it can be taken as β) let no-one seize him!, so especially Plöger BK 17: 330, 331; see also TOB: it is useless to stop him; cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 548; γ) Vulg. and Pesh. both follow the first of these two possible interpretations: Vulg. nemo sustendet; Pesh. wlā ne‘drūnēh let him not be helped by anyone; Sept. is different: καὶ οὐκ ἐν ἀσφαλείᾳ. Nevertheless the second interpretation is preferable, see Plöger loc. cit. 331: a prohibition against supporting the murderer would be obvious; so REB, rather differently but with the same sense for this vb.: he will jump into a well to escape arrest.

Meyer Gramm. §79, 2a; b) it is uncertain whether the forms mentioned above תָּמְוִי, תָּמְוִי, תָּמְוִי really belong to the inf. תָּמְוִי, for they can also be derived from the sbst. תָּמְוִי → תָּמְוִי 2b and 2d. In any case the inf. is identical with this form. For bibliography see Pederssen Isr. 1-2: 336ff; also THAT 2: 1045-1051, especially 1046f.

—6. to be innocent, perfect Ps 19₁₄ (cf. תָּם c and d; תָּם 2; תָּמִים A 1bβ; 3-6).

—7. particular instances: Jr 36₂₃ כָּל־הַמְּגִלָּה עַל־הָאֵשׁ אֲשֶׁר עַל־הָאֶחָד עַד־תָּם suggested translations include: a) until the whole scroll was consumed in the fire of coals, ZüB; similarly e.g. Weiser Jer. (ATD 21) 330; TOB; b) until the whole scroll had been thrown into the fire on to the coals, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 232; c) probably the first suggestion (a) should be considered preferable to the second (b), for it is difficult to link תָּם־עַד with וְהַשְׂלִיךְ; regarding עַל “on to” in the sense of “in” → II עַל 1a; but here עַל can also be taken in the sense of “over”, → II עַל 1b.

—8. cj.: a) Jr 6₂₉ pr. K מֵאֲשֶׁתָּם by their fire (?), and Q תָּם מֵאֵשׁ the lead (עֲפָרָת) remains unaffected by the fire, prop. מֵאֵשׁ תָּתֵם so that the fire destroys the lead, so e.g. Rudolph *Jer.*³ 48; BHS; KBL.

—b) Jr 27₈ pr. עַד־תִּמְנוּ אֶתְּם בְּיָדוֹ prop.: α) עַד־תִּתֵּנִי until I have given you, so Rudolph *Jer.*³ 176; BHS; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; β) עַד־תִּמְנוּ until their destruction, so Helga Weippert Die Prosareden des Jeremiabuches (BZAW 132 (1973) 169 with note 275), so following Jr 24₁₀; on this see already Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and compare Sept. ἕως ἐκλίπωσιν ἐν χειρὶ αὐτοῦ; γ) rather than the first suggestion (α) the second (β) is probably to be preferred.

—c) Ps 64₇ textual corruption (טְמִנוּ מִחֶפֶז תִּמְנוּ מִחֶפֶז, an expression of an enemy, which literally means “we are ended; a plan which has been well planned!”), so Fr. Baethgen Die Psalmen (GHK 2/2; 1892) 191, 192; cf. NRSV: we have thought out a cunningly conceived plot :: Sept., Vulg. pr. תִּמְנוּ rd. תִּמְנוּ, but the text still remains rather difficult; see the suggestions in Gunkel Ps. 269, 271, corresponding to KBL, and Kraus BK 15⁵ 605; HAL 328a (HALOT 341b) under חֶפֶז (pu.) and חֶפֶז.

The variant טְמִנוּ is accepted in ZüB and REB, which both translate: they conceal the schemes they have devised; also in REB, with its more concise translation “secret plans”, and noting in the margin that the Hebrew is unintelligible. †

תַּמְנָה: place name; A. The etymological derivation is uncertain: KBL refers (with a ?) to the root מָנָה; hardly any less certain is J.P. Brown ZAW 98 (1986) 417: תַּמְנָה < τέμενος, templum: cstr. תַּמְנָת, locative תַּמְנָתָה.

C. The place name in the OT:

—1. Tell el-Batāšī or Tēl Bātāš, 7.5 km north-west of Beth-Shemesh, on the south of the Wādī eš-Šarār Jos 15¹⁰ 19⁴³ Ju 14¹⁻⁵ 2C 28¹⁸, on which see Aharoni PEQ 90 (1958) 28ff; Timm ZDPV 96 (1980) 30⁶⁴ and p. 31; see especially Elliger in Reicke-Rost Hw. 1972.

—2. a place in Southern Judah in the neighbourhood of מְעוֹן Jos 15⁵⁷; the precise location is unknown, but it is probably to be identified with תַּמְנָה, in the hill country to which Judah went up from Adullam to shear the sheep Gn 38¹²⁻¹⁴, so Elliger loc. cit., but on this see also Emerton VT 25 (1975) 343f.

—3. תִּמְנַת־חֶרֶם Ju 2₉, has been corrupted from תִּמְנַת־סֶרַח Jos 19₅₀ 24₃₀, a place in the mountains of Ephraim, where according to Ju 2₉ Joshua lay buried, see Elliger loc. cit.; cf. According to Brown ZAW 98 (1986) 427 (see above under A) תִּמְנַת־חֶרֶם means the area (region) of the sun; on חֶרֶם as a divine name cf. Hans-Peter Stähli Solare Elemente im Jahweglauben des Alten Testaments (OBO 66; 1985)12f. † תִּמְנַע, תִּמְנַע, תִּמְנַע Gn 36₁₂. A. n.m. > name of a tribe, n.f; as a place name in OSArb. Timna^c or Tumna^c, the name of the capital city of Qataban; see Weippert Edom 251; Ryckmans Noms 1: 348a, and M. Höfner in RAAM 237, 281, 326; on the personal name cf. also Moritz ZAW 44 (1926) 85. On further personal names which are derived from the root mn^c, see Weippert loc. cit.: Safaitic mn^c; Sabaeen mn^cy; Lihyanic, Thamudic, Nabataean mn^ct; Sept. B. The personal name is not mentioned by Noth Personennamen 260; with Keel Orte 2: 294, and especially Weippert loc. cit., it must be derived from the root mn^c (→ HAL 570a; HALOT 602b), which has a wide range of meanings in Arabic, such as mana^a to obstruct someone's way, withdraw, deprive, protect, defend; manu^a to be strongly fortified, inaccessible, invincible (see Wehr-Cowan Dict. 926b); this gives rise to the following proposals for the personal name (following Weippert loc. cit.): a) with a female deity as subj., she protects (or has protected); b) with the one with the name as subj., she is unapproachable, invincible.

C.

—1. the concubine of Eliphaz Gn 36_{12.22} 1C 1₃₉.

—2. an important member (the leader אֶלְרִיָּה) of a family in Edom (Esau) Gn 36₄₀ 1C 1_{36.51}.

10216 תָּמָר

I תָּמָר: place name; identical to תָּמָרָה (perhaps it is a dialectal by-form of this word) occurring in the collocation תָּמָר דְּבֹרָה Ju 4₅; Sept.^{AB} ὑπὸ φοιλυκα Δεββωρα; for the location of the “palm of Deborah” see KBL, with reference to Dalman JBL 48 (1929) 354ff, especially 357f: near to the well el-Bire. There is a possible, or rather a probable, connection with אֵלֹן בְּכוֹת “the oak of weeping” of Gn 35₈, on which see e.g. Wolfgang Richter Traditionsgeschichtliche Untersuchungen zum Richterbuch (BBB 18² (1966) 39-42); TOB (note); Reicke-Rost Hw. 330 (article, Debora); Westermann BK 1/2: 672f; de Vaux Histoire 2: 77. †

II תָּמָר: Jr 10₅.

—1. the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; so it remains open whether the word is based on a vb. (for corresponding suggestions see Gesenius-Buhl Handw., and KBL), or whether it is to be taken as a primary noun. The latter suggestion is supported by the probably related sbst. I תִּמְרָה, and the rendering of φοῖνιξ in Aquila and Theodotion.

—2) the sbst. is found in the collocation מִקְשָׁה כְּתִמְרָה, of which the traditional translation is like a scarecrow in a plot of cucumbers, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; ZüB; TOB; Rudolph *Jer.*³ 70; REB and NEB (cf. NRSV); → II מִקְשָׁה (Is 18) and Epistle of Jeremiah 69 ἐν σικυηράτ προβασκάνιον οὐδὲν φυλάσσον a scarecrow in a field of cucumbers which offers no protection.

—3. a) of the two passages mentioned above (see 2), it is only in the Epistle of Jeremiah 69 that the word is clear within the context, and this is also accepted by Liddell-Scott Lex. 1471a. Therefore Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 206f, especially 207²⁰¹, admits that this appears to be a rather specialised interpretation of the word προβασκάνιον, which really means a protection against magic, amulet, see Liddell-Scott loc. cit.

—b) in Jr 10; the context is against the supposed occurrence of a scarecrow in the comparison, especially with gold and silver in vs.4, and with the Vrss. taking it thus: Sept. ἀργύριον τορευτόν filigree, engraved silver; תִּמְרָה according to Aquila and Theodotion is φοῖνιξ (see above 1); Deist ZAW 85 (1973) 225f: Aquila, Theodotion and the Tg. have understood מִקְשָׁה as something that is upright or standing in position, but Vulg. takes it to be something that has been artificially created; for the wording of Vulg., in similitudinem palmae fabricata sunt, cf. further Deist loc. cit.

—4. of the proposals mentioned above (under 3) there are more suggested translations, and many more of them opt for I מִקְשָׁה rather than II מִקְשָׁה.

—a) a palm shaped pillar with rich decoration (Dalman Arbeit 2: 62f).

—b) like a richly carved palm tree (Deist loc. cit. 226).

—c) like a rigid construction from palm-wood (Gerleman ZAW 92 (1980) 410-414, especially 414).

—d) metal which has been worked, beaten, engraved, or filigree metal work of silver or gold.

It should be noted that it is not sufficient for this word to adopt just the one idea of massage as a cosmetic aid to beauty, so KBL, for there is a difference between the usage in Pr 20₃₀ and that in Est 2₃; while for Pr 20₃₀ only the vb. I מֵרֵק is to be taken into consideration, for Est 2₃ there is also the JArm. sbst. תַּמְרוֹקָא, which is synonymous with Heb. תַּמְרוֹק (: von Soden ZAH 2 (1989) 81f; → תַּמְרִיק: pl. cstr. תַּמְרוֹקִי, sf. תַּמְרוֹקִיהָ, תַּמְרוֹקִיהֶן).

I *תַּמְרוֹר: מֵרֵר, Bauer-Leander Heb. 497x, tantum pl. תַּמְרוֹרִים, the same in MHeb.; probably the so-called pl. of amplification, cf. Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124e; also Michel Grundlegung 1: 88f; on the sbst. see also von Soden ZAH 2 (1989) 80: bitterness.

10221 תַּמְרוֹר

II תַּמְרוֹר: tantum pl. תַּמְרוֹרִים: hapax legomenon Jr 31₂₁ parallel with צִיּוֹן meaning signpost, and so a corresponding meaning must be accepted for תַּמְרוֹרִים (see c); however there are certain questions that have to be raised about this sbst. which concern the original form of the word, and also its linguistic origin.

—a. from the form of the word, and according to Vulg. amaritudines, II תַּמְרוֹרִים could be equivalent to I תַּמְרוֹת; but this is impossible so far as meaning is concerned; it should not then be taken as another form of the same sbst.; see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; also Rudolph *Jer.*³ 196: תַּמְרוֹרִים here comes from תַּמֵּר, not (as in vs.₁₅) from מֵרֵר.

In Sept. the word is transliterated as τῆμορίαν < timōrīm/n*, which suggests a different form of the MT for the sbst., and could have arisen either from תַּמְרוֹרִים (י) as a masc. pl. of → תַּמְרוֹה (on which see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; see further e.g. BHS); or it could have come from *תַּמְרוֹה (י), where the fem. pl. is replaced by the masc. pl. תַּמְרוֹרִים (so KBL; but see also Gesenius-Buhl Handw. 882 under תַּמֵּר).

—b. any attempt to explain the linguistic derivation must first distinguish between תַּמְרוֹרִים and תַּמְרוֹרִים/תַּמְרוֹרִים, which is inferred from Sept.; while the latter can be taken as a primary noun, a verbal root can be accepted for the former; but then falling back on an uncertain and probably a denominative vb. תַּמֵּר (so e.g. Rudolph *Jer.*³, 196) seems questionable. What seems rather more possible is a connection with the Akk. and Ug. root ²-m-r to see, so Dahood Orientalia 46 (1977) 385 with reference to the divine name amrr (Gordon Textbook §19:233; Aistleitner Wb. 289), a name which can be taken to mean the god who is a guide; cf. amrr k kbkb lpm/atrlt blt nt Amrur was like a star in front, behind came the virgin Anat (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 4:iv:17, 18; so Gibson *Myths*² 59).

—c. despite the uncertainties arising from what has been stated above (see a and b), because of the parallelism with צִיּוֹן there can be no doubt about the meaning of the sbst., which is signpost, way-marker. †

*תַּנִּין: cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 453w. The derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; it can be taken either a) as a primary noun; or b) from a root t-n-n to stretch oneself out; on this see Elliger BK 11/1: 356 (on Is 43₂₀); so also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; according to König Wb. 549b תַּנֵּן would be parallel with תַּנְה; it must remain open which of these alternatives (a or b) is preferable; Old Sinaitic tn (Albright Proto-Sinaitic p. 44): pl. תַּנִּיִּם and once תַּנִּיִּן Lam 4₃ K, Q תַּנִּיִּם, on which see Rudolph KAT 17/1-3 247: according to Q תַּנִּיִּן is to be read as תַּנִּיִּם, the pl. of *תַּנִּין jackal, with an Aramaic plural ending (compare Lam 1₄), and not the sg. תַּנִּיִּן; fem. pl. תַּנִּוֹת Mal 1₃: jackal canis aureus (Bodenheimer Animal Life 110f); see further Reicke-Rost Hw. 447; BRL² 11: 150; Elliger BK 11/1: 342, 356; Keel Orte 1: 147.

—b) cj. Ezk 29₃ pr. תַּנִּיִּם prop. with mss. תַּנִּיִּן, and Ezk 32₂ pr. תַּנִּיִּם with two mss. תַּנִּיִּן; but for both occurrences probably תַּנִּיִּם is a by-form of תַּנִּיִּן; see Zimmerli Ez. 703.

תנה: ? to be compared with II שנה, also for corresponding forms in the Aramaic dialects; on this vb. see also Wagner Aram. 327 (with bibliography); according to Lemaire Inscr. Hebr. 1: 103 the vb. is also found in the Heb. inscription, Lachish 3: 12: as a pi. meaning to narrate, but that is completely uncertain; for another way of interpreting this difficult occurrence see Albright BASOR 82 (1941) 20; also Pritchard Texts 322a; see also Gibson Textbook 1: 38, 39.

A. Instances which are certain.

pi. (Jenni Pi'el 248): impf. יִתְנֶה, inf. תְּנֹה: to recount, with acc. of the thing Ju 5₁₁; with לְ of the person, meaning for Ju 11₄₀; for both instances see: Hans Zirker Die kultische Vergegenwärtigung der Vergangenheit in den Psalmen (BBB 20; 1964) 20: תנה pi. refers to repetition within an antiphonal performance; so with Weiser ZAW 71 (1959) 79; the cj. pr. עֲנֹת rd. תְּנֹת Ex 32₁₈ (see KBL) is not necessary; → IV ענה pi.

B. Uncertain, or alternatively disputed, instances:

—1) Hos 8₁₀ qal impf. יִתְנֶה; Hos 8₉ hif. pf. הִתְנֶה; the meaning of the vb. is uncertain (the Vrss. vary) but suggestions include.

—a) without cj.: α) vb. תנה to recruit (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); so especially König Wb. 550a: qal to recruit, engage; hif. to conclude an agreement, drive a bargain, meaning to recruit enthusiastically; so also Rudolph KAT 13/1: 156, 159; β) תנה denominative vb. → אֲתַנֶּה/אֲתַנֶּה, so Nyberg Hos. 63: qal they accept a harlot's fee; hif. to give a harlot's fee; see further p. 64 (with אֲהַבִּים) to give a fee for favours; similarly Wolff BK 14/1² 168, 170: vs.₁₀ (qal) to offer a gift for love; vs.₉ (hif.) to receive a gift for love; γ) תנה is to be compared with נתן in the meaning to offer, pay, so Jörg Jeremias ATD 24/1 (1983) 102 with note 5: either the hif. (in vs.₉) and the qal (in vs.₁₀) have the same meaning ... or the vb. in vs.₁₀ is to be vocalised as a hif. יִתְנֶה as in vs.₉.

—b) cj.: α) vs.₉ pr. הִתְנֶה rd. with Vrss. יִתְנֶה or נִתְנֶה; see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and BHS; β) vs.₁₀ pr. יִתְנֶה prop. יִתְנֶה see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; BHS (obj. אֲהַבִּים); or (referring to אֲפָרַיִם) with Sept., Pesh. יִתְנֶה, on which see e.g. Karl Marti Dodekapropheton (KHC 13; 1904) 68; cf. also KBL (with ?) יִתְנֶה; one other different suggestion is by Ina Willi-Plein Vorformen der Schriftexegese innerhalb des Alten Testaments (BZAW 123; 1971) 167: rd. נִתְנֶה (reflexive use of ni-), and translate if they give themselves prizes among the nations.

—2) Ps 8₂ תְּנֶה אֲשָׂר: textual corruption: a) תְּנֶה do give! (cohortative-impv.) which is usually accepted :: α) Baethgen Die Psalmen (GHK 2/2; 1892) 19: תְּנֶה inf. cstr. equivalent to תַּת (as רָדָה is equivalent to רָדַת Gn 46₃); β) from the Vrss. it is resolved as a finite form of the vb. (on which see BHS): Sept. ὅτι ἐπήρθη -141 μὲγαλοπρέπειά σου that your might is lifted up (or lifts itself up) corresponding to Vulg. iuxta Sept. quoniam elevata est magnificentia tua; Vulg. iuxta Hebr. qui posuisti gloriam tuam; cf. Symmachus ὄς -]18ῶταξας, Pesh., (Tg.) dyhbt which you have given (or which you have put in position).

—b) for suggestions for cj. (from more recent commentators) see Kraus BK 15⁵ 203f; see further Soggin VT 21 (1971) 565-68, and Görg BN 37 (1987) 38-47. From what has been stated (just a selection will have to suffice) reference is made here to the following: α) with Vrss. (but not Sept.) prop. נְתַתָּהּ, or pt. nif. נִתְּן; possibly also נְתַתָּהּ, of which תְּנָהּ would be a short form: the earth which shows (announces) your sovereignty; so Görg loc. cit. 40f; but see earlier Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §66h; according to Bauer-Leander Heb. 368t: תְּנָהּ is a textual error for נְתַתָּהּ; β) תְּנָהּ is to be taken from the vb. תָּנָה (see above), and it is possible to vocalise it as:

—i. תְּנָהּ with sbj. שִׁמְךָ your name, which repeats (recounts) your heavenly majesty; so Tournay RB 78 (1971) 24; or taking תְּנָהּ as impersonal, whose might is praised to the sky; so Weiser ATD 14/15⁷ (1966) 94;

—ii. תְּנָהּ (pf. pu. or ? passive qal) your might which is praised, so e.g. KBL Supplement p. 193; Wagner Aram. 327;

—iii. אֲשֶׁר אֶתְנָהּ, on which see Wagner loc. cit. (with bibliography); see further Dahood Psalms 1: p. xxix and 49; 3: p. 387; on which see also Sauer UF 10 (1978) 376; γ) the cj. preferred by Donner ZAW 79 (1967) 326 from Duhm Die Psalmen (KHC part 15² (1922) 34f): אֲשֶׁר־נָהּ equivalent to אֲשֶׁר־נָהּ (see Donner loc. cit.); δ) אֶרֶץ־תְּכָהּ (ה) on earth (reading בְּאֶרֶץ) is your sovereignty, your might is in heaven; so Gunkel Ps. 29, and subsequently (with ?) KBL.

—c) deciding between the possibilities mentioned above (see b) is difficult, but those listed first (under α and β, and perhaps also γ) are preferable, while the last (δ) deserves less attention. †

תְּנוּאָה: נוּא, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r: there are no correspondences in the cognate languages and there are only two instances in the OT: sg. sf. תְּנוּאָתִי Nu 14₃₄ (SamP. tinnuwwāti; on the gemination of נ cf. LOT 5: p. 65); pl. תְּנוּאוֹת Jb 33₁₀. It is not clear how to reach an (exact) rendering of the sbst.

—a) the Vrss. differ; for Nu 14₃₄ Sept. (with acc.) τὸν θυμὸν τῆς ὀργῆς μου; Vulg. (with acc.) ultionem meam; Pesh. and Tg. (with a verbal expression) because you have been grumbling to me; for Jb 33₁₀ Sept. (with acc.) μέμψιν, criticism, reproach, grievance; Vulg. (with acc.) querellas complaints, grievances; Pesh. dhā' ellātā ‘lay meškah so you see that he finds arguments (reasons) against me; Tg. תְּרַעֲבוֹתַי grumblings, see Levy Wb. 4: 562a, b.

—b) in order to give a reasoned derivation the word can be taken from the vb. נָא, so especially N. Peters Das Buch Job (1928) 373f; he translates the sbst. in Nu 14₃₄ correspondingly by turning away, withdrawal, opposition, cf. Noth Nu. (ATD 7) 89: my withdrawal; for a more free translation see ZüB: what happens when I withdraw my hand; Peters loc. cit. takes the pl. in Jb 33₁₀ as metonymy: the grounds of opposition. Of the Vrss. the closest translations are criticism, reproach (as Sept); complaints, grievances (as Vulg.); and arguments, reasons (as Pesh.); Tg. is further removed.

—c) it would be best to retain possibilities mentioned above (b), as opposed to Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL, on which see also König Wb. 550a :: Raphael Loewe in D.W. Thomas Fschr. 137-158, especially 141: תְּנוּאָתִי my disappointment. †

תְּנוּבָה: נוב, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 234): 1QS x:15 חבל תנובת, DJD 1: p. 153 no. 3 col. i:4 ארץ ותנובת; BibHeb. cstr. תְּנוּבָת, sf. תְּנוּבָתִי, pl. תְּנוּבוֹת, תְּנוּבָת Lam 4₉.

—1. produce, yield: a) from the שָׂרִי/שָׂרָה Dt 32₁₃ (SamP. version תנופת tenūfāt) Ezk 36₃₀ Lam 4₉ (textual corruption, cj. see BHS).

—bα) תְּנוּבָתִי from התְּנוּבָה Ju 9₁₁; β) with פְּנֵי-תַבַּל Is 27₆.

—c) וראש תנובות the nicest product of דברה the bee Sir 11₃.

10227 תְּנוּךְ

*תְּנוּךְ: always in the collocation אֶזֶן תְּנוּךְ; on the form of תְּנוּךְ cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 473a-d; SamP. version תְּנוּךְ tēnək; the etymology is completely uncertain, and the derivation suggested in Gesenius Thesaurus 1511 from a Syriac vb. tnak, etpa. ʿettannak to go out, be missing (Payne Smith Thes. 4472; the vb. is not found in Brockelmann Lex.) should not be maintained (despite König Wb. 550b); see also the reference in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. According to Dalman Wörterbuch 445a (but without any reference) there is MHeb. תְּנוּךְ cartilage of the ear, but it should be emphasised that the sbst. is not listed either by Levy or Jastrow. Because of the ever-present אֶזֶן, and the rendering in Sept. of λοβός, the sense of the word is clear: ear-lobe Ex 29₂₀ Lv 8_{23f} 14₁₄₋₁₇₋₂₅₋₂₈, usually with with עַל נֶתֶן; obj. mostly דָּבַר/דָּבָר Ex 29₂₀ Lv 8_{23f} 14₁₄₋₂₅, as well as שָׁמֶן Lv 14₁₇₋₂₈. †

10228 תְּנוּמָה

10229 תְּנוּפָה

תְּנוּפָה: נוף, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r.

A. There are three ways in which this root can be understood: a) traditionally I נוף hif. to move backwards and forwards, swing; b) Arb. nāfa to be high, be elevated, surpass; c) Arb. nauf (sbst. from the vb. nāfa) excess, surplus (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 1011b).

B. SamP. tēnīfā; Ug. šnpt (Gordon Textbook text 1, line 10): the meaning is disputed but suggestions include: a) as Heb. שְׁנִימָּ פִי two-thirds, on which see (with bibliography) פָּה 9; b) equivalent to תְּנוּפָה wave offering, so Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartín UF 7 (1975) 143 (with bibliography); c) the so-called uplifted offering, that is an offering which is raised upwards on outstretched hands; so Jean-Michel de Tarragon Le culte à Ugarit (1980) 64f, with reference to Milgrom The Alleged Wave-Offering in Israel and in the Ancient Near East (IEJ 22; 1972) 33-38. d) it therefore seems that while the first suggestion (a) is to be abandoned, deciding which of the others (b or c) to accept depends on how the sbst. תְּנוּפָה is to be understood (on which see paragraph C).

C. cstr. תְּנוּפֹת, pl. תְּנוּפֹת:

—1. the meaning of the sbst. is disputed, but possibilities include.

—a) traditionally from I נוף hif., on which see especially KBL: consecration effected by swinging, or brandishing upon the hands before God or the altar; so also e.g. Wildberger BK 10: 1222f, but here he also refers to and expresses agreement with Milgrom loc. cit.

—b) from Arb. nāfā (see above A b), so Milgrom loc. cit.: תְּנוּפָה in the sense of uplifted (raised) offering (on which see above B c).

—c) from Neo-Babylonian nūptu addition, additional payment (AHw. 804b; CAD N/2, 343a) from which תְּנוּפָה means special supplement, so Driver JSS 1 (1956) 100ff; similarly von Soden UF 2 (1970) 271 = Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162; 1985) 132: from Arb. nauf excess, surplus (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 1011b), so that תְּנוּפָה means a supplementary offering.

—d) deciding which proposal to accept is difficult, but the first (a) probably comes into consideration less than seemed apparent for a long time; and the second (b) probably deserves greater preference to the last (c), not only because of the expression ... תְּנוּפָה יָד Is 19₁₆ (see below 4a) but also because of the Egyptian offering ritual, as mentioned by Milgrom loc. cit.; see also de Tarragon loc. cit. see above B c).

—2. in addition to the bibliography cited under 1, see further Pedersen Isr. 3-4: 701f; de Vaux Inst. 2: 295. 318 = Lebensord. 2: 262, 286; Snaith Expository Times 74 (1962-1963) 127; Diether Kellermann Die Priesterschrift von Numeri 1₁ bis 10_{<?LLS nbr?>10<?LLS /nbr?>} (BZAW 120; 1970) 117; IDB 4: 817; Reicke-Rost Hw. 2142f (both with bibliography); Hermann Barth Israel und das Assyrienreich in den nicht jesajanischen Texten des Protojesajabuches (Diss. theol., Hamburg 1974) 285²⁵, with special reference to Milgrom.

—3. תְּנוּפָה: uplifted offering > consecrated gift: a) referring to the raising (consecration) of the objects offered or the portions of the offerings, with נוף hif. Ex 29₂₄₋₂₆ (following the expression עַל כַּף שֵׁים), Lv 7₃₀ 8₂₇₋₂₉ 9₂₁ 10₁₅ 14₁₂₋₂₄ 23₂₀ Nu 6₂₀; the Levites as תְּנוּפָה Nu 8₁₁₋₁₃₋₁₅₋₂₁; without הִנִּיף Lv 14₂₁ Nu 18₁₁; בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל תְּנוּפָת Nu 18₁₁; β) לֶחֶם הַתְּנוּפָה literally bread for elevation > raised > consecrated bread Lv 23₁₇; לֶחֶם הַתְּנוּפָה חֲזָה הַתְּנוּפָה the breast for elevation, meaning the raised, consecrated breast Ex 29₂₇ Lv 7₃₄ 10_{14f} Nu 6₂₀ 18₁₈; β) זֶהב הַתְּנוּפָה הַתְּנוּפָה זֶהב Ex 38₂₄, נְחֹשֶׁת הַתְּנוּפָה זֶהב Ex 38₂₉, עֹמֵר הַתְּנוּפָה Lv 23₁₅; γ) תְּנוּפָת זֶהב the consecration of objects of gold Ex 35₂₂; גְּלוּל תְּנוּפָה מִצַּגַּת לִפְנֵי a consecrated gift placed in front of an idolatrous image Sir 30₁₈.

—4. particular instances:

—a) Is 19₁₆ the Egyptians will be terrified מִפְּנֵי תְנוּפַת מִנִּיף עָלֵיו אֲשֶׁר-הוּא יְר־יְהוָה traditionally by the swaying of the hand of Yahweh which he kept waving over them, so e.g. Wildberger BK 10: 727, 731f; cf. ZüB; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 550b; TOB :: Kaiser Jes. 13-39 (ATD 18) 75 (with reference to Milgrom loc. cit. 34f; see above A b, B b and C 1b and d): ... before the lifting of the hand of Yahweh Sabaoth which he had raised against them; REB: they will be horror stricken when the Lord of hosts raises his hand against them; NRSV similarly; Kaiser is to be taken as agreeing with the derivation from Arb. nāfā to be high, as shown above (especially C 1d).

—b) cj. Is 30_{32c} pr. וּבְמַחְלֹת תְנוּפָה, Vulg., Pesh., Tg. (but not Sept., where the sbst. is not translated) prop. וּבְמַחְלֹת; so also e.g. KBL, BHS; Kaiser Jes. 13-39 (ATD 18) 243; especially Wildberger BK 10: 1209 (with bibliography): with dances for consecration (וּבְמַחְלֹת תְנוּפָה) he fights against it; by this it is suggested that consecration occurs through the performance of a ritual conducted through a dance (Wildberger loc. cit. 1223).

תַּנִּין: תַּנְיִים Ezk 29₃, 32₂; cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 479 o.

A. The derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; either it is a primary noun, or it comes from a root tnn, on which see under *תַּן; SamP. tānən, pl. tānīnəm (without gemination !); MHeb. תַּנִּין (Dalman Wörterbuch 445b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 234f); JArm. תַּנִּינָא; EgArm. תַּנִּין (Aḥiqar 106), see Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 331; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1223 sv. tnyn<?LLS nbr?>1<?LLS /nbr?>; Ug. tu-un-na-nu (Ugaritica 5: no. 137 line 8, p. 240 = bašmu (?); on this form of the sbst. see Samuel E. Loewenstamm Comparative Studies in Biblical and Ancient Oriental Literatures (AOAT 204; 1980) 465¹ = tnn (Gordon Textbook §19:2575; Aistleitner Wb. 2781, 2782; Gibson *Myths*² 159b), cf. Fisher Parallels 1: p. 205 no. 237: ym parallel with tnn; also p. 374 no. 592: tnn parallel with btm; see also Gray *Legacy*² 30-32; Syr. tannīnā; Eth. taman (Dillmann Lex. 555); Arb. tannīn.

General remark: the meaning of the sbst. is always sea-monster, dragon, and not as in BibHeb. serpent; cf. for the original general sense of the sbst. Driver Mythological Monsters in the OT (StOr. 1; 1956) 234-249 = Levi della Vida Fschr. The instances in JArm., Syr., Eth. and Arb. mean that the sbst. could be considered as a loanword from Heb.; but occurrences of the word in EgArm. and Ug. refer to a much earlier usage: pl. תַּנִּינִי(ם).

תַּנְשֵׁמֶת: General remark:

—a) in KBL this sbst. has been subdivided into two separate lemmata (I and II), suggesting a particularly strongly marked separation; it expresses the fact that just one word is used to indicate two different types of animal, but it raises the question whether using I and II marks too strong a distinction for what is after all one word. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. avoids such a strong distinction by using two sub-sections.

—b) according to Landsberger Fauna 118, the Heb. sbst. is comparable with Akk. tašlamtu agama (see also AHw. 1338b), a type of lizard, and if this is accepted then tašlamtu should rather be linked with I and not with II; but the question still remains of how one and the same word can come to be used to indicate two such very different animals. Concerning the correct identification cf. D. Talshir The Nomenclature of the Fauna in the Samaritan Targum (Diss. hebr. The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, 1981): in the tradition of the Samaritans I תַּנְשֵׁמֶת is identified as Vormela peregusna (p. 255), and II תַּנְשֵׁמֶת is identified with Numida meleagris (p. 263).

I. תַּנְשֵׁמֶת Lv 11₃₀: the sbst. is not mentioned in Bauer-Leander Heb. 495m; it is commonly derived from the vb. נָשַׁם, so e.g. Dillmann *Die Bücher Exodus und Leviticus*³ (1897) 537; see further Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL, which has a reference also to Arb. fahhāh snorter, meaning the chameleon. תַּנְשֵׁמֶת is an unclean animal, traditionally the chameleon (Bodenheimer Animal Life 196), but this identification is not certain. According to Dillmann loc. cit. 548, it is based on etymology but it does not have the support of the Vrss. (Sept., Vulg., Tg.^o) mole, and Pesh. centipede; see also Dillmann loc. cit. with his remark: most importantly it is extremely unlikely that almost every one of the five names mentioned in vs.₃₀ would mean a kind of lizard.

II. תַּנְשֵׁמֶת, תַּנְשֵׁמֶת Lv 11₁₈ Dt 14₁₆: נָשַׁם: the vb. can apply to the sound of breathing (Dillmann loc. cit. 337f), or hissing, snorting (KBL) made by a bird, so that it may mean some kind of owl; in Sept. γλαῦξ owl, and in Vulg., Pesh., and probably also Tg., more specifically a night-owl; a whole series of types comes into consideration, as mentioned by Dillmann loc. cit. 538, including the long-eared owl, which is also suggested by Elliger Lev. 140; KBL referring to Bodenheimer Animal Life 166 prefers the species white owl, while Aharoni Animals 470f has screech owl. †

תעורה: II עור, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb. DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 235), on which see H.P. Müller in Studies on Prophecy (VTSupplement 26; 1974) 25f: in Qumran t'ûdâ/t'ûdôt are technical terms for the “determinations” for the calendar of festivals, for the holy war, for the law, for primaeval providence, for the order of nature and also for the fixing of God's Acts of salvation in history; (for each of these Müller gives examples); Ug. t'dt (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 2:i:22, 26, 30, 41, 44): t'dt tpt nhr the message (legation) from the Lord River, parallel with mlak ym messengers of the sea; for mlak as cstr. pl. see Gordon Textbook §8: 16; for t'dt (root 'wd) as an abstract for concrete see Gordon Textbook §19:1832: testimony, message > testifier, messenger; Gibson *Myths*² 41f, 159b; Gray *Legacy*² 24; cf. Whitley ZAW 90 (1978) 28f :: Aistleitner Wb. 1195: plenipotentiary, authority, authorised representative (root yā'ad, Arb. wa'ada to determine) however the attestation for this is rather remote.

—a) in a judicial context indicated by a gesture Ru 4₇, so with KBL, also Zorell Lexicon 905b; Lat. testificatio; but perhaps it is better to render the sbst. as confirmation, corroboration, which accords with the expression with לְקַיֵּם in order to confirm (→ קום pi.): וְזָאת הִתְעוּרָהּ and that counts as corroboration, so e.g. Gerleman BK 18: 34; Hertzberg ATD 9: 276; ZüB; similarly Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 58.

—b) Is 8_{16,20} attestation through the word of the prophet; NRSV: testimony; REB: message; in vs.₁₆ תעורה with צור (on this → I צרר qal I 1). Such a message may be passed on orally, or fixed in written form (the written memoirs of Isaiah ?); for oral transmission see Fohrer Studien zur alttestamentlichen Prophetie (BZAW 99; 1967) 140-146, especially 142; for written transmission see H.P. Müller loc. cit. 32f; also in WdO 8 (1975) 71f; furthermore cf. Walter Dietrich Jesaja und die Politik (Beitr. zur ev. Theologie, 1976) 223-227, especially 225 :: Wildberger BK 10: 342. 345: תעורה warning (taking it from II עור), but this seems to be too general. †

cj. *תְּעוּפָה: Jb 11₁₇: II עִיף by-form II עוֹף (HAL 757a; HALOT 801a): darkness, as proposed by Pesh., Tg. for תְּעוּפָה though it may be so dark; for the cj. see also e.g. Hölischer *Hiob*² 32; Dhorme Job 150; TOB; ZüB; KBL; Gesenius-Buhl Handw. under II עוֹף (p. 573a) :: MT, an example of the so-called “aorist of affectation or emotion”, see Bauer-Leander Heb. 301v, 404; Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. 108e: an example of the cohortative used in the third person in a conditional sentence without אִם to express a contingent intention; cf. 10243 תְּעָלָה

I תְּעָלָה: the derivation of the sbst. is not established, but any connection with the root עֵלָה (noted in KBL with a question mark) is very uncertain; on this see Barth Nominalbildung §179² (p. 276): if the ת of the sbst. is a radical, then it corresponds to to Arb. tal'at slope, watercourse, stream, and it would then perhaps be a primary noun; by contrast → II תְּעָלָה does belong to the vb. עֵלָה: cstr. תְּעָלָת, pl. sf. תְּעָלְתֵיהָ.

תַּעֲנוּג, Bauer-Leander Heb. 497x; SamP. variant תַּעֲנָג tānnāg; MHeb. pleasure, delight (Dalman Wörterbuch 446a), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 235): pl. masc. תַּעֲנוּגִים, sf. תַּעֲנוּגִיָּה, תַּעֲנוּגִיָּה; pl. fem. תַּעֲנוּגֹת thus Leningrad, נַגּוֹת Bombberg, see BHK³; on the masc. as well as the fem. pl. see Michel Grundlegung 1: 88: plurals in -im as well as those in -ot are used as plurals of amplification; the distinction between group-plurals and individual-plurals seems to have no part to play in this; on the sense of the sbst. see also von Soden ZAH 2 (1989) 79.

—1. sg. a) life of luxury Pr 19₁₀, so Gemser *Spr.*² 76, 77; also Plöger BK 17: 217, 218, 222, both of whom refer to Winton Thomas ThSt. 38 (1937) 400, and Driver VTSupplement 3 (1955) 84; for the former תַּנְגוֹת means guidance, and for the latter it means control, supervision; but on this see Plöger loc. cit. 218, 222.

—b) bliss, comfort, pleasure, enjoyment, delight Sir 6₂₈, 11₂₇ (Smend Sir.), 14₁₆ 37₂₉ 41₁.

—2. pl. a) pleasure: α) בְּנֵי תַּעֲנוּגִיָּה the children of your delight (of Zion) Mi 1₁₆; REB: the children who were your delight; NRSV: your pampered children; β) תַּעֲנוּגִים בַּת (rd. thus for בַּת תַּעֲנוּגִים Song 7₇: completely delightful girl, so e.g. Gerleman BK 18: 201, 202, or rather a daughter for all pleasure, so O. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 18, 1986) 221, 224; NRSV: delectable maiden; REB: daughter of delights; γ) בְּנֵי הָאָדָם תַּעֲנוּגֹת the delight of the sons of men (meaning people) Qoh 2₈.

—b) contentment: תַּעֲנוּגִיָּה בֵּית their comfortable houses (of the women), with I גִּרְשׁ pi. (בֵּין) Mi 2₉, on which see KBL: תַּעֲנוּג comfort; cf. Wolff BK 14/4, 38: their cosy houses; on the 3rd. sg. fem. suffix instead of 3rd. pl. fem. see Wolff loc. cit. 41; and on the sg. בֵּית instead of the pl. בֵּיתֵי see Gesenius-Kautzsch Gramm. §124r, and Rudolph KAT 13/3: 58. †

*תַּעֲנִית: II עֲנָה, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496q, hapax legomenon Ezr 9₅; = MHeb. fasting (Dalman Wörterbuch 446a), DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 235), the same in ja. תַּעֲנִיתָא (Dalman Wörterbuch loc. cit.): sf. תַּעֲנִיתִי: humiliation, penitential act, with קוּם (בֵּין); the meaning of the sbst. is used here in a rather more general sense than in MHeb. and JArm., on which see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 87 with reference to the rendering in Sept. ταπεινώσις (ταπεινώσεώς μου) and in Vulg. afflictio (de afflictione mea). †

תַּעֲנַךְ, תַּעֲנַךְ: place name.

A. the etymological derivation is uncertain. In Bauer-Leander Heb. 495k the place name is treated as an example of the taqtal pattern but is not explained; according to Gesenius Thesaurus 1052 it is from Arb. ‘ank door, and according to Boehmer ZAW 47 (1929) 79 (and then subsequently KBL) from Arb. ‘anak the closure of a door, fastening, barring; but both are equally questionable.

B. Sept. Ταυναχ with variants: Ju 1₂₇ Sept.^B Ταυνακ, Ju 5₁₉ Sept.^A Θευνναχ, Sept.^B Θανναχ; 1K 4₁₂ 1C 7₂₉ Θανναχ; Egyptian T(a)-‘a-na-ka (Albright Vocalization 38), ta-?LLS nbr?>4<?LLS /nbr?>-‘a-na-k (Helck *Beziehungen*² 133), cf. S. Yeivin JEA 36 (1950) 54, who understands it as ta‘anaka, from ‘sup‘uruta-ahÉ-[nu-k]a (Knudtzon El Amarna letter 248: 14; see also p. 1310).

C. occurrences in the OT: according to Jos 12₂₁ תַּעֲנַךְ is a Canaanite royal city; it belongs to the tribe of Manasseh Jos 21₂₅ Ju 1₂₇ 1C 7₂₉, cj. 6₅₅; cf. Ju 5₁₉ 1K 4₁₂, but with towns that lie in the territory of Issachar and Asher Jos 17₁₁, on which see Noth Jos. 77. 105; on the history of the city see Elliger in Reicke-Rost Hw. 1961f; also IDB.

D. תַּעֲנַךְ = Tell Ta‘annek situated on the south-western edge of the plain of Jezreel, 10 km. south-west of Jenin, see Simons Geog. §337: 22; cf. Fowler ZDPV 100 (1984) 30: on the southern edge of the plain of Jezreel, some 8 km. south-east of Megiddo.

10251 תַּעֲצֻמוֹת

תַּעַר: A. preliminary remark: in Ug. as well as in BibHeb. the connection between the two meanings is not clear, and the sbst. should perhaps be treated as a homonym; the etymology is equally unclear, for the references to עָרָה (see Bauer-Leander Heb. 497z; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL) are clearly not relevant for meaning 1, and probably also are not to be considered for 2 either.

B. the word appears in the cognate languages thus: MHeb. knife for shaving (Dalman Wörterbuch 446a); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 235): 1QH 5:14f: תַּעַרָה אֵל כַּחַרְבַּ לְשׁוֹנָם וְתוֹסַף לְשׁוֹנָם כַּחַרְבַּ לְשׁוֹנָם you let each of their tongues slip back like a sword into its scabbard, so Lohse *Texte*³ 130, 131; cf. Maier Texte 1: 85: you stick back each of their tongues like a sword into the scabbard; according to the Samaritan tradition it refers to any means of removing hair, not only by shearing but also, cf. Samaritan Targum, חַפּוּרָה to depilate (Brockelmann Lex. p. 249a); it is translated into Samaritan Arabic as ḥāliq; there are two related words in Ug.

—1) yʿr (= תַּעַר) shearing blade, so Aistleitner Wb. 2097 on Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 5:vi:18f = 1, 6:i:2f: byʿr yḥdy lḥm w dqn with a razor he made incisions into the chin and the beard; on this see also Gibson *Myths*² 73: he shaved his side-whiskers; see also p. 148a; Caquot Textes 253 :: Aartun WdO 4 (1968) 286f (= AOAT 21/2 (1978) 67).

—2) tʿrt scabbard (Gordon Textbook §19:2579; Aistleitner Wb. 2097; Gibson *Myths*² 159b; Fisher Parallels 1 p. 185, no. 196), which occurs twice: a) km diy b tʿrty (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 18:iv:18); b) ḥrb tšt btʿr[th] (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 19:iv:45). Only for the second of these instances (b) does the previously mentioned translation of sword makes sense, and the sentence can be rendered she places the sword in the (its) scabbard; but for the first (a), which concerns the image of falconry, it is preferable to give a different rendering such as like a bird on my gauntlet; so with Margalit UF 15 (1983) 100; Gibson *Myths*² 112 with note 5; cf. Caquot Textes 438 with note z. For the differences between the context of the two sentences (a and b) see also Gibson *Myths*² 159b.

C. The sbst. in the OT: sf. תַּעַרָה, תַּעַרָה.

Greek τύπανον ἢ τὸ τύπανον, which is derived from the vb. τύπτω to strike; it is not therefore a Semitic loanword (:: Masson Recherches 94f); conversely the Heb. תָּף has not been borrowed from Greek, as was proposed by Brown VT 19 (1969) 165; although Phoenician could be considered as a bridge between the two, the only attestation of the root is the pi. pt. mtp drummer (Friedrich *Phön. Gr.*² §164; Harris Gramm. 156; Tomback Lexicon 344; Jean-Hoftijzer Dictionnaire 332f, and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 1226: pol.) and even with the associated substantival meaning this is not enough to support the proposed borrowing of the word from Semitic (Heb.) as at all probable: pl. תַּפִּים, sf. תַּפִּיךְ, תַּפִּיךְ: hand-drum, tambourine.

I תְּפֹיחַ: A. On the form of the sbst. cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 480r; the derivation is uncertain.

—a) from a vb.: either α) from תַּפַּח: MHeb. and JArm. to swell up, become plump; or β) from נַפַּח, Arb. nafaḥa to smell, exude scent; according to α תְּפֹיחַ would be the swollen fruit meaning the round fruit, so e.g. Levy Wb. 4: 658b; according to β it would be the scented fruit, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; on α and β see König Wb. 553b.

—b) תְּפֹיחַ is a primary noun, which is supported by the instances in Bauer-Leander Heb. 480r.

B. in the cognate languages it occurs as follows: MHeb. תְּפֹיחַ; JArm. תְּפֹיחָא; Ug. tph (Gordon Textbook §19:2588; Aistleitner Wb. 2795; Gibson *Myths*² 159b) apple, occurring also in Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 1, 20:ii:11: tph t̄sr shr, on which see Dijkstra-de Moor UF 7 (1975) 215 :: Dijkstra UF 20 (1988) 46: tph šr apples for the banquet; tph occurs also as a place name (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 4, 643:14); Arb. tuffāḥ: Eth. tifūḥ, tifāḥ (Dillmann Lex. 573); Tigr. tōfāḥ (Littmann-H. Wb. 322b); Egyptian tph (Erman-G. 5: 296); Coptic čempeḥ, older form šphu, dp̄hu (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); Akk. ḥašḥūru(m), Assyrian šaḥšūru (AHw. 333b; CAD H, 139b; see also CAD G, 153b (appendix), and Š/1: 101a) apple, apple-tree; the same in JArm. אַזְזִירָא, אַזְזִירָא, Syr. ḥazzūrā (Brockelmann Lex. 226a).

C. BibHeb. pl. תַּפְּוֹחַיִם, cstr. תַּפְּוֹחַי: for the bibliography see Reicke-Rost Hw. 105; BRL² 34b: the apple tree is mentioned as growing in Palestine only in later documents, and then rarely, while it occurs frequently in Assyrian; among the instances the two place names in Jos 15₃₄ 16₈ are evidence of it being cultivated; these two instances, together with the others (see below under II תַּפְּוֹחַ and III תַּפְּוֹחַ) point to a well established cultivation in the land during the older period, which is confirmed also for Syria by the Ug. sbst. tp̄h and the associated place name.

—2. apple-tree JI 1₁₂ with תַּמָּזַר and רַמְזוֹן, Song 8₅.

—3. תַּפְּוֹחַי זָהָב golden apple Pr 25₁₁; on the MT, which is probably to be maintained with the Vrss., see Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 338-341; see also Ploeger BK 17: 295, 296. †

II תַּפְּוֹחַ: תַּפְּוֹחַ: n.m. 1C 2₄₃; Sept. Θαπουϛ; originally probably the establishment of a group of Calebites which was not yet settled, so Noth Jos. 97 (→ III תַּפְּוֹחַ 1): descendant of כְּלָב, son of מְרִשֶׁה 1C 2₄₃ (delete as dittography וּבְנֵי חֶבְרוֹן, see BHS). †

10260 תַּפְּוֹחַ

III תַּפְּוֹחַ: place name.

—1. בֵּית תַּפְּוֹחַ Jos 15₃₃; Noth Jos. 97: west of Hebron, to be identified with Taffūh, cf. Noth Bibl. Land. 2: 80; cf. also Rudolph Chr. 21 (Sept.^B Βαυθαχου, Sept.^A Βαυθααπφουε; (also → II תַּפְּוֹחַ and בֵּית place name 52)

—2. תַּפְּוֹחַ Jos 15₃₄ (differently in Sept.): near Beit Nettif, 5 km. south-east of עֵזְקָה, so Simons Geog. §318 A/6; similarly Abel Géogr. Pal. 2: 475; in the שִׁפְלָה near Beit Nettif; on this see also Noth Bibl. Land. 2: 80³¹.

—3. תַּפְּוֹחַ Jos 12₁₇ (Sept.^{RA} Ταφουγ, Sept.^B αταφουτ, Sept.^A Θαφφου), Jos 16₈ (Sept. genitive ἀπὸ Ταφου), Jos 17₈ (Sept.^B Θαφεθ, Sept.^A Θαφθωθ), 1 Macc 9₅₀ Τεφων; site: Tell Šēh Abu-Zarad, some 13 km. south-west of Nablus, so with Abel Géogr. Pal. 2: 475f, and subsequently e.g. Noth ZDPV 82 (1966) 270-73; see Noth Jos. 103; see further U. Lux ZDPV 90 (1974) 210; Seebass ZDPV 100 (1984) 72¹⁴; Kuschke in Hertzberg Fschr. 104 :: Elliger Thappuah (PJB 33; 1937) 7-22, who has asserted his wide disagreement with the identification going back to Abel; on this see especially Kuschke loc. cit. 103.

—4. עֵין תַּפְּוֹחַ (Sept. ἐπὶ πηγῆν Θαφθωθ) Jos 17₇.

—5. אֶרֶץ תַּפּוּחַ, missing in Sept., as opposed to Vulg. terra Taffuae Jos 17₈.

For 4 and 5 see Noth Bibl. Land. 1: 249f: it is not easy to determine the connection between עֵין תַּפּוּחַ vs.⁷ and אֶרֶץ תַּפּוּחַ vs.⁸; all that is clear is that here a distinction should be made between the town of Tappuah, which belongs to Ephraim, and the fields of (or a part of the fields of) the city which was counted as belonging to Manasseh.

—6. cj. 2K 15₁₆ pr. תַּפּוּחַ prop. following Sept.^L Ταφωε = תַּפּוּחַ, so Elliger ZDPV 53 (1930) 292f; Gray *Kings*³ 622^a; Würthwein ATD 11/2: 378; cf. REB and NEB: Tappuah; Noth ZDPV 82 (1966) 271²⁵ maintains a position against the cj.; for him what comes into consideration is that the emended text contributes nothing towards the identification of the place name of Tappuah; TOB is also against the cj. and stays with the MT; cf. NRSV: Tiphseh. †

—1. Jr 25₃₄ pl. sf. וַתַּפּוּצוּתֵיכֶם, variant וַתַּפּוּצוּתֵיכֶם, see BHS; missing in Sept.: dispersion, literally your dispersion, but this does not fit in with the context; according to Rudolph *Jer.*³ 166 it is incomprehensible. It is reasonable either to delete the sbst. (as Sept., see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.), or to take what is apparently a sbst. as a verbal form. Suggested cj. include: a) וְנִפְצַתֶם and you will be dispersed, (so e.g. TOB); b) וְנִפְצַתִּיכֶם and I shatter you (Weiser ATD 21 (1955) 230 with note 1); c) וְהִפְצַתִּיכֶם and I will scatter you (Zorell Lexicon 907a).

—2. cj. Zeph 3₁₀ pr. בַּת פּוּצִי daughter of my scattering, suggestions include: a) בַּתַּפּוּצָה in the scattering (a gloss), so e.g. Rudolph KAT 13/3: 292; NRSV: from beyond the rivers of Ethiopia my suppliants, my scattered ones; REB: my worshippers dispersed beyond the rivers of Cush; b) so also Keller CAT 11b: 210⁴, but he takes בַּתַּפּוּצָה as meaning in the overflowing of the river, as derived from the Arb. vb. fāṣa(i) to overflow, flood; see Kopf VT 8 (1958) 191; c) MT, following Nah 3₉, should rather be corrected to bt (bat/bēt) pūt the Libyan (parallel with kûš), so Klaus Seybold Satirische Prophetie. Studien zum Buch Zefania (SBS 120; 1985) 112³⁷; d) of these proposals the second (b) comes less into question than the other two (a and c). †

Note that MT (BHS) Lv 16₁₄ in Pesh. is Lv 16₂₁. †

I תפל: MHeb., JArm. to say silly things; Arb. tafala to spit, sbst. tuf spittle; perhaps the root is comparable with Eth. tafa (Dillmann Lex. 573) to spit, sbst. tifa.

[? cj. qal (but with no certain attestation): pf. תפלתי: to utter stupidity, speak foolishly Ps 141₅, so KBL following the cj. of Gunkel Ps. 598. †]

hitp. impf. תתפל 2S 22₂₇: to exhibit stupid behaviour, so KBL, but that is completely uncertain; against it is the reading תתפתל Ps 18₂₇, → פתל hitp. †

Der. I תפל, תפלה, ? n.m. אחיתפל.

II *תפל: by-form of → תפל, which is also related to Akk. tapālu(m) to abuse, revile, suspect (AHw. 1379b).

Der. II תפל.

—1. תפל: something unsalted, insipid, dull Jb 6₆, linked with מבל-מלח without salt, with אכל nif.

—2. Lam 2₁₄: MT וְתַפֵּל לְךָ שׁוֹא וְתַפֵּל; here it is not straightforward to define the (exact) sense of תפל; the substantivised adj. תפל can be taken in two ways; either —a. in the same sense as Jb 6₆, which is supported by the connection with שוא; or

—b. it can be identified with II תפל; the first alternative (a) must have been suggested already by Pesh. daggālūtā wmaṭ'yānūtā (Sept. and Vulg. are different), your prophets have seen for you a lie and a deception; this is followed by e.g. Kraus BK 20 (³1968): illusion and seduction; TOB: prophecies of emptiness and temptation; Plöger (HAT 18²; 1969) 141: false and erroneous information; Zorell Lexicon 907a: ignorance, stupidity; König Wb. 553b: what is dull, outrageous, insane; NRSV: your prophets have seen for you false and deceptive visions; for b see e.g. Max Löhr Die Klagelieder des Jeremia (GHK III 2/2 (1893) 9): deception and whitewash, so also ZüB, and Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 220, who gives the meaning something insipid, dull, which is too weak; cf. also Gesenius-Buhl Handw.;

—c) deciding between these alternatives (a and b) is not easy, but perhaps the second (b), for the reasons advanced by Rudolph, is to be preferred: whitewash (perhaps then the same as II תפל); REB: the visions that your prophets saw for you were a false and painted sham. †

II תַּפֵּל: II תפל, Bauer-Leander Heb. 463y, 464z, a; MHeb., DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 236); cf. טַפְּלָה make-up, covering; JArm. טַפְּלָא, טַפְּלָא whitewash, tincture; BibHeb. whitewash Ezk 13_{10f}.14f 22₂₈, with טוּחַ; on the material see Dalman Arbeit 7: 27 and 28: the mortar with which stones are secured into a building is הַמָּוֶר, ... the plastering on a wall (טוּחַ) is contemptuously described as תַּפֵּל smearing, covering of paint (Ez 13_{10f} 22₂₈), by having the lying speech of the false prophets compared to it; similarly Eichrodt ATD 22/1: 94; compare also the question raised by Zimmerli Ez. 283, who wonders if the assonance with II תפל (i.e. here I תפל) what is tasteless, unnutritious (Hi 6₆) is intentional. †

10267 תַּפֵּל

I תַּפֵּל: place name, or the name of a country Dt 1₁; Sept. Τοφολ; Akk. Dābilu*, which is inferred from the gentilic form ʿsupʿKURda-ab/p-i-la-aya the Dabilite; on this see Cazelles VT 9 (1959) 413; Egyptian Db/Dbr (Cazelles loc. cit. 414); traditionally identified with et-Tafileh, between Kerak and Petra, south-east of the Dead Sea, see Simons Geog. §255²²³; Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL, and especially Cazelles loc. cit. 412 (with bibliography). Because the Akk. gentilic dābilāya refers to the name of a country since it is written with the determinative prefix KUR (Sumerian for land) Cazelles feels that תַּפֵּל is not the name of a city but rather an area of territory in the region of the Dead Sea. †

II *תַּפֵּל: the meaning is uncertain, see Noth Personennamen 236a.

תַּפְּלָה: פלל B hitp., Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; the same in MHeb. (Dalman Wörterbuch 446b); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 236); JArm. תַּפְּלָתָא phylactery (Dalman loc. cit.); ? Neo-Punic tplt (Donner-Röllig Inschriften text 162: 4 textual uncertainty) prayer, plea, so Donner-Röllig Inschriften 3: 26b, and subsequently THAT 2: 427; cstr. תַּפְּלָת, sf. תַּפְּלָתִי, תַּפְּלָתְךָ, תַּפְּלָתְתָם, תַּפְּלָתְתוֹ; pl. תַּפְּלוֹת (77 times): prayer.

The meaning and use of תְּפִלָּה. Mowinckel Ps. Stud. 4 (1923) 8: תְּפִלָּה is the general word for a prayer, especially for a prayer of supplication, but also apparently especially for the poetically constructed prayer known as the psalm of lamentation; similarly, but somewhat more cautiously, Mowinckel Israel's Worship 2: 210; see also Gunkel-Begrich Einl. Ps. 258f: the technical term in Heb. for the psalm of lamentation for an individual is תְּפִלָּה; but it also has a place in intercessions, in communal lamentations, and more generally in prayer which is not closely defined as such within its context.

B. For the original use of the sbst. תְּפִלָּה see the proposal of Richard Hentschke Die Stellung der vorexilischen Schriftpropheten zum Kultus (BZAW 75; 1957) 98f: תְּפִלָּה was probably the invocation for a decision of the deity ... about obtaining an oracle. While it is possible to take this as the original area of meaning it is probably too narrow, for the usage of the sbst. suggests that we should be thinking more of supplication to God than for personal and communal needs.

תְּפִלְצָתֶךָ הַשִּׂיא אֶתְךָ (pr. הַשִּׂיא אֶתְךָ prop. הַשִּׂיאֶתְךָ) your תְּפִלְצָתֶךָ הַשִּׂיאֶתְךָ has led you astray, the pride of your heart.

—a) the Vrss. differ, which shows that the word was not familiar to them; this is particularly true for Sept. with its striking -141̄ παλγυῖα σου meaning your game, your joke; though less marked it is also true for the other Vrss.: Vulg. arrogantia tui; Pesh. awlāk your sin; Tg.^J tafšūtāk your stupidity; it is clear that in all three cases the rendering of the unclear Heb. word has been matched to the absolutely clear expression זָרוֹן לְבָבְךָ (or alternatively has been influenced by it) which has been rendered thus: Vulg. superbia cordis tua; Pesh. šubhārēh dleb-bāk the pride of your heart; Tg.^J rša' libbāk the sin of your heart; REB: your overbearing arrogance.

—b) establishing an etymology for the word, which could not be achieved from the Vrss., may help in understanding it: taking it from the vb. → פִּלֵּץ hitp. to tremble Jb 6⁹, sbst. → פִּלְצוֹת trembling, fright, accounts for the usual translation of *תְּפִלְצָת as fear, terror, or rather תְּפִלְצָתֶךָ as your terrifying; so ZüB, and König Wb. 554a; cf. also KBL the horror you cause (with a question mark); and TOB: the trembling you arouse; NRSV: the terror you inspire.

—c) Rudolph *Jer.*³ 288 takes a separate course and considers that it is unsatisfactory to explain the word from a Heb. vb.; instead he takes it from the Arb. root flš to escape, avoid disaster, and translates that you have always got away with it has beguiled you.

—d) since the proposed derivation of the sbst. from Heb. suggests itself so much more easily than that from Arb., even though it has some attraction, (b) is to be preferred to (c). †

I תִּפְתָּ: hapax legomenon Jb 17₆.

General remark: תִּפְתִּי is to be derived from an onomatopoeic vb., which is probably bi-radical with the meaning to spew, to spit; in different ways a third radical has been added in the cognate languages, cf. von Soden Gramm. §73b; G.R. Driver Problems of the Hebrew Verbal System (1936) 3f.

—a) תִּפְתִּי: תוּף (so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw., KBL and Zorell Lexicon 908a, with a question mark).

According to Zorell loc. cit., parallel vocalisations and derivations are בִּשָּׁת from בּוּשׁ, and נִפְתִּי from II נוּף.

—b) in the cognate languages it occurs thus: JArm. תִּפְתִּי; Ug. wpt D-theme (Gordon Textbook §19:806; Aistleitner Wb. 873; Gibson *Myths*² 146a); Eth. tafa, sbst. tifā? (Dillmann Lex. 573); Tigr. tafa, and Amharic tafa (Littmann-H. Wb. 322f); Soqotri tebib (Leslau Contributions 56); Arb. taffa to spew, spit, II to say “pew!”; sbst. tuff dirt under the finger nails, tuffan laka fie on you! (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 95a); nafata to spit, spit out; sbst. naft and nafta expectoration, spittle (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 981b-982a); cf. von Soden Gramm. §102a, b, and von Soden Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162; 1985) 109-121; Egyptian tf, Coptic taf (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.): spittle, expectoration Jb 17₆ (cf. 1Corinthians 4₁₃ περιψημῶν); cj. pr. לְפִנִּים prop. with Sept., Pesh., Vulg. לְפִנִּיהֶם, BHK³. †

II תִּפְתִּי: place name; Sept. Ταφεθ, Sept.^A θοφθα, Aquila θυφθ, Symmachus θαφεθ (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.); a disparaging vocalisation, like תִּפְתִּי to denote a place for sacrifices devoted to the god מוֹלֵךְ (מֹלֵךְ) in the Valley of Hinnom (בְּנֵי-הַנֶּחֱם גִּי and גִּי הַנֶּחֱם) near to Jerusalem; apparently situated at the entrance to the valley, so Reicke-Rost Hw. 723.

—1. possible etymology: the original meaning of the place name is not certain, but one explanation which can be followed is that of W.R. Smith *The Religion of the Semites*² (1894) 370ff, 377n (and in the German edition Die Religion der Semiten (1899) 287⁶⁵¹) who maintains that the place name (originally Aramaic) can be taken as an appellative and compared with Aramaic/Syriac תִּפְתִּי cooking hearth, and also Arb. utfiya which indicates the stone on which the cooking pot is set; this gives a meaning for תִּפְתִּי along the lines of hearth, fire-place, corresponding to Heb. אֲשָׁפֶת, so e.g. Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL; Gray *Kings*³ 735f; Kaiser ATD 18: 246; and especially Wildberger BK 10: 1223 :: König Wb. 555a: marshland, abandoned ground or similar, cf. פֶּתַח.

Rabin in Samuel Yeivin Fschr. (Jerusalem, 1969-1970) connects the place name תִּפְתִּי with Sanskrit tapti heat, and he produces a meaning fireplace for the name; he also refers to the Scythian goddess of the hearth Tabiti, which can be used to explain תִּפְתִּי as a possible by-form of תִּפְתִּי. Although this suggestion is innovative and interesting it is probably better in the first place to accept linguistic evidence which is closer, as is done by W.R. Smith; this principle also works against the suggestion of Görg BN 43 (1988) 12f, who takes Tophet to mean the place of the god of fire, which could be rendered in Egyptian as t' Pth, or rather t' s.tn Pth the place of Ptah, an Egyptian god who can be identified with Greek Hephaistos.

—2. the father of Jahzeiah who, with Jonathan son of Asahel, opposed the demands of Ezra for all the members of the community to separate from their foreign wives Ezr 10₁₅.

—General remark: the form of the personal name is unique, but it is not impossible. It is to be linked with the non-biblical fem. name קוּיְלִיָּה, corresponding to קוּיְלִיָּה, meaning hope in Yahweh!; this meaning is close to חַכְלִיָּה, corresponding to חַכְלִיָּה (ה), wait for (expect) Yahweh! Neh 1₁: the father of Nehemiah. For these names compare the Heb. personal names constructed with an impv. (and which have probably come under a reasonably strong Babylonian influence) occurring in Bezalel Porten Archives from Elephantine (1968) 144f; see also his article Domla'el and Related Names (IEJ 21 (1971) 47-49; and subsequently Stamm Fschr. 147-157, where (see p. 155f) there are corresponding impv. names taken from Egyptian and Akkadian. Another name which inspires faith from an Egyptian execration text should perhaps be added, 'i-l-u-m-q-h-tí = Ilumqwati God is my hope (Helck Beziehungen 52). תְּקוּעַ: Ezk 7₁₄ → תקע qal 3dδ.

תְּקוּעֵי: gentilic from תְּקוּעַ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 501x: 2S 23₂₆ 1C 11₂₈ 27₉; fem. תְּקוּ(וֹ)עֵית 2S 14_{4,9}, pl. תְּקוּ(וֹ)עֵים Neh 3_{5,27}. †

תְּקוּפָה:

—a) General remark: the hypothetical root *קוּף is the basis for this sbst., which usually occurs in BibHeb. in its by-form II נִקְףָּ: qal to revolve, recur; hif. to encircle, go round in a circle; it is from this hif. form that the meaning of the sbst. is often taken, on which see Bauer-Leander Heb. 496s; also Joüon Gramm. §34b (p. 83); for other ע'ו'וֹ verbs with פ'נ'נ' by-forms see Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §28q; also von Soden Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162; 1985) 118f.

—b) instances in the cognate languages: MHeb. תְּקוּפָה solstice, corresponding to JArm. תְּקוּפְתָא (Dalman Wörterbuch 447a), cf. תְּקוּפַת נִיֶּסְנָ/תַּמוּז; MHeb.: in DSS (see Kuhn Konkordanz 236) there are ten instances, on which see Maier Texte 2: 35; the exact meaning of the word in the way it is found here is questionable; among the various proposals the one that should be mentioned first is circuit, cycle, and then turning, so e.g. 1QS x: 1: עַם תְּקוּפָתוֹ at its turning (referring to the light); see Lohse *Texte*³ 36f; see also Maier Texte 1: 40; pl. 1QH xii: 5: בְּתִקְוֹפֹת יוֹם at the turning of the day, see Lohse *Texte*³ 156f; Maier Texte 1: 105; cf. on this S.B. Hoenig JQR 58 (1967/68) 312f; Ug. nqpt the circuit of the year (→ II נִקְףָּ).

—c) BibHeb.: cstr. תְּקוּפַת, sf. תְּקוּפָתוֹ; pl. תְּקוּפֹת 1S 1₂₀ rd. תְּקִפָּת (for bibliography see e.g. Begrich Chron. 79ff; Mowinckel Zum israelit. Neujahr und zur Deutung der Thronbesteigungspsalmen (Oslo, 1952); Johnson *Kingship*² 56; de Vaux Inst. 1: 289 = Lebensord. 1: 306; Kutsch "... am Ende des Jahres". *Zur Datierung des israelitischen Herbstfestes in Ex 23*₁₆ (ZAW 83 (1971) 15-21, especially 20: circuit, cycle, (with the aim of reaching a) turning, turning-point.

—1. turning-point (of the sun in the sky) Ps 19₇, on which see especially Begrich Chron. 80⁴, and Westermann Fschr. 321: the eastern horizon as one extremity of the sky is the place from which the sun commences its course; at the opposite side, on the western horizon, is the turning-point, for this is the entrance for its nocturnal journey back under the earth.

—2. תְּקוּפַת הַשָּׁנָה the circuit of the year Ex 34₂₂, on which see Kutsch loc. cit. 20: it can be taken as the end as well as the beginning of the year, cf. תְּקוּפַת הַשָּׁנָה at the turning of the year 2C 24₂₃, with reference to a celebration of the new year in the springtime, see Kutsch loc. cit. 20⁴⁷.

—3. לְתִקְוֹפֹת הַיָּמִים 1S 1₂₀: the expression can be understood in two different ways:

—a) at the turning of the year, at the beginning of the new-year, so Stoebe KAT 8/1: 89, 92 (with bibliography); see also F. Stolz Das erste und das zweite Buch Samuel (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 9; 1981) 24; cf. also KBL.

—b) at the turning, meaning at the end of the days (the period of the pregnancy), so Kutsch loc. cit. 20; cf. TOB when the days were fulfilled; NRSV and REB: in due time.

—4. תְּקִיפָה: the changing (the phases) of the moon Sir 43₇. †

10290 תְּקִיף

תְּקִיף: תְּקַף; Arm., Wagner Aram. 330; Bauer-Leander Arm. 207a; JArm. תְּקִיפָא (Dalman Wörterbuch 447a); GenAp 2:8; 20:11; 22:23; see Beyer Arm. 727; → BArm., also for the instances in the other Arm. dialects: mighty: a) Qoh 6₁₀, said of God; b) Qoh 4₁₂; the cj. mentioned in KBL and BHS are not necessary, on which see under תְּקַף. †

תִּקַּן: a) General remark: a root variant of תִּכַּן; according to KBL 1157b Heb. תִּקַּן and תִּכַּן come from Arm., see also Supplement 194, and Wagner Aram. 328. It is possible to take Arm. as the origin of the vb., but because of the instances in Akk. and Arb. (see below) it is not certain. Jenni Pi'el 21 avoids any such reference, and says that the basic meaning is to become straight.

—b) cognate languages: MHeb. (pi. hif.) to set in order, arrange, correct; SamP. pa. LOT 3/2: p. 38⁵⁸; for af. see p. 47²⁶; JArm. (pa.) to prepare, place; itpa. passive; JArm., Samaritan and CPArm. to set, lay; cf. E. Rosenthal in Henoah Yalon Jubilee Volume (Jerusalem, 1963) 306; BArm. תִּקַּן hof. to be put back in place, also for the other Arm. dialects; cf. Beyer Arm. 726; Ug. tqn in the personal name il-taqnu the god of order (?), see Gröndahl Personennamen 32f and 201; Akk. taqānu(m), to be (become) well-ordered, secure (AHw. 1323b); Eth. tkn (Leslau Contributions 55); Arb. tqn, IV atqana to perfect, bring to perfection etc. (Wehr-Cowan Dict. 95b).

תִּקַּע: on the origin of the vb. see Blau VT 5 (1955) 344: it seems to me that this vb. is an example of sound-mimicry; MHeb. to push, blow on the horn, stick in; to pitch a tent, see Dalman Wörterbuch 447b; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 236) mostly with בַּחֲעֻעֵרוֹת, to blow the trumpet; JArm. תִּקַּע to give a blast on, sound the horn (Dalman loc. cit.); Ug. tq' in tq't (Dietrich-Loretz-Sanmartin Texte 24:49): the meaning of this vb. is not clear.

—a) a divine name either of one of the goddesses of the Ktrt (Kutarāt), so Wolfram Herrmann Yarih und Nikkal und der Preis der Kutarāt-Göttinnen (BZAW 106; 1968) 5f, 24, 47); so also Aistleitner Wb. 1419, Gibson *Myths*² 129, 149b; van Selms UF 11 (1979) 743f.

—b) pt. fem. pl. of the vb. tq' those who applaud by clapping, by which are meant the goddesses of the Ktrt, so Caquot Textes 397^K; see also 571 note x.

—c) sbst. α) shouts of applause, so Gibson *Myths*¹ 127; 153a: sg. cheering, applause; β) jubilant women, with reference to Akk. šamḫatu(m) lass, temple-prostitute (AHw. 1156a; CAD Š/1, 311b); so Gordon Textbook §19:1335; Eth. taq'a to blow a trumpet (Dillmann Lex. 1224); see also KBL: t on account of the q (Brockelmann Grundriss 1: 169 eβ); Tigr. to play an instrument, to clap the hands, etc. (Littmann-H. Wb. 614b).

—α) to thrust in a weapon, with acc. and בָּ Ju 3₂₁ 2S 18₁₄, cf. Ju 4₂₁ (obj. אֶת־הַיָּתֵד); β) of the wind which drove the locusts into the Sea of Reeds (יָמָה סוּף) Ex 10₁₉.

—d) תִּקַּע בַּיָּתֵד to fasten together מַחְלָפוֹת the strands of Samson's hair on his head with a pin Ju 16_{13f}, on which see Dalman Arbeit 5: 100f, cf. Koehler Mensche 15: Samson wore his hair in seven plaits.

—2. a) תִּקַּע כַּף to strike the hands together, clap: α) as a sign of rejoicing (at the king's jubilee) Ps 47₂; β) as a sign of mockery, gloating over someone else's misfortune Nah 3₁₉.

—b) to strike someone else's hand, give a handshake (when acting as a guarantor), see Zimmern Fremdw. 25; Horst Recht 86; cf. Middle Babylonian pūt X maḥāšu literally to strike someone on the forehead, meaning to become a guarantor for someone, see AHw. 580b, 1dγ, and CAD M/1, 80b, maḥāšu 4d; cf. B.K. Ismail-M. Müller WdO 9 (1977) 28: Pr 17₁₈ 22₂₆; Pr 6₁ with לָּ of the person, for someone (→ תִּקְעוּם).

—3. a) to blow the trumpet בְּחַצְצֵרוֹת Nu 10_{3,8,10} 2K 11₁₄ 2C 23₁₃.

—b) to blow the horn (or horns): with בְּשׁוֹפָר, בְּשׁוֹפְרוֹת Jos 6₄₋₂₀ Ju 3₂₇ 6₃₄ 7₁₈₋₂₀ 1S 13₃ 2S 2₂₈ 18₁₆ 20₁₋₂₂ 1K 1₃₄₋₃₉ 2K 9₁₃ Ezk 33₃₋₆ Zech 9₁₄ Neh 4₁₂; בְּאַחַת to blow only on one of two horns Nu 10₄.

—d) other different occurrences: α) Jos 6₉ pr. K תִּקְעוּ rd. with Q תִּקְעוּי; β) תִּרְוְעָה תָּ to make a noise, sound the alarm Nu 10_{5,6}; γ) Nu 10₇ וְלֹא תִרְעוּ תִקְעוּ you must blow the trumpets but not sound an alarm; here the vb. תקע is used absolutely, or alternatively the object בְּחֲצֹצְרוֹת is taken as understood and accordingly omitted (see also רוע hif. 3); on which see also Diether Kellermann Die Priesterschrift von Numeri 1:1 bis 10:10 (BZAW 120; 1970) 141: תקע appears to me to mean to sound an instrument but only with its natural sound, to blow with short unconnected notes, musically staccato, whereas הריע means to make a screeching noise, to sound an alarm, to produce sustained notes, musically legato; δ) cj. Ezk 7₁₄ pr. בַּתְּקוּעַ תִּקְעוּ they blew the horn (?) prop. תִּקְעוּ תְּקוּעַ blow the horn!, see BHS; this translation is also in Zimmerli Ez. 158, despite the reservation he expresses against the absolute usage on p. 163, and the fact that the vb. does not appear to have this connotation in the light of Nu 10₇.

—4. cj.: 1S 31₁₀ and 1C 10₁₀ pr. תִּקְעוּ prop. הִקְעוּ (→ יקע hif.) to impale, cf. Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL, but there are arguments against this: for 1S 31₁₀ there are those like Stoebe KAT 8/1: 522 who retain MT; and for 1C 10₁₀ Rudolph Chr. 92 does the same; however for 1S 31₁₀ because of the obj. גְּוִיָּתוֹ he prefers the emendation הִקְעוּ, and this is probably correct; for 1C 10₁₀, where גְּלִגְלָתוֹ is the obj., it seems to be possible to take תִּקְעוּ rather differently as meaning they drove in fixing nails, they pinned up; but see the objection which is based on archaeological evidence, that there may not have been a Dagon Temple in בֵּית־שֶׁאֵן (so Stoebe loc. cit.). †

Rather than deriving it from Akk., Rabin Orientalia 32 (1963) 134f prefers a similar derivation from Hittite tarkammāi/tarkummiya to announce, explain, translate; but that is further removed from Heb. than the Akk. and as such is not really to be accepted. †

10302 תַּרְדֵּמָה

תַּרְדֵּמָה: רדמ, Bauer-Leander Heb. 495n; the same in MHeb.; cf. ? Arb. urdunn deep sleep, on which see under רדמ, also for the question of the basic meaning of the root; SamP. tardimma: cstr. תַּרְדֵּמָת (Jotūn Gramm. §30g): deep sleep, lethargy.

—a) brought on by Yahweh Gn 2²¹, with נפל hif., 1S 26¹² (תַּרְדֵּמַת יְהוָה) with נפל; Is 29¹⁰ (רִיחַ תִּנְפַל) with I נסך.

—b) Pr 19¹⁵, subj. עֲצֵלָה, with נפל hif.: idleness induces lethargy.

—c) recognition that תַּרְדֵּמָה has occurred but without reference to the underlying subj. (or the underlying cause) Gn 15¹² Jb 4¹³ = 33¹⁵ (gloss), with נפל.

For the first meaning (a) see Stoebe KAT 8/1: 463, (467): תִּנְפַל is not only an unusually deep sleep ... but also a sleep which marks an event as one of the high-points of the actions of Yahweh; he refers to Thomson Sleep, an Aspect of Jewish Anthropology (VT 5: 1955) 421-433, especially 423.

10304 תִּרְוַמָּה

תִּרְוַמָּה: A. Possibilities for the derivation of the sbst. include:

—a) → רום hif. 4: to lift up, select, offer, cf. H.P. Müller ZA 64 (1975) 306: the meaning of the sbst. is something handed over, once and for all.

—b) *רם Akk. riāmu(m), rāmu to present, give as a gift (AHw. 952b); the original sense of the sbst. is gift, so von Soden UF 2 (1970) 269-272 = Bibel und Alter Orient (BZAW 162; 1985) 130-133.

—c) it is not easy to come to a decision over these two alternatives (a and b); moreover any decision would probably also be inconclusive; nevertheless for the first it can perhaps be said that רום hif. is well attested in the OT, while רם with its Akk. counterpart remains uncertain.

—1. General remarks: the sense and appropriate rendering of the Heb. sbst. raise the not altogether irrelevant question of etymology, on which (see paragraph A above); given the link with רוּם hif., as is most generally accepted, the sbst. can be translated literally as lifting, raising, so Rudolph KAT 13/4: 284, who goes on to explain: lifting, raising indicates a part or a portion which has been lifted from a greater whole for another purpose (usually within the cult) ... and has thus been separated; similarly Childs Exodus 523 (see above A a). In view of the cultic use of the sbst. it is advisable to adopt a rendering (over and above the literal translation) of consecrated gift, or simply offering, contribution (see A b and c).

From the hypothetical verb tm* the meaning of תְּרוּמָה must be “present”, and then “contribution” (so H.P. Müller ZA 64 (1975) 306).

—2. in THAT 2: 758f further suggestions are mentioned about the derivation or about the explanation of the sbst., and its general meaning can be described thus: תְּרוּמָה appears in the OT as a general idea for different types of ritual contribution; cf. also Nu 31⁴¹ מִכֶּסֶם יְהוָה = תְּ.

—3. we prefer the idea adopted in KBL of rendering it as contribution, which is also used for Ug. trmmt (see above B), but without abandoning the idea of offering wherever that appears to be appropriate (see below e, and see above 1).

10305 תְרוּמִיָה

תְרוּמִיָה: hapax legomenon Ezk 48₁₂; on the ending cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 501c (on p. 502); cj. prop. with a few mss. תְרוּמָה, which is accepted for the most part, see BHS, but not in KBL; there is no valid reason for departing from the form of the sbst. in the MT, on which see Zimmerli Ezechiel 1207, and subsequently THAT 2: 754f; Wagner Aram. p. 132; Zimmerli (p. 1203) has the translation “special offering”. †

General remark: there are two co-existing meanings for the sbst.; on the one hand it means alarm or scream, and on the other hand shout or jubilation; they are both also found in the verb רוּע to shout or to rejoice; of these meanings alarm can probably be taken to be the more original or the the older one; according to the individual situation it can be taken to mean cry (especially war-cry) and a loud shout of joy, but the latter meaning is missing (perhaps not by accident) from 1QM. For suggestions about explaining the etymology of the root see under רוּע.

A. MHeb. תְּרוּעָה alarm call (with a blast on the horn), see Dalman Wörterbuch 448b; DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 236f): in 1QM it occurs 18 times with two different meanings.

—a) alarm, alarm for war: α) גדולה תרועת מלחמה major alarm for war 8:10, cf. 16:8; 17:13; β) תרועה (ה) קול the sound of the alarm for war 8:10, 15; 9:1; 16:9; 17:14 (twice); γ) חצוצרות התרועה the alarm trumpets, or alternatively trumpets for the alarm for war 2:15; 7:13, cf. 17:11; pl. התרועות ח' 3:1; δ) תרועה להם they blow to sound the alarm 8:7; ε) קרושים ותרועת and at the battle-cry of the godly ones (meaning of the angels) and of the men 1:11, so with Maier Texte 1: 124; 2: 113 with reference to 1QM 7:6.

—b) signal: ותקעו להם תרועה and they blast out their signal 16:4f; 16:5f.

—c) the day of Yahweh is יום שופר ותרועה a day for blowing the horn and shouting for war Zeph 1₁₆, cf. von Rad Theol. 2⁵: (1960) 131f; Rudolph KAT 13/3: 269f; Klaus Seybold Satirische Prophetie. Studien zum Buche Zefanja (SBS 120; 1985) 39ff.

—2. signal: a) when breaking camp during the wandering in the wilderness ת'יום שופר ותרועה, Nu 10₅₋₆₋₆, תִּקְעוּ, cf. Nu 31₆.

—b) to announce or to accompany an important feast-day: on the occasion of the new year: α) תִּתְקַע ת' זָכְרוֹן a reminder, commemoration, by an alarm call Lv 23₂₄, so Elliger Lev. 317; also HAL 260b; HALOT 271b; but see Elliger p. 318: the sense of זָכְרוֹן is not really a commemoration, but an announcement, e.g. also Nu 5₁₅; זָכְרוֹן = תִּזְכְּרוֹן יום ת'זָכְרוֹן Nu 29₁; β) for the day of reconciliation שופר ת'יום ת' sounding the alarm on the horn Lv 25₉, with I עבר hif. (→ I עבר hif. 10).

—a) in everyday life: וּשְׂפִתֶיךָ תִּעְבֵּר Jb 8₂₁, with מלא pi. and he (אל vs.20) will fill your lips with jubilation.

—b) associated with the cult in a greater or lesser measure: α) תְּרוּעַת הַמֶּלֶךְ royal jubilation, or alternatively jubilant homage for the king (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.) Nu 23₂₁. In Ps 89₁₆ the meaning is uncertain; either it is concerned with the jubilation for the king, for which see Humbert Terouā (see above B), and Kraus BK 15⁵ 788f (with bibliography); or there may be an underlying allusion to some theophany, for which see Stolz Jahwes und Israels Kriege 47 (see above B) with reference to vs.16b, who translates: Yahweh, they wander in the light of your countenance; β) in connection with the arrival, or rather the bringing up of the Ark תְּרוּעָה גְדוּלָה 1S 4₆, with רוע hif. vs.5; קוֹל הַתְּרוּעָה loud jubilation, or rather screaming with joy 1S 4₆, with שֹׁפָר; שֹׁפָר; שִׁמְעָה; שֹׁפָר Ps 47₆; for the procession of the Ark, see Stolz loc. cit. 47; γ) other different occasions where תְּרוּעָה may be used in connection with the cult at Jerusalem, but not all of which are precisely indicated as such:

—i. the laying of the foundation stone of the temple תְּרוּעָה גְדוּלָה Ezr 3₁₁, with רוע hif., so also vs.13b; בְּתְרוּעָה בְּשִׂמְחָה Ezr 3₁₂, see Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 30;

—ii. a sacrifice with a shout of joy תְּרוּעָה בְּשִׂמְחָה Ps 27₆, see R. Schmid ThZ 35 (1979) 48-54 (see above B); תְּרוּעַת הַשִּׂמְחָה jubilant happiness Ezr 3_{13a}; בְּתְרוּעָה Ps 33₃, with נגן pi; בְּצִלְצְלֵי תִנְנָן Ps 150₅ (→ II צִלְצְלִים 2a), with II הלל pi;

—iii. when an individual experiences salvation וַיִּרְא פָּנָיו בְּתְרוּעָה he must look at his face (the face of God) with jubilation Jb 33₂₆, on which see F. Stolz Jahwes und Israels Kriege (see above B) 47;

—iv. a festival to celebrate the taking of an oath is accompanied by וּבְשׁוֹפְרוֹת וּבְתְרוּעָה וּבְחֲצֹצְרוֹת jubilation with trumpets and horns 2C 15₁₄. †

10307 תְּרוּפָה

תְּרוּפָה: the derivation of the sbst. is not completely certain; either it comes from *רוף as a hypothetical by-form of רפא/ה; for this see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL; or it is a by-form of רפה; for this see Bauer-Leander Heb. 496s; for forms of רפא which are constructed on the pattern of רפה see Bauer-Leander Heb. 376, and Bergsträsser Heb. Gr. 2: §29g: healing, medicine Ezk 47₁₂; pl. תְּרוּפוֹת Sir 38₄, with בוא, sbj. אל. †

10308 תְּרִזָּה

תְּרִזָּה: hapax legomenon Is 44₁₄.

The derivation of the sbst. is uncertain. König Wb. 557b, and Elliger BK 11/1: 430 link it with the Arb. vb. taraza/tariza to be hard, which is possible but not certain; but it is probably not to be taken as a primary noun. For the form of the sbst. compare (?) Bauer-Leander Heb. 459b: a type of tree which cannot be identified precisely but which according to the Vrss. is one of the oaks; for more details see Elliger loc. cit. 411, 430, who refers to the Arb. vb. mentioned earlier. It is probably from the Vrss. that the suggestion of König Wb. 557b arises of holm-oak :: Dalman Arbeit 7: 32: pine, following Sa'adia. †

תִּרְחָ: n.m.; Sept. Θάρρα, Luke 3₃₄ Θάρρα, Josephus Θέρρος (Schalit Namenwb. 54); SamP. tārā: תִּרְחָ.

The origin and sense of the personal name have not been established; proposals, or alternatively suggestions, (for the older ones see Gesenius-Buhl Handw. and KBL) include:

—a) connected with the town lying on the River Balikh to the north-east of Haran, Til (ša) Turāhi (S. Parpola Neo Assyrian Toponyms (AOAT 6 (1970) 355f) which was raided by Shalmaneser III in 853; the translation of that place name is “the ruined hill of turāhu”. The Heb. personal name תִּרְחָ would then go back to turāhu, a shortened form of the place name which omits the element Til; on this see especially Kraeling ZAW 40 (1922) 153f; see further e.g. de Vaux Histoire 1: 190; T.L. Thompson The Historicity of the Patriarchal Narratives (BZAW 133; 1974) 306f; Westermann BK 1/1: 748f (with bibliography); also Lemaire VT 34 (1984) 97.

In the Neo-Assyrian place name Til (ša) turāhi the element turāhu is probably not an appellative noun but a proper name meaning the ruined hill of Turāhu (for Akk. turāhu(m) meaning mountain-goat, ibex, see AHw. 1372b); Turāhu may also be considered as the name of the founder of the city, who could have lived in an age before the Patriarchs :: Westermann loc. cit. 749: the patriarchs had nothing to do with founding cities.

There is another possible meaning for the place name if turāhu is taken not as a proper name, but as an appellative noun, so that Til (ša) turāhi would mean hill of the ibex.

—b) some consideration should at least be given to the possibility of תִּרְחָ being identified with turāhu, but without any connection with the place name mentioned above (a); it would be a completely separate proper name with the meaning ibex; compare Noth Personennamen 230 where the n.m. → אֲרִיָּה is also explained as ibex (→ אֲרִיָּה, HAL 87a; HALOT 89b). Clearly that does not exclude the possibility of another masc. name, such as תִּרְחָ, with the same meaning of ibex, and it would fit in well with the fem. names לֵאָה and רִיָּה; however the different vocalisation patterns of the two substantives, turāhu :: תִּרְחָ, must naturally remain an open question.

There is perhaps some support for תִּרְחָ as a completely separate personal name from the Safaitic personal name trh, see the instances in de Vaux Patr. 31⁴: Terah, the father of Abraham Gn 11₂₄₋₃₂ Jos 24₂ 1C 1₂₆, see Reicke-Rost Hw. 1964. †

תִּרְחָ: place name; SamP. tirra; Sept. Ταραθ, Sept.^A Θαραθ; the transmission of the place name in the MT is uncertain, on which see Noth Bibl. Land. 1: 67⁴¹; one of the stopping places in the wilderness Nu 33_{27f}. †

10311 תִּרְחָנָה

תִּרְחָנָה, Oriental תִּרְחָנָה (Kahle Mas. 79); n.m.; Sept. Θαρχνά, variant Θαραμ, Θαρχνά: the name is not explained and probably has a foreign origin, on which see Brown ZAW 98 (1986) 422f: the one who bore this name was probably a Hurrian: the son of כְּלָב by his concubine מְעַכָּה 1C 2₄₈. †

10312 תִּרְיָא

10313 תִּרְמָה

תִּרְמָה: hapax legomenon Ju 9₃₁: ? II רַמָּה pi.

A. Suggested explanations of the sbst. which maintain the MT בְּתִרְמָה include: 1) Vrss. Sept.^A μετὰ δῶρων; Sept.^B ἐν κρυφῆ; corresponding to Vulg. clam; Pesh. bneklā with cunning, craftily; Tg. brāz secretly. 2) the more recent suggestions which deserve to be considered include.

—a) a connection with the vb. II רַמָּה pi., so e.g. König Wb. 558a: תִּרְמָה meaning deception, cunning; similarly Gesenius-Buhl Handw., where however the cj. אֲרוּמָה is preferred.

—b) a possible identification with the Old Babylonian sbst. turmum/turmšm (from Mari) unfaithfulness, betrayal, so Dossin Orientalia et Biblica Lovaniensia 1 (1957) 163-167; then subsequently Noth Bibl. Land. 2: 272; see further Barr Philology 335 no. 299; Driver ALUOS 4 (1962-63) 15; Gewirtz JNES 17 (1958) 59f; also TOB with the translation treacherous, in a deceptive manner.

B. Cj.: pr. בְּתִרְמָה prop. בְּאֲרוּמָה with vs.⁴¹, see BHS; see further e.g. Zorell Lexicon 79a under אֲרוּמָה; also John Gray Joshua, Judges and Ruth (1967) 323, but he maintains that the MT בְּתִרְמָה cunning is possible; Hertzberg ATD 9: 201⁴ abandons any attempt at cj., taking the text as corrupt and בְּתִרְמָה as meaningless.

C. Deciding between the suggestions mentioned under A and B is not easy and would never be conclusive. The different renderings of בְּתִרְמָה in the Vrss. shows that from very early on the meaning of the expression was no longer clear. By connecting the sbst. with the vb. II רַמָּה there is the possibility of translating as deception, cunning (see above A 2a). Unfortunately it cannot be supported by the unique Old Babylonian sbst. turmum (see above A 2b) as one would have liked to do. Perhaps therefore we should adopt a preference for the cj.

altogether satisfactory translation of the MT: vain and void is their deceit. Of the Vrss. Sept. has ἐνθύμημα corresponding to cogitatio, in Vulg. iuxta LXX and Vulg. iuxta Hebr.; Pesh. renyhōn their thinking; As is widely accepted this rendering is the basis for supposing an original תַּרְעִיתָם their thinking; so also Deissler loc. cit., who goes on to stress that the text itself offers no key to a clear solution. There are internal arguments to support Sept. Pesh. and Jerome (see above Vulg.). The Arm. sbst. תַּרְעֵת (Wagner Aram. 287) in the late Psalm 119 produces no difficulty. †

תָּרַן: A. Etymology: even though the sbst. can also be taken as a primary (cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 460h) a verbal derivation is also possible, though not really likely; suggestions include: a) from Akk. warûm II, arû VI to lead (AHw. 1373a; CAD A/2, 313a: arû A); b) from the root twr. Akk. târu(m) to turn, return, turn round etc. (AHw. 1332b); Ug. twr* (Gordon Textbook §19:2539) to revolve, turn a wheel, or to break on the wheel, so Paolo Xella WdO 13 (1982) 31-35, especially 34. Rather than taking the meaning as developing from the Ak. vb. arû (a) the vb. târu (b) is to be preferred.

The original meaning of the gentilic *תְּרַעְתִּי is uncertain; accord-ing to its construction with the final suffix -ī (Bauer-Leander Heb. 501) it could be connected with an unknown place name *תְּרַעָה. 1C 2₅₅. †

תְּרַפִּים: A. The etymology of the word has not been firmly established, for which see the various suggestions in THAT 2: 1057, among which is a derivation from the root רפא, or alternatively רפה. The first of these is discussed by Rouillard-Tropper VT 37 (1987) 340-361, especially 359. Against this is the suggestion that the Heb. sbst. has a connection with the Hittite-Hurrian tarpīš spirit, demon, so H.A. Hoffner (with B. Landsberger) Bibliotheca Sacra 124 (1967) 230-238; JNES 27 (1968) 61-68; and subsequently Seybold THAT 2: 1057; also H.P. Müller Monotheismus im Alten Israel und in seiner Umwelt (Biblische Beiträge 14; 1980) 131¹⁵⁰ :: Rouillard-Tropper loc. cit. Here we do not risk making a decision between a derivation from רפא, or making an association with tarpīš. The sbst. is not attested in the cognate languages (including Ugaritic); SamP. tarfām.

B. For the bibliography see THAT 2: 1057; see further Eichrodt Theol. I⁷ 64⁸⁰; also ATD 22/2, 197; Fohrer Ezechiel 123 with note 1 (and more bibliography); Zimmerli Ez. 489f; Herm Vorländer Mein Gott. Die Vorstellung vom persönlichen Gott im Alten Orient und im Alten Testament (AOAT 23 (1975) 176ff); Seybold THAT 2: 1057-60; Westermann BK 1/2: 592 (with bibliography); Jörg Jeremias Hos. (ATD 24/1, 1983) 69 with note 13, on Hos 4₁₃ (with bibliography); Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 136-146; for older bibliography see Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL.

C. The Heb. sbst. and its form raises two main points.

—1. there are fifteen occurrences in the OT, all of which are in st. abs., and most of them are with the article; the exceptions are Ju 17₅ 18₁₄ 1S 15₂₃ Hos 3₄.

—2. the pl. ending is always used with this sbst. even though plurality is indicated only in 2K 23₂₄ Zech 10₂. For an explanation of this ending see Jirku Biblica 34 (1953) 78-80, and subsequently e.g. THAT 2: 1057; the ending is a throwback to the ancient Canaanite mimation in loanwords, which means that the original Western Semitic form of the sbst. would have been tarpī/u*, Hittite-Hurrian tarpīš (see above, A)

—1. in the OT תְּרַפִּים occurs in the following passages: Gn 31_{19,34f} Ju 17₅ 18_{14,17f} 1S 15₂₃ 19_{13,16} 2K 23₂₄ Ezk 21₂₆ Hos 3₄ Zech 10₂.

—2. in Sept. it is transcribed as (τὸ) θεραφιν in Ju 17₅ 18_{14,17f} 1S 15₂₃ 2K 23₂₄; otherwise it appears as τὰ εἰδωλα in Gn 31_{19,34f}, as τὰ κενοτάφια in 1S 19_{13,16} where the meaning is unclear; according to Liddell-Scott Lex. 938b images corresponding to Symmachus εἰδωλα; Aquila μορφώματα; Vulg. statuam; for the Vrss. see further Stoebe KAT 8/1: 357; Ezk 21₂₆ τὰ γλυπτά (ἐν τοῖς γλυπτοῖς) meaning graven images, or alternatively statues; Hos 3₄ δῆλων (genitive pl. of δῆλος, pl. δῆλοι), cf. 1S 28₆ בְּאֹרְיִם which סִמְשֹׁב in G ἐν τοῖς δῆλοις, see also Liddell-Scott Lex. 385a.

—1. as for the translation of the sbst. it is not altogether easy to give one, because the shape and form of תְּהַתְּשִׁב, and also its function (for a discussion of both see below, 2) are not defined as the same in all instances. For these reasons rather than the more explicit term idol (KBL) we prefer with THAT 2: 1057 the more neutral term image.

—2. with regard to the shape and form the following terms need to be considered.

—a) statuette (a figurine in human form).

—b) (ceremonial) mask.

The first proposal (a) is most likely for Gn 31₁₉.34f, really for the reason (which is repeatedly mentioned by commentators) that where תְּהַתְּשִׁב is used in those verses it corresponds to אֱלֹהֵי/אֱלֹהֵיךָ in vs.₃₀₋₃₂; on this see also KBL.

With regard to their function they were used as household or family gods, comparable to the ilānū of the texts from Nuzi; on this see THAT 2: 1058; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1952; Rouillard-Tropper VT 37 (1987) 341ff; but see also de Vaux Histoire 1: 239f.

According to the context of 1S 19₁₃₋₁₆ תְּהַתְּשִׁב/אֱלֹהֵי/אֱלֹהֵיךָ is most likely to have been a life-sized image in human form, though a ceremonial mask would not be impossible (as b above); the narrative suggests that those who wanted to capture David were taken in by the deception with the תְּהַתְּשִׁב, but whatever purpose it was meant to have, ceremonial or secular, the context gives no clue.

For Ju (17₅) 18₁₄.17f the series of words אֶפֶוד וְתַרְפִּים וּפְסָל וּמִסְכָּה vs.₁₄, cf. vs._{17f}, makes one think more of a statuette than a mask for תְּהַתְּשִׁב וּמִסְכָּה וּפְסָל וְתַרְפִּים, though the latter would be possible and has in fact been suggested; see e.g. Elliger RGG³ 6: 690f. Because of the link with אֶפֶוד the תְּהַתְּשִׁב may also have been used to foretell the future, or alternatively as an oracle to be consulted; this would in fact work for Hos 3₄ with the addition וְתַתְּשִׁב אֶפֶוד, and because of the context it is also clear in Ezk 21₂₆ (see below F, expressions).

The function of divination (albeit disapproved) is probably attributed to the תְּהַתְּשִׁב אֶפֶוד וְתַתְּשִׁב mentioned in Zech 10₂ which תְּהַתְּשִׁב וְתַתְּשִׁב tell of wrongs (troubles); and this also seems to be possible for 1S 15₂₃ and 2K 23₂₄; at least this can be described, as in THAT 2: 1058, as a word with a magical connotations.

For 1S 15₂₃ as well as for Hos 3₄ Ezk 21₂₆ 2K 23₂₄ and Zech 10₂ the form or shape of the תְּהַתְּשִׁב וְתַתְּשִׁב has to be decided, for here it could mean statuette or mask (see above, a and b). Many interpreters have preferred the mask, so e.g. Elliger RGG³ 6: 690f, and Fohrer Ezekiel 123. But for an overall view see the moderating remark of Elliger loc. cit.: it remains open whether the proposed shape of the תְּהַתְּשִׁב (mask) was the only one, and above all whether its sole purpose was for obtaining an oracular decision.

—3. The תְּהַתְּשִׁב were one of the elements within the cult but were not items of adoration; perhaps the family gods of Gn 31_{19f} constitute one exception. Often they were a not particularly important part of folk-religion but from quite an early period they decline into an item of mockery (1S 9₁₃₋₁₆), and then later of mistrust (Zch 10₂) and rejection (1S 15₂₃ 2K 23₂₄).

I תִּרְצָה: n.fem., probably from I רִצָּה; Sept. Θερσα; SamP. tiršā.

—1. on the sense and meaning of the name:

—a) it is not explained by Noth Personennamen 242b, 360b, who sees in it, and in the names of the four other associated persons designated as representatives of the Canaanite city states (on which see also Noth Nu. (ATD 7) 180), an apparent place-name.

—b) however the latter opinion does not exclude the possibility of a place name or the name of a territory from being originally a feminine name. Furthermore it could be as likely for תִּרְצָה as it is for → מְלִכָּה. From the context I רִצָּה arises from תִּרְצָה, and then it can be interpreted as she who is pleasant, the lovely girl, so O. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 18; 1986) 200. It can probably be translated more exactly as she is obliging (a verbal form), in which the ending -ā (hypocoristic ?) has replaced the normal -e. The connotation of the name can probably be taken as referring to the one so named, but originally (when used as an early-Israelite personal name) as perhaps referring to a goddess.

10322 תִּרְצָה

II תִּרְצָה, place name: locative תִּרְצָתָה, probably the same as I תִּרְצָה, see Noth Nu. (ATD 7) 180: the woman's name Tirza is not to be separated from the name of the town known as Tirza, cf. also Song 6₄; Sept. Θερσα but 2K 15₁₄ Sept.^{RA} Θαρσιλα, Sept.^A Θερσιλα, Sept.^L Θερσα (as 1K 14₁₇ see below under 1), Song 6₄ ὤς εὐδοκία, Josephus Θάρση (Schalit Namenwb. 53).

Sept. Σαρῖρα (perhaps a textual error for → צִרְרָה) צִרְרָתָה; on this see Gray *Kings*³ 339; Reicke-Rost Hw. 1973).

—2. the site of תִּרְצָה was probably at Tell Far'a, 11 km. north-east of Nablus, on which see especially de Vaux in Winton Thomas Archaeology 371-83; see further e.g. Jochims ZDPV 76 (1960) 73-96; Fritz loc. cit. 85 (1969) 153f; U. 10324 תַּרְשִׁישׁ

I תַּרְשִׁישׁ, locative תַּרְשִׁישִׁיָּה: place name, name of a territory.

A. The name תַּרְשִׁישִׁיָּה can be traced back to the Iberian tart(uli) and preserves the Anatolian suffix - issos/essos > Tartessos (see Galling BRL² 332a); SamP. taršəš; the etymological derivation of תַּרְשִׁישׁ is uncertain; for attempted explanations see Albright BASOR 83 (1941) 21f with note 29; also Albright Archaeology and the Religion of Israel (1946) 133, 136 = Die Religion Israels im Lichte der archäologischen Ausgrabungen (1956) 151, 153; see Noth Könige 232; Wildberger BK 10: 110f :: 869; and Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 205¹⁹³.

B.

—a) the actual site of תַּרְשִׁישׁ within the lands of the Mediterranean has not been established, as can be seen from the cautious remark in Reicke-Rost Hw. 1963: it is one of the islands (or coastal territories) to the west of Palestine; cf. also Westermann BK 1/1: 678. For the various different suggestions see e.g. Rudolph *Jer.*³ 70 (on Jr 10₉, with bibliography); Reicke-Rost Hw. loc. cit.; IDB 4, 517; Wolff BK 14/3: 79; older suggestions are in Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (where תַּרְשִׁישׁ is identified as Tunis (modern site of Carthago, see b).

—b) the oldest information on the site is probably to be found in Sept., which identifies תַּרְשִׁישׁ with Carthage/Καρχηδών (see below C b); see now Berger WdO 13 (1982) 61-77, 76f: Taršiš is to be identified with Carthage.

—c) goods which were exported from תַּרְשִׁישׁ included silver (Jr 10₉), iron, tin and lead (Ez 27₁₂), and these point to Spain with its rich mineral resources. תַּרְשִׁישׁ could be a town the territory of which is in the region of the mouth of the Guadalquivir. With some variation this is probably the most widely accepted view today, see e.g. Zimmerli Ez. 652; Wildberger BK 10: 110f; Noth Könige 232; Wolff BK 14/3: 78; Cintas Semitica 16 (1966) 5-37; Peter Welten Geschichte und Geschichtsdarstellung in den Chronikbüchern (WMANT 42; 1973) 38¹²⁹; more hesitantly Galling ZDPV 88 (1972) 4, and especially BRL² 332b: a precise location of Tarshish as a place in the marshes of the Guadalquivir, perhaps near Asta Regia or Huelva, is as yet without any archaeological foundation; for Huelva see also Kaiser ATD 18, 133; and still compare Fohrer Ezechiel 157.

—d) תַּרְשִׁישׁ is a symbolic name to express a distant land which was the source of costly products (Görg BN 15 (1981) 81f, who provides an Egyptian etymology).

C. The name תַּרְשִׁישׁ occurs in other sources outside the Hebrew Bible as follows:

—a) Neo-Assyrian sup KURTar-si-si (Borger Inschriften p. 86 §57 line 10); Greek Ταρτησσός.

—b) Sept. mostly Θαρσις, together with Καρχηδών (Καρχηδόνος Is 23_{1.10.14}, Καρχηδόνια 23₆); adj. Καρχηδόνιοι (-[18]μοροι) Ezk 27₁₂ 38₁₃.

—c) Josephus Θάρσος (Schalit Namenwb. 53).

D. For bibliography see already under A; see further e.g. Simons Geog. §251; Brandenstein in Debrunner Fschr. 75ff; J.S. Hanis ALUOS 5 (1963-65) 55ff; Gordon The Wine-Dark-Sea (JNES 37; 1978) 51ff; also for still more see below, E and F).

E. תַּרְשִׁישׁ: Tarshish:

—α) the name of a town, or alternatively of a region (for the geographical site see above B) Is 23₆ Jr 10₉ Ezk 27₁₂ 38₁₃ Jon 1₃₋₃₋₃. 4₂ 2C 9₂₁ 20₃₆₋₃₇; β) the name of a distant land in the Mediterranean Ps 72₁₀, or alternatively of a people Is 66₁₉.

—b) collocations: α) תַּרְשִׁישׁ אֲנִיּוֹת: originally ships which sailed to Tarshish in Spain, then more generally sea-going vessels, ships for the high-seas; אֲנִיּוֹת תַּרְשִׁישׁ אֲנִיּוֹת has about it the idea of quality, see Rudolph Chr. 224, on 1C 9₂₁; cf. also Keel Visionen 263³⁶¹: Is 2₁₆ 23₁₋₁₄ 60₉ Ezk 27₂₅ Ps 48₈; β) so (as a Tarshish vessel) it comes to designate also ships which ply to Ophir: לִלְכַת אוֹפִירָה אֲנִיּוֹת 1K 22₄₉; other references to ships for this purpose are probably also to be found in 2C 9₂₁ 20₃₆ (cf. Rudolph Chr. 224, 264); also sg. (for the sg. with pl. meaning see Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §17) אֲנִי תַּרְשִׁישׁ 1K 10₂₂, see Noth Könige 232f. γ) תַּבְּת־אֲנִי Is 23₁₀ textual uncertainty (corruption ?) see Wildberger BK 10: 854, 857.

F. תַּבְּת־תַּ is the personification of a town or alternatively of a people: the son of יְנָן Gn 10₄ 1C 1₇, on which see Wildberger BK 10: 869, and Wolff BK 14/3: 78f, who here take יְנָן־תַּ as meaning the Greek settlements in the east and in the west of the Mediterranean. †

Schr.* 2: 333²; according to Scheftelowitz Arisches 93f, Avestan taršta means the honourable controller; this is compared by Meyer loc. cit. with excellency, the honorific word usual in diplomatic circles. This then is the word that is often used to render תַּרְשָׁתָא־הַ, so especially Rudolph Esr.-Neh. 20; see further e.g. Galling Stud. 57, 81; Gunneweg ATD 19/1: 64, and Yamauchi ZAW 92 (1980) 136f :: In der

10329 תִּרְתֵּק

תִּרְתֵּק: name of a deity; Sept. Θαρθακ (acc. with article) τῆν Θαρθακ: 2K 17₃₁: textual uncertainty (corruption?); MT originally ‘attar’atta, perhaps in its Arm. form ‘attarqatta’: Atargatis, so Gray *Kings*³ 653^e, 654; so also Würthwein ATD 11/2: 398; on this deity see RAAM 157, 219f; RGG³ I 668; Reicke-Rost Hw. 144; Haussig Wb. Mythologie 1: 244f; then subsequently Silvia Schroer In Israel gab es Bilder (OBO 74; 1987) 245; see also Gese-H.-R. Religionen 213f for a comparison with the goddess Derketō.

According to 2K 17₃₁ תִּרְתֵּק was worshipped together with → נִבְחָז by the Avvites (→ עֵיִים 2), that is to say that they produced (עָשׂוּ) these divine figurines. †

10330 תְּשׁוּמָת

*תְּשׁוּמָת: שׁוּם (→ שׁוּם/שִׁים), Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r: hapax legomenon Lv 5₂₁ יָד תְּשׁוּמָת, literally what is placed in the hand (probably a form of words which is not repeated in vs.₂₃) together with → פְּקָדוֹן: deposited (entrusted) property; cf. with Gesenius-Buhl Handw.: יָד מִפְּקָד יָד Sir 42₇ (margin). †

—1. a) noise, noises Is 22₂ (עִיר) מִלְּאָה תְּשׂאוֹת, on the pl. here, cf. Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §19b.

—b (loud) shouting Zech 4₇: תְּשׂאוֹת amidst shouting, see Rudolph KAT 13/4: 110, cf. Brockelmann Heb. Syn. §93n; the wild ass (with sbj. פָּרָא vs.₅, and לֹא שָׁמַע) does not hear תְּשׂאוֹת נוֹגֵשׁ the shouts of the driver Jb 39₇.

—2. crash:

—c) on these two proposals (a and b) see Dalman Arbeit 5: 126, 166; the mramṣān refers to the use of strong and weak threads in turn so that a honeycombed patterned cloth is produced; NRSV and REB: chequered tunic.

—d) deciding which of the possibilities to choose is difficult, for probably all of them deserve to be considered, and perhaps they cannot be clearly separated; but the first (a) should be given a particularly heavy weighting, for the pt. pu of I שבץ edged, bordered can be taken together with with Greek κοσμητός edge, seam.

—2) a few examples of more recent renderings include:

—a) Bruno Baentsch Exodus-Leviticus-Numeri (GHK 1/2; 1903) 238: an undergarment of checked material; similarly ZüB: an ephod of chequered stuff.

—b) Galling in G. Beer Exodus (HAT 3; 1939) 138: an undergarment with a check pattern.

—c. Noth Ex. (ATD 5) 177: a hemmed tunic.

—d) it should be noted in general that the rendering in Gesenius-Buhl Handw. as worked (meaning woven) stuff, similarly in KBL (chequered work, with a question mark), is too general. †

10336 תְּשׁוּבָה

*תְּשׁוּבָה: שׁוּב, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb.: 1) return: DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 232): a) return to dust (1QH 10:4; 11:20; 12:26); no return of darkness אִין תְּשׁוּבַת הַשֶּׁךְ 1QH fragment 2:11; 2) turning back, repentance; בְּרִית תְּשׁוּבָה covenant of repentance CD 19,16; also Dalman Wörterbuch 450b, on which see Georg Sauer in Fschr. W. Eichrodt Wort-Gebot-Glaube (ATANT 59; 1970) 286 (with bibliography): cstr. תְּשׁוּבַת, sf. תְּשׁוּבָתוֹ, pl. תְּשׁוּבָת, sf. תְּשׁוּבַתֵיכֶם.

—1. return 1S 7¹⁷: וַתֵּשְׁבֶתוּ הָרַמָּתָה and he returned to Ramah, cf. Stoebe KAT 8/1: 167: his way back, but it was customary for him to go to Ramah.

—2) a) לתְּשׁוּבַת הַשָּׁנָה at the return of the year, the next spring 1K 20²²⁻²⁶ 2C 36¹⁰.

—b) is equivalent to a above in the important phrase which is used to determine the time of spring הַמְּלָכִים צִאת לָעֵת at the time when kings go out to battle 2S 11¹; and this corresponds to 1C 20¹ (for הַמְּלָכִים צִאת לָעֵת read תְּלַת־לָעֵת).

—c) for a and b see Begrich Chron. 88f; Johnson Kingship 56; de Vaux Inst. 1: 289f = Lebensord. 1: 306f.

10338 תְּשׁוּבָה

? cj. תְּשׁוּיִת: → *תְּשׂאָה 2a (at the end).

תְּשׁוּעָה, תְּשׁוּעָה: Bauer-Leander Heb. 496s from הוֹשִׁיעַ, see Brockelmann Grundriss 1: 383 from יִשַׁע constructed on the pattern of תְּמוּתָה etc. (Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL) :: Kopf VT 8 (1958) 206f: תְּמוּתָה < שׁוּע < שׁוּע, cf. Arb. gaut help, support < gawwata to call for help; alternatively Bauer-Leander Heb. 496u²: the form תְּשׁוּעָה has led to the construction of a secondary stem שׁוּע. But this proposal is less likely than that of Kopf with his reference to an Arabic etymology: cstr. תְּשׁוּעַת, sf. תְּשׁוּעָתִי, תְּשׁוּעַתְךָ/תְּשׁוּעַתְּךָ: help, deliverance, salvation, victory.

—1. a) in war, battle 1S 11, 1C 19₁₂; deliverance, both meaning victory within the context, see Pedersen Isr 1-2: 330ff; see also Klopfenstein Lüge 380 note 327: Ju 15₁₈ 2S 19₃, Ps 33₁₇, on which see Klopfenstein Lüge 75: Pr 21₃₁, 24₆ (וּתְשׁוּעָה בְּרַב יוֹעֵץ): there are two possible translations: α) and when many know advice there is victory (ZüB); similarly Gemser *Spr.*² 88, and TOB; β) and success lies in the multitude of counsellors, so Plöger BK 17: 261, 280; NRSV: and in abundance of counsellors there is victory; REB: victory is the fruit of detailed (NEB: long) planning.

—b) חֶצֶת־תְּשׁוּעָה an arrow of victory 2K 13₁₇.

—α) with עָשָׂה meaning to bring about, accomplish: תְּשׁוּעָה יְהוּה (גְּדוּלָה) 1S 11₁₃ 19₅ 2S 23₁₀₋₁₂; β) with נָתַן meaning to grant, provide: נָתַן־יְהוּה תְּשׁוּעָה לְאַרְם 2K 5₁, לְמַלְכִים תְּ הַנּוֹתֵן (אֱלֹהִים) Ps 144₁₀; γ) with יָשַׁע hif. גְּדוּלָה תְּ יְהוּה and Yahweh gave (granted) a great victory 1C 11₁₄, literally, with etymological imagery (cognate object) he helped with a great help, see Rudolph Chr. 96: the change from 2S 23₁₂ (וַיַּעַשׂ) is unnecessary.

—2. deliverance, help from God in various spheres of life:

—a) as something which is waited for or hoped for in the future: with בּוֹא, sbj. תְּשׁוּעָתְךָ Ps 119₄₁; with כָּלָה Ps 119₈₁ (נַפְשִׁי לְתְּשׁוּעָתְךָ נַפְשִׁי); with יָחַל hif. Lam 3₂₆ (textual emendation) וַיִּחַל דְּבַר יְהוָה יְהוּה טוֹב וַיִּחַל דְּבַר יְהוָה it is good to wait silently for the help of Yahweh; so Rudolph KAT 17/1-3: 228, 231.

—b) as something experienced: with אָמַר תְּשׁוּעָתְךָ Ps 40₁₁ parallel with אָמַרְתָּ; אֱהִי תְּשׁוּעָתְךָ those who love your help Ps 40₁₇; with סָפַר pi.: תְּשׁוּעָתְךָ parallel with צָדַקְתָּ Ps 71₁₅.

—3. in contrast to a, or alternatively to b: the help given by people וְשׂוֹא תְּשׁוּעַת אָדָם Ps 60₁₃ = 108₁₃; בְּבִנְיָאָדָם שְׂאִין לוֹ תְּשׁוּעָה Ps 146₃.

—4. תְּשׁוּעָה in a more comprehensive sense: help, deliverance meaning salvation as a gift from God or Yahweh:

—a) with no denotation of time: אֲדֹנָי תְּשׁוּעָתִי Ps 37₃₉, תְּ צַדִּיקִים, יִשְׂרָאֵל Jr 3₂₃, תְּשׁוּעַת יִשְׂרָאֵל Ps 38₂₃, אֱלֹהֵי תְּשׁוּעָתִי Ps 51₁₆.

—b) in connection with the end-time: עוֹלָמִים תְּשׁוּעָתָא everlasting salvation Is 45¹⁷, תְּשׁוּעָתִי my salvation Is 46^{13b}, with לֹא תֵאָחֵר it will not tarry parallel with קָרַבְתִּי צְדִקְתִּי תְּשׁוּעָה, abs. תְּשׁוּעָה Is 46^{13c} (בְּצִיּוֹן תְּשׁוּעָה) (וְנִתְּתִי).

—5. particular instances: a) יִפְּלְעוּם בְּאֵין תַּחְבְּלוֹת where there is no guidance a nation falls, בְּרַב יוֹעֵץ בְּרַב יוֹעֵץ תְּשׁוּעָה Pr 11¹⁴; here the precise meaning of בְּרַב יוֹעֵץ תְּשׁוּעָה is not sure; suggestions include deliverance; see Gemser *Spr.*² 54; see also REB: for want of skilful strategy an army is lost, victory is the fruit of long planning; help (Ringgren ATD 16/1 (31980) 48); success (Plöger BK 17: 132); cf. ZüB: but where there are many who know counsel it is well; NRSV: but in an abundance of counsellors there is safety.

—b) priest as the bearers or rather representatives of salvation: יִלְבְּשׁוּ תְּשׁוּעָה כַּהֲנִיךְ יְהוָה אֱלֹהִים your priests, O God Yahweh, should be clothed with salvation! 2C 6⁴¹. †

תְּשׁוּקָה: II שׁוֹק *שׁוֹק, Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; MHeb. תְּשׁוּקָה (in meaning the same as in BibHeb.; Dalman Wörterbuch 450); DSS (Kuhn Konkordanz 237); SamP. tēšūqāttak, tēšūqāttu, on the gemination and vowel lengthening see LOT 5: p. 63, §1.5.3.1: sf. תְּשׁוּקָתְךָ/חֹ: desire, longing Gn 3¹⁶ 4⁷; Song 7¹¹, there is no need for the cj. for וְעָלִי rd. וְאֵלִי, as in BHS (→ II עַל 6); on the content see e.g. O. Keel Das Hohelied (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 18; 1986) 232f. †

10341 תְּשׁוּרָה

תְּשׁוּרָה: on the form of the sbst. cf. Bauer-Leander Heb. 496r; so far as its derivation is concerned what should be considered first is I שׁוּר, and then II שׁוּר only if it can be taken in the meaning given under 1bβ: תְּשׁוּרָה hapax legomenon 1S 9⁷ parallel with לְחָם.

—1. a) the Vrss. differ showing that then original sense of the sbst. is forgotten: Sept. πλείον οὐκ -]182στιγ; Vulg. sportula (accusative sportulam), on which see Karl Ernst Georges Ausführliches Lateinisch-Deutsches Handwörterbuch II (1880) 2490; cf. Lewis and Short: a little basket; in such little baskets it was customary for a great man to distribute presents of food or money to the mass of his clients ... hence the Emperor Claudius called the brief games which he gave to the people sportulae”; Pesh. zwādā (Brockelmann Lex. 191b) provisions, sustenance, nourishment; Tg. שׁוּרִין pl. from sg. שׁוּרָא costs of travel (Dalman Wörterbuch 165a), pl. Gn 42²⁵ = צִרְהָה (י)רָה.

—b) more recent suggestions for the translation of the MT, on which see especially Paolo Xella UF 14 (1982) 296¹⁴, include: α) present, gift, so Gesenius-Buhl Handw.; KBL (with a question mark); ZüB; Zorell Lex.; König Wb. 560a; so also F. Stolz Das erste und das zweite Buch Samuel (Zürcher Bibelkommentare, AT 9; 1981) 62, 66; see especially Xella loc. cit. 295-302: תְּצִירָה (י)רָה as a gift or present which had the same function as Akk. šulmānu gifts exchanged between kings, or sent by vassals and clients to their patrons and high officials, or offered to gods (AHw. 1268; CAD Š/3: 244ff., sv. 2); also tāmartu visiting gift (AHw. 1313); β) provisions, sustenance for a journey, cf. II שׁוּר, so Dahood Biblica 54 (1973) 354; Dahood Biblica 55 (1974) 392f; see also TOB with note; γ) תְּשׁוּרָה residue, remainder or similar, from the root שׁאַר; so Wilhelm Caspari Die Samuelbücher (KAT 8: 1926) 106; Hertzberg ATD 10² (1960) 58, and Stoebe KAT 8/1: 190, 194.

—c) cj., on which see Stoebe loc. cit. 194, who mentions תְּמוּרָה and תְּרוּמָה as (not very convincing) suggestions.

—2. Of the suggestions mentioned above (see 1b) the one that deserves to be given first priority is without doubt gift (1bα): תְּשׁוּרָה is the gift which due to the man of god and לְחָם serves to denote the provision for the two travellers; לְחָם then takes over the function attributed to תְּשׁוּרָה in 1bβ. There is no convincing connection of תְּשׁוּרָה with the root שָׂאָר, so this then is an argument against 1 bγ. †

10406 אַסְנַפֶּר (Aramaic)

אַסְנַפֶּר: proper noun, the name of a king of Assyria (: Berger ZA 64 (1975), 229f, see below), Ezr 4₁₀; the personal name has been corrupted in transmission and so we cannot know for certain what the original form was; possibilities and suggestions include:

—1. in the Versions.: Sept._{RA} Ασενναφαρ (Sept._{B/A}); Sept._L and Josephus Ant. xi 2: 1 Σαλμανα(σ)σαρη; Vulg. Asennaphar; Pesh. ʿespîd rabbā.

—a) a gar-bled version of אַסְנַפֶּר, referring to Assurbanipal, king of Assyria 669nd.630, so KBL; Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 36; Vogt Lexicon 14b.

—b) Esarhaddon, king of Assyria 681nd.669, so Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 84, 90, who also refers to the fact that this king has already been mentioned in Ezr 4₂.

—c) the personal name would have been pronounced originally as Aššur-ēpir “Asshur is the provider”. For names expressing thanks that are constructed with the vb. epēru “to feed, look after, provide with food rations” (AHw. 223b; CAD E: 190a), see Stamm Namengebung 189; and for the corresponding general expressions meaning “X is a (my) provider” (with a theophoric subject), see Stamm Namengebung 213, 222. See also Berger ZA 64 (1975), 229f; according to him there is also the question of someone bearing this name in the time of Esarhaddon who was “the official representative of the king, a sort of provincial governor”.

—3. of these three suggestions the last (2c) is hardly to be taken into consideration, for it is a rather remote possibility; as for the others it is different; while both appear to be possible interpretations, preference should be given to the first of them (2a). †

10412 עָן (Aramaic)

*עָן, pl. det. עָן (variant 'עָן), Bauer-Leander BArm. 196d: Ezr 4₉; probably a proper name (Sept. Αφρασαίωι), in which the initial עָן of the sbst. has arisen by dittography (see e.g. BHS); suggestions about the identification of the intended proper name include:

—a) עָן (→ עָן) Persian, so e.g. KBL (with references to further bibliography); see further Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 36; Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 82;

—b) cj. for עָן prop. עָן, “Sipparite”, i.e., a resident of the city of Sippar, so Rosenthal Aramaic Handbook 1/2: 17f; and subsequently Vogt Lexicon 15b.

Deciding which of these two possibilities to choose is not easy. The MT seems to favour the first (a), but the mention of other names of cities in Ezr 4, rather supports the second (b).

10413 אֲפֶרְסֵי (Aramaic)

*אֲפֶרְסֵי, pl. det. אֲפֶרְסֵי (variant אֲפֶרְ, see Bauer-Leander BArm. 196d) Ezr 5 6; the meaning of the word is not certain but possibilities and suggestions include:

—a) the name of a people, so Sept. Αφραραχαιοι, Vulg., and so also Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 99, 103, where the subst. is rendered as “the Apharsechite”; for the reasons on which this is based see p. 84₉ (on Ezr 4₉). According to Meyer Judentums 38, אֲפֶרְסֵי would be the same as פֶּרְסֵי, but this is improbable.

—b) an official title; Sept. (= 3 Esdras) ἡγεμόνε; Pesh. šallîṭē; Arabic versions nawā-fîr guardian; a loanword from Old Pers. prasaka*/frasaka* +; Aramaic suffix. āy, so Eilers Iranische Beamtennamen 5ff, 30ff; see further Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 50, and Vogt Lexicon 15b, who translates the Old Persian word as the Latin inquisitor; Rosenthal Gramm. §189 raises the question of Akk. iprasakku an official administering justice in the Persian government (AHw. 385a; CAD I/J: 165b); see also Beyer Arm. Texte 520.

Clearly the second suggestion (b) deserves more preference than the first (a). †

*אֲפֶרְסֵי: pl. det. אֲפֶרְסֵי (variant אֲפֶרְ), Bauer-Leander BArm. 196d, Ezr 4₉. The meaning of the word is not certain, but possible suggestions have been made, like those for אֲפֶרְסֵי, and it is often identified with this word; on this see Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 36; Rosenthal Gramm. §189, and Gunneweg KAT xix/1, 84:

—a) a proper name, so Sept., Vulg.; also Gunneweg loc. cit.

—b) a Persian official title, of which the original form and meaning is given in various different ways:

—α) fraistaka “ambassador”, so Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 36, with reference to Eilers Beamtennamen 39₁, 100;

—β) frastā-ka* “top official”, corresponding to Greek προστάτη, so Rosenthal Gramm. §189, and similarly Vogt Lexicon 15b, with the Latin translation praefectus; frastāka (Beyer Arm. Texte 520, with reference to Hinz 97), the title of an official representative in Samaria.

—γ) frēstak, a loanword from Middle Pers. (KBL), > JArm. אֲפֶרְסֵי, Syr. prstq' (Pers. piristak) an ambassador of the king (Brockelmann Lexicon 603a).

10415 אֲפֶתֶם (Aramaic)

*אֲפֶתֶם; MSS ס(ו)ת- (variant_{Secundum} אֲפֶתֶם) Ezr 4₁₃: an uncertain word which was no longer understood by the Versions; for the various attempted explanations see KBL, and Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 38f; it is most likely to be derived from Old Pers. apa-tam “surely” < Akk. appitti (< ana pittī AHw. 60a, 871a) “surely, certainly”; on this see KBL, and Rudolph loc. cit. (both with relevant bibliography); see further Rosenthal Gramm. §93;

Rosenthal Aramaic Handbook 1/2, p. 18a; Vogt Lexicon 15f; Beyer Arm. Texte 520 (with reference to Hinz 31 and Kaufman Akkadian Influences 35) < Persian apatana(m) “surely”; Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 83 translates “finally”, and makes the observation (see p. 84) that “the meaning of the word is uncertain”. †

—2. the origin of the n.m. is uncertain, but possibilities include:

—a. from Hurrian Arriyuk, or Arriwuk in Mari (ARMT 2, 63:3), Ariukki in Nuzi, so de Vaux Histoire 1: 210, with note 104; cf. also Sasson UF 6 (1974), 358, 376, 387a.

—b. from (Old) Iranian, see Grelot VT 25 (1975), 711nd.719 (with bibliography), especially 715; also Zadok loc. cit. 246f; both of them infer different forms.

The choice between these two possibilities must remain open, but the first (a) has a certain claim for preference.

—a) the adj. is not a passive pt. (Kautzsch §57bγ), on which see KBL, but a loanword from Old Pers. ārya-ka “worthy of an Aryan”, so Scheftelowitz Arishes im AT 79, and subsequently KBL; Vogt Lexicon 17a; Bauer-Leander BArm. 188i; Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 40; also Rosenthal Gramm. p. 78, and Aramaic Handbook 1/2: 18a (with a question mark), who suggests that the translation of the adj. is “appropriate, seemly, fitting” or similar, and translates “for it is not appropriate for us (or it does not befit us) to see עֲרוֹת מְלָכָא the dishonouring of the king (any longer)”; so also Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 83.

—b) a different meaning is given in Beyer Arm. Texte 522 (with reference to Hinz 36): אַרְיָךְ < Pers. arika “faithless”, and there Ezr 4₁₄ is translated as “there is no disloyalty in us in seeing the dishonouring of the king”.

We consider that the first of these solutions (a) is the better one. †

Suggestions for the meaning are given by Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 54, and Vogt Lexicon 18b.

—1. Both of them take it as a sbst.;

—a) אַשׁוּהֵי its foundations, taking the vb. as poʿel passive participle “they should be maintained”, on which see סַבְּל, and Tuland JNES 17 (1958), 269ff.

—b) אַשִּׁיָּא, pl. st. det. of אַשָּׁא, “the fire offerings should be presented”, → סַבְּל, or אַשׁוּהֵי “its fire offerings”, → אַשָּׁא; NRSV: the place where burned offerings are brought; REB: a place where fire offerings are brought.

—2. Rudolph loc. cit. adopts a cj., for the sbst. of the MT prop. מְשַׁחֲוּהֵי, < מְשַׁח, and the vb. מְתַקֵּן (״כִּיל״) (ettaf>el of כִּיל) “its measurements are to be taken”.

One of the interpretations suggested under 1a and 1b is to be taken in preference to the cj. mentioned under 2. †

—4) because of the parallelismus membrorum in both occurrences in Ezra (which are coincidentally identical), where בִּיתָא is parallel with אֲשֶׁר־נָא, preference should be given to the translation “shrine” (cf. ZüBi.) :: NRSV: finish the structure; REB: complete the furnishings. †

10436 אֲשֶׁת־דִּוֵּר (Aramaic)

אֲשֶׁת־דִּוֵּר: the derivation of the sbst. is uncertain, but for suggestions and possibilities cf. Vogt Lexicon 19; they include:

—a) from the root שָׂרַר, originally inf. itpa. (Brockelmann Grundriss 1: 580); somewhat differently Bauer-Leander BArm. 193o, but in any case from שָׂרַר, “(probably a Canaanite) verbal noun on the pattern אֲתִקְטַל”; so also Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 40.

—b) Willi in Zimmerli Fschr. 545f takes it as ištaf. from the root רָרַר, meaning “freedom of movement” (“moving freely”); cf. Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 84.

—c) from pe. āštīdrauga “breach of the peace”, so Rosenthal Gramm. §190 (p. 59), and subsequently Beyer Arm. Texte 524.

We should leave open the question of deciding between these three possibilities (a-c), as Vogt does, but perhaps the last of them (c) deserves to be given some preference; for a correspondence with BHeb. מִלְחָמָה see Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 85: revolt Ezr 4₁₅₋₁₉. †

בִּלְטַשְׁאֲצַר (on the n.m. see already HAL 127; HALOT 133a), variants בְּלִטְ and Da 4_{5f} שִׁצַּר-, Or. Beltaşaşsar and Belatš-: n.m., Sept., Theodotion Βαλτασαρ (Ruzûička. 178), Vulg. Baltassar; Belteshazzar, the Babylonian name given to Daniel (Da 1₂) 2₂₆ 4_{5f-15f} 5₁₂. BHH 215. It is no longer possible with any certainty to suggest the Babylonian name that lies behind this form of the n.m., but suggestions that have been made (cf. also Vogt Lexicon 28a) include:

—a) balāt-šarri-ušur* “protect the life of the king!”.

—b) balātsu-ušur* “protect his life (that of the king)”; cf. the short form balāssu/balāssi (Tallqvist Personal Names 50f).

—c) Bēlet-šarra-ušur* (instead of ušri) “may Belet protect the king”, so Berger ZA 64 (1975), 226ff, 231.

We prefer not to make a decision between these three possibilities; see also LipinEski, VT 28 (1978), 234, mentioned by Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 86. †

10478 בַּר (Aramaic)

II בַּר: Heb. I בַּר and בֵּן (< Arm., Wagner 46); on the characteristic writing with a with the earliest attestation about 800 BC (in Akk. bar and ba-ar, in Uruk 22 ba-ri), see Beyer Arm. Texte 535; here it is also written as bir/bur. The sbst. is represented in all sections and branches of Arm. from EmpArm. onwards (and earlier it is attested in Old Arm., Tell Fekherye 6), see Jean-H. Dictionnaire 41nd.43; for EmpArm. and JArm. see especially Beyer Arm. Texte 535nd.537; see Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 86; see also Sokoloff Dictionary 97, בִּיר. Whether the sbst. is also found in the Phoenician inscription of Klmw (Donner-R. Inschriften 24: 1; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 188) is uncertain; perhaps it is a part of the name, so Landsberger Sam'al 46₁₀₇; cf. also Gibson Syrian Semitic Inscriptions 3: 35₁; OArm., Zendjirli (Donner-R. Inschriften 214; 218; 221); Bredsch (201: 2); Zakir (202 A: 4); Sefire (222; 223; 224); ArslanTash. Der. גוה.

10488 גב (Aramaic)

—a) from *גבב (HAL 163b; HALOT 170b; and KBL);

—b) from גנב. Both these proposals (a and b) are mentioned in KBL, but the second would be sufficient alone, since the meaning “side” can be derived from it without difficulty, while the meaning “back” can be discarded (despite the evidence of the Versions); see Vogt Lexicon, and similarly Rosenthal Gramm. 80; Beyer Arm. Texte 544.

—2. in the cognate languages it appears as follows:

—a) גב from the root גבב back, on which see Heb. I גב (HAL 163a; HALOT 170a); MHeb.; Pehl. (Junker Frahang 10: 7; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 46, sv. גב_{III}; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 207 sv. *gb*₃); and JArm. גבא (Dalman Wb. 69a, 68b): על-גב/גבאי “on” (Montgomery Daniel 295).

—b) גב from the root גנב, see also Beyer Arm. Texte 544; Arm., OArm., Zakir B: 8 (Donner-R. Inschriften 202) גבב on every side; Palm. emph. gb[?] (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 46; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 207); Arb. janb; JArm. sbst. and preposition (Dalman Wb. 68b, 69a; Beyer *Arm. Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 80, גאמבא next to גאנבא.

—3. Versions: Sept. πτερὰ τέσσαρα ἐπάνω αὐτοῦ; Theodotion πτερὰ τέσσαρα ὑπεράνω αὐτῆ; Vulgate et alas ... quattuor super se; Pesh. gappē ‘arb’sub’e>am >al gabbeḡh. In the Versions גב is connected with the meaning “back” from the root גבב (!); so also Bentzen Daniel 48; Lebram 85; TOB; NRSV; REB; cf. Pritchard Pictures 651, 659.

10496 גרף (Aramaic)

*גרף: the root גרף, inasmuch as it is used in the Hebrew and Aramaic parts of the OT, gives rise to a problem about whether it should be regarded as one root or as two homonymous roots. The meaning attested in BHeb., to revile, blaspheme (see HALOT 180b), and the meaning in BArm., to fly (also to flap, if the noun גרף is to be traced back to this root) and to row, are probably not be joined semantically, even though etymologically both meanings are linked to OSArb. gdf, Arb. gdf. Those who plead for one root include Gesenius-Buhl and Beyer Arm. Texte; two separate roots are preferred in KBL and HAL. The root גרף with the meaning to revile is found not just in BHeb., but elsewhere also; cf. JArm. pa. גרפי to blaspheme (Dalman Wb. 72b); Mnd. GDP (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 81a); for the root גרף with the meaning “to fly” in BArm. cf. JArm. גרפא, wing, poultry (Dalman Wb. 72b); Syr. g’sub’edaf to fly (Brockelmann Lexicon 105b); Arb. gadafa I and II, and also gudafa, to row, fly (cf. Fraenkel 227f; but cf. also Wehr-Cowan 115a, where the two meanings are treated separately).

10532 דוּרָא (Aramaic)

דוּרָא, Theodotion Δεῖρα, i.e. דוּרָא, so one MS_{Ken.}, see Montgomery Daniel 199; Vulgate, Pesh. Dura: דוּרָא בְּקַעַת Da 3₁, Sept. ἐν πεδίῳ τοῦ περιβόλου χώρα” Βαβυλωνία”; Plöger KAT xviii: 59 says that even though there is no certain identification of the place to which the name refers, it is hardly a made-up name (with reference to Montgomery Daniel 199, and Bentzen Daniel 34). The place name can easily be linked with the Akkadian appellative dūru(m) city-wall, a place surrounded by walls (AHw. 178), cf. KBL.

The more recent attempts to identify a location include:

—a) Dura is the name of a river which flows into the Euphrates some seven or eight km. below Hillah; Baumgartner ZAW 44 (1926), 40₁ (with bibliography) says that this same name applies also to the hilly nature of the surroundings; see also Montgomery Daniel 197; see further Curt Kuhl “Die drei Männer im Feuer: Daniel Kap. 3 und seine Zusätze” (BZAW 55 (1930) 5).

—b) We now know through recent excavations of a city called Dur ..., which was situated at modern Tell el-Lahm, to the east of Eridu and to the south-east of Ur; see Berger ZA 64 (1975), 220.

—c) The name has been connected with that of the city Dura-Europos, on which see Bentzen Daniel 34 (with bibliography).

It is the last of these three suggestions (c) that has the least to support it; but deciding which of the others to adopt must remain open.

10535 (Aramaic) דַּוַּה־

10536 (Aramaic) דַּוַּה־ (Aramaic)

—a) the versions vary, see e.g. Montgomery Daniel 277; Gesenius-Buhl; KBL; Vogt Lexicon 37a; BHS: דַּוַּה־נֵעַל לֵאֲלֹהֵי וְדַוַּה־וּבְתָטֹתֵי וְדַוַּה־וּבְתָטֹתֵי Theodotion ἐδέσματα οὐκ ἐρήσηνεγκαν αὐτῶ = Vulgate cibi and Pesh. mē'k'sub'elautau, cf. Sept. only καὶ ἠύλισθη νῆστι = דַּוַּה־וּבְתָטֹתֵי and he spent the night without food.

—b) for various other suggestions, including the Rabbinic ones, see the bibliography in Montgomery Daniel 277; Ibn Ezra, musical instruments; Rashi, tables; see also Kraeling Arm. Pap. 242 under דַּוַּה־ (9: 14; and Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 244 sv. dhy; Segert ArchOr 24: 384f); for Rashi cf. MHeb. דַּוַּה־נֵעַל table-tops (Dalman Wb. 94a; but see now Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 86); on this see Beyer Arm. Texte 548, a tray of food (?), perfumes, from Arb. duḥān “smell”, so Rosenmüller (see Gesenius-Buhl; KBL; Vogt Lexicon).

—c) ܕܗܝܢܐ ܕܗܝܢܐ or ܕܗܝܢܐ ܕܗܝܢܐ perhaps a woman to sleep with, concubine, with reference to Arb. daḥay an outstretched mat, in an obscene sense (Gesenius-Buhl) > subegit feminam, so Levy 1: 388b, and König Wb. 571b; cf. also KBL.

—d) this uncertain sbst. can be replaced by the cj. ܕܗܝܢܐ (→ *ܕܗܝܢܐ), so KBL, and especially Vogt Lexicon loc. cit.; see also BHS.

It is not easy to decide between the various possibilities; the expressions in Theodotion, Vulgate and Pesh. (food) representing the sbst. appear to be paraphrases of ܕܗܝܢܐ, and so the meaning of the word still remains unknown.

10585 ַ (Aramaic)

ַ: 1. Proto-Semitic initial ַ > י in יָנַר, יָדַע (?), יָהַב, יָסַף*, יָקַד, יָרַח*, יָרְכָה*, יָתַב and יָתִיר, but not → יַ.

—2. BArm. ַ corresponds to Heb. י in הוּיָה, to Akk. m/w in אַרְגִּינּוּ, זִיּוּ, פְּנִיָה (?) and נִגְלָל/לִי (?).

10586 ְ (Aramaic)

ְ, ַ: behaves like Heb. ְ, before shewa ַ or wi (Bauer-Leander BArm. 21t, 36a-c, 262b-k); Arm. (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 69); OArm. (Zakir, Zendjirli, Sefire), cf. Degen Altaram. Gramm. §46a; EmpArm., Uruk u-ma-a' = uma, u = wa; Herzfeld Paikuli 272; on which see Beyer Arm. Texte 564; EgArm.; Nab., Palm., JArm. (Beyer Arm. Texte 564f); CPArm., Syr., Mnd. (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 155a, with reference to Nöldeke Mand. Gramm.): conjunction, and (Bauer-Leander BArm. §96).

As in Heb. it joins words and also clauses. When three or more elements are involved it is placed either between them all Da 2₆₋₁₀ 4₃₄ 5₁₁₋₁₄₋₁₈ Ezr 6₉, or between the last two Da 2₃₇ 3₂₁, or irregularly 3₂.Ezr 4₉, or not at all Da 2₂₇ 5_{11b} (Bauer-Leander BArm. 350a and b).

Particular uses include: a) and that Da 4₁₀ (:: Bauer-Leander BArm. 324h).₂₀ Ezr 6_{8f}.

—d) or Ezr 7₂₆ (Bauer-Leander BArm. 324j).

—e) explanatory: for Da 4₂₂ Ezr 5₁₅.

—f) continuous: then, so; often it is best not to render the word at all if following an impv., Da 2₄₋₉₋₂₄; following an impf. 2₇; following a pf. in narrative (= Heb. consecutive impf.) with pf. Da 5₂₉ 6₂₋₁₇, with impf. (Bauer-Leander BArm. 281m) 4₂, with pt. וְאַמְרִין hellip. עָנִי (→ עָנָה) 2₇.

—g) as an expression of purpose: with impf. Da 5₂; with pt. 2₁₃; with inf. (Bauer-Leander BArm. 301e) 2₁₆₋₁₈; cf. Vogt Lexicon 56a sub 9.

—h) two instances where the meaning is uncertain are —α) Da 7_{1a}, where there is some dispute about the words עַל-מִשְׁכְּבָהּ וְחִזְוֵי רֵאשִׁיהּ; possible suggestions are:

—i. the words constitute a continuation of the phrase חִלָּם חִזְוֵה which makes the meaning more complete, so Theodotion, Vulgate, Pesh.; more recent interpreters include Montgomery Daniel 283; TOB (but see also the appended note); NRSV; REB;

—ii. the words constitute a separate phrase which must be restored from 4₂ or 7₁₅, יְבִי הַלְלִינָה or alternatively יְדִי הַלְלִינָה; so e.g. ZüBi; Bentzen 48; BHS; cf. also Plöger KAT xviii: 103;

—iii. the words in question are an expansion from vs. 15, and as such are to be deleted, so Plöger KAT xviii: 101, 103; cf. Sept.;

—iv. one of the first two suggestions seems to be preferable to the third;

—v. on רֵאשׁ מְלִין Da 7₁ → רֵאשׁ 2.

—β) Da 7₂₀, in the sbst. וְעֵינֵין, delete י following the Versions (see BHS); see also Bauer-Leander BArm. 324i.

10587 ז (Aramaic)

—1. in general it corresponds to Proto-Semitic z, Arb. z.

—2. for z corresponding to Proto-Semitic d cf. Arb. d → ד; > ז only in loanwords, זְכֹה, זְכוּ and n.m. זְכָרִיה.

—b) dky: EgArm. (Cowley Arm. Pap.); Pehl. (Junker Frahang 26: 4); Palm., Hatra (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 76, sv. זָכִי_{II}; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 321, sv. *zky*₂); JArm. (Dalman Wb. 98a); Syr. (Brockelmann Lexicon 152b); Mnd. (Drower-M. Dictionary 99b) clean, guiltless.

—3. it will have to remain undecided whether זָכָה and זָכָה were originally derived from one and the same root (so HAL 258a, cf. also OSArb.), or whether they are to be treated as two separate roots (so perhaps KBL 1071b; and perhaps also Beyer Arm. Texte 569).

Der. זָכוּ.

זָכוּ: זָכוּ:

—1. JArm. זָכוּתָא justice, law, good deed, act of salvation (Dalman Wb. 128b); for JPArm. abs. זָכוּ see Sokoloff Dictionary 176 > Arb. zakāt purity, justice, alms, tax for charity, cf. Hwb. Islam 821a; J. Horowitz, Jewish Proper Names and Derivatives in the Koran, HUCA 2 (1925), 206 (reprinted Hildesheim 1964: 62); Tg. instead of Heb. צָדִיקָה; Syr. zākūtā uprightness, innocence (Brockelmann Lexicon 196a); Mnd. sg. zaku, emph. zakuta, pl. zakawata (Drower-M. Dictionary 158f; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 163) innocence, purity, victory.

—2. we are dealing here with a loanword that has come either from Akkadian or from Canaanite; for the Akkadian derivation see KBL; Vogt 57b; and Rosenthal Gramm. 16, 58; for the Canaanite derivation see especially Bauer OLZ 29: 803; Kaufman 112; and subsequently Beyer Arm. Texte 569; it would appear that the Canaanite derivation is probably the more likely of the two; however it is only the Akkadian (zakûtu, AHw. 1507b) that supplies the special meaning “exemption, liberation”.

10599 זָמַן (Aramaic)

זָמַן Da 2₁₆ and זָמַן 7₁₂ (Bauer-Leander BArm. 220 o and p): Heb. זָמַן < Arm. (Wagner 77, 78).

A. The sbst. is attested in various dialects but there are questions about its origin.

—1. זָמַן: EmpArm., EgArm. (Saqqara); Pehl. (Junker Frahang 27: 3; Herzfeld Paikuli); Nab. זָמַן; JArm. inscr. (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 78; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 332, sv. *zmn*₂); JArm. זָמַן, det. זָמַנָא, DSS (Dalman Wb. 130a; Beyer *Arm. (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 72, sv. זָבַן_{III}; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 305 sv. *zbn*₃); Sam. azbân (Ben Hayyim Gloss. 4b); CPArm. zabnâ (Schulthess Gramm. §47: 2; Lex. 53b); Syr. zabnâ (Brockelmann Lexicon 187b); NeoSyr. zaman and zbn?, > zōnā (Maclean 87a; 83a) and NeoArm. zebna (Bergsträsser Gloss. 104; Spitaler 69a); Mnd. zibnā (Drower-M. Dictionary 165a; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 152); it may be a loanword, but there is some disagreement about its origin, on which see, as well as KBL, also Wagner 77nd.78 (with bibliography), and THAT 2: 375;

—a) it may have come either from Akkadian simānu(m) (AHw. 1044b; CAD S: 268; for s > z cf. Brockelmann Grundriss i: 170_d) time, a precise point in time; or —b) from Old Persian jamāna, and Middle Persian zamān. For the Akkadian see e.g. Zimmern 63; Schaeder ZDMG 95 (1941), 269f; Brockelmann Lexicon 187b; Bauer-Leander BArm. 33h; Kaufman 91f; for the Persian see Nyberg 2: 251f; Widengren Iranisch-Semitische Kulturbegegnung 106; Telegdi Essai 242.

B. Within BArm. the sbst. occurs thus: det. זָמְנָא, pl. זָמְנַיִן, det. זָמְנֵיאָ (Bauer-Leander BArm. 218e, 219f); masc.

—1. a fixed time Da 7₁₂₋₂₂, pl. 2₂₁ (parallel with עֵדָן), period of grace, respite 2₁₆; moment, זָמְנָא בֵּיהּ at that time Ezr 5₃ Da 3₈; at the same time 4₃₃; בֵּיהּ זָמְנֵיאָ כְּרִי as soon as 3₇; sacred occasion, feast 7₂₅ (לְהַשְׁנִיחָהּ זָמְנֵיאָ לְהַשְׁנִיחָהּ), on which see Plöger KAT xviii: 103, who shows that the expression “dates and law” are to be understood differently according to the explanation on p. 105, where he states that what is meant are the dates in the cultic calendar; on this see also Lebram VT 25 (1975), 745: “We must not think that ‘times and law’ refers literally to the Torah of Moses, but rather to the regular timings of the cosmos, which were of fundamental importance for the effective implementation of cultic practices”; for more details cf. Lebram 91f.

—2. time, turn (JArm., Syr., Heb. עֵת Ne 9₂₈ עֵתִים עֵתִים), תְּלַתָּהּ זָמְנֵינִי three times Da 6₁₁₋₁₄; cf. זָמְנֵינִי at times Test. Levi (RB 63, (1956), 391f, 4nd.6). † hang up, hang, crucify, also JArm. and Syr.; according to Zimmern 36, and subsequently KBL, “to impale” is borrowed from Akkadian; on this question see also G. Kittel ZNW 35 (1936), 283ff; on impaling in Akkadian literature as a punishment for the living, or alternatively as a shaming of the dead, see e.g. J. Delitto Die peinliche Strafen der Bab. und Ass. (1913), 41ff; Meissner Bab. und Ass. 1: 112 etc.; W1. Eilers Die Gesetzesstele Chammurabis (AO 31, 3/4: 1932) p. 37, together with note 4 on §153; cf. Driver-Miles Babylonian Laws 108f, 496₃, under zaqāpu; for an illustration see Meissner loc. cit., illustrated on plate 66, see further Gressmann *Bilder*₂ 132, 141; Pritchard Pictures 362, 373; for further details on this question and bibliography cf. also HAL 412a, HALOT 431, sv. יָקַע; Herodotus iii: 159, ἀνασκολοπίζω, shows that among the Persians impaling was also a means of execution.

pe: pt. passive יָקַע: impaled, someone who has been impaled, Ezr 6₁₁; on this see e.g. Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 105, 110; also ZüBi; TOB; but it remains uncertain, because in the MT the pt. יָקַע precedes the impf. (jussive) expression יִתְמַחָא עַל־הַי; this suggests that it should be translated “a beam ... on to which he will be fixed upright”; so Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 58; also Galling ATD 12: 197; so also NRSV and REB. †

חוט or חייט: → Heb. טוּשׁ, (HAL 284a; HALOT 296b) with the meaning to sew; it is uncertain whether it is to be taken as a primary vb., or whether as a denominative from the sbst. חוט thread; EmpArm., EgArm. (Cowley Arm. Pap.; Kraeling Arm. Pap., thread; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 84; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 353, sv. *ḥwt*₃);

JArm. חוּט to sew (Dalman Wb. 139a); Syr. (Brockelmann Lexicon 220a); Mnd. HUT (Drower-M. Dictionary 135a); CPArm. hwt (Schulthess Lex. 61a); see now Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 89, who refers to Akk. hātu to search, trace (CAD Hā: 161).

pe. or haf: impf. יְחִיטּוּ, cf. Bauer-Leander BArm. 148e, variant יְחִיטּוּ (in form = יְחִיטּוּ ? :: Vogt 75b, יְחִיטּוּ i.e. yahhītū): Ezr 4₁₂, with obj. אֲשֵׁר “foundations”, so here the usual meaning of the vb. does not suffice; it must either be taken as having a special sense, or the MT will have to be replaced with a cj. emendation; see also KBL for both suggestions; the special sense of the vb may be.

—α) חוּט/חִיטּוּ to join together, with Syr. hāt, pa. hayyat and Arb. hayyata, > to repair (Schulthess ZAW 22 (1902), 162; so also ZüBi; also Vogt 81, under חוּט, and p. 75b, sv. יְחִיטּוּ, on which see above); NRSV and REB, repairing the foundations.

—β) as a cognate of Arb. haṭta to lay (Torrey Ezra Studies 187); but on the Arb. vb. see also Wehr-Cowan 185b and Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 38.

—γ) to mark out, stake out the foundations, so Galling ATD 12: 195.

—δ) Sept. καὶ θεμελίου” αὐτῆ” ἀνύψωσαν and they raised its foundations.

Alternatively from Ezr 5₁₆ a conjectural emendation is suggested יְחִיבּוּ, pf. pe. passive, so e.g. Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 38; cf. BHS; Gesenius-Buhl; KBL; Bauer-Leander BArm. 148e; Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 82 does not translate the vb. since the meaning of it is uncertain (p. 84); while we cannot work out the precise meaning the most plausible translation can be taken as to repair. †

חֲזוּת: MT Da 4^{8.17} referring to a tree: v. 8^b: וְרִוְמָה יִמְטָא לְשִׁמְיָא; v. 8^c: כָּל-אַרְעָא וְ חֲזוּתָהּ לְסוּף; v. 17^b is the same; v. 17^c reads לְכָל instead of כָּל לְסוּף; and with many mss. as vs. 8; the etymology of חֲזוּת is uncertain, and there is some controversy about the meaning of the word; two opposing interpretations have been suggested.

—1. (traditional!): taking the etymology from חֲזָה, the same as in Heb.; חֲזוּתָהּ Bauer-Leander BArm. 185s; variant, see Vulgate, Pesh., BHS, חֲזוּתָהּ; Montgomery Daniel 230f; JArm. חֲזוּתָהּ appearance (Dalman Wb. 141b); DSS visibility (Beyer Arm. Texte 577); Syr. hezwā appearance (Brockelmann Lexicon 224a); Mnd. (Drower-M. Dictionary 139b; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 146); Versions: Theodotion 4^{11.20} (ἐφθασεν) τὸ κῦτος αὐτοῦ ἐν τὰ πέρατα πάση τῇ γῆ; Sept. 4¹¹ τὸ κῦτος αὐτοῦ ἔω τῶν νεφελῶν πληροῦν τὰ ὑποκάτω τοῦ οὐρανοῦ; 20 ἡ ὄρασις μεγάλη; Pesh. 4^{11.20} (mt) hzw h lkl swpyh d'r sight, appearance; NRSV, it was visible to the ends of the whole earth; REB, it was visible to earth's farthest bounds.

—2. There is also the solution offered by Gesenius in the Thesaurus (p. 461a, but without any etymology!), referring to Sept.^v (i.e. Codex Venetus: Griechische Bibelübersetzung sogenannt Codex Venetus, edited by Oskar von Gebhardt, Leipzig 1875) οἱ ὄσοδοι (also = ὄζοι) pl. of ὄζο = ὄσοδο branch, bough (Menge-Güthling, Langenscheidts Grosswörterbuch Griechisch-Deutsch mit Etym. (Berlin-Zürich 251924), 480a) where the etymology is linked with German Ast, branch; Kimhi קָרַן חֲזוּת חֲזוּתָהּ עֲנָפִים כִּמוֹ (David Kimhi שְׂרָשִׁים סִפָּר. Radicum liber sive Hebraeorum bibliorum Lexicon, edited by J.H.R. Biesenthal and F. Lebrecht (Berlin, 1847), 99); Hebrew version פִּארוּתִין; and Theodotion τὸ κῦτος αὐτοῦ (see above under A, Versions) τὸ κῦτος hollow, dome (Menge-Güthling op. cit. 412a): branches > crown of the tree, so also ZüBi.

—3. Even though there is no etymological support (it could perhaps be a loanword from somewhere else), this suggestion of Gesenius (2) links in better with what precedes than the traditional interpretation (1). †

Der. ܠܗܠܩ.

10648 ܠܗܠܩܐ (Aramaic)

ܠܗܠܩܐ: ܠܗܠܩ;

—a. it should be noted that, according to Beyer Arm. Texte 580, the vocalisation of the MT follows the pattern qutāl, i.e. a diminutive of ܠܗܠܩ (∴ Bauer-Leander BArm. 187d, who takes it as following the pattern qatāl); those instances which are unvocalised (EgArm. etc.) could also be taken as following the pattern qitl.

—b) instances in BArm. and from the Arm. dialects: EmpArm., EgArm. (Cowley Arm. Pap.; Kraeling Arm. Pap.); Bruno-Meissner Pachtvertrag 11, and Nab., Palm., JArm. inscr. (ḥwlq, Jean-H. Dictionnaire 89f; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 378 sv. *ḥlq*₃); JArm. ܠܗܠܩܐ; DSS (Dalman Wb. 150b; Beyer Arm. Texte 580); JArm. also ܠܗܠܩܐ (this is the vocalisation of the sbst. given in Levy 2: 66a ∴ Dalman Wb. 150a, ܠܗܠܩܐ, which is followed in KBL) with reference to Dt 14₂₇, but this reading is not corroborated by Tg._o; Tg._o reads ḥūlāq (ܠܗܠܩܐ); so also JArm. inscr. (see above), which also corresponds to CPArm. Der. חֲמֹר.

חֲמֹר: Heb. חֲמֹר:

—a) it should be noted that, following KBL (p. 312b), חֲמֹר has to be distinguished in meaning from חֲמֵר as “wine which is still foaming with fermentation”, a distinction taken up also in HAL 317a (HALOT 330b) “wine which is still fermenting”, cf. also Galling *Bibl. Reallexicon*₂ 362, and Reicke-Rost Hw. 2150. But in Arm. this special meaning of the sbst. is suppressed, and it has become the normal appellative noun for “wine”, and as such has superseded the sbst. חֲמֵר, which is more usual in BHeb. and the other dialects.

—b) for the cognate languages and BArm. cf. Akk. ḥimrum a fermented drink (a foreign word, Canaanite; see AHw. 1561a); EmpArm.; Pehl. (Junker Frahang 5: 5); EgArm. (Cowley *Arm. 10669 ܠܫܘܚܐ (Aramaic) ܠܫܘܚܐ: Syr. (Brockelmann Lexicon 261b) and NeoSyr. (Maclean 107b), to be necessary, be fit (NeoSyr. also to be worthy, deserve); CPArm. ištaf. to use (Schulthess Lex. 71b); cf. Akk. ḥašāḥu(m) (AHw. 332b; CAD Hå: 134b-136a) to need, desire; it is uncertain whether the Arm. vb. is a loanword from Akk., but on this see Zimmern 70; Kaufman 54; Rosenthal Gramm. §188 (p. 58) :: Vogt 67, who takes it as derived from Akk.; see below, b).

pe:

—a) pt. pl. ܠܫܘܚܐܝܢ (Bauer-Leander BArm. 176x), variant ܠܫܘܚܐܝܢ: to be in need of, with ܠ and inf. Da 3₁₆.

—b) according to KBL ܠܫܘܚܐܝܢ is to be taken as a poor variant :: Vogt 67, who says the sg. *ܠܫܘܚܐ and the fem. *ܠܫܘܚܐ (= *ܠܫܘܚܐ) correspond to the Akk. ḥaših (3rd. sg. stative) “it is needed”; see CAD Hå 135a, line 3, for the citation from an Old Babylonian letter; also ḥa-še-eḥ “he is desiring” (to purchase his brother’s property), cited from the Laws of Eshnunna in AHw. 332b, sv. ḥašāḥu G, line 9; cf. CAD Hå: 135a, sv. ḥašāḥu 2, line 5.

These two suggestions have to be considered together; probably an older and later form of the participle are exemplified in the second (b). †

Der. *ܠܫܘܚܐ, *ܠܫܘܚܐ.

10670 ܠܫܘܚܐ (Aramaic)

*ܠܫܘܚܐ: ܠܫܘܚܐ; Syr. ḥʿsubʿesûah\taḥ (Brockelmann Lexicon 262a).

—a) MT pl. fem. ܠܫܘܚܐ Ezr 6₉, Bauer-Leander BArm. 185s, and especially Rosenthal Gramm. §44, a necessity; similarly KBL, need, what is needed; similarly also Galling ATD 12: 196; TOB; Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 104.

—b) cj., for MT prop. pt. ܠܫܘܚܐܝܢ what they need; so e.g. Torrey Ezra Studies 194; ZüBi; Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 56, 57; Vogt 67b.

Deciding whether to choose (a) or (b) as a solution is not easy, and the question can probably remain open. †

*ܠܫܘܚܐ: ܠܫܘܚܐ; Syr. ḥašḥūtā use (Brockelmann Lexicon 262a; see also Vogt 67b, who says that the Heb. sbst. is a loanword from Akk. ḥišiḥtu need, necessities (see CAD Hå: 204a; cf. AHw. 349a, ḥiši/eh̄tu(m)); but the evidence from Syr. argues against this special derivation); Bauer-Leander BArm. 245g: cstr. ܠܫܘܚܐ: need Ezr 7₂₀. †

Der. טעימ.

טעימ: טעם; Heb. טעם; EmpArm., Palm. טעמתא food (Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 428); decision, command: EgArm. (Hermopolis; Cowley Arm. Pap.; Driver Arm. Docs.; Saqqara) Samaria; Nab. (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 102, causative, Cantineau Nab. 2: 102; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 427 sv. *t'm*₂); JArm. טעימ, טעמתא (Dalman Wb. 172b); Syr. ta'mā (Brockelmann Lexicon 283a); Mnd. tama (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 174b; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 16); NeoSyr. taste, (correct?) behaviour (Maclean 113a); taste, understanding (JArm., Syr., NeoSyr.); decision (Nab., see Jean-H. Dictionnaire 102, and especially Cantineau Nab. 2: 102); Bauer-Leander BArm. 224g; Rowley The Aramaic of the OT 117); the same in cstr., also טעמ, טעימ Da 5₂ Ezr 6₁₄; in 6₁₄ טעימ פורש אלה occurs together with טעימ אלה; the latter is to be found also in Ezr 7₂₃.

The reason for the difference in vocalisation is not clear, but possibilities include:

—a) a Massoretic construction, so Bauer-Leander BArm. 228f;

—b) טעימ (like צלם Da 3₅) simply a Hebraism, so Bauer-Leander BArm. 228f;

—c) Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 112 says that perhaps the different vocalisations of טעימ may be an attempt by the Massorettes to decide about differentiating between the word of God and human instructions.

—det. טעמתא, Or. ta^osub'ema (Bauer-Leander BArm. 45f).

—1. understanding: וְטַעַם וְעֵטָה יְהִיב עֵטָה Da 2₁₄ (→ תוב), he responded with prudence and discretion (NRSV); he made a direct and tactful approach (REB); עַל שִׁים טְ to pay attention to, heed Da 3₁₂ 6₁₄.

—a) command (< Akk. tēmu AHw. 1385b; Kaufman 109); מְנִטְעַם אֱלֹהִים (see above) according to the command of God Ezr 6₁₄ 7₂₃ :: מְנִטְעַם כּוֹרֵשׁ Ezr 6₁₄ (see above), שִׁים טַעַם (EgArm.) Da 3₁₀ Ezr 4₂₁ 5_{3,9,13} 6_{1,3,12}, passive Da 3₂₉ 4₃ 6₂₇ Ezr 4₁₉ 5₁₇ 6_{8,11} 7_{13,21}; בְּעַל טַעַם (see below, 4).

—b) חֲמָרָא בְּטַעַם Da 5₂ either “under the influence of the wine” (KBL; NRSV; REB), or rather “at the tasting of the wine, through the flavour of the wine, with the enjoyment of the wine”, following Semitic taʿm taste (AHw. 1385b).

—3. advice, report (< Akk., Kaufman 109), cf. tēma turru to bring back a decision, return a report (AHw. 1334, 8c, sv. tāru, D turru; see also p. 1387a, sv. tēmu(m) 9e: with הַלֵּךְ לְ “until the report had reached Darius” Ezr 5₅; יָהֵב טְ to give an account Da 6₃).

—4. בְּעַל-טְ together with סְפָרָא Ezr 4_{8f,17} chancellor, chief government official (so with e.g. KBL; Beyer Arm. Texte 534 :: traditionally commander, commanding officer); cf. EgArm. בעל טעם (Cowley Arm. Pap. 26: 23, see p. 97; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary p. 183, sv. 2), “the instigator of a command” < Akk. bēl tēmi, see Zimmern 10, who translates the sbst. as “commander” or “reporter”; this last translation corresponds to the function of the Akkadian reporter of omens from sacrifices, on which see E. Georg Klauber Politischrelig. Texte aus der Sargonidenzeit (Leipzig, 1913), pp. xxiv and 161; cf. AHw. 1387b sv. tēmu(m) 10, the representative for presenting formulations for requests and answers (?). According to Schaeder 97, EmpArm. בעל טעם is the same as בְּעַל טְ, and its “pattern” bēl tēmi is to be taken as the rendering of the title of a Persian state-official; on the whole question see also Kaufman 109, especially together with note 390; for further bibliography see Sokoloff DSD 7 (2000), 91. †

10690 טַפֵּר (Aramaic)

טַפֵּר: Heb. צִפְרָן; TgArm., JBabArm. טופרא; JPArm. טפר, pl. טופריין (see Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 91; Beyer Arm. Texte 591); CPArm. (Schulthess Gramm. p. 135b) and NeoSyr. tiprā (Maclean 113b); Syr. (Brockelmann Lexicon 286b) and NeoArm. teprā (Bergsträsser Gloss. 98); JArm. tuprā (Dalman Wb. 174a); Mnd. tupra (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 178; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 18); Akk. supru(m) (AHw. 1113) and tupru < Arm. hoof (AHw. 1395b); Arb. zufī/zifī, basic form zifī, Bauer-Leander BArm. 183g: pl. sf. טַפְרוּהִי, Or. tofr-, Da 4₃₀ טַפְרָה 7₁₉ Q, K טַפְרִיהִי: Bauer-Leander BArm. 75c.

10691 טַרַד (Aramaic)

pe: pt. pl. טַרַדִּין; pf. passive (Bauer-Leander BArm. 104b-e!) טַרַד: to drive away, with לְ of the personal obj. (→ לְ 11) and גֵּן Da 4²²⁻²⁹; passive 4₃₀ 5₂₁. †

10692 טַרְפְּלִי (Aramaic)

*טַרְפְּלִי, pl. det. טַרְפְּלִיא (Bauer-Leander BArm. 196d, 204 l; Rosenthal Gramm. §191) Ezr 4₉: possible interpretations include:

—a) Septuagint Ταρφαλλαῖοι, Vulgate Terphalae, someone who lives in the city of Tripolis; but for reservations about this see Rosenthal loc. cit.

—b) an official of the Persian chancellery of Ebirnari in Tripolis, so Galling ZAW 63 (1951/52), 71; so also Galling Studien zur Geschichte Isr. 48, and see also 191₃.

—c) a general term, “class of officials” (KBL); “official title” (Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 36; cf. also Eilers 39f).

Of these three suggestions probably the second (b) is the one to be preferred. For proposals about the name of the city see Galling VT 4 (1954), 418nd.422 and Studien zur Geschichte Isr. 191₃.

10693 י (Aramaic)

—1. interchanges with → נ (→ ית), with ו in הרה.

10694 יבל (Aramaic)

יבל: the same in Heb.; Deir Alla; OArm., Zendjirli (Donner-R. Inschriften 215: 6, 14, 21); Tell Fekherye 11; EmpArm., Pehl. (Junker Frahang 20: 21; Herzfeld Paikuli 460nd.462).

—1. pe.: EgArm. (Cowley Arm. Pap., Aḥiqar, Saqqara, Hermopolis) יבל impf. active, corresponding to *יבל, and inf. מובל, so Vogt 69f; cf. Leander §38d; Jean-H. Dictionnaire 103; passive, corresponding to *יבל Hermopolis, Nab., Palm., JArm. inscr. (Jean-H. Dictionnaire 103; Hoftijzer-Jongeling Dictionary 431).

—2. pa.: JArm. and Syr.

II כָּסַף (HAL 467a; HALOT 490) to be colourless, be pale; but כְּסָף is rather from I כָּסַף to cut, break off; cf. also the etymology of Heb. I כָּסַף (HAL 467a; HALOT 490), where both “to be pale” and “to break off” are suggested.

10754 כְּסָפָא (Aramaic)

כְּסָפָא: Heb. I כָּסַף; the etymological derivation of the sbst. is uncertain; the more recent proposals are given under I כָּסַף (HAL 467a; HALOT 490); perhaps it is a primary noun; OArm., Zandjirli (Donner-R. Inschriften 215: 11; 216: 10nd.11); EmpArm., Nerab (Donner-R. Inschriften 226: 7; 227: obverse 2); EgArm., Abydos (Donner-R. Inschriften 263; Cowley *Arm. 10755 כְּעַן (Aramaic)

כְּעַן, Da 3¹⁵, variant כְּעַי; this temporal adverb, like → כְּעַנְתָּ, כְּעַתָּ, is to be connected with Heb. עַתָּ and עַתָּה, but the etymological derivation is uncertain, on which see THAT 2: 370f. Most probably it is to be taken from the root yʿd (wʿd), as with THAT loc. cit. (with bibliography); see also AHW. 16b sv. adānum; CAD A/1: 97b, sv. adannu; OArm., Sefire (Donner-R. Inschriften 224: 24, kʿt); EmpArm., EgArm. Texte* 661 sv. עֲנָה); fem. of → כְּעַנְי; the word belongs to letters, epistolary style; in the MT it always occurs with ו and at the end of a sentence, which is why it was taken earlier to mean “etc.”; but, like כְּעַן, it is rather a link into what is to follow, and marks the transition to the real point of concern in a letter; see Lidzbarski Ephemeris 2: 229f; Heb. וְעַתָּה; καὶ νῦν 2 Maccabees 1⁶: and now; delete in Ezr 4¹⁰. †

Perhaps the Heb. sbst. has been taken over from the Arm., where it seems to be deeper rooted (on which see Wagner 142 and Kaufman 65). An association may also be made with the Akk. kutlu(m), something like a side-wall (AHw. 518b; CAD K: 610, “rail, fence”); but there does not appear to be any connection with the sbst. kutallu(m), which is a Sumerian loanword (AHw. 517f; CAD K: 603, “back of the head, rear”), although this was accepted in the past (see Zimmern 32, 45, and then subsequently KBL); on this see now HAL 480b (HALOT 505a), where for Akkadian a reference is made only to kutlu and no longer to kutallu. It remains uncertain whether Arm. כַּתְּלָא as a loanword is to be directly linked with Akk. kutlu; perhaps an old and reliable heritage can be traced through cognate etymology in both languages (as also perhaps in Hebrew): the same in the cstr.; pl. det. כַּתְּלָא: wall Da 5₅ Ezr 5₈. †

—1. ל is a prefix for the impf. of הִיָּה (Bauer-Leander BArm. 152d), which is used in Western Aramaic to avoid the same consonantal spelling as the divine name; but in Mandaeen the prefix ל is also used with other verbs (Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. §166), and it occurs also in dialects of Maghrebi Arabic; for Tell Fekheriye, Mesopotamia, Hatra and JBabArm. see Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 94.

—2. it is assimilated in סַלְק, cf. הַלְךָ.

—3. it occurs as ר in חַרְזִין :: Heb. חֶלֶק.

לְ: the same in Heb.; cuneiform la (Arm. loanword) see AHw. 520a; CAD L: 1; for OArm. see the instances in Degen Altaram. Gramm. §45, 2a (p. 61): לְ with sf. לֵיה, לֵה, לֵהם; Tell Fekheriye לְ p. 82, and once with sf. לֵה; also once לֵמַעַן; EmpArm., Nerab (Donner-R. Inschriften 225: 14, לְךָ “to you”); Tema לְ (228: 3, 12, 17); Asshur Ostrakon (233: 11 לְ; 8, 13 לֵי; 19 לְךָ; 8 לֵה); EgArm. - 7. dative of advantage: for Da 4⁹⁻²³ Ezr 6¹⁰ (intercession), with passive 7²³.
- 8. dative of possession: to belong to, meaning to have Da 6¹⁶ 7^{4-6f-20}, to be relevant to (of the significance of a dream) 4¹⁶, לְהָ 5²³ (: others, who join it together with הַדְּרִיחַ, see below paragraph 11), לְהִי his, his own (→ הִי 2c), with הוֹה 4²⁴ 5¹⁷, with אִית Ezr 4¹⁶, with נָפַל 7²⁰, with הַשְׁפִּיחַ to try to find a reason against someone Da 6^{5f} (Heb. Dt 22¹⁴), passive 2³⁵ (: others, who take it as under 10 see below).
- 9. used to express other relationships: to resemble something Da 7⁵, corresponding to לְמוֹנֵן Ezr 6¹⁷ (Heb. לְ 19).
- 10. as a periphrasis for the genitive (Bauer-Leander BArm. 315e, f; Heb. לְ 14): Ezr 5⁵ (see above, under 1).
- 11. in dates: לְיִרְחַ hellip. יוֹם (for EgArm. see e.g. Cowley Arm. Pap. 1: 1): Ezr 6¹⁵, לְ שָׁנַת ... (for EgArm. see e.g. Cowley Arm. Pap. 2: 1, שָׁנַת לְמוֹט in a year of tottering Dura, Altheim 9: 1) Da 7¹ Ezr 4²⁴ 5¹³ 6³.
- 12. it takes the place of the accusative marker with personal objects (Brockelmann Grundriss 2: 315ff; Bauer-Leander BArm. §100 q-z): in Old Aramaic only rarely; EmpArm., Tema (Donner-R. Inschriften 228 A: 21f); EgArm. (see Baumgartner ZAW 45 (1927), 117₁ (on p. 118) = Umwelt 105₁; Rowley The Aramaic of the OT 102f; Rosenthal Palm. 68₃; Ingholt-Seyrig-Starcky *Rec. 10783 לחם (Aramaic)

—a) Heb. I לחם, on which see HAL 500a; HALOT 526a; CPArm. pt. (Schul-thess Lex. 102b); Syr. pa. to join together (Brockelmann Lexicon 363b); Mnd. sūaf to threaten (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 467b); the basic meaning is to be packed together > to come to blows, probably to be related to Heb. לחם and Arm. לחם (cf. KBL and HAL).

—b) Heb. II לחם: denominative from the principal substantives.

לחמא, variant לחם: לחם: Heb. לחם; לחם (cstr.); OArm., Sefire (Donner-R. Inschriften 222 A: 24; B: 38, 39; 224: 5, 7); Tell Fekherye 22: לחם, sf. lines 17 and 18 לחמה; EmpArm., EgArm. (Cowley Arm. Pap.; Aḥiqar, Saqqara); Pehl. (Junker Frahang 4: 10); Palm., JArm. inscr. (Brockelmann Lexicon 390b) and NeoSyr. to salt (Maclean 179a); Syr. itpa. with ^cam (Brockelmann Lexicon 391a) to be intimate with, savour with salt > to enjoy intimate contact, really to be bound together with (τιτυί), cf. F. Passow Handwörterbuch der griech. Sprache (5th edition; Leipzig, 1857), 1666b.

pe: pf. 1st. pl. מְלַחְנָא to eat salt (already in Gesenius Thes. 790b), cf. Pesh. Ps 141⁴ ’etmallah ’amhōn min melḥa: מְלַח הַיְכָלָא מְלַחְנָא Ezr 4¹⁴ to eat the salt of the palace, be under an obligation of loyalty to the king, so e.g. ZüBi; Galling ATD 12: 195; TOB and especially Gunneweg KAT xix/1: 83, 84, 91 with reference to the expression “salt-covenant”, or alternatively “a covenant of salt” (מְלַח בְּרִית - בְּרִית מְלַח) Lv 2¹³ Nu 18¹⁹ 2C 13⁵).

There is probably no need for a cj., such as has been proposed by Rudolph Esra und Nehemia 40, and then by Vogt 101b: instead of the vb. מְלַחְנָא it is much better to read the sbst. with sf. מְלַחְנָא “the salt of the palace is our salt”. †

*נָדָן or נָדָנָה; Heb. I נָדָן; < Arm. (Wagner 183); JArm. נָדָנָה, נָדָנָה sheath (Dalman Wb. 264a, but see Sokoloff, DSD 7 (2000), 97); loanword from Persian (Sanskrit nidhāna container; see Nöldeke, in Göttinger Gelehrter Anzeiger (1884), p. 1022) nidāni*, Middle Persian niyām, sheath for a sword, scabbard (Hinz 175; cf. Beyer Arm. Texte 633).

Da 7₁₅ נָדָנָה בְּגוּאָ הֵלְלִיפ. אֶכְרִית רִיחִי: traditionally נָדָנָה (with sf.) is read for נָדָנָה. The meaning is controversial but possible interpretations include.

—A. sheath: GenAp ii: 10 נִשְׁמַתִּי לְגוֹ נִדְנָהּ my soul is in their sheath (cf. Fitzmyer Gen. Ap. 78); Bab. Talmud Sanhedrin 108a (ed. L. Goldschmidt 7: 482): חוֹזְרַת לְנִדְנָה שְׁלֵא תְהֵא נִשְׁמַתָּן that their soul should not return to its sheath; cf. also Pliny Nat. Hist. 7: 52/3 donec cremato eo inimici remeanti animae velut vaginam edemerint; Codex Venetus of the Sept. reads ἐν τῷ κολεῶν in the sheath; Theodotion has ἐν τῇ ἔξει μου (ἔξει = גְּוִיָּה body in Jdg 14, so already Gesenius Thes. 854b; Lebram has covering).

—B. cj. :: Sept. ἐν τοῦτοις, Vulg. in his corresponding to Arm. בְּגוֹ דְנָה or בְּגוֹ דְנָה (see Plöger KAT xviii: 102nd.104) “about that”, so ZüBi;

—a. similarly בְּגוֹ דְנָה (cf. JArm. בְּגוֹ/גוֹ protection), בְּגוֹ preposition (see Schäder OLZ 41 (1938), 593ff :: Brockelmann, OLZ 42 (1939), 666) “on account of that” (on which see BHS; Bauer-Leander BArm. 219k; Bentzen 50).

—b. בְּגוֹן דְּנָה, cf. JArm. בְּגוֹן; Sam. (Ben Ḥayyim Literary and Oral Tradition 2: 611); Syr. gawnā (Brockelmann Lexicon 109a); NeoSyr. gāwā (Maclean 45a-b); Mnd. gauna colour, sort, coming from Persian (Drower-Macuch Dictionary 75a; Nöldeke Mand. Gramm. 152). The meaning of the prepositional phrase בְּגוֹן דְּנָה is “for that reason”.

The correct interpretation must be the first one (A), sheath, meaning covering, meaning body; NRSV: as for me my spirit was troubled in me (margin: troubled in its sheath); REB: my spirit within me was troubled. The cj. is not necessary. †

*עָרָה: the same in Heb.

It should be first noted that the basic meaning of the vb. (the root) according to Akk. and Arb. (see HAL 834; HALOT 881) is “to be naked”, and from this there develops the causative idea of “to uncover, pour away, empty out”, and in the adj. and sbst. also the idea of cold and coldness.

—1. JArm. עָרָא af. to empty out (Dalman Wb. 321b); Sam. עָרִי to be naked (Ben Ḥayyim Literary and Oral Tradition 2: 546); Syr. adv. 'aryat naked (Brockelmann Lexicon 548a); Mnd.
